WASHINGTON (AP)—A joint Canadian-U.S. expedition is seeking, on bleak and desolate Ellesmere Island, the source of the great floating ice islands like the one used during the last two years as an Arctic weather base observatory.

The U.S. Air Force said Sunday one of its transport planes recently set down on the Ellesmere ice shelf the first party of a joint expedition — two Canadian scientists, an Eskimo sled driver and 10 dogs. Next year the study will be resumed in a full-scale operation by five men.

Although big ice islands—some of them several miles across—now appear to have been drifting in the Polar seas for ages, it was not until a few years ago that their existence was confirmed. First discoveries of the giant ice cubes, large enough for planes to land on, were made by USAF weather planes flying reconnaissance to the north pole.

STATION SET-UP

A weather observation station was set up two seasons ago on the biggest of the known islands, designated as Fletcher's Island, and since then personel assigned to the lonely job have been rotated on the weather assignments

Studies already made by men on Fletcher's Island and from visits to at least one other ice island indicate they probably originate along a coast. Small boulders and occasional deposits of soil frozen in the ice suggest this The thickness of the ice islands makes it apparent that they are centuries old.

Several land areas exist in the high latitudes around 80 degrees, north, from which the islands could originate, including northern Greenland, Spitzbergen and other rock island clusters, but Ellesmere, which lies to the west of Greenland and is one of the northernmost land masses in the Arctic, has seemed the probable primary source.

The scientists now on Ellesmere Island are Geoffrey Hattersley-Smith, a glaciologist in the Arctic section of the Canadian defence research board, and Robert A. Blackadar, staff member of Canada's geological survey.

St. Laurent Continuing Pressure On United States

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent has put new, though gentle, pressure on the United States to speed up a start on the St. Lawrence seaway.

In a report to Parliament on talks with President Eisenhower, he suggested Saturday the possibility of Canada building her own power and navigation works on her own side of the river in the event of unfavorable U.S. action.

Mr. St. Laurent indicated an all-Canadian power-navigation job is unlikely.

But his House statement, immediately after his return from a Washington trip, appeared to be another step in the pressure Canada has been putting on the U.S. with a view to starting the $750,000,000 project.

FOLLOW-UP

Observers thought it was a follow-up to moves in Washington 10 days ago by Transport Minister Chevrier, who suggested there that Canada and the U.S. each could build its own seaway and that Canada might start advance work on downriver parts of the seaway in Canadian territory before Washington gives approval to the job in the international section.

Prime Minister St. Laurent also said Saturday that he has been informed that an application for a bond guaranteeing against heavy damages will be filed against any anti-seaway interests who may try to block in the U.S. courts the carrying out of an expected U.S. decision favoring a start.

The decision is due shortly from the federal power commission, and it is expected to be challenged by seaway opponents. Predictions in Washington are that such challenges could hold up a seaway start until at least 1955.

Another facet of the changing seaway picture was brought out in Washington by Mr. St. Laurent when he indicated at a press conference that Canada wants the International Rapids part of the seaway in Canadian territory whether or not the U.S. comes in on a joint deal.

NOT CONVINCED

Mr. St. Laurent told correspondents in Washington he is not convinced that it would be more economical or efficient to build the navigation works on the American side of the river.

This represented a switch in the publicly-known government thinking, which up to now has been that joint Canadian-American navigation works would be built on the U.S. side because of indicated lower costs there.

Following Mr. St. Laurent's statement, a government official said later studies indicate costs would be cheaper on the Canadian side for a canal-lock system built in conjunction with the joint power project. For that part of the system, according to officials here, the cost might be around $106,000,000 for a U.S. canal and $10,000,000 or more less for a canal in Canadian waters.

Considerable study also has been given here to the possibility of an all-Canadian power and navigation development.

An official study has been made on it and it has been found that Canada could develop on this side of the International Rapids between 600,000 and 800,000 horsepower of hydro against the 1,100,000 this country would get under the Ontario-New York plan now proposed.

INVOLVES CO-OPERATION

However, any such scheme would involve U.S. co-operation in some form, since it would inevitably affect river water levels. For that reason it would have to go before the international joint commission that regulates the use of boundary waters.

In the Commons, Mr. St. Laurent referred to this plan only as an alternative to an unfavorable power decision by the FPC.

"We could," he said, "develop a portion of the potential in the international section, and we might build a canal on our own side.

"But we would be losing for Ontario and the Ontario hydro commission almost half the potential that can be developed if there is a dam that stretches from one shore to the other shore."

Loses Life In Rescue

MIDLAND (CP)—A Czech immigrant lost his life Sunday saving a 12-year-old boy from drowning. Albert Nakladal, 42, saw Morley Dejardins fall into the harbor water from a raft. He plunged in and several hundred feet from shore found the half-drowned boy. Nakladal towed him to shallow water, set the boy on his feet and then collapsed. His body was recovered 40 minutes later, but attempts to revive him failed.

FESTIVAL EXTRAS

Two extra treats are in store for Tuesday evening's Peterborough Kiwanis Music Festival audience. Adjudicator John Russell, who is a well-known pianist in England and has broadcast many times on the British Broadcasting Company, will give a half hour piano recital during the festival session Tuesday evening. The second treat will be mass choir singing under the direction of Adjudicator George Heath-Gracie. Following the church choir class, the choirs entered will be brought back to sing together under the adjudicator's direction.

Five Women Upset Service

HALIFAX (CP)—James Cain explained it to Magistrate R. E. Inglis this way: He was singing bass in a church duet and he didn't do a very good job. So five women in the congregation started to laugh.

The women, answering charges of disturbing a religious service, said they couldn't help laughing. Besides, others in the congregation had joined in.

Church usher Bernard Kane admitted the singing did sound "kind of funny." He complained that secretary Peter Downey, who laid the charges, stomped out of the hall taking the program with him.

"Everything went kind of flat then," said Kane. "If he had left the program behind we could have continued."

The magistrate reserved judgment for two months and asked the women to co-operate in the meantime.

De Laval Gets Holiday

DeLaval employees will celebrate the Coronation on June 2 with a four-day holiday weekend beginning May 29. Andrew Purdon, general manager of the company, said today the plant would close down the night of May 29 and re-open June 3. Coronation Day would be a paid holiday for the plant's employees. DeLaval is the second city firm to announce its plans for the Coronation. CGE has already announced its intention to give employees a paid holiday.

Packers Union Contributing To Help Strikers

Every Canadian local in the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL) is prepared to back striking members to the limit, William Gunn, a past president and member of the executive of Local 293, reported Sunday.

Mr. Gunn spoke to a meeting of striking Quaker Oats Co. production workers in the Labor Centre hall Sunday on his return from the biennial meeting of District 10, UPWA, in Winnipeg last week.

A central strike fund has been set up by the UPWA with the monthly per capita levy of $1.35 from each of the approximately 12,000 dues-paying members. This means that more than $16,000 will be available as needed each month to a total of about 780 strikers at Quaker Oats Co. plants in Peterborough and Saskatoon and the Swift Co. plant in Stratford.

PLEDGE SUPPORT

Mr. Gunn told Sunday's meeting that staff representatives of the union from across Canada pledged their support and will supply whatever money is needed each week to run the three strikes successfully until satisfactory settlements are reached. A collection from the 106 delegates to the convention netted $141.50 for the strike fund.

It was one of the largest conventions of flour and cereal workers in years, Mr. Gunn said. There are 24 mills organized now and others waiting to be certified.

Alf Barber, president of Local 210 of the UPWA, representing workers at the Canada Packers plant in Peterborough, attended the convention with Mr. Gunn.

100th Birthday Will Turn On Hydro At Farm

On his 100th birthday, Thursday, May 21, William O'Brien, of Emily township, will turn the switch that inducts his home into a new Hydro-Electric power circuit in his neighborhood.

Peterborough division of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission is arranging a minor ceremony for the occasion of Mr. O'Brien's centenary. That gesture of respect and goodwill refutes the notion that business is unconcerned about sentiment. Probably there is far more attention to sentiment than business gets credit for.

At any rate, R. H. Aspinall, Hydro manager in this area, mentioned recently Mr. O'Brien's anniversary in longevity, and the Downeyville community is also aware of it.

STRINGING WIRES

The O'Brien home is two miles east of Downeyville. Along that concession line a Hydro crew is stringing wires that should reach the home of Emily's elder citizen before his birthday. Extension of electricity into rural communities continues from season to season, and is now approaching the farm home of William O'Brien.

Friends of his in that neighborhood report that he is in good health, considering his one hundred years of living, and attended church at Downeyville on Sunday.

A 35-CENT STRAW HAT held by Johnston Blakley of Cottesloe Corners that he used with dispatch Sunday afternoon saved his barn from being burned by a fire that was believed to have been started by firecrackers. With the hat that he bought Saturday night, he managed to beat down the flames and held them in check until help arrived.

1,000 Men Fight Fires In Ontario, District Has One

OTTAWA (CP)—More than 1,000 men are fighting five major forest fires raging out of control today in the bushlands north and northwest of here while another 500 are battling a dozen smaller fires.

A number of district roads have been closed because of the fires. For a time it was feared that traffic on the trans-Canada highway north of Pembroke, Ont., would have to be stopped but a shift in the wind drove flames at least temporarily in the other direction.

In the Peterborough district there was only one small fire. In Methuen township Sunday morning north of Kosh Lake lightning ignited a tree, but it was quickly spotted from the nearby fire tower and squelched before it could make any headway. The advancing green foliage is slowly lessening the danger in this part of the province.

The five serious outbreaks are at Aylen Station, Ont., 50 miles northwest of Pembroke, at Lake Cleaver, about 60 miles northwest of Ottawa, at Val Limoges in the same area, at the Coulonge river watershed, near Fort Coulonge, Que., 70 miles northwest of here, and at the Black river watershed, 35 miles northeast of Fort Coulonge.

About 1,500 acres have already been destroyed near Aylen station with firemen reporting the blaze "completely out of control." The front is about five miles long.

EIGHT-MILE STRETCH

A section over eight miles long and from two to three miles wide has been burned at Lake Cleaver and at Val Limoges. Fire jumped a small lake which firemen were hoping would contain it and is raging on a front five to seven miles in length. Both these blazes have been reported out of control.

At the Coulonge river watershed the fire is burning along a 10-mile front and spreading rapidly. Firemen report they are unable to hold it. The fire at Black river watershed is blazing along a similar front.

Smaller outbreaks are reported in the same areas as the major fires with the largest of these burning near Sand lake, some 60 miles north of Ottawa.

Others have been spotted at Allumette Island and Gibson lake in the Pembroke district, near the big blaze in the Fort Coulonge area, and scattered in heavy bushlands around Maniwaki, Que., 90 miles north of here.

More than 300 men, 180 of them from army station at Petawawa, Ont., have gone into action at the Aylen station fire, which first raced towards the trans-Canada highway, then veered away as the wind shifted.

Ottawa Does Sailors Out Of $1,350

ABOARD HMCS MAGNIFICENT (CP)—The Canadian government is about to do 3,000 sailors out of $1,350, but the sailors may get their own back on their return from the Coronation.

The navy purchased about £45,000 sterling for the four ships of its Coronation squadron on the free New York market at $2.75 to the pound. For a few days, the big demand for sterling by the navy threatened to boost the New York market.

The navy needs the sterling to supply the 3,000 sailors of the Coronation squadron with money before they go ashore next week at Portsmouth. The navy will sell sterling to the sailors at the pegged Canadian rate of $2.78 to the pound, thus making a profit of three cents on the pound or roughly $1,350. This profit goes to the federal government.

The navy explains this is an accidental profit and that if the exchange rate for the pound goes up in the month that the squadron is in England, the sailors may get as much as $2.80 or $2.82 on their pounds when they trade them in for dollars on the homeward journey.

Make New Attempt

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain today announced she is sponsoring another attempt to bring the big powers together to agree on a peace treaty for Austria.

The long stalemated negotiations are rated as one of the top European issues dividing Russia and the West. Selwyn Lloyd, under-secretary for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons today that Britain—current chairman of the negotiations—has proposed a further session of the deputies for May 27 in London.

Admits Joyriding Man Jailed 3 Months

Pleading guilty to taking a motor vehicle without the owner's permission, James McKeough, of Toronto, was sentenced to three months definite and one indefinite in Magistrate's Court this morning. The charge was laid Sunday after the accused "borrowed" a pickup truck from a Burleigh Falls service station.

When stopped, McKeough had appeared to be in a stupor as the result of drinking and in court blamed his troubles on alcohol. Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw recommended the defendant be sent to Mimico for the "cure" and Magistrate Philp complied.

"CABBIT" — Mrs. Norm Weiler, of St. Petersburg, Fla., has a new pet, but she's not sure what it is. The animal has the head and shoulders of a cat, and the body of a rabbit, while its voice is half growl, half meow. Mrs. Weiler, who adopted the creature when it wandered into her yard recently, says it hates fish, loves cabbage and roast veal.

GETTING READY

Pickerel fishermen, in preparation for the opening of the season on Friday at 12.01 have been busy netting quantities of bait minnows at the various lock dams on the Trent, especially the Lower Locks in the South End. Ideal conditions are expected for the opening, if the current cold wave from Northern Ontario doesn't come any further south.

Young Singers Win Praise Of Adjudicators

"This is one of the most interesting classes my colleague and I have ever adjudicated," George Heath-Gracie, English adjudicator said about the baritone class at Saturday evening's session of the Peterborough Kiwanis Music Festival.

The adjudicator expressed surprise at the number of young singers (eight) in this class for baritones under 21 years of age.

"It is most unusual and gratifying," he said. "Thank goodness the young men in this district are doing some singing. This is a splendid example of the outcome of the magnificent educational system you have in this country which includes music in its curriculum."

Ronald Swain of Little Britain placed first in this class with 85 marks. Second place went to Francis Taylor, Lindsay (83 marks) and third place to Keith Lee, Lindsay (82 marks).

TENORS TOO

The same enthusiasm was expressed by Adjudicator John Russell in his remarks about a tenor class which followed.

"Tenors are at a premium," he said. "Rarely do you see such a flourishing group of young tenors in a festival."

Toronto boy soprano, David Robert Willis, returned to the Peterborough festival Saturday night to again be awarded high marks and praise from festival adjudicators.

Mr. Heath-Gracie called the voices of this boy and another young Toronto soloist, George Potton, "real English cathedral voices."

"These boys have been trained not only with skill, they have had guidance of an extremely high order. Their singing is done with the utmost ease and is highly artistic in every way."

The Toronto soloists were the only contestants in two classes—66 and 65. Robert Willis received 87 marks in both classes and George Potton 84 and 83.

ADJUDICATOR PERFORMS

One of the highlights of the evening was an impromptu piano performance by Adjudicator John Russell, who played Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata, following a contestant's performance. He also played in a duet performance of the Hungarian Dance No. 5 by Brahms, with another contestant.

Mr. Russell has broadcast many times as a pianist with the home service of the BBC in England and his performances Saturday night were much appreciated by the festival audience.

Another highlight of the evening was the final class (class 8—service club choirs) in which the Junior Farmers' choir and the Kiwanis Club choir were the two contestants. Both choirs were praised by Mr. Heath-Gracie. The first choir received 170 marks for their two selections, and the second choir 169 marks.

The comedy included in the Kiwanians' performance was hilariously enjoyed by the audience as were the equally hilarious remarks of the adjudicator.

The high marks for the day, 88, went to Mrs. W. J. Bingham, soprano, of Norwood, for her singing of "How Beautiful Are the Feet," by Handel, and to Karen Wood, Peterborough, in class 137, piano solo, under 11 years, Minuet, by Brown.

Following this piano class, which took place Saturday morning, Mr. Heath-Gracie made some interesting remarks about children performing in public.

MADE NERVOUS

"Any child that is nervous is generally made so by teacher or parent," he said. "The natural child is completely reliable in such a situation. I refuse to believe children are nervous when not influenced.

"I would like to warn everybody about this," he continued. "If you show apprehension it will easily be transferred to the child. Don't distort a child's idea of what public performance means. The art of performing should be like the art of meeting people. There should be no fear. Canadian children meet people with ease and confidence. This same ease should also be present when they are performing."

The adjudicator also praised what he called, "The obviously good teaching going on here." "There is no bad teaching going on here," he said. "Your children are being well looked after. There is obviously very great care being taken with them."

The results of Saturday's sessions are as follows:

Beats Out Fire With Hat Saves Barn

Boys' Firecrackers Believed Started Blaze At Cottesloe

COTTESLOE (Staff)—A premonition that some small boys were having too much fun with lighted firecrackers around his barn on Sunday afternoon sent Johnston Blakely out to look about.

He found a fire had started in the north-west corner of his barn in an empty hay mow.

He grabbed a new straw hat, purchased Saturday night at the country crossroads store, and managed to beat out the flames and hold the embers in check until visitors and neighbors arrived.

STRONG WIND

A strong afternoon wind fanned the flames and it was nip and tuck whether the barn would go or not. But immediate action stamped out the peril and only some charred boards, grass seed sacks and timbers can be seen as evidence of the close call.

"This straw hat was cheap insurance," laughed Mr. Blakely this morning.

He told of another near fire in his barns a few years ago during a sudden summer thunderstorm. In a field adjoining the buildings lightning struck a grain stook and ignited it but there was sufficient rain falling to put the freak fire out.

G. CAMERON CLARK

Cameron Clark Named To GovernmentPost

G. Cameron Clark son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Clark, of Smith township, has been appointed assistant agricultural representative in Elgin county, beginning June 1. He begins his duties in Elgin shortly after his graduation from the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Clark was temporary assistant in Brant during his holidays last year.

The announcement from OAC mentions that James W. Brown, of Tiverton, also graduating at the end of this term, is returning to Durham county as assistant to Edward A. Summers, agricultural representative with office at Bowmanville.

Jaycees Start Clean-Up Drive With Parade

City aldermen, Sea Cadets, and firemen marched with members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in a Saturday afternoon comic parade on George St. to kick off the Jaycees sponsored Clean Up and Tidy Up campaign.

With fire department trucks and equipment of the board of works to help make their point the Jaycees were telling Peterborough's citizens that it was time for them to get busy with spit and polish to shine up the city.

WHEELBARROW LED

The parade formed in the city hall parking lot and marched down George St. headed by Steve Evans pushing a wheelbarrow, filled with various pots and pans and cleaning utensils, followed by the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Band, led by the band master, W/O Harold Barton. Next came the Fire Chief's car followed by the ladder truck.

Warren Kennedy shackled to Hugh Chown, represented the Boyd gang, guarded by Doug Vaisey. A pair of street cleaners pushing brooms gave the streets a quick once-over.

Then came Alderman Arthur R. Burrows, representing the mayor and Alderman Pat Anglesey, chairman of the board of works and Les Groombridge, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce rode in the Chamber of Commerce's car. The curb-sweeper and sani-van bringing up the rear.

The parade turned west on Charlotte St. and ended at the Fire Hall.

Fireman John Wilson mounted on the fire truck with his face blackened, represented the man to be cleaned up.

Sunday High 84 Degrees Weekend Top

Colder Air Said Moving South From James Bay

With a high of 84 degrees on Sunday, Peterborough shared a real foretaste of summer weather with the rest of Southern Ontario.

Although colder air was reported moving down from the northland today, there was no immediate indication of any let-up in the almost tropical weather of the weekend as district residents went back to work this morning when the thermometer registered 62 degrees at 9 o'clock.

Shirt sleeves were in fashion and most of those who had cars took to the road to head for favorite picnic spots and owners of summer cottages in many cases beat the gun on the traditional May 24 opening by a good two weeks. Traffic was continuous on the main highways. Side-roads were dusty after the short dry spell but the scenery made it well worth while as the trees put on their first full dress display of summer greenery.

Water temperatures were still not quite high enough to lure adult bathers in large numbers although there were some youngsters swimming at Lake Chemong and in the canal at the lift lock, and at Burleigh Falls. Farther north at Jack's Lake, 30 miles from Peterborough, some holiday-makers wore swimming trunks but there were no reports of anyone actually going into the water.

For the most part, water sports were confined to boating and a bit of water-skiing as some amateur mariners launched out for the first time this year.

Douro's Road Bill Decreased By $5,000

Douro road expenditure of $15,000 has been approved for subsidy by the Ontario Department of Highways. The township council applied for $20,000.

Authority to spend the road money has been embodied in a bylaw of the council. The following payments were passed: General township accounts $824.39; road accounts $1,438.13; relief accounts $289.

11 Of 32 Weekend Fatalities Drownings In Eastern Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Drownings topped the list of Eastern Canada fatalities reported during the weekend as a mid-spring warm spell sent residents flocking to lakes and rivers. Crowded highways also took their toll.

A Canadian Press survey early today showed 32 victims of violent death, including 11 drowned and two missing believed drowned, nine in traffic accidents, four in tractor mishaps, two from gun wounds, one from suffocation, one by falling, one killed by falling rock and one thrown from a railway speeder.

Ontario had 15 fatalities, Quebec 14, Nova Scotia two and New Brunswick one.

Biggest multiple death occurred when a rowboat capsized on a lake near Mont Laurier, Que., drowning five persons, three of them brothers. Dead are Leonard Lapalme, 31, of St. Johns, Que., and his wife; Albert Lapalme, 22, of Montreal, and his wife, and Maurice Lapalme, 35, also of Montreal.

DIES IN REFRIGERATOR

Three-year-old Nancy Clayton of North York was found suffocated in a refrigerator, which had been placed outside a house and was awaiting removal. The girl apparently had been playing around it and had climbed inside and the door had locked.

Other Ontario deaths: Albert Tanner, 38, of Korah township, of self-inflicted gunshot wounds; Robert Caufield, 20, of Sault Ste. Marie, of self-inflicted rifle wounds) Charles Hagerman, 25, of Brantford, in a car-transport collision; James A. Mair, Jr., 23, and his wife, Eileen, of Stevens, missing since Thursday and believed drowned while on a fishing trip at Eric lake, where dragging operations have started; Gilbert Dumouchelle, 25, of Windsor, in a car crash;

HIT BY CAR

Leslie Lalonde, 70, of Ottawa, struck by a car while riding a bicycle; Donald Dillon, 18, of Napanee, drowned while swimming in the Napanee river; Solomon Morin, 46, of Niagara Falls, struck by loose rock which fell while he was working on the hydro project; William James Patterson, 21, crushed to death by a tractor driven by his father on their farm near Moscow; Gardner Morrison, 54, of Mount Forest, run over by his tractor while he was cranking it; Albert Nakladal, 42, of Midland, drowned while saving a boy from drowning; Danny Grosdanoff, 3, of Toronto, when he darted from behind a parked car into a line of traffic; Robert McCreight, when he was thrown from a railway speeder near Marathon.

PURELY SOCIAL — Dag Hammarskjold (right), new Secretary-General of the UN, is greeted by President Eisenhower as he arrives at the White House for a courtesy call. Hammarskjold later told reporters that his discussion with the President did not touch any particular subject, such as the Korean war, and that the visit was "purely social."

Declares Engineering Knowledge Must Accompany Goods Exports

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian exporters of capital equipment would do well to have engineering and technical skills ready for sale together with their machines and plants, says a government expert.

"Exports of technical knowledge almost always go hand in hand with exports of materials and equipment," says E. C. Thorne, head of the machinery and metals section in the trade department, writing in the department's weekly publication "Foreign Trade."

Technical development in canada has progressed "amazingly" in the last 10 years, he says. But despite this, "Canada imports each year millions of dollars worth of professional engineering services."

The reason is almost entirely a lack of knowledge of factory processes and of design and development of large production machinery.

FIRMS COMPETENT

Mr. Thorne says Canadian firms are as competent as any to plan and build industries in certain fields—pulp and paper, hydro power, base metal mining, canals and transportation and harbor terminals.

However, to compete in the export market in other fields, Canadian firms would do well to consider a partnership of different types of businesses which could plan, build and perhaps even operate factories in foreign countries.

"Foreign inquiries for plant equipment seldom include prepared drawings and specifications" Mr. Thorne writes.

"Often they originate in countries without facilities for design and development, and the pattern of the tender calls for not only the sale of blueprints and economic and engineering surveys, but the shipment of tailored plants and machines, erection, supervision in initial operation, and the training of foreign experts."

OTHER EXAMPLES

Mr. Thorne points to other countries which have capitalized on "know-how" — the United States which exports more than $500,000,000 worth of technical knowledge each year, and the United Kingdom which developed the jet aircraft engine and receives "substantial royalties" from countries making the engines under licence.

In some cases, he writes, Canadians must be prepared to finance exports of capital goods and engineering services.

But once technical knowledge is sold, it brings further returns in recurrent orders for products, spare parts, replacements and additional equipment.

Given Long Sentences

BERLIN (Reuters)—Three former officials of East Germany's state sportswear organization have received long prison terms for sending Alpine boots to seashore resorts and bathing suits to mountain villages, the Red newspaper Freiheit, said Sunday. The sportswear enterprise was dissolved by the government last year.

Gadget Helping Doctors Check Pilots' Condition

By RENNIE TAYLOR

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Flight surgeons now have a way of watching by radio the heart and brain action, breathing and temperature of pilots aloft.

Any dimming of pilot alertness can be detected so quickly aground that the doctor will know about it before the flier himself is aware that anything is wrong.

The doctor can warn the flier by radio and perhaps prevent a crack-up. But even if the warning is too late, the physician still has a record of what happened and may use it to work out ways of preventing a recurrence.

Since aviation now is in the transition between propeller flight and thrust (jet and rocket) flight, the machine will be of extreme importance in determining how men can endure and survive rocket transportation much faster than the speed of sound.

The complicated device, developed by a navy medical office, was demonstrated openly for the first time Sunday. It will be a star exhibit at the world meeting of the Aero Medical Association, opening today.

Father of the complicated instrument is Cmdr. Norman B. Barr, head of the aviation division of the navy medical research institute at Bethesda, Md.

Basically it is a combination of some well-known medical instruments, a couple of extremely sensitive temperature measuring devices and an ultra-high frequency radio transmitter.

The pilot has to be "wired" for radio. He has a couple of wires running outward from metal plates plastered to his skull, three others from the surface of his chest near the heart, and two or more extending from other parts of the body.

These leads run to a cigar-box sized radio transmitter in the plane. This sends the radio signals to a ground receiver which is hooked up to the recording devices. They include a brain wave machine, a heart action recorder or electrocardiograph, and temperature and which keeps tab on heat, cold and the breathing of the pilot.

Trying Many Types Of Fish Defence Against Starvation

WASHINGTON — Seafood is playing an increasingly important part in man's diet and it may one day be his ultimate defence against hunger.

Although fish are high in proteins and vitamins, the food resources of the water that covers most of the world's surface have only been partially explored, reports the National Geographic Society. As never before, science, government and industry are teaming up to exploit this vast reservoir of food.

One such exploration is a study of pelagic (ocean-going) fishes being conducted by the National Geographic Society and the Marine Laboratory of the University of Miami at Coral Gables, Florida. The investigators hope to discover the hitherto unknown spawning grounds of certain valuable food fishes, and to trace migration paths.

SUCCESS WITH ROSEFISH

Commercial fishermen some years ago achieved a spectacular success when they decided to market rosefish in the United States. Until 1934, this small, big-eyed fish of the Atlantic Ocean was regarded by deep sea trawler crews as marine trash, and was thrown overside when it came up in hauls of wanted varieties.

Similarly, swordfish was all but unknown outside of New England until after World War I. Fishermen cursed it as a smasher of nets and a destroyer of marketable varieties of fish. Florida and the West Indies once easily supplied American demands for the clawless rock lobster. Now the spiny creatures are also shipped in from Cuba, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand.

Since 1948, East Africans have been kippering a strange fish with an elephantine snout found in deeper parts of Lake Victoria. The British have consumed a lot of steak cut from the whale, a seagoing mammal, since the last war, and they have also commenced eating canned snoek, a barracuda-like inhabitant of South African waters.

BALK AT EELS

Prejudice based on aesthetics has much to do with seafood consumption. Folks who will eat crabs and oysters balk at eels, which are fish—not snakes—and highly nourishing. Some will eat diamondback terrapin, but not snapping turtle. Sometimes commercial trickery makes prejudice look foolish.

In many parts of the world, people eat Cuban cod, fish-and-chips or "dry-salt fish," little dreaming it is shark. A man may enjoy his plate of "scallops" just as much when it is chunks cut from the wings of a skate or ray as when it is really scallop. Barracuda may masquerade as "deep sea trout."

Portuguese delight is a dish of black scabbard, an ugly ocean fish with a fin all along the top of its body. Venezuelans and Brazilians eat buco, a lungfish which lives rolled in a ball of clay during dry seasons.

In the absence of prejudice, most things from the water are delicious. A Maryland Eastern Shoreman will testify that the tiny oyster crab, eaten alive, is a rare tidbit, but the same Marylander turns up his nose at steamed soft clams, beloved in New England.

ACCUSED—Russell Tongay, 36, shown leaving a Miami, Fla., courthouse, was charged with the murder of his daughter, Kathy, a five-year-old swimming star who died suddenly after a swimming lesson. Police said that the child's death resulted from a brutal beating.

They presented a pair of boudoir lamps and several other gifts. A large cake, lettered "With best wishes to Betty and John" was a feature of the lunch hour.

Lawn Chair Draw Won By Miss J. McMeekin

Girls of the Edith Carleton Chapter, IODE, held a lovely May Time Tea Saturday afternoon in the YWCA Green Room.

At this event the draw was made for an aluminum frame lawn chair on which tickets have been selling recently, and the winner was Miss Josie McMeekin, the chapter member who was responsible for the attractive tea room decorations. Mrs. Ian McRae made the draw just at close of the tea, at the invitation of regent Mrs. Graham Donald.

Mrs. Donaldson was assisted in receiving the guests by past regent Miss Mary McRae.

The decorations included bouquets of daffodils and unique arrangements of flowers around the room, and the table was centred with a bouquet of the various spring flowers in pastel shades, arranged in a small silver bowl. Pink and green candle tpaers highlighted the dainty effect.

Mrs. L. R. Bissett, mother of Mrs. Donaldson, and Miss Mary Medd, regent of Municipal Chapter, poured tea the first hour, and Dr. Agnes K. Moffatt and Mrs. W. Gordon Hall, who have assisted the Chapter in the past year, presided for the second hour.

The tea was convened jointly by Miss Beverley Martyn and Miss Edith Miller, and they were assisted by several mothers in preparing the sandwiches and cakes and arranging the plates. Servers were Miss Dianne Jordan, Mrs. C. W. Stevenson, Mrs. David Addyman, Mrs. R. Moucks and Miss Wanda Deyell.

Mrs. P. Brockenshire was selling tickets on the chair and she was also the convener of the bazaar tables. The candy table was attended by Miss June Deller, Miss Flinda Simmons and Miss Beverley Goodman and the home baking by Miss Adele Miller and Mrs. D. Barrett. Miss Sheila Briggs was in charge of the apron table which offered some new and different styles in this household necessity.

Convener of the sale of tea tickets was Miss Rosemary Parker and she took tickets at the door.

Catholic Nurses Attend Service At I.C. Church

Re-dedication devotions to commemorate the nurses' annual National Memorial Day, were held for the Roman Catholic nurses in Immaculate Conception Church on Sunday evening. About 70 nurses attended.

The Rev. Joseph O'Sullivan delivered a sermon in which he spoke of the nursing profession as one closely allied with the medical profession and emphasized the point that the good Catholic nurse, in conscientious discharge of her duty, can exert a great spiritual influence which gives her a special place in seeking the greatest welfare of suffering humanity.

He spoke of Christ as the Divine Physician and of the great solicitude he always had for the sick. Christ should be their example of zeal, devotion and compassion he said. Father O'Sullivan told the nurses "When in doubt, ask yourselves the question 'What would Christ do?' and the answer will not be difficult."

"In this materialistic age," he reminded the nurses, "the spirit of self-sacrifice is most necessary to the nursing profession." He asked them to be more fervent in their devotion to Mary, Mother of Christ, and to do their best to imitate her virtues.

A benediction of the Blessed Sacrament followed the sermon.

The Rev. J. Greenan and the Rev. L. Leahy were in the sanctuary.

Refreshments were served by the Sisters of St. Joseph at the nurses' residence afterward.

Housewife Studies Engineering, Works At Home

EDMONTON (CP)—A young Edmonton housewife is working out the problem of a home-making mother and a university engineering student at the same time.

Mrs. Reva Stilwell, the former Reva Sheinin of Calgary, has a six-month-old son, David Shane, and is a student in civil engineering at the University of Alberta. Her husband, Bill Stilwell, is a law student.

Mrs. Stilwell vowed she would be a career woman and a wife and mother too. She continued classes after her marriage and last spring received a B.Sc. degree in physics.

Following the arrival of David Shane last October, friends thought she would forget her ambition to be a civil engineer.

Since January she has been attending lectures and doing field survey work with male engineering students. Next year she will complete some more required subjects and the following year she will enroll in third-year engineering.

Both Bill and Reva feel it is all right to leave David Shane with relatives during the day while she is attending classes. In the holiday months she can spend the full day with her young son.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Male Cook Suggests Mary Change

Today I am giving you, without any deletions, a letter I received from an earnest and cultured gentleman.

When I consider that I wonder all the time when the axe is going to fall on my tender neck for being a crusader of eating for health, I wonder how far "Male Cook" thinks I should go.

Being a born health crank—please notice I said crank—I am often embarrassed when guests at our home have no choice but to eat whole wheat bread—if they eat bread at all—and to eat salads—if they want to have enough, and to eat fresh fruits for dessert. Of course, they don't have to accept my invitations,—but they always do.

Here is "Male Cook's" letter:

DEAR MARY: I enjoy reading your column. I think you are using up all of your energy trying to answer a number of needless requests. I have read many letters and they all love you, admire your courage, and urge you to continue wearing yourself out in order to satisfy a number of people like millions who are digging their graves with their own teeth

I know you are sincere in your work, anyone could tell that by the pains you take to try and give each request their recipe for some particular food they want. I wish you would please pause for a moment and ask yourself the question: How many years am I taking from their lives by supplying them with such rich food.

I would like very much to see you make a change in your programme and try to teach the public the value of foods. I would like you to show them why we should eat certain foods in order to keep our bodies healthy. I have learned the hard way. I am happy to say it was not too late to change my ways.

I would like to make a comparison to bring out my point Take an automobile. We all know they need care and attention. We see that our car is looked after regularly and the results are satisfying. Now let's take our bodies. We need same attention as our cars, proper fuel, lubrication, and washing. I think you will agree with me if we did this there would be less sickness and we would not need to keep building hospitals to house and care for the sick.

I realize you have a job to do and must say you are doing it well so far as passing out recipes for food goes. I might also add you are making many women lazy. They lean on you, become careless. They think, oh well just write Mary she will put it in again. Then I have read so many foolish requests, such as just yesterday a woman wrote in "What do I do with leftover meat?" If I was a married woman I certainly could not let anyone know I was that helpless. I think good cooks must be ready and willing to stand on their own feet and learn to cook from experience. No woman can ever be a good cook without imagination. Now if she has this she could sit down and imagine what she would do with leftover meat and BINGO a new dish would be born.

True I am a man, but I can cook with any woman. I wanted recipes and I have collected over 50,000. I never have to write anyone as I saw the need and was willing to spend time and energy. . . Now I know you are thinking if I had my way you would soon be looking for a new job. I do not wish this, but I think you could do wonders with a column teaching people the value of food, how much we need each day and what we should eat. After all "We are what we eat." . . . I hope you will forgive me if I have gone too far. Please give it some thought. You know what I am saying is right. Your position tells me you understand food, also what reaction it has on the body, and could do a wonderful job teaching the people how to live right. Let's hear from you as this is only a friendly discussion. —Male Cook

I want to start off the friendly discussion by saying cooks have to be born with imagination. It is not something you acquire or learn.

I'll tell you what I will do "Male Cook". If you care to write to me again outlining the eating principles you subscribe to I will print your letter and what's more bolster it with my blessing. Fair enough? Incidentally I live in your home town. Would you share a few of the 50,000 recipes with us?

DOROTHY DIX:

Wives Should Try To Please Husband

DEAR MISS DIX: Do you think it's wrong to spoil a husband? I love doing things to please Michael, though I know he could very well do them for himself. I think more marriages would succeed if wives were more concerned with pleasing their men, than with demanding attention for themselves.

BETSY.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You certainly have a point Betsy. Of course, the term "spoiling" is subject to various interpretations to give in to a man on every count, just to keep peace or to try to please him when a mean dispostion will never be assuaged, is ridiculous. But your attitude of giving care and attention to an appreciative mate, whose love for you increases with your coddling, is above reproach.

CONDUCIVE TO HAPPINESS

It's natural to want to wait on those we love, give them extra attention, show affection. It's also natural to want like treatment in return, and the happiest marriages are those in which both husband and wife spare no effort in mutual demonstrations of tenderness.

Your friends who have neither the will nor the time for devotion may laugh at you for your efforts, but pay them no heed. You're on the right track, as your happiness proves clearly. A man whose home is chock-full of warmth won't be as likely to wander as the one who comes home to a cold hearth and a chilly wife. The prospect of a heartfelt welcome and an appetizing dinner will turn a man's steps homeward; an empty house, a hurried greeting, or a hasty, ill-prepared meal may send him to the nearest tavern.

Keep up your "spoiling," Betsy, and may more women follow your example.

DEAR MISS DIX: Can you suggest any way in which an arthritic person can make money at home writing? I would like such work as addressing envelopes or doing original writing.

MRS. J.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The thing that most impressed me with your letter was your lovely handwriting. It's the penmanship that would be eminently suitable for addressing wedding invitations and the like. You live in a large city and should be able to make contacts for this type of work. Go through the classified pages of your telephone book, look up wedding consultants and write to them, offering your services. You might also consult the engagement notices in this paper, contact the bride's mother and offer to take on the job of addressing envelopes. Commercial firms do not have much of this work to farm out, so your best approach would be through social channels.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My bachelor brother insists on taking my little boy out. If I refuse, he stops bringing presents. What makes bachelors so selfish? Why don't they get married and have children ot fheir own?

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Most mothers would be very happy to have a generous uncle at hand. Why do you resent your good fortune? Some men just aren't prepared for the restrictions of matrimony. It's far better for them to face the fact and remain single, than to marry and strain at the leash. Perhaps the companionship of your little boy may some day change his uncle's mind about single blessedness.

6—In Memoriam

MILLER—In loving memory of mother, Mrs. William Miller, who passed away May 11, 1950.
O happy hours we once enjoyed
How sweet their memory still
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Ever remembered by Myrna and Earl.

MILLER—In loving memory of our sister, Greta (Northey) Miller, who was suddenly taken from us, May 11, 1950.
—Ever remembered by Laura, Myrtle and families.

MOORBY—In loving memory of William Moorby who passed away suddenly May 11, 1948.
—Sadly missed by his loving wife, son Donald and step-daughter Carrie.

NICHOLLS—In loving memory of our mother, Mrs. Steve Nicholls, who passed away, May 11, 1932.
And while she lies in peaceful sleep,
In memory we shall always keep.
—Ever remembered by daughters, Mrs. Albert Orr, Mrs. Robert Fawcett, Mrs. Gerald Calvert and families

SMITH—In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Sidney Ernest Smith, who passed away two years ago.
Two years have gone, no one can tell
The loss of one we loved so well.
Short and sudden was the call
Of one so dearly loved by all.
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought his death so near.
And only those who have loved can tell
The pain of parting without farewell.
—Lovingly remembered by Mother, Dad and Family.

Who Owned Beer? Story Ends Court Case

A charge of having liquor in a place other than a residence against Donald Chanbo, of 134 Park St., was dismissed in Magistrate's Court this morning. The liquor Chanbo, an army private, was supposed to own, was claimed by a second soldier, George Foster.

Chanbo was found asleep in Foster's car the early morning of May 8. In the back seat was a case of beer. After the police had taken Chanbo and the beer to the station, Foster returned to find the beer gone. He reported it to police as theft and while at the police station was shown his beer.

When Foster told his story, Crown Attorney Bradshaw asked that the charge be dropped and Magistrate Philp complied.

Former Hotelman George C. King Dies

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Former hotelman in Detroit and past president of the Ontario Motor League, George C. King, of Kingsville, died Saturday in Grace hospital Windsor, after a short illness. He was 78.

Mr. King was a son of the late Dr. Sidney King, and the grandson of James King after whom the town of Kingsville was named.

He was associated with his father in the early development of natural gas in Essex and Kent counties and later was engaged in the hotel business in Detroit. During World War I, Mr. King served with the 241st battalion and was retired with the rank of major.

At the time of his death he was a director of the Ontario Motor League.

Pilots Require Extra Hands For Helicopter

WASHINGTON— Pilots of helicopters, which are playing a vital part in the evacuation of Allied wounded from Korean battlefields and prisoner-of-war exchange camps, sometimes wish nature had given them more hands.

The man flying a "whirlybird" is busy as an organist at his console. He has two controls in his left hand, a third in his right, and a pair of pedals keeping both feet occupied. A crowded instrument panel is his sheet music.

There is as yet no automatic pilot for helicopters. Flying the rotary-winged ships calls for constant co-ordination of the multiple controls, plus complete awareness of what is going on outside the bubble cockpit.

To get off the ground, the pilot uses the "collective pitch" control in his left hand to make the whirling rotor take bigger "bites" of air. With the same hand he adjusts the throttle to supply more power and keep the rotor speed constant.

The instant the ship lifts clear, it tends to revolve like a merry-go-round in the opposite direction to the rotor. To prevent this, the foot pedals must adjust the amount of power going to the small rotor at the end of the tail boom which keeps the craft from twisting. To hover, all three controls are again adjusted until the lift just equals the machine's weight.

The "cyclic pitch lever" in the pilot's right hand is pushed in the desired direction for horizontal flight. The entire rotor tilts in the same direction or is given more lift on one side than the other and some of this lift is diverted to horizontal motion.

Power used for forward motion is subtracted from that need for lift, and the left hand is immediately busy with the throttle to make up the deficit. More power from he engine causes counter-rotation, again requiring correction from the foot pedals.

Landing is simple enough. It merely involves going through the whole procedure again—in reverse.

A valuable and extremely versatile tool, the "eggbeater" is the only aircraft that will climb vertically, hover, fly sideways and backward, and turn completely around without losing position. It is an efficient machine for aerial seeding and dusting. It brings distant airports within minutes of big city offices. In naval carrier operations, it makes possible almost instant rescue of "dunked" jet pilots.

Helicopters are expensive. The two civilian types available cost about $35,000 and $45.000 each and some $60 an hour to operate.

Face Robbery Charge

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Victor Martin, 23, of Tilbury, 25 miles east of here, and John Cox, 24, no fixed address, were charged Saturday with robbery with violence. They were remanded to May 12 on $5,000 bail each. The two were charged in connection with an attack Friday night on Gabriel Chauvin, 34, who was beaten and robbed by the men.

In Control Of Car While Drunk Jailed 7 Days

Convicted on a charge of having care or control of a vehicle while intoxicated, Richard McConkey, of Wellington, was sentenced to seven days in jail and lost his car for three months. Additionally he was fined $15 and $2.50 on a charge of having liquor in an illegal place.

According to testimony by PC Louis Rodregue, McConkey was found behind the wheel of his car on a service station lot on April 25. At first he refused to leave the car and when he did get out, he had to grab the car door to save himself from falling.

A part bottle of whiskey was found in the car.

McConkey was said to have had trouble standing up; he kept buckling at the knees and smelled strongly of alcohol. According to PC Rodregue, his speech was thick and hardly understandable.

ADVISING MAN

Although not believing the defendant intoxicated to a major degree, James Newman, a station attendant, said he had been trying to persuade McConkey not to drive his car prior to the officer's arrival.

McConkey testified he had consumed three drinks of whiskey, straight, of about two ounces each. He disagreed with testimony that his knees buckled and he staggered at the time.

Magistrate Philp found him guilty on the charge, however, and imposed the sentence.

Two more charges of failing to produce driver's and owner's permits were dismissed.

Find No Trace Of Four Bodies

TIMAGAMI (CP)—No trace of the bodies of four men believed drowned in nearby Rabbit lake was found during the week-end when a diver searched the sunken tug White Bear in 130 feet of water.

The $30,000 vessel exploded and sank April 29 while on a trip from a mill to get a log boom in the lake about 65 miles north of North Bay. Diver Rene Lariviere of Timmins said he could find no reason why she blew up.

Believed aboard the vessel were Leslie Teske, 23, and Lionel Conroy, 18, both of Blanche, Que.; Fred Kozik, 21, of Ottawa; and Edward Hamilton, 61, of Timagami.

The diver was to go down again today. During the week-end he searched the tug's cabin unsuccessfully for the men's bodies.

The sunken tug was located Friday after a nine-day hunt. Bubbles and an oil slick were spotted from the air.

WINDSOR, England (CP)—Baker George Lewis, 70, who made thousands of cakes in 55 years in business, came out of retirement to handle orders for Coronation cakes iced in royal designs. George himself hasn't eaten a cake since he was a teen-ager.

Requiem mass for Miss Annie Elizabeth Eano, Armour Rd., who died Friday, was said today at Immaculate Conception Church by the Rev. Joseph Greenan. Graveside prayers at St. Peter's cemetery were said by the Rev. Joseph O'Sullivan.

Pallbearers were William Eano, Jack Eano, Gerald Legros, Jack Legros, Harry Primeau and Jack Primeau.

Insisted On Spanking Young Women Drivers

STOCKHOLM (AP)—A driving inspector was accused today of having refused repeatedly to issue licences to young women unless permitted to give them a spanking for mistakes they committed during their test.

Public prosecutor Ingmar Siguardsson said the inspector had tried to apply a birch branch to the traditional place for punishment in the case of at least two women, aged 24 and 23.

"He insisted they should be punished on their bare skin, or they would not be given any licence," the prosecutor stated.

The defendant will appear in court later on an assault charge.

Winged Seeds Set Style For Aircraft

WASHINGTON—Winged seeds of a climbing Indonesian squash plant helped show the way to the supersonic airplanes of today, but ironically, nature built her little gliders so well that they retarded aviation by discouraging research.

Years ago, Dr. David Fairchild, famous plant explorer, gave some two-by-six-inch Zanonia macrocarpa seeds to his friend, Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, says the National Geographic Society. At the time, Dr. Bell was engaged in flight research with Samuel P. Langley of the Smithsonian Institution.

Dr. Bell and Langley tried the seeds in flight and found them exceedingly stable. The stability was due to upswept wings—they call them "dihedral" wings these days—so the two men built their gliders with this characteristic. Among these early models were the Langley powered "aerodromes," now on display in the Smithsonian in Washington.

Unfortunately, all these gliders were so stable that controls, for other than steering purposes, were considered unnecessary. Hence the Wright brothers, seeking plenty of maneuverability, turned to a flat wing, very unstable but controllable. At the same time, they retained the important Zanonia principle of flexibility.

The Germans had a similar experience in the days of World War I. They built their first military heavier-than-air craft, the Taube or "Dove," with a modified Zanonia wing. It had a tail, which the Zanonia does not. It was safe in ordinary flight, but maneuvred so slowly that Allied Spads and Nieuports with straight wings, dangerous to fly, defeated it in combat.

After the first war, nothing much was heard about the Zanonia wing until the 1930's, when an Austrian scientist, Dr. Alexander Lippisch, decided to have another try with it. He built tailless gliders and all-wing powered ships with wingtip controls, the latter a workable substitute for the flexibility of the seeds.

Dr. Lippisch added the Wright principle of lateral controls to the stable Zanonia wing, and the result was a fast plane which could loop and stunt. Another Zanonia characteristic — the sweptback wing—was added to absorb the shock waves of the sound barrier. There emerged the tailless, rocket-powered German ME-163A which flew 625 miles an hour in 1941 and was the first aircraft to enter the transonic speed zone.

The list of fast aircraft using the Zanonia's principles today is a long one. Familiar examples are the Navy's Delta wing—tailless—fighters F7U and F4D, the Air Force's F-86 Sabre, the B-47 jet bomber with wings so flexible they droop when the plane is on the field, and the Russian MiG-15.

All follow principles Nature devised eons ago in the wonderful wings of a squash plant seed.

18 HORSES DIE IN FIRE

COLUMBUS, O. (AP) — Fire caused by an electrical short circuit raced through a newly-built stable at Beulah Park race track in suburban Grove City Sunday, suffocating or fatally burning 18 horses valued at $52,000.

A stable boy, Jack Chapman, 26, of Luton, Ill., was overcome by smoke as he attempted to rescue some of the terrified horses He was treated at a doctor's office.

Another stable boy, who was in the barn when the fire broke out, Kenneth Kilar, 18, of Brooklyn, N.Y., turned in the alarm. Firemen from Grove City and neighboring Jackson fought the flames and smoke for two hours before bringing the fire under control.

Gale Osborn of Olney, Ill., owner of 13 of the animals which perished, said he was in the stable feeding his horses when he heard a crackling sound and looked up to see a ball of fire on the roof of the one-storey concrete block building, completed only one week ago.

Osborn said he lost eight thoroughbreds and a stable pony by suffocation. He said four other horses were burned so severely they had to be destroyed. Eight others were rescued.

Owner Pat Mitchell of Lansing, Mich., said he lost five thoroughbreds.

Righthander Mel Duncan went all the way for Kitchener against Galt, yielding only five hits and striking out four. Terriers scored their run on singles by Ray Upper and Tex Kaiser in the sixth but Irv Ler's single, Duncan's triple and a single gave Panthers their winning margin in the seventh.

Luther Clifford and Tom McGrattan homered in succession for Brantford and Clifford later walloped a two-run triple.

CLAIMS GLIDING RECORD

POITIERS, France (AP)—Jacqueline Leroy, 28, a stenographer, Sunday claimed a world record for women gliders after covering about 251 miles. She said this is a record for a straight line to a fixed goal.

The previous record was set in 1951 by a Soviet woman, Anna Samocadova, who flew about 226 miles.

Miss Leroy took off from Chazenay-Villereux and landed at Anguleme.

Two Canadian PoWs Enjoy U.S. Countryside

TACOMA, Wash. (CP)—Two Canadian fighting men, prisoners of the Communists until a couple of weeks ago, took a spin through the spring countryside Sunday and breathed the air of freedom.

The soldiers, the only Canadians to gain their freedom under the exchange of sick and wounded prisoners of war in Korea, bunked in at Madigan Army Hospital here following a flight from California.

Anxious to get home—and soon—are Pte. Arthur J. Baker, 31, of Montreal, and L. Cpl. Paul Dugal, 20, of Quebec City.

The soldiers, after a talk to reporters limited to 10 minutes, went to hospital Saturday to get some badly-needed rest.

Sunday, they took it easy again. The doctor in their ward of the 1,200-bed hospital took them on a 2½-hours sightseeing drive before they turned in.

Baker and Dugal were the soldiers of the Royal 22nd Regiment who compiled a list of their fellow prisoners on cigarette papers to smuggle the names past their Communist captors.

When they arrived here they were greeted by Roscoe O. McIntosh who handed the soldiers a single pack of cigarettes apiece—symbolic of his debt.

Cpl. Dugal told reporters a bit about the prison-camp stay.

"Our treatment by the Chinese was fair," he said, "but the food wasn't too good. It was mostly rice. We'd eat twice a day in winter, three times in summer."

Pte. Baker told of compulsory lectures on communism, saying: "They told us how the 'big shot' capitalists were exploiting the poor people. We didn't fall for it at all."

Cpl. Dugal, leaning on a cane presented him in Japan, indicated he still has some scores to settle in Korea. "If I got the chance," he said, "I'd go back and fight again."

Parliament Racing To Get Speedy End Of Session

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament neared the finish wire today after more than five months of sittings.

The seventh session—and probably the last—of the 21st Parliament appeared due to end about Wednesday, barring unexpected delays or speedups. It started Nov. 21.

After a month of morning, afternoon and night sittings, the House of Commons still faced a fair amount of business, but the time needed to dispose of it would depend on the inclination of members to get away from Ottawa.

The House held its first Saturday sitting during the weekend and managed then to dispose of public works and health departmental estimates, though it bogged down on those of veterans affairs.

During the Saturday sitting, the Commons heard from Prime Minister St. Laurent—just back from a trip to Washington—that Canada and the United States have agreed to study the question of setting up a new joint body to settle trade grievances without the need for either country creating embargoes.

The prime minister, who conferred with President Eisenhower, said he regards this move as "quite an indication" of a desire on the part of the U. S. administration to avoid raising issues that might disturb either country

Another reference to Canadian-U. S. relations was a suggestion that Canada could build, altogether on her own, a power and navigation project in the International rapids section of the St. Lawrence river.

However, the prime minister said this was very unlikely. He expressed satisfaction with moves of the Eisenhower administration to speed up U. S. participation in the seaway.

In other House business, Health Minister Martin admitted he is not happy with the state of civil defence in Canada, but said he knows of no country that is.

UNDER REVIEW

Mr. Martin's annual departmental estimates were under review at the Saturday session. Canadian civil defence, he said, is being built along solid lines.

But, he told opposition critics, he would not want to say that if anything were to happen now the Canadian civil defence organization could take care of the kind of disaster that conceivably could happen.

The House heard John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) charge that a government agency is holding back information from Parliament. He threatened to delay prorogation until he gets the information he wants.

The agency is Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, the government's housing body, which Mr. Diefenbaker accused of holding out information on the failure of a company to complete contracts for housing at Camp Borden, Ont

Mr. Diefenbaker said he will move formally early this week for further information. If he does not get it, he suggested, he may block prorogation.

Congress Roadblocks Can Thwart Presidents Of U.S.

By CLYDE BLACKBURN

OTTAWA (CP)—Helplessness of the United States administration against road blocks that may be thrown up by Congress was emphasized in parliamentary discussions in Ottawa after Prime Minister St. Laurent's visit to Washington.

Mr. St. Laurent, in a hopeful and optimistic report of his talks with President Eisenhower, reminded the Commons that while the latter could say what he wanted to do, he could not say whether Congress would let him do it.

Speaking in the Commons Saturday, an hour after he landed by plane from a 48-hour visit with President Eisenhower and high U. S. officials, Mr. St. Laurent described a great deal of unanimity of views in the two governments.

The Eisenhower administration agreed with Canada's belief that there should be a lessening of trade restrictions between the two countries.

They agreed, as have previous administrations in Washington and Ottawa for many years, that the St. Lawrence seaway and power project should be proceeded with as a joint operation.

CONGRESS HOLDS BACK

But Congress for years has refused to authorize the U. S. administration to proceed with Canada on the power project, and it has recently imposed trade restrictions interfering with Canadian exports to the U. S.

In Canada, if Parliament rejected a major government policy, the government would resign and there would be a general election.

In the United States, where the president is elected but does not sit in Congress, and where his cabinet members hold office by appointment, Congress may reject the administration's most ardently-advocated policies and that is all there is to it.

Thus the prime minister, answering questions as to where the U. S. was going in respect of trade policies affecting Canadian exports, said:

"I am sure that not even the president could answer that question. The president would be able to say in what direction he wants them to go, but he would not be able to say in what direction the majority in Congress will really go."

GOOD ADVANTAGE

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, interjected: "That is where our prime minister has an advantage over the president, and it is a good advantage."

"The advantage," Mr. St. Laurent replied, "is in the good sense of the members of the House, and perhaps to a certain extent, in the form of our constitution."

Earlier, Gordon Graydon (PC—Peel) had touched on the same point when he said:

"One of the problems that this government and this Parliament face in dealing with the U. S. government is that it is one thing for the (U. S.) government to take a position and it is another thing for the Congress to take the same position and for that Congress to carry out the decision that is made."

J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Toronto Greenwood) commenting on the prime minister's report from Washington, said:

"We are disappointed, as he is, that he has had to be confined largely to an expression of hopes.

"Sometimes we think that the cabinet here has far too much power, but in the United States the cabinet seems to have too little. Perhaps if we can only average up it will be a good thing."

DOESN'T MEAN SUPPORT

Members of the United States Senate are elected for six-year terms. They vote as they wish without regard for loyalty to their party leader. A Republican majority in the Senate does not mean that the policies of a Republican president will be supported.

The same is true in the House of Representatives where the members are elected for only two-year terms and therefore are almost continually in an election atmosphere and extremely sensitive to the views of their constituents.

In the Canadian Parliament there is a strong tradition of loyalty to the party leader and the government leader normally has a party majority—a large majority at present.

Here the defeat of a major government policy would mean that all the House members would find themselves in a general election because the defeat would express a want of confidence in the government, which would almost certainly resign.

Ike Williams Gains Unanimous Decision

ERIE, Pa. (AP)—Ike Williams, 1952, former world lightweight champion, scored a unanimous decision over Bill Andy, 154½, of Providence, R.I., Saturday night in the feature 10-round main bout of a fight card here.

There were no knockdowns but in the eighth round Williams staggered Andy with a shot flush on the jaw. Andy came back in the ninth with a two-fisted attack that had Williams in trouble but Williams rallied in the 10th and won going away.

Fugitive Killed

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—A young driver fleeing arrest crashed his high-powered foreign automobile into another car at midnight Saturday, killing himself and two mothers visiting Indiana University for Mother's Day. The driver was identified as Michael Fairbanks, 22, grandson of the late Charles W. Fairbanks, vice-president of the United States under President Theodore Roosevelt, and son of the late Richard M. V.

Wednesday, December 15, 1948, was a cold, crisp day. I woke with some excitement and lay in my accustomed way, letting my eyes rove over the room for a little while.

Outside the birds were very active, their chirps forming a sort of descant to the deeper rumble of the traffic passing along Kensington High Street.

It was the morning of Prince Charles's christening day.

George and I had received a special invitation, personally passed to us by the Master of the Household. This was a great honor. The occasion was to be so personal that no printed invitations were issued. It was to be a "family" only.

The invitations told us to come for three o'clock. Then came another message postponing it by half an hour.

The Royal Family were to have a family lunch party and they feared it might continue a little longer than they had anticipated. They did not want to keep anyone waiting.

Normally I would enter the Palace by the Privy Purse door, which lies at the right-hand corner of the building as you look at it from the Mall. But this was a special occasion, and we were driven right through one of the centre arches into the Inner Court.

A footman, clad in scarlet coat and white silk knee breeches, came down the few steps from the Grand Entrance and opened the car door.

He gave us a pleasant smile of greeting and then directed the chauffeur where to leave the car.

✧ ✧ ✧

At garden parties or other functions there are so many cars that they have to drop their passengers and then wait outside along the Mall, from which they are summoned by loud-speaker. But there was no such crush this afternoon, and our car was allowed to wait in the Inner Court.

The Grand Hall with its crimson carpet and impressive statues is an imposing place.

That afternoon it was lined with footmen in the same splendid panoply as those at the door. I rather regretted that their powdered wigs had been abandoned before my time at the Palace.

Insted, the footmen now appear in their uniform with their hair caked with flour. I often used to wonder how this was done without also sprinkling their uniforms.

One pictures them putting their heads through a kind of stock which fits closely around their necks, while a comrade dabs them carefully with a powder puff. It must be a difficult operation, and messy to remove.

We marched along the Grand Hall and up the wide staircase, where we were met by General Sir Frederick Browning.

He smiled at us pleasantly. "The Queen wants everyone to go in and sit down," he said. "There is to be no fuss. Everything is to be as simple as possible."

Sir Frederick Browning showed us into the Gold and Silver Music Room. tI was a place we had often used for dancing classes when the Princesses were small. It has a beautiful parquet floor upon which the troupe of little girls would pirouette with rocky enthusiasm.

I remember that one day Sir Hill Child, then Master of the Household, came up to me after household lunch.

"I suppose you know, Miss Crawford," he began, "that the dancing lessons are ruining the floor in the Music Room? The parquets are springing up all over the place."

After that we had to find somewhere else to practice.

When the Archbishop of Canterbury came in, we all stood up. We seemed to remain like that for a very long time. Then he smiled and said, "I think you had better all sit down."

Presently the Royal Family entered, led by the King and Queen. We all stood up again and watched them file to their seats in front of us, closely followed by Sister Rowe carrying the baby. It was so nice to hear, as she passed, that same comforting rustle from her apron.

I was concerned when the Archbishop took the baby in the crook of his arm. It seemed a very unsafe place, as if the slightest movement would dislodge the baby. But throughout the ceremony, Prince Charles—as he became then—lay quiet as a mouse.

Even when the Archbishop poured three very ample shellfuls of water over the baby's head the Prince did not murmur.

Afterward there was a reception in one of the large drawing-rooms next door. It was nice to see several of the old retainers, including the King's nannie, who had been specially invited.

✧ ✧ ✧

The actual christening, which was most moving, had been a small, intimate affair. But there must have been two or three hundred people at the reception.

Sister Rowe carried the baby round for everyone to see. We stood by the fire, for the day was cold, talking to young Princess Alexandra, daughter of the Duchess of Kent. She is a sprightly, charming child, with a personality which will certainly make its mark.

We also spoke with the Archbishop. I told him of my fear that he might drop the baby.

"You needn't have been worried," he said genially. "I'm an old hand at christenings. I once did nine in one afternoon, and not a casualty among them."

South Africans Form New Political Party

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—South Africans Sunday formed another political party to fight the racial prejudice policies sponsored by both of the Union's major parties—the second such group in 24 hours.

The Union Federal party, in its opening statement, condemned the white supremacy programs of both the Nationalist party, led by Prime Minister Daniel Malan, and the United party led by Jacobus Strauss.

It said its main aim will be "to create in South Africa opportunities for people of all races to enjoy fullness of life and liberty under the protection of law." It also will seek to cut down excessive centralization of government.

In Capetown Saturday, the South African Liberal Association formed the Liberal party to work for political equality of opportunity regardless of race, color or creed. One of its top officials is Alan Paton, author of the best-selling novel, "Cry the Beloved Country."

CONTINUE FLIGHT

Most Union Federal party sponsors belong to the strongly anti-Malan Torch Commando, which announced Saturday it will continue to fight "undemocratic" laws launched by Malan's government.

The Union Federal party, while demanding "recognition" of all Bantus, Indians and coloreds (persons of mixed descent), did not go so far as the Liberals. It said the non-white "should be accorded a right of expression in the organs of government commensurate with his degree of civilization."

Couple Wed On Bridge

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A German immigrant and a United States soldier were married at noon Saturday on the Ambassador bridge which spans the Detroit river.

Margaret Bundlechner, 26, got a job at Metropolitan General Hospital here soon after she arrived from Germany last March. Without a visa she is unable to enter the U.S. Sgt. Henry Kuminski, 36, of Detroit, couldn't be married in Ontario because the province does not recognize his Michigan divorce.

It would have taken months for her to get a visa and just as long to clear the way for his marriage here. Sgt. Kuminski now is on 30-days leave before returning to his army station.

Judge David C. Volkes of Detroit, who performed the ceremony, instructed the bride to stand on the white line marking the international boundary mid-way across the bridge.

Following the ceremony the couple left for a weekend honeymoon in Ontario.

$4,000 Damage Done To Vehicles

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Officials of the strike-bound Windsor branch of Kingsway Transports, Ltd., said Sunday between $3,500 and $4,000 damage was done to vehicles owned by the company during the last week.

Thomas L. Huffman, Windsor terminal manager, said two trailer trucks caught fire while parked at the Ambassador bridge Friday and 18 tires on vehicles parked in the company's yards were slashed Friday night.

Fire department officials said cause of the fires was not known.

Local operations of the company have been suspended since Monday when drivers, members of local 880, Teamsters' Union, (AFL) left their jobs in what they said was protest against the firing of two employees.

2 Jewish-Born War Orphans Absent From Catholic Home

By BERNARD S. REDMONT

PARIS (Reuters) — Disappearance of two Jewish-born war orphans converted to catholicism has divided Frenchmen as bitterly as the notorious anti-Semitic Dreyfus case 50 years ago.

Robert Finaly, 12, and his brother Gerald, 11, have become the subject of stormy debates in the French National Assembly and Foreign Minister Georges Bidault is reported to have had talks with the Vatican on the matter when he visited there recently.

The boys' pictures are in the papers as often as those of the top movie stars.

The fuss began when the Catholic custodians of the orphans refused to obey a court ruling that they should hand the boys over to the care of an aunt in Israel.

PROBABLY IN SPAIN

With the boys hidden, probably in a Spanish monastery, the affair is still unresolved. Seventeen French men and women, among them six Roman Catholic priests and two nuns, were arrested in the course of the case on charges of kidnapping, arranging false identity papers or illegal border-crossing.

After the Nazis took Dr. and Mrs. Fritz Finaly, refugees from Austria, their two children were brought up by Antoinette Brun, a stout, kindly spinster of 52 who heads the Grenoble municipal nursery home.

She is the main fixture in the case and now is free on bail awaiting a criminal court decision expected to designate under which section of the criminal Code she will be prosecuted.

Miss Brun started formal adoption proceedings and had the boys baptized as Catholics. Then relatives of the boys came to light and the protracted battle over their custody began.

The courts finally ordered her to give the children to their aunt, Mrs. Hedgwige Rosner, of Israel. She refused.

CASE STALEMATED

Last January, at a crucial moment in the case, the boys vanished. "Kidnapped", say the prosecutors, "to prevent their return to their Jewish relatives."

The case now is temporarily stalemated. Passions have died down slightly and the Catholic authorities have promised to facilitate the return of Robert and Gerald to France.

But extremists on both sides have fanned the flames with angry partisan comment.

It is not clear what the boys' parents had in mind when they handed them over to the sisters of St. Paul-de-Meylan nursery home, seven miles from Grenoble, in September, 1943.

"If anything happens to us," they said, "give the children to somebody reliable to bring up."

Feb. 18, 1944, Miss Brun took the children from the Catholic institution near Grenoble, founded a century before by two Jewish converts to catholicism, and raised them as her own.

SOUGHT CHILDREN

All went well until July, 1949. Surviving relatives, after a long search, sent a representative to France to collect the children. Eighteen months later, the Finaly parents were officially declared dead and Mrs. Rosher named guardian.

Miss Brun appealed and the case went back and forth in the courts until the children were quietly moved to the Basque country near Spain. Miss Brun was arrested but refused to say where the children were.

They were located in February but moved into Spain a half-hour before the family representative arrived from Grenoble to claim them.

Attlee Finds U.S. Attitude Hindrance

Says Some Elements Do Not Want Settlement In Korea

LONDON (AP) — Clement Attlee, opposition leader in the House of Commons, charged today "there are elements in the United States that do not want a settlement in Korea."

These elements, Attlee said, want an all out war with (Communist) China and against communism in general." He also observed:

"One often wonders who is the more powerful, President Eisenhower or Senator (Joseph) McCarthy." (Rep.-Wis.).

The former prime minister, leader in the Labor Party, spoke in a Commons debate keynoted by Prime Minister Churchill's appeal Monday for a conference of world leaders aimed at peace. The Churchill appeal was supported today, in effect, by Pope Pius XII, who called for frank discussions among world leaders as "the first and indispensable condition of peace."

RED CHINA IN UN

Attlee called for the seating of Communist China on the United Nations security council—an action the United States has firmly resisted. Nationalist China holds the seat now, with the veto power.

Prime Minister Churchill intervened to say: "Not while actual fighting (in Korea) is going on."

Attlee replied: "No; soon after the armistice."

Britain's government has recognized Red China. Today's exchange between Attlee and Churchill could be interpreted as meaning both Conservatives and Labor members in Britain want the Mao Tze-tung regime represented in the UN instead of the Chiang Kai-shek government—once the Korean fighting is over.

Attlee said:

NOT MERE PUPPET

"I do not believe that China is a mere puppet in the hands of Russia. I think she will wear her communism with a difference. But I am more certain than ever that as soon as agreement (in Korea) has been reached China ought to take her rightful place on the security council."

The Labor leader expressed the view that the American constitution, with its division of power between the legislative and executive branches, creates confusion in international diplomacy.

As an indication of the differences of opinion of the two sides of the Atlantic, Washington officials have given no encouragement to the proposal for big power talks urged by Churchill Monday. Republican leaders in the Senate were cautious toward the idea. Senator William Fulbright (Dem. Ark.) urged the talks be undertaken with "a horse sense approach." Fulbright is a member of the Senate foreign relations committee.

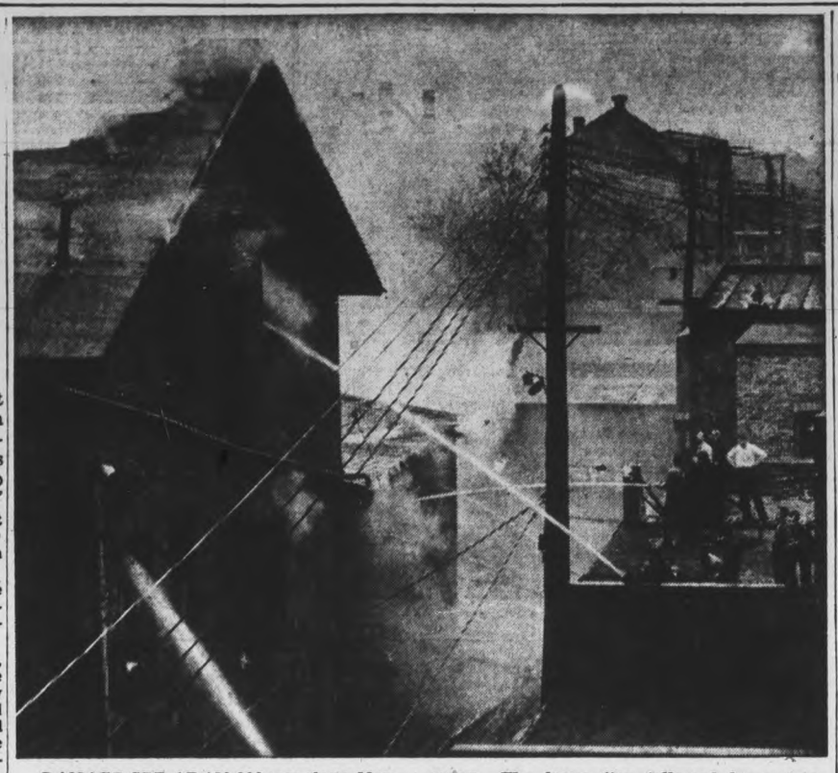
Traffic Jam Cripples Paris

PARIS (AP)—Paris was one big traffic jam today as a one-day, Communist-called strike hit the subway and bus systems.

The 24-hour stoppage was ordered by the Red-run Confederation Generale du Travail. Only 109 of 1,098 buses were operating. The subway was running at a snail's pace, with less than half the line in operation.

Non-Communist unions had refused to join the strike. Traffic crowded narrow streets as hundreds of Frenchmen drove to work or swarmed into all available taxis.

The Red union wants a general upward revision of salaries, and, until this is worked out, immediate monthly payments of 4,000 francs ($11.40).



Noted Aussie Boxer Dies After Fight

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Johnny Slockie, Australian boxer regarded as one of the country's most promising lightweights, died in hospital today after being knocked out in a fight last night.

An emergency brain operation early today failed to save his life.

He fell to the canvas in the 12th round of a bout with Dick Lowe of Melbourne and never regained consciousness.

An aborigine, Slockie, 22, was married with two children His wife said today he had been fighting ever since he left school "to get money for us to buy our home."

DAMAGE SET AT $50,000 was done Monday when fire burned out most of this Lindsay woodworking plant. Officers of the Ontario fire marshal's office are expected at the scene to investigate possibilities of arson. The large fire followed by a few hours a smaller one which did only very slight damage. The fire threatened other nearby businesses in the town's business section, but was finally brought under control. —Dent Photo

Great Canadian Actress Jean Adair Dies

NEW YORK (CP)—Jean Adair, 80, one of Canada's great character actresses, died Monday night at Beth Israel hospital.

A native of Hamilton, Ont., she appeared in more than 25 Broadway productions in the last 30 years.

Illness forced her to leave the cast of "The Crucible," a drama now playing on Broadway, 10 weeks ago.

She and Josephine Hull were the sweet and murderous old ladies in "Arsenic and Old Lace," and they repeated the roles in the screen version of the play.

As Martha, one of the weird sisters, she helped poison 12 old gentlemen nightly, much to the amusement of the millions who saw her on Broadway, on the road, and in the movie.

OTHER HITS

She starred in such other hits as "Ah, Wilderness," "On Borrowed Time," "Little Women," "End of Summer," and more lately "Bell, Book and Candle."

In "Bell, Book and Candle," Miss Adair played opposite Rex Harrison as the maiden aunt of a full-fledged witch.

Born Violet McNaughton, Miss Adair moved with her family to Kincardine, Ont., as a child and a few years later was living in Toronto. Then she went to visit a brother in Chicago, attended dramatic school there and in no time at all had made her name on Broadway.

Though she was in her early 20s when she hit New York, her first part was not that of an ingenue but as the title role in "Mother." After that she acted every conceivable type of mother on the stage. When she went to Hollywood for the first time in 1933 to star with Lee Tracey in "Advice to the Lovelorn," her part was that of the mother.

Will Likely Investigate $50,000 Lindsay Fire

LINDSAY (ENS)—Fire Chief Alex Wylie said today an arson investigator from the fire marshal's department would probably be called in to investigate a fire which did an estimated $50,000 damage Monday afternoon to the three-storey factory of J. A. Arnberg woodworking plant just off Lindsay's main street.

The fire, which raged for over two hours before being brought under complete control, damaged the premises of the Arnberg Company, now owned by "Ted" Gordon, formerly of Gordon's Boat Works, Bobcaygeon, who has been the proprietor for only a few months.

The fire was the second at the plant during the afternoon. Fire Chief Wylie, who was at the scene continuously for 15 hours until early this morning, stated the fire had started near a sawdust bin at the rear of the plant where an earlier small fire had been extinguished.

DOESN'T LOOK GOOD

"It didn't look good to me," said the chief. "I've never had to return to a fire like that in my life."

He also revised his earlier estimate of the damage from $40,000 to $50,000. Damage from smoke and flames was almost totally confined to the dry kiln at the rear of the plant and the third floor and roof. The first and second floors were badly water-soaked but hardly touched by the fire.

The plant, which employs 20 workers, produces dowel material used in candy sticks, toys and flag sticks. A large order of flag sticks for the Coronation was waiting to be filled.

Workers at the kiln first noticed the second blaze and turned in the alarm. The fire gained rapid headway through the old building and the large stores of wood for making the candy sticks helped in its spread through the three-storey main part and the two-storey addition.

Shortly after the fire was discovered, the first fire truck from Lindsay fire hall, less than 50 yards away, was on the scene. Second and third alarms to the rapidly spreading blaze brought two more trucks and all volunteers of the department to the scene. The wood in the building caused dense smoke, and a large

Remove Cheese Support Price

BELLEVILLE (CP) — Charles Heath, secretary of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association, announced today that the 30-cents-a pound price support on cheese has been removed and the product will go on the open market Friday.

He said the decision to revoke the price support agreement was reached Monday at a meeting between members of the cheese purchasing trade and a committee of cheese producers.

A Belleville cheese buyer said the action probably will result in a five or six-cent-a-pound reduction in retail cheese prices. He said the price to wholesalers will probably settle at 24 or 25 cents a pound.

Mr. Heath said he expects about 2,000,000 pounds of cheese will be offered when the exchanges open Friday. This day was decided on to give factory salesmen time to become familiar with sales methods.

He said price supports were removed because of "government reaction to a producer request for a 30-cent floor price."

He said the federal government offered to continue last year's guarantee of an initial floor price of 24 cents a pound, but that the Ontario government did not favor an additional six-cent credit such as it guaranteed last year.

He quoted Ontario government officials as saying the co-operative way of selling cheese was not workable.

Plan No Raise For Civil Service

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent today said in the Commons the government has no intention at present of making a general increase in salaries of about 140,000 civil servants.

Replying to George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, he said that civil service salaries are under constant study to make sure that all groups in the public service are being treated with equal care.

Mr. Drew asked if the government had come to any final decision of the recent requests by the civil service for wage increases.

Mr. St. Laurent recalled that Finance Minister Abbott said recently in the House that the government has no intention of introducing further supplementary estimates which would contain provision for civil service pay raises.

Two-Way Guarantee Plan Urged Against Agression

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP)—Diplomatic sources said today Prime Minister Churchill has advanced an entirely new idea to settle the cold war. It amounts to a suggestion that East and West bind themselves together in a two-way guarantee against aggression.

Informants assumed that this point in Churchill's speech Monday to the House of Commons gave both Washington and Moscow something to chew on. He opened up new business for diplomatic discussion and the big power conference he proposed.

Further, Churchill revealed a slight difference in climate between London and Washington. The two Western capitals apparently do not interpret in exactly the same way the developments in Russia since Stalin's death last March.

Churchill outlined a British foreign policy, as distinct from a Western one. The informants said he attempted to see the world and its problems as a whole through British eyes.

And in doing so he called on his own long memories of the great diplomatic moves of the twentieth century.

Most striking was his reference to the Locarno Treaty of 1925. Lcarno failed to head off the Second World War, but in Churchill's view it was an important attempt to keep the peace.

Members of the House of Commons, many of whom were only boys when the Locarno pact was signed, listened intently as the 78-year-old prime minister said:

"It was the highest point we reached between the wars and was based upon the remarkable provision that if Germany attacked France, we should stand with France, and if France attacked Germany, we should stand with the Germans.

"The scene today, its scale and factors, are widely different. Yet I have a feeling that the master thought which animated Locarno might well play its part between Germany and Russia in the minds of those whose prime ambition is to consolidate the peace of Europe as the key to the peace of mankind."

Scow Upsets In Lake; 3 Drowned

Fourth Man Swims 400 Ft. To Shore, Says Motor Exploded

TIMAGAMI (CP) — Three men were drowned Monday night when a scow overturned at Rib lake, about 10 miles north of Timagami. Another man swam 400 feet to shore.

Dead are Rene Maille, 44, Irvin Joe Wilson, 21, and Harold Maclaren, 28, all of New Liskeard. Timagami is 55 miles north of North Bay.

Howard Taylor, 28, said he made his way to shore in the bitterly-cold water after his three companions lost their grip on the craft and slipped from sight.

Taylor, still shocked by the ordeal, said today that he believes his light shoes saved his life The others wore heavy bush boots.

Taylor said the four had spent the day at a cottage on a Rib lake island owned by Taylor's parents. The three victims had been working to put the cottage in shape for the summer and Taylor went down to check on the work.

They set out in the motor-powered scow Monday evening to bring Taylor from the island to the highway so he could return to New Liskeard.

"We were all sitting near the front, looking ahead, when it happened," Taylor said. "There was a noise which may have been an explosion in the motor. It seemed to jump right into the air."

The four men were plunged into the water.

"We tried to hang on," Taylor said. Maille had warned the others not to panic and urged them to try and kick the boat to shore.

Taylor said the icy water was too much. One by one, the three men lost their grips and went under.

Taylor said he vaguely remembered setting out to swim to shore. He staggered to the nearby Ontario Northland Railway main line and walked a mile to a section foreman's house.

Dragging operations were started early today but no trace of the victims was found.

Name Gruenther To Ridgway Job

PARIS (AP)—The North Atlantic Treaty Organization today named General Alfred M. Gruenther to succeed Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway as NATO supreme commander in Europe.

Gruenther served as right hand man to President Eisenhower when the latter was NATO supreme commander in Europe. Ridgway was named supreme commander after Eisenhower resigned to campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

Gruenther, 54, remained at supreme headquarters Allied powers Europe to assist Ridgway as SHAPE's chief of staff.

A communique from the NATO council said it recognized that Ridgway "had fully discharged the trust reposed in him by the council when in April, 1952," he was appointed supreme Allied commander in Europe.

The council said it asked President Eisenhower to nominate Ridgway's successor and Gruenther was selected.

At a meeting this afternoon the council "unanimously adopted a resolution declaring the reposed the greatest faith in Gen. Gruenther" and appointed him as Ridgway's successor.

Drag River, Pond For Missing Boys

TORONTO (CP)—Police went back to dragging the Don river and Grenadier pond today but they had little hope of finding three young brothers who disappeared 12 days ago.

The boys, Henry Quigley, 10, Howard, 7, and Paul, 5, vanished from their home in mid-town Toronto when they went to buy some candy.

Insp. Sam Johnston, leading the search, said police "have been over the area where the kids lived and played a dozen times but without success."

A $500 reward was offered by the Toronto police commission last Saturday. The children's father, Henry Quigley, and mother have made local radio and television appeals but no clues have been turned up.

Jailed Eight Years

TORONTO (CP) — Harry Duguid, 38-year-old bank robber and jail-breaker, was sentenced today to eight years in prison for the $14,500 armed holdup of a Toronto bank 11 years ago. Duguid, a former Toronto plastics manufacturer who ended up on the RCMP's list of 10 most-wanted men, made no comment before sentence was pronounced.

Third Blaze In 3 Weeks Razes Snack Bar

BANCROFT (ENS)—Bancroft's third fire in less than three weeks early today destroyed a newly-opened snack bar on Hastings St.

Damage has been estimated at $4,000 by its owner, Forrest Chapman, until recently constable of the village. Loss is partly covered by insurance.

Helping the volunteer brigade fight the blaze, hydro employee Percy Calbury of Lakefield sufferred bad cuts to his face and neck from a broken window. No others were injured.

BUILDING IN FLAMES

E. G. Thomas, whose house and paint store is next door to the snack bar, was awakened about 1 a.m. and found the building in flames.

The flames were close to two propane gas cylinders and a drum of fuel oil, which Mr. Thomas dragged to a safe distance from the fire. Then he tried unsuccessfully to quench the flames with extinguishers.

Flames shot about 30 feet in the air, and appeared concentrated at first in the rear of the building, where the grill and other electrical equipment are located. It is believed that a short circuit could have caused the blaze.

It was about 3 a.m. before firemen controlled the fire in the one-storey frame building. Twenty men were fighting the fire and two lines of hose were laid to it, with water being pumped from the York River, only a short distance away.

Mr. Chapman opened the snack bar at the end of April, shortly after his term as village constable ended. He has not made any plans as yet to rebuild.

Quebec Battles $400,000 Fire

QUEBEC (CP)—Flames fanned by strong winds raged out of control for seven hours in lower town Quebec early today, destroying a 32-room hotel, a three-storey hardware store and warehouse, a large drug store and four other commercial establishments. Damage was estimated at more than $400,000.

One fireman, Eugene Samson, was reported seriously injured and taken to hospital. A dozen others were treated for cuts and minor bruises as nearly the entire fire-fighting force of the city battled the blaze that broke out on the roof of the two-storey building housing the John I. Laroche drug store.

Cause of the blaze was not known immediately.

Outbreak of the fire was set at 1:45 a. m and it was declared under control at 8:30 a. m. The 200-man fire-fighting force continued to pour tons of water into the windswept smouldering ruins

Warn New Storms May Strike Other Texas Towns

WACO, Tex. (AP)—The U.S. weather bureau warned today of the possibility of more Texas tornadoes in the wake of two man-killing twisters Monday which left at least 61—and possibly as many as 150—dead. The dread tornadoes, striking with rare fury 200 miles and two hours apart, killed at least 53 persons in this central Texas city of 90,000. Eight were killed at San Angelo far to the west. The U.S. weather bureau at New Orleans this morning issued this warning: "There is a possibility of a few tornadoes in the area bounded by Tyler, Lufkin, Yoakum, Del Rio-Eagle Pass area, Junction and Tayler remainder of today and early tonight.

Hundreds of weary rescue workers dug with bare hands and bulldozers here into two piles of rubble which had been part of Waco's downtown business section.

Bodies of five teen-agers were recovered during the night from the wreckage of a pool hall. Fifteen other youths were missing in the building.

Police Sgt. John Wohlwend said "I don't believe another person is alive" in the wreckage of the five-storey R. T. Dennis building and those adjacent. Exactly how many were buried beneath two grotesque mounds of rubble was not known. More than 50 persons are missing.

They succeeded at 8:45 a. m., EDT, in freeing Mrs. Lillie Matkin, a slightly-built, elderly woman who for almost 14 hours had been trapped behind a divan—a fortunate safety pocket.

Forrest Moore, a member of Baylor University's staff who relayed rescue instructions over a loudspeaker during the all-night rescue work, said "there are a reported 30 to 50 trapped in the basement of the Dennis building."

Ironically, if there were people trapped in the basement they could have escaped the tornado but drowned. Moore said a steel beam had punctured a six-inch water pipe and water cascaded into the basement for seven hours.

"The basement was almost full," Moore said, "when the water was finally shut off. Firemen began pumping the water out at 4:15 a. m.

The Texas tornadoes followed week-end mid-continent storms which killed 15.

The Red Cross estimated the Waco death toll at 67 and San Angelo's at seven but said indications were the search of Waco ruins would disclose more dead here.

Two square miles were demolished or damaged in Waco and property damage here and at San Angelo ran into the millions.

Invisible Teeth Bite Girl As Police Watch

MANILA (Reuters)—Horrified police and reporters Monday saw a terrified girl, screaming that she was being attacked by apparitions, apparently bitten by invisible teeth as a police officer held her in a tight grip.

Eight human bite marks, surrounded by what looked like saliva, appeared on the girl's left arm here while police and reporters looked on.

The 18-year-old girl, held in a detention cell for a week on a vagrancy charge, began screaming Sunday night that she was being bitten by a "flying human being with big bulging eyes and wearing a black cape."

HELD BY POLICEMAN

She was taken to police headquarters for observation. There she suddenly began shrieking "Here he comes again" and squirmed in a police officer's grip. Police reporters, drawn to headquarters by a report of "Dracula's invasion of the Philippines," saw the eight teeth marks appear. As the girl cried in fear and pain, more teeth marks appeared on the other arm.

A medical examiner called to the scene said the bites were undoubtedly human but was baffled by the mystery of their origin.

Drive Back 1,000 Chinese

SEOUL (AP) — One thousand Chinese Communists early today overran three Allied strong points in central Korea, but counter-attacking South Koreans drove the Reds back to their own lines.

The battle shattered a week-long lull along the rain-soaked battle front.

South Korean infantry said at least 175 Chinese were killed.

The muddy battle front was quiet elsewhere.

Rain and overcast grounded most Allied planes.

Tire Black Market Believed Smashed

TORONTO (CP) — Police said Monday they believe they have smashed a black market in tires stolen by the hundreds from the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Canada Limited plant in suburban New Toronto.

Arrested on theft charges were Albert Elliott, 27; William Reid, 34; Roy Baker, 32; James Hazelwood, 24; and David Voyce, 25 all from the Toronto district.

Investigators said a well-organized ring operating in the plant for about two years made at least $30,000 by supplying stolen tires to black market dealers who sold them cheaply.

No Details Known Yet

Charles Will See Part Of Coronation

LONDON (CP)—Prince Charles will go to Westminster Abbey "for a period" during the Coronation service June 2, it was announced today.

The earl marshal, the Duke of Norfolk, made the announcement at a press conference. He said he has no details as to what the four-year-old son of the Queen will wear, or how long he will be present.

Previous reports suggested that the Prince would not go to the abbey for even a part of the Coronation ceremony. A Buckingham Palace spokesman said last week it seemed unlikely the Prince would be present in the abbey. No reason was given today for the apparent change of plan.

"I do not know whether the Prince will be dressed in any special manner, or just where in the abbey he will get his glimpse of the event," the earl marshal who is in charge of the ceremonial aspects of the Coronation said.

Preparations for the Coronation are coming to a swift conclusion, the earl marshal said, and he expected that within the next three weeks the nation will be gripped by what he called a "Coronation fever."

"Let it be a great day of freedom and rejoicing," he said. "But also let us remember the spiritual significance of this great occasion. Let us think of the Queen, and on the night of June 1 when we retire, ask, as she has requested us to do, that God may support her, and bless us all."

The duke said that, beginning next Thursday, there will be rehearsals almost daily of various aspects of the ceremony. Then, May 29, many of the 7,500 persons who will crowd into the abbey on Coronation Day, will take part in an elaborate final rehearsal.

The Queen, who does her rehearsing privately with the Archbishop of Canterbury, will not be at this final rehearsal. Asked who will take her part in the final practice run the duke answered with a smile:

"My wife."

The duke disclosed that there will be three generations of the Churchill family at the Coronation service within the abbey.

Prime Minister Churchill will be in the abbey procession and take a place among Commonwealth prime ministers. His son, Randolph Churchill, is a gold staff officer, having some of the responsibilities of an usher. The prime minister's grandson, Winston Spencer-Churchill, will be a page to marshal of the RAF Viscount Portal of Hungerford.

The marshal revealed precise details of the ceremonial procession into the abbey from the large annex which has been built at the west doors. Peers and the great officers of the state and Churchill will arrange themselves there in a rigid order prescribed by protocol. There will be about 260 persons, representing the most exalted degrees of British aristocracy, in this march, known as the Queen's procession.

The Queen will require eight to 10 minutes to walk the 100 yards from the west doors to her Chair of Estate in the Coronation theatre. The procession will last about 15 minutes. The Queen's husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, will march in a section of his own immediately ahead of officers bearing the Queen's Coronation regalia. He will be escorted by an officer and three gentlemen-at-arms. In the official order of ceremony he is identified as "Admiral of the Fleet, His Royal Highness, the Duke of Edinburgh."

15 Men Die As Ship Goes Down

Rescue Vessels Pick Up 16 of Crew; Superior Still Stormy

GRAND MARAIS, Minn. (AP)—A still turbulent Lake Superior today continued to bar detailed search of the area off Isle Royale, Mich., where the iron ore-laden freighter, Henry Steinbrenner, foundered in a heavy storm Monday with 31 aboard.

Coast guard cutter Woodrush, at the scene overnight, reported waves were so high small boats could not be launched to facilitate the search for survivors or bodies.

Two rescue ships, the Joseph F. Thompson, and the Wilfred Sykes brought seven survivors ashore at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Superior, Wis.

The Thompson arrived at the Soo locks early today, several hours ahead of schedule.

Carrying five survivors, including Capt. Albert Stiglin, the Thompson entered the locks shortly after midnight.

Capt. Stiglin and the other survivors, Art Maloy, James Lamperiz, Frank Jazapacadus, and Joe Radzevicz, were taken to the War Memorial hospital in Sault Ste. Marie for physical examinations.

Radzevicz was reported to have suffered a broken arm and leg. The others were reported uninjured.

NOT ALLOWED TO TALK

The rescued men were not allowed to talk to reporters pending the outcome of their examinations.

The Thompson also carried the body of first mate Andrew Craft.

The Sykes landed the first two survivors at Superior, Wis. Monday night. The men, identified as Bernard Oberoski, 24, a cook, and Kenneth L. Kumm, 19, a deckhand, were taken to a Duluth, Minn. hospital, still suffering from shock and exposure. Their condition also was such that newspapermen were not allowed to interview them.

The coast guard, still checking the list of crew members, said there were 16 known survivors, 10 bodies recovered, and five men still unaccounted for. The death list was being held up pending the arrival of a third rescue vessel, the Clemson, at Sault Ste. Marie later today.

The Sykes also brought in the body of Frank Tomczak, an oiler, recovered from the same lifeboat occupied by Kumm and Oberoski.

Capt. George Fisher of the Sykes and crew members said waves were 12 to 20 feet high when they reached the scene, about three hours after the heavily-laden Steinbrenner disappeared into 600 feet of water.

Fisher said the lifeboat the two men were in was awash with water of 35-degree temperature. He cast doubt men in lifejackets could have survived long in such icy water.

Britain Target For New Abuse

CAIRO (Reuters)—Egypt today poured torrents of abuse on Britain's Prime Minister Churchill, and splashed some of it on John Foster Dulles, United States secretary of state, who is here on a fact-finding tour of the Middle East.

Cairo newspapers linked Dulles with Britain's policy of sitting tight in the Suez Canal Zone. They accused him of coming here with preconceived views which ran counter to Egypt's insistence on taking over the British base at Suez lock, stock and barrel.

But the main attack was levelled at Churchill, who insisted in London Monday that Britain could not evacuate the base without insuring that it was preserved for the use of the West in Middle East defence.

Prime Minister Mohammed Nasions with Britain over the future of the base, summoned his cabinet guib, who has broken off discusto a 3 a. m. meeting at which he bitterly criticized Churchill and called Britain an aggressor.

Girl Hits Truck, Head Injured

WARKWORTH—(ENS)— Joan Finley, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Finley, Brighton township, received a possible fractured skull and other injuries late Monday afternoon when she rode her bicycle into the side of a panel truck on Highway 30, four miles east of Warkworth.

She was treated by Dr. R. F. Jolliffe of Warkworth and taken to Trenton Hospital. After X-rays were taken she was taken by ambulance to Toronto General Hospital.

Joan is a pupil at the White School in Percy and was bicycling home with a school companion when she came to the junction of the Warkworth road and Highway 30. She observed a car coming north but failed to see a southbound panel truck approach and she started up across the highway.

The Department of Agriculture truck was driven by C. E. Koehn, 37, of 14 Singleton Rd., Toronto. He saw Joan start across the highway and tried to miss her by applying his brakes and turning the direction of the truck. However the bicyclist plowed into the right side of the vehicle and she was thrown heavily to the pavement.

The full extent of Joan's injuries are not yet known.

OPP Constable Archie Eadie of Campbellford is investigating.

Scores of persons were trapped in the Joy Theatre, but the number killed was unknown. An undetermined number were rescued quickly, but early today huge cranes, bulldozers and men with their bare hands dug doggedly at the wreckage.

Two hours before the tornado lashed Waco a similar storm crushed into San Angelo, a sheep-raising centre.

EIGHT PEOPLE KILLED

At least eight were killed and more than 70 injured as the winds flattened homes over a mile-square area and destroyed all structures at the San Angelo fairground.

Power lines and communications lines amid the ruins made rescue work hazardous and hampered newspaper men. Rescue work continued through the night, only about 10 per cent of Waco having any power.

Scores of school children were reported among the injured in San Angelo, where nearly every window in the Lakeview School was blown out. Teachers at the school were praised for ordering the children into hallways when they saw the storm approaching. More serious injuries and possible deaths were prevented, school officials said.

Downtown Waco was under martial law. Airmen from Connally air force base, Boy Scouts, police and firemen patrolled streets among rubble several feet deep.

20 BLOCKS DAMAGED

Every building in an area roughly 20 blocks square was either destroyed or damaged. Many splintered homes were in the wreckage.

Steel sides of the big Brazos river bridge were sliced as if with gigantic can openers. All of the span's wooden portion was ripped away and what traffic there was crawled slowly over a single track across the naked steel.

Ronnie Murphree, 17, was in Torrance's Recreation Hall with 25 or 30 other teen - agers when the storm struck. "We were all playing pool," he said.

"Then the lights went out, but nobody paid much attention. We just thought it was a storm. It was raining and hail was beating on the windows. Then dust began to come from the ceiling and that's when I thought something was wrong. I dived under a pool table and almost everybody else did, too. Then the whole world seemed to fall in.

"After awhile, I pushed away some brick and stuff from around the table and crawled out. I was right near the side door. When I got up on top, I looked around and then I saw this awful, awful mess."

CASUALTIES UNCERTAIN

How many were trapped inside the building and how many of them were alive were moot questions.

In Washington, the Red Cross said information from its field offices indicated 198 houses were destroyed in San Angelo with 164 others badly damaged.

At San Angelo's Lakeview school, Supt. S. J. Burleson said early today not more than 12 youngsters were injured. Teachers said about 200 to 300 children got out before the storm hit. The remaining 800 or 900 were herded into hallways and ordered to lie down. Then part of the roof and part of a wall of the block-long structure collapsed.

Little Bill Linton of the seventh grade said: "Mrs. Vada Burn, our teacher, told us to get into the hall. We had hardly got out of the room until the glass caved in and there was a rush of wind."

Four Planes Dumped Bombs Saw No Ship

TOKYO (AP)—The United States Air Force said four American Thunderjet fighter-bombers jettisoned their bombs at almost the exact place and time an unidentified ship was reported to have exploded and sunk today.

The USAF said the Thunderjets dumped their bombs in the sea approximately 38 miles southeast of Misawa air force base between 5:40 and 6:20 a. m.

A Japanese farmer said at approximately 6:20 a. m., he saw an unidentified ship of about 3,000 tons blow up one mile off the village of Samuraihama—36 miles south of Misawa.

Far East Air Forces headquarters said the area was a restricted bombing range set up by agreement with the Japanese government. It said maritime craft enter the area at their own risk.

NO CONFIRMATION

"The air force has been unable to confirm reports that a Japanese fishing boat or other craft was present in the area at the time the bombs were dropped," the USAF said. "An SA-16 (amphibian) rescue aircraft from a U. S. Air Force rescue unit in northern Japan searched the area during the day but found no confirming evidence of the reported bombing."

A USAF officer said it was possible the Japanese farmer saw a geyser from the last bomb explosion and had mistaken the geyser for an exploding ship.

Three Japanese patrol boats searched the area but did not report sighting wreckage or survivors.

ON ROUTINE MANOEUVRE

The USAF said the four F-84 fighter-bombers of the Japan air defence force were on routine training manoeuvres. They abandoned a scheduled training target because of weather and dropped their bombs in the restricted sea area.

The USAF said the fighter-bombers dropped their bombs from an altitude of 8,000 feet in clear visibility.

Surveyor Tells Of Northern Trip

John Pierce, local surveyor, spoke to the Peterborough Optimist Club and showed color films at the club's regular meeting at Club Aragon, Monday evening.

Mr. Pierce, who is immediate past president of the Optimists, recently returned from a two-and-a-half-month survey trip in Northern Ontario, cutting a line from approximately 80 miles north of Geraldton to the Albany River, a distance of some 53 miles. His talk explained some of the difficulties encountered, including breakdown of equipment, which they were testing, and a certain amount of labor trouble. The films showed views of the camps, and the northern landscape, and several of the phases of the actual survey, taken both from the ground and from the air.

Beginning of the break-up season prevented the party from completing a 10-mile strip which was left incomplete 50 years ago, when the original survey party ran out of food. However, they did fly 60 miles from the end of the present survey, and find the stakes showing where the previous party left off.

Following the films, a short question period was held at which Mr. Pierce answered questions from club members.

Frank Hemming, a new member, was inducted into the club.

Plan To Make Counter Truce Proposal

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Gen. Mark Clark said today the Allies will make a counter proposal shortly to the eight-point Communist prisoner exchange plan branded as "unworkable" by United Nations truce negotiators.

"We will submit a counter proposal shortly which we are sure will observe the principle" of non-forcible repatriation of prisoners, Clark told newspapermen.

The UN commander arrived in Seoul today from Japan and talked for an hour with South Korean President Syngman Rhee. There was no report of what went on, but Rhee has threatened recently to ignore any armistice which fails to unite Korea.

Rhee's office said it was an "exclusive meeting only between the president and Gen. Clark."

OTHER CONFERENCE

Clark said he also planned to confer with Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison, Jr., chief Allied truce delegate.

At today's 52-minute truce session, Harrison accused the Reds of dodging crucial questions on the ultimate disposition of prisoners who refuse to go home after an armistice in Korea.

The Communists countered that the Allied questions assume details could not be solved later, step by step, and that an armistice in Korea "cannot be realized at all."

The delegations return to the conference hut Wednesday morning.

Clark said the Communist plan had been studied "very carefully." He declined to say when the Allied counter proposal would be laid before the Communists, saying he used the word "shortly" advisedly.

Part of the Red plan suggests that 48,500 North Korean and Chinese prisoners refusing to return home be turned over to a neutral commission for four months, during which time Communist representatives would explain things to them. The fate of those still refusing to return would be decided by a political conference, the Reds suggest.

Harrison hammered hard at that key point.

"It is obvious," he told the Communists, "that if after the period of explanations by the agents of your side there are still those who resist repatriation it will only be because these men are absolutely determined not to return to your control."

Asks Sensible U.S. Leadership

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator J. William Fulbright (Dem.-Ark.) called today for U. S. leadership—"with some good horse sense"—to arrange cold war peace talks with the Russians.

Fulbright, a member of the Senate foreign relations committee, said he sees merit in the sugestion of Prime Minister Churchill that "highest level" leaders of the big powers should undertake to talk things out.

"I think we ought to promote such discussions," Fulbright said in an interview. "We should use a horse sense approach, with restraint in our public statements, and caution in what we do."

He said he would underscore a warning against over-optimism as to the results but that "unless we are to believe that war is inevitable, we ought to try."

There was no official comment from the White House or the state department on Churchill's suggestion, made in the British House of Commons Monday. But Eisenhower administration officials privately gave the idea no encouragement in the absence of concrete evidence that the Kremlin is looking for real peace.

Reach Compromise In Swift Strike

TORONTO (CP)—A compromise settlement was reached Monday between 61 striking employees of the Swift Canadian Company and company officials.

Terms are to be submitted today to members of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL) and, if accepted, will end a strike at Stratford that began March 6.

The workers sought a wage of nine cents an hour with retroactive pay. The settlement provides for 10½ cents an hour but the union has agreed to forgo retroactive pay.

The increase will bring the rate for men to 97½ cents an hour and for women to 67½ cents an hour.

The settlement followed three days of talks under chief conciliation officer Louis Fine. The union was represented by assistant director Sam Hughes.

Evidence Ends In $10,000 Suit For Damages

Evidence concluded at noon today in the Supreme Court brought against Floyd Michels, 22-year-old former taxi driver, and Frank Thompson, manager of City Cabs, who was Michel's employer.

Michels, now a trooper in the RCAC, was the driver of a taxi that struck Mrs. Edmund Edwards of River Rd. at Brock and George Sts. on a rainy night, Sept. 13, 1950. The 63-year-old woman suffered a fractured pelvis, head and other body injuries and died in hospital here on Dec. 10, nearly three months later.

Her husband, 63-year-old Edmund Edwards who now lives in Otonabee township, started a Supreme Court civil action under the provisions of the Fatal Accidents Act.

Crux of the case, which will be argued later today by T. J. Carley, QC, for the plaintiff and John Corkery for the defendants, is to determine the "reasonable expectation for pecuniary benefit" accruing to Edwards had his wife lived.

ARGUE POINT

This includes some intangibles. Mr. Carley is expected to claim for the wife's value as a homemaker and companion. And Mr. Corkery is expected to argue that, from a purely financial point of view, Edwards is better off than he was.

Edwards testified today that his average earnings were $40 a week and he would give $20 to his wife for food, clothing and other necessities. They lived in a six-room home with their daughter and son-in-law.

He no longer lives there and pays $15 a week for room and board.

From the outset Michels admitted that he was the driver of the taxi, and Thompson admitted that he was the owner, making him also liable in the civil action.

Mrs. Edwards had been at a bingo game on the night of her fatal accident. She left the Canadian Legion on Murray St. shortly after 10 p.m. and shortly afterwards started to cross from the northwest to the northeast corner of Brock and George Sts.

She was struck by Michel's taxi and tossed near to the southeast curb.

Michels admitted he had no taxi licence though he did have a driver's licence. He said he was taking a "fare" south on George St. and, some 200 feet away, he saw a woman step out from the curb. He blew his horn and she stopped.

"I figured she'd seen me then so I kept on," he said.

Michels was hazy about distances and exactly what happened after that. But he told the court that Mrs. Edwards had run out in front of his car. He slammed on the brakes and turned left but he struck her knocking her to the pavement.

TRAVELLING 25 MPH

He told the court he was going down the centre of George St. and travelling 20 to 25 miles an hour when Mrs. Edwards stepped out onto George St.

He thought he was being sufficiently cautious in driving by souding his horn. And when Mrs. Edwards stopped he was sure she had seen him and he could keep on going.

"If you stopped for every pedestrian who walked out you'd never get down George St.," he said.

Final arguments of counsel will be heard later today. Mr. Justice McLennan is presiding at the non-jury sittings which are on for two weeks.

crowd gathered to witness the blaze.

Early work on the fighting was confined to keeping the flames from spreading from the rear of the building to large piles of lumber stored in yards. The fire made rapid headway inside and in less than an hour the roof of the building flared up and fell into the top floor.

Firemen laid six lines of hose, and with the help of volunteers and a host of outside helpers, directed a heavy play of water from all sides into the roaring flames.

WOOD SMOULDERS

When the flames had been extinguished on the first and second floors, the stubborn blaze in the top floor attracted the main attention. Apparently large stocks of finished products were stored in the top floor and these continued to smoulder for another two hours, despite the tons of water that were poured into the shell of the building.

Town and provincial police blocked off the whole area of the fire, which was situated directly behind a block of Kent Street businesses, apartments and offices. A large crowd remained until the fire was obviously under control.

The ancient building, which was gutted in another fire many years ago, was bought in 1936 by J. A. Arnberg, who then proceeded to build the unusual business into one of the largest of its kind in Canada. He employed 10 men in the plant, and built some of its machinery himself.

In 1952, he sold the building to Mr. Gordon, who continued its operation.

Killed By Train

MIDLAND (CP)—Noah Payne of Orillia was killed Monday night at Medonte Station, 12 miles east of here, when his car was struck by the Toronto-to-Sudbury Canadian Pacific Railway night flyer.

Payne's daughter, Ellen, a deaf mute, escaped injury when the vehicle stalled crossing the tracks.

Blame Seizure For Man's Death

A 73-year-old carpenter arrived at Civic Hospital dead Monday afternoon after he was found on the platform of Sanitary Ice where he had been working on decorations.

B. G. Canning of George St. who only recently arrived in Peterborough from Orillia, appeared to have suffered a heart attack while at work. He was discovered by Angus Austin, an employee of the ice company.

Although a request was made for oxygen, it was found to be useless by attendants of the Nesbitt ambulance because there was no indication of breathing.

There was speculation the elderly carpenter suffered the seizure after a fall from a ladder.

The body was taken to Orillia by the Doolittle Funeral Home for services.

Quash Conviction For Ball Club

TORONTO—The Ontario Appeal Court Monday quashed a lottery conviction against the Ottawa Baseball Club on the ground that the charge was wrongly worded.

The club was convicted of "unlawfully disposing of goods, wares and merchandise—a quantity of silver coins by mode of mixed chance and skill."

It allowed a spectator to take home all the nickels she could carry—75 pounds, or $383.65—after winning a lucky draw.

The appeal court ruled the charge should have been made under another section of the Criminal Code, dealing with money.

Fishboat Flotilla Moves Quickly, Saves Passengers

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP) —A fast-moving flotilla of fishboats rescued 18 persons from a crashed Canadian Pacific Airline Canso in Prince Rupert harbor Monday, but the stewardess and an RCMP constable both lost their lives.

Dead are Clara C. Langel, 25, of Humboldt, Sask., and Const Stephen Kasper, about 26, of Allan, Sask.

Both victims were riding in the cockpit with the pilot and co-pilot when the twin-engined amphibian smacked down on the choppy seas while landing.

The stewardess' body was removed from the wreckage through a gaping hole in the side of the nose. Dragging operators were resumed at dawn today for the body of Const. Kasper, who was thrown clear by the impact.

CLIMB OUT ON WING

Most of the passengers managed to clamber out on the wing of the half-submerged plane, and were taken to safety by the crews of the fishboats which were at the scene within minutes. The boats were tied up along the shoreline making last-minute preparations for the opening of the halibut season.

Most seriously injured was an elderly passenger identified as J. L. Wood of Vancouver. He was rescued from the tail section of the plane by fishermen who chopped a hole in the fuselage.

Pilot Wally Jennings and co-pilot Everett Abbey suffered minor injuries.

The plane was on a 40-mile flight from Sandspit in the Queen Charlotte Islands when it attempted to land as a stiff breeze whipped up whitecaps in the harbor.

NOSED INTO WATER

Doug Walls of Vancouver, a passenger, said "we were coming in for a landing, at about 80 miles an hour I'd guess, when suddenly the plane jolted, pulled up again, then nosed into the water, tail in the air.

Spearhead Campaign For Government Aid

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—City council Monday night decided to spearhead what it hopes will be a country-wide campaign for government aid in construction of sewage disposal units.

Following publication of the report on water pollution by the international commission on waterways last year, council engaged a Toronto engineering firm to prepare a survey on sewage disposal plants to serve the city and suburban districts.

Plans for construction of such a plant were shelved when the engineer reported the cost would be about $500,000.

"No municipality can meet costs like that," Mayor C. Herb Smale said. "The government wants us to clean up international boundary waters—then let them contribute to the cost."

Two Men Fined For Giving Wine To Girl, 16

LINDSAY (ENS) — Magistrate E. A. Gee's leniency in dealing with two Fenelon Falls youths, convicted of supplying liquor to a minor, brought irate comment from Crown Attorney Lorne Jordan in police court Monday.

Magistrate Gee fined Pte. Ronald Smith of Camp Borden and Fenelon Falls and Merle Hughes, 22, of Fenelon Falls $25 and costs, each after finding them guilty of supplying wine to a 16-year-old Lindsay girl two weeks ago.

Smith, the second charged in the case, was found guilty during Monday's trial, after pleading not guilty through his counsel, H. E. Richardson. A member of the RCASC, at Camp Borden, he is on annual leave and entered the courtroom last week to hear Hughes' trial on the same charge and was arrested and remanded until Monday. Hughes had already been convicted and remanded for sentence.

WENT ON DATE

Evidence was repeated in Smith's trial that the girl had gone with the two youths after being dated by Hughes.

Smith, it was shown, had obtained six bottles of wine during the afternoon at the local liquor store. After picking the girl up, they walked around the town, consuming part of the liquor. They attempted to obtain lodging for part of the evening at two hotels and a tourist home but had been refused.

After taking the girl back to a Main St. restaurant, they had left her, and gone with two other girls. Shortly afterwards, they were arrested for being drunk. Smith was also charged with having liquor in an illegal place, since four of the bottles of wine remained.

The girl meanwhile went to Peterborough with three other men and stayed at a home near the city over night, returning to Lindsay the next afternoon. An alarm was sent out by her father during her absence.

Defence Counsel Richardson attempted to exonerate Smith by pointing out that Hughes had already been convicted and Smith had not been mentioned by the girl at any time as having given her the wine. Crown Attorney Jordan, however, asked for a conviction for Smith, since, he said, he was the owner of the wine, and therefore could not help but consent to giving it to the girl.

Magistrate Gee agreed with the Crown but fined the pair only $25 and costs each in the affair. This brought the comment by Mr. Jordan: "This is out of all proportion to the crime. Who wouldn't buy their freedom—30 days for $25?"

It had been pointed out that the offence formerly carried a one-month mandatory term, recently reduced to a fine or term. Costs for Smith amounted to $27.50 and for Hughes to $28.30.

Liquor, Chickens In Auto Bring Sentences For Two

LINDSAY (ENS)—Two Fenelon Falls men Norman Young and Grant Kelly were convicted of four charges under the Liquor Control and Highway Traffic Acts Monday.

Young was found guilty of drunk driving and having liquor in a place other than his residence and Kelly of being intoxicated and having liquor bought illegally.

Young, the driver of a car stopped in Bobcaygeon on Sunday by OPP Constable Williams of Fenelon Falls, pleaded not guilty through his counsel, A. T. Lacey, to the drunk driving charge. He claimed that the staggering walk, blurred speech and glazed eyes which led the constable to lay the charge were due to results of a broken neck he sustained last winter.

STOPPED CAR

The officer told the court he had recevied a complaint of the accused's driving from Bobcaygeon. He had stopped Young's car and found Young beside the wheel with his 13-year-old son and Kelly in the car with him.

The constable said he found an open bottle of whiskey on the front seat, and a full bottle of beer in the rear. The beer bottle, he said, had been under the carcass of dead chickens in the back of the car. There were also two live chickens fluttering about the vehicle.

On the way to county jail in Lindsay, he said, both Young and Kelly had been abusive and had threatened him. Kelly, he said, admitted having bought the liquor in Bobcaygeon but refused to tell him, where.

Young was found guilty of drunk driving. Magistrate Gee declined to accept his story of the neck injury, and sentenced him to seven days in jail. He was fined $10 and 2.50 costs or a consecutive 10 days on the second charge. His car was impounded and licence suspended for three months.

Kelly, was fined $50 and costs or one month on the charge of drunkenness and $150 and costs or three months on the charge of obtaining illegally, for a total of $155 or four months.

The Importance of Fluorine To Peterborough

The dental consultant to the Department of National Health spoke unequivocally last week to a Montreal audience about the value of adding fluorine to water supplies. Dr. H. K. Brown said that this was "not only the most important event in the history of preventative medicine but also one of the most important events in the history of the whole public health field." He demolished all the controversy about its value by saying that all research specialists agree that fluoridation does reduce tooth decay. They also agree that ill effects, including unsightly mottling of the teeth, do not occur.

• • •

The Brantford experiment has been studied by national as well as Provincial health authorities. Its results have been remarkable. The incidence of tooth decay is conclusively different in Brantford, whose municipal water supply has been fluoridated, and in Sarnia, where no fluorine has been added to the water. The Brantford children have been found to have 68 per cent. less tooth decay.

• • •

As important a public health measure as this deserves thorough study in Peterborough and positive recommendation from Provincial and National health departments more forthright than city health officials and the Council have so far received. Both Federal and Provincial departments of Health have now given approval to fluoridation, although they have been remarkably quiet in propagating it. Within the last year the success of the Brantford experiment has become incontrovertible; the medical and dental professions, and municipal officers who formerly were hesitant about its value have become proponents of the scheme.

• • •

Here in Peterborough a full survey, and clear recommendations by the Peterborough Dental Society and the Peterborough Medical Society would consolidate the civic attitude towards fluoridation. We were as lukewarm about fluoridation as any one else in Peterborough a year ago, lacking a definite analysis of the water and a complete survey of the incidence of dental caries in Peterborough youngsters. Further, the central health authorities were themselves of divided opinion. The definitive analysis and survey are still lacking, but the importance of the addition of fluorine to water is now confirmed generally, if not actively. We believe that the time has come for local authorities and the medical and dental people in the city to advance precise recommendations.

• • •

There is no need to rush with blind enthusiasm into a scheme of fluoridating Peterborough's water; there is need to survey the situation, and this should be started soon. The incidence of tooth decay in Peterborough children should be established and compared with other centres. The survey will require co-operation from private dentists, school dentists, and the Medical Officer of Health. The amount of fluorine in Peterborough's water should be carefully determined. It is known already to have some, but insufficient to be as effective as in Brantford, or in Stratford, where a high amount of fluorine is present naturally. A detailed statement of the cost of installing fluoridating equipment should be secured from the Utilities Commission. The cost, once thought to be rather expensive, is we understand, minor—a few cents a year per capita.

• • •

In such a matter the elected municipal authorities must rely on the advice and recommendations of experts: the local medical and dental professions, the Provincial and Federal departments of health. The latter have apparently given their approval. A clear statement from Peterborough doctors, dentists and school health officials would end the local indecision which is now preventing any concrete approach to what has been proclaimed "the most important event in the history of preventative medicine".

Big Fat Flying June Bugs

The heat has been wonderful. June bugs must like it too. Ten million have taken wing. The air has been noisy with their thump and clack, and some hours of the evening in the country a person out of doors needs a baseball catcher's mask, with finer screening, to protect his head from a rap of the June bug knuckles. A smart crack they can give, too. Our readers may think it is the heat which has brought on these clouds of flying bugs. Not so. We were destined to have them this year anyway in greater numbers than usual. Bug men call it the flight year for the white grubs. In other words, their racial cycle has put them into the air this year more numerously than usual.

We do not know what the entomological reasons are: in fact we know next to nothing about the entomology of the June bug. Its general anatomy is more familiar to us—after two or three evenings of making mush out of ones that get in through the screen, seeking the light. These clumsy insects have the decency to remain larvae for a year or two before reaching the adult stage of flying, annoying beetle. As small white grubs they feed upon roots of grass and the like, remaining in the earth. But this is the year, in these parts, for the hordes to emerge. And they have emerged. Consolation is that the things die as soon as they have laid their eggs.

If you think that June bugs have arrived earlier this year than usual, consider their alternative name: May Beetle.

Another insect pest making its appearance in alarming bands already is the tent caterpillar. They are weaving their white infested webs in hedgerows along the highways and even in apple trees before the blossoms appear. The infestation this year in these parts is not supposed to be as heavy as during the last several years, but the prospects now belie the predictions. Georgian Bay and many other parts of Eastern Ontario are scheduled for heavy infestations. So is the Cobourg area. So surrounded, how can the Kawarthas escape?

A Canadian Play Wins First Prize

It is with particular pleasure that we comment on the winning of the final competitions of the Dominion Drama Festival by a Canadian play; if we are not greatly mistaken, this is the first time that a play of Canadian authorship has won the first prize. The author of Zone is Marcel Dube of Montreal; it was a play of his, L'autre Cote du Mur, which attracted very favourable attention at this competition last year. His plays are rooted in the life of Montreal, and the company which presents them, a group called La Jeune Scene, plays them with a striking combination of realism and style.

We have still a rather small body of Canadian drama, and it is not easy for playwrights to find theatres in which they can learn the mechanics of their job. But we have far more Canadian plays than we had a quarter of a century ago, and among those which we have there are far more which deal with Canada and the life of our own people. Every civilized country has a body of native drama, and Canada has just begun to acquire such a dramatic literature. The process is necessarily slow, and we must be grateful to Marcel Dube for having added another play to the shelf, of which the adjudicator, Pierre Lefrevre has spoken in the highest terms.

Place du Martyr

National tourist bureaus all over the world at this time of year are wooing prospective summer visitors to their countries with all sorts of publicity. In our mail this morning was a "Calendar of Events" in Belgium for 1953-54, and an illustrated brochure.

The most fascinating illustration of the two dozen was outlined in blue. Inside the rectangle was nothing at all, just the white of the paper. Above this remarkable nonentity of illustration was the caption:

Place du Martyr
Place du Martyr
Place du Martyr
Place du Martyr

This chorus is more easily explained than the blank. The brochure is aimed at French, Flemish, German and English-speaking tourists, and so all the legends appear in four languages. The authors of the folder must believe that Place du Martyr cannot be translated as it cannot be photographed. Well, the blank image of the Martyr's Square will have to suffice us, for our eyes shall not be set on it in Belgium this summer.

Sculpture Competition

The Liberal Government has announced that it will erect at Ottawa a statue of the Conservative Prime Minister (1911-1920) Sir Robert Borden. This is a good example of unpartisan and deserved memorial. Another good circumstance is that the Government will award the commission on the basis of a competition. This is in keeping with a suggestion in the Massey Report that national creative art projects (such as designs for public buildings) be made competitive, thereby encouraging young as well as established artists, and seeking the best.

The terms of the Borden monument competition are good. It is open to all sculptors normally resident in Canada. They are invited to submit sketch models in plaster, in the form of a portrait statue. The winner will get the commission, but there is compensation for the time and effort of the next six competitors. Additional awards of $300 each are provided for them.

This is an enlightened project, and worthy of a civilized country interested in the arts and willing to support them. A fine Borden memorial should result.

An entomologist says that "nature may yet evolve an insect that will annihilate man". A mosquito about the size of a pigeon would do the trick, if we may offer nature a suggestion.

PARIS LETTER:

Angry Wives In Every Port

By NORA BELOFF

MUST YOU PAY your bill if your waiter goes on strike before you have finished your drink—and should you tip him? These awkward questions press themselves on the casual traveller in Paris these days, especially during the "aperitif strike" timed to coincide with the public's peak-hour for thirst. They are part of the token and partial movement among cafe waiters, their special contribution to working-class solidarity.

Labour trouble is in fact spreading into new professions in France every day. The one which most worries the French Government is in the merchant marine. This is costing France millions of dollars and forcing trans-Atlantic liners to call at non-French ports instead of at Cherbourg and Le Havre. Shippers say that if they make concessions to labour their costs will knock France out of international competition.

IN TIMES of trouble, the Frenchman's automatic reaction is "cherchez la femme"—look for the woman. In this case, according to some well-informed reports, women, in the plural, are at the bottom of the crisis.

The principal demand of the strikers is, in fact, for longer holidays and this they say is necessary to meet their wives' demands for a more normal family life. In pre-war days, it seems, ships of the merchant navy used to come back to their home port and stay for a week or ten days between each voyage. Now more modern vessels need only a couple of days' break and can take the break at any port. French boats are as likely to put in at Antwerp or at Hamburg as at Le Havre. The wives, if they wish to see their husbands during the year, have to make long journeys, often to still bomb-damaged ports, with inadequate accomodation. Their indignation flowed over when some of the trans-Atlantic shipping companies decreed that they could not sleep on board the ships.

Now their husbands are sticking out for three months' instead of two months' holiday a year: the equivalent of a normal forty-hour working week with the days off taken in a single lump at the end.

POLITICAL PUNDITS are battling with mysterious initials and formulae to seek out the true interpretation for the results of the municipal elections which have just been held in France. The fact is that generally in the towns and always in the villages voters were choosing men rather than parties, and M. Charles Brune, the Minister of the Interior, has had to beg for a week's respite to examine who exactly belonged to what party before publishing his final official figures.

I don't know what he will do about the villagers of Ora[illegible] in the Bas Pyrenees who gave all their three hundred votes for mayor to Maurice Escande, leading tragedian in the Comedie Francaise, who is generally cast in the role of a king or tyrant. Everybody knows they were prompted, not by left, right or centre political opinions, but because another little village nearby had elected the father of a Cabinet Minister as its mayor and Orass did not wish to be outclassed for glory.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE FRENCH have suffered grave blows to their political prestige in their recent dealings with the outside world, but they are deriving [illegible]te considerable consolation in feeling culturally superior. The latest boost for their artistic amour-propre comes from the cinema. It would be difficult to contest the decisions of the jury of the Cannes International Film Festival which chose "The Wages of Fear", directed by Henri-Georges Clouzot, as the film masterpiece of the year. Crowds in Paris are queuing up every day in front of three major cinemas showing this film, though when I went I noticed that nervous members of the public tip-toed out before the end of this agonisingly exciting performance.

✧ ✧ ✧

M. CLOUZOT has stuck closely to the novel of M. Georges Arnaud on which the film is based, and has accomplished the remarkable feat of making the audience share the terror of his wretched, despicable heroes. The immense power of the film comes from its complete concentration on a very simple theme: four down and out lorry-drivers from the dregs of Europe find themselves unemployed in an impoverished South American Republic and accept the offer of a fabulous payment in return for driving two loads of nitro-glycerine explosive required to save a nearby oil well from catching fire. At every jolt in the journey they risk being blown to death.

✧ ✧ ✧

FRENCH CRITICS have cheered the Cannes decision as an implied defeat for film censorship. They complain that the run of films presented at Cannes this year, particularly the American ones, would be better fitted for a Sunday-school show. One of them even suggests that active censorship is no longer necessary as American film directors and producers have become so inhibited by prolonged restrictions that they have become automatically prudish.

✧ ✧ ✧

CERTAINLY no one will accuse "The Wages of Fear" of concealing the cruder side of life. Some of the scenes (which include a rear view of three of the four lorry-driver satisfying the call of nature after a particularly narrow escape) will have to be cut before the film is shown to British and American audiences. In fact, there is some doubt whether it will make its way onto the American market at all. Some American commentators have seen in the contemptible picture of the American oil magnate who sends these men on their death mission, a piece of implied Communist propaganda. Their suspicions are aggravated by the fact that the star part is played by the young French actor and crooner, M. Yves Montand, who has often been known to put his signature to Communist front "peace" pledges.

BUT M. Clouzot's treatment of the film could equally well seem insulting to the French, the Italians, the Spanish and most of all the drunk, dissolute and idle inhabitants of the South American republic concerned. The fact is that M. Clouzot is a specialist in the portrayal of degenerate humanity. He does not seem to care much about the nationality, political views, class or racial origins of his film characters; as long as they are degraded enough, why, anyone will do.

IT LOSES SOMETHING IN THE TRANSLATION

Letter To The Editor

PETERBOROUGH, AWAKE!

Sir, Although I have been living in Kitchener for the past five years, I have kept in close contact with my native Peterborough through the medium of the "Examiner".

On April 14th you published an editorial commenting on the fact that of the city's 38,272 inhabitants 33,083 or 86.4% are of British Isles stock, according to the 1951 census. Kitchener, on the other hand, with a population of 44,867 has only 14,538 or 32.4% of the population of British Isles stock.

But where do the two cities stand as far as preparations for the coronation are concerned?

Peterborough, you should hang your head in shame! Kitchener's plans, due to an energetic committee and an enthusiastic Junior Chamber of Commerce, have been well formulated for some time.

The Kitchener City Hall is to be decorated in true festive fashion with hundreds of coloured lights, the horticultural society, already one of the most ambitious in Canada, is planning special Coronation beds in all the city parks; a parade is to be held at 9.30 in the morning in which every patriotic organization in the city will take part; this is to be followed by a religious service in the civic auditorium which can accommodate 8,000; our twin sister city, Waterloo, plans a similar program in the afternoon; the evening program is to consist of a special open air program in Victoria Park followed by a mammoth display of fire works and a gala coronation ball in the auditorium.

The Chamber of Commerce has sent a letter to householders asking them to decorate their homes for the occasion. They have also appealed to the public through the local press and have gone so far as to have decorations on sale at various price levels so there may be some uniformity in the overall plan.

The facade of the Collegiate Institute has already been gaily decked in red, white and blue and great posters of the Crown and other royal regalia.

Permission is being sought to paint poles in the down town area red, white and blue.

And I could go on and on, enumerating how one organization after another has risen to the occasion.

Surely the city of Peterborough is not going to stand by and be out done by other communities in the province!

I know of no better place to start doing something about this than in your own paper, Mr. Editor. (Your editorial of May 2 was a step in the right direction). But let's have more publicity about the Coronation and more prominence given to it. For example, the beautiful profile portrait of the Queen, which was recently released, appeared on the front page of the "Kitchener-Waterloo Record" but it was buried in one of the inner pages of the "Examiner" and probably missed by many of your readers.

Citizens of Peterborough arise from your slumber and make June 2nd a memorable day for one and all.

Sincerely yours
J. A. B.

Parking Meter Problems

(Halifax Chronicle-Herald)

It is not surprising to find town authorities here and there beginning to question the usefulness of parking meters as a civic asset.

True, they do help with parking wherever they are installed, but once the fundamental raison d'etre is lost sight of in a drive for civic revenues, the danger-point has been reached.

At that point the wise council will bring the matter under review and either modify the revenue aspect or get rid of the things altogether.

Real Security

(Lethbridge Herald)

How much security and how to get it, that's the question.

Put yourself in the place of this fellow:

He has a roof over his head, three square meals a day, free medical services, free movies once a week, books to read, radio to listen to, and not a worry in the world about today, tomorrow or next week. He does not have to work hard, if at all, and his working conditions are good.

Who is the lucky guy?

He's a prisoner in the Kingston penitentiary—no freedom, but security to burn!

"What name?" asked the clerk.

"New — Thomas New."

The applicant was irritable. "I'm New," he said loudly. "New to you! New to everybody! New to the world."

"What you want is a birth certificate," said the clerk, absently.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And the Lord said unto Moses, Speak unto Aaron thy brother, that he come not at all times into the holy place within the veil before the mercy seat, which is upon the ark; that he die not: for I will appear in the cloud upon the mercy seat. Thus shall Aaron come into the holy place: with a young bullock for a sin offering, and a ram for a burnt offering . . . And Aaron shall offer his bullock of the sin offering, which is for himself, and make an atonement for himself, and not for his house . . . And this shall be an everlasting statute unto you, to make an atonement for the children of Israel for all their sins once a year. And he did as the Lord commanded Moses. (Lev. 16: 2, 3. 6, 34.)

If therefore perfection were by the Levitical priesthood, (for under it the people received the law,) what further need was there that another priest should rise after the order of Melchisedec, and not be called after the order of Aaron?

For the priesthood being changed, there is made of necessity a change also of the law. For he of whom these things are spoken pertaineth to another tribe, of which no man gave attendance at the altar. For it is evident that our Lord sprang out of Juda; of which tribe Moses spake nothing concerning priesthood. (Heb. 7: 11-14.)

But Christ being come an high priest of good things to come, by a greater and more perfect tabernacle, not made with hands, that is to say, not of this building; neither by the blood of goats and calves, but by his own blood he entered in once into the holy place, having obtained eternal redemption for us.

For if the blood of bulls and of goats, and the ashes of an heifer sprinkling the unclean, sanctifieth to the purifying of the flesh: how much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God? (Heb. 9: 11-14.)

Two Trees Go On Trial

(Montreal Gazette)

Monday two sugar maple trees went on trial for their lives in the Town Hall at Greenwich, Connecticut. They stood accused of being a menace to traffic and on conviction will be doomed to pay the supreme penalty.

It is all quite legal and on the books in an old Connecticut State law dating back to Revolutionary days. This law provides that if officials are asked to cut down any tree on municipal property, notice to that effect must be posted on the trees involved and left there for five days. If any protests are filed within that time a formal trial must be held.

That is the day of the trial and both sides will be accorded full hearing. Certainly there are two sides to the question and full details are as yet unknown. But, among many Montrealers sympathy will lie with the trees. Here, too often in the past arboreal patriarchs have been assassinated, not only without benefit of trial, but for no apparent valid reason, and often under very nebulous offical edict.

There are enough ancient laws still on our books to discourage any suggestion that the Nutmeg State's hoary legislation in the matter of trials for accused trees be introduced here. But it may be possible that this evidence of respect for trees and the feelings of those who love them might prove an influence to curb too ill-considered and precipitate action against Montreal trees in future.

VI

It may be hard for people who did not watch, as we did, the growth of love between the two young people, to realize what a natural, unsponsored affection it was.

True, Phince Philip, as a Prince of Royal blood, was one of the very small set of eligible young men who could ask the Princess's hand in marriage.

But I do not believe that if the King had a free choice of sons-in-law he would have settled on Prince Philip for that reason alone.

While the young people were serving an exacting apprenticeship for marriage, they were kept on tenterhooks. Would they, or would they not, be allowed to marry?

That was the question which not only they, but all their friends and most of the world, were asking.

There was never any question of their love for each other.

At that time Prince Philip was staying at Buckingham Palace. Most mornings he took breakfast with the Household. He would come in hurriedly, eat his food, and hurry out, having exchanged not more than half-a-dozen words with anybody. Of course he was a man on trial for a most exalted post, and he had much on his mind. Also he was in love.

But absorbed as he must have been with his private concerns, the natural charm of his manner won over those who at first had wondered whether he was really a suitable match for Princess Elizabeth.

There was something very engaging about his lack of formality. He liked to go to the back of the Palace, where the stables and garages are, and clean and tune up his little sport car.

The chauffeurs loved him for it, but they were always chary when he wanted to borrow one of the Royal cars and give it a "tryout on the road."

Royal cars are not used to sporting treatment. They like to roll along safely and sedately; but no one knows what would happen if they were ever given their heads.

Sometimes Princess Elizabeth would join Prince Philip at the stables. Although she had little interest in mechanical contrivances, she loved to see him lift the bonnet of his car and, with oily hands, adjust the engine.

I remember the early impression Prince Philip had made on me, and my surprise when I discovered how very wrong I had been. At first I thought him a noisy, overexcited young fellow, eager to make himself seen and heard. It was before the war, and he was very young. I see now that he was only eager to please.

When he first began to appear on the scene again during the war —always in naval uniform—something of that first impression still lingered.

But soon, as he was seen more and more at the Palace, I found that he had grown up delightfully, with charming manners and a wide interest in important matters not always closely studied by a young naval officer.

The Duke of Edinburgh was an all-around athlete, outstanding at polo, expert at cricket. Although it was said he was more noted as a high jumper than as a scholar before his days at Naval College, he served with wartime distinction as a lieutenant in the Royal Navy and a superior officer said, "He'll end up an admiral, like his uncle."

But toward the end of the war and later, when rumors of the forthcoming engagement were rife and Prince Philip was seen more often at the Palace, he was discussed by members of the Household.

This, after all, was natural. People who have spent their lives in the services of the King and Court may be expected to be passionately interested in the future husband of the King's daughter.

But they knew little more of what was really happening than the people in the street had gathered from gossip based on newspaper hints.

I remember one night at dinner a crusty old gentleman asked the company at table, "Who is this young fellow? What does anybody know about him?"

No one could say much about him from hard knowledge, but there was a good deal of the same sort of gossip that was bandied about wherever people met.

Was it true that he was rather high-spirited? Inclined to resent discipline?

"That certainly isn't so," I said.

Later I was glad to have my opinion confirmed by a senior naval officer who dined one night with the Household.

He told us, when the conversation turned that way, that the Navy had a high regard for young Philip.

"He is a natural seaman," was the way he put it. "He does his job quickly and efficiently. And he is popular, both in the wardroom and below decks. I'd say he'll end up an admiral, like his uncle."

He meant Lord Louis Mountbatten, of course, one of the finest officers the Navy has ever had.

Lord Louis brought Prince Philip up when his parents decided that they wished him to have the benefit of a British schooling. It must have been from him that Prince Philip caught his love of the sea and ships.

Censures Police For Allowing Abortion Case

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto police were censured in court Monday because they allowed an abortion to be performed on an unmarried woman so they could get evidence.

Judge Robert Forsyth criticized the police when the court was told that the woman went to officers after making arrangements for the operation in her home but told them she didn't want to go through with it. Two women were charged with the abortion.

Charles Dubin, defence counsel for the women, said police ordered her to keep the appointment. He said an officer hid in the house and rushed into the room where the operation was taking place when the woman screamed.

Judge Forsyth said: "I do not think the action of the police is entirely clear of criticism. I know they did it with the best of intentions but they should not have aided in the commission of a crime."

The accused were placed on a two-year suspended sentence.

Festival Plans To Go Ahead

STRATFORD (CP)—The Stratford Shakespearean festival will be held in July as planned, its directors decided Monday at a special meeting.

Tom Patterson, general manager of the festival which will star British actor Alex Guinness, said Saturday $90,000 in additional donations may be needed to meet costs before the festival opens.

The board was told Monday substantial donations were received during the week-end but further subscriptions will be needed. Many promises of financial help had been made by business firms, organizations and individuals throughout Ontario, as well as in Stratford.

The board decided to increase both the membership of the board and of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival of Canada Foundation to broaden representation to the whole of Ontario.

Marmora Man Feted On 79th Birthday

MARMORA —(ENS) —William J. Cooney of Marmora celebrated his 79th birthday on Sunday, and on Saturday afternoon was guest of honor at a party given by members of his family.

Son of the late Adam and Emily Cooney of Huntingdon township, he farmed for a time in his native township and also in Sydney township. About 33 years ago he lived for a year in Marmora, then moved to Niagara Falls, N.Y., later moving to Toronto, where his wife died in 1931.

Saturday's celebration was held at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ernest Horton. Relatives were present from Niagara Falls, N.Y., Rochester, N.Y.; Toronto, Stirling, Peterborough, Sanborn, N.Y.; and North Tonawanda, N.Y.

Adverse Trade Balance Big Flaw For Canadians

OTTAWA (CP) — John Blackmore, Social Credit member for Lethbridge, said in the House of Commons Monday that the all-important flaw in Canada's financial policy is her adverse trade balance with the United States.

Mr. Blackmore, his group's financial spokesman, challenged Finance Minister Abbott to outline what the government plans to do about it.

He said the only reason Canada has been able to take care of her adverse balance with the U.S. is that she receives United States dollars from sterling countries in exchange for exports to them. The sterling countries had the U.S. dollars because of U.S. aid.

He said there is no assurance the U.S. will continue to give sterling countries this aid. If aid were discontinued, Canada would be unable to absorb her adverse trade balance which would be aggravated by the debts she owed the United States for U.S. investment in Canada's natural resources and industry.

DOESN'T SHARE PESSIMISM

He asked Mr. Abbott how the government hopes to solve the problem of the U.S. reluctance to permit other countries to share her market.

Mr. Abbott said he does not share Mr. Blackmore's pessimism. Trade agreements had been negotiated in the past with trading nations.

The result was a remarkable and wide expansion of Canadian trade, he said.

The minister did not think an expansion of imperial preference would help the trading difficulties. Canada had protested to the United States about exclusion of some Canadian dairy products and the protests were being considered by the administration.

APPROVE TAVERN CLINICS

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Judge W. T. Robb, chairman of the Ontario liquor licence board, Monday commended the beverage service clinics being held in some 50 hotel centres by the Ontario hotel association. The clinics are aimed at developing higher standards of service in beverage rooms.

FOLLOWING THE TRAIL-BLAZERS
As Canadians push back the frontier—developing new areas, building new enterprises—banking service still follows the pioneer. Today, there are more bank branches to meet the needs of changing, growing Canada...they are being used more...they are doing more for more people...than ever before.
Since 1900, branches of the chartered banks have increased from 700 to 3,800. In the past ten years alone, 3,750,000 bank accounts have been opened.

Quebec Sr. Hockey League Votes To Be Professional

By ALEX DIMEO

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec Senior Hockey League at a club owners' meeting Monday night voted unanimously to become a professional league.

A motion was also passed to seek affiliation with the National Hockey League, American Hockey League and the Western Hockey League. Under the proposed new name of Quebec Hockey League, it will be on a par with the Western Hockey League.

Once professional, the new QSHL will have severed all connections with the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association and the governing Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Present at the meeting, presided over by George Slater, QSHL president, was Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL. Previous to the formal vote on the motion to become pro, Campbell clarified the position of the QSHL, as a professional league, in relation to the NHL and other professional leagues. He said that the NHL will have no direct jurisdiction over the league, but will see that agreements drawn up between leagues are carried out.

NEW RIGHT

As a professional league, Campbell said, each club in all probability will be permitted to place two players on its own negotiation list, a right denied under CAHA rules.

The initial split with the CAHA came about when the CAHA refused to recognize a playing certificate granted Ron Attwell, by the QAHA, to play with the Montreal junior Canadiens. The QAHA insisted the certificate had been issued in full accordance with CAHA regulations. For defying the authority of the governing body, the QAHA was suspended and a deadline set for leagues, clubs and players within the Quebec association to make known their intention of remaining with the CAHA or also face suspension.

A few days before the general suspension was to go into effect, the QSHL resigned from the QAHA so as not to jeopardize the rights of their players in the mix-up which might ensue.

The NHL then extended protection to the QSHL's player list and the league played out the regular schedule and set up its own system of playoffs.

The decision to turn pro will mean that the QSHL now will receive $10,000 for a drafted player, as compared with the previous arrangement of $3,000 from a minor pro club and $5,000 from the NHL.

Doris Hart Scores Stunning Tennis Upset

ROME (AP)—Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., achieved one of the year's most stunning tennis upsets Monday when she conquered Maureen Connolly, America's triple crown holder, in an exhausting three-set match for Rome's international championship.

The scores were 4-6, 9-7, 6-3 in the bitter battle which saw little Mo of San Diego, Calif., fight off five set points before she finally yielded the 16-game second set.

The men's singles championship went to Jaroslav Drobny, the 32-year-old expatriated Czech who crushed Australia's 18-year-old Lewis Hoad with almost unbelievable ease, 6-2, 6-1, 6-2. It took the left-handed Drobny just 60 minutes to finish the job.

Jockey Bob Permane Tossed At Downs

BOSTON (AP)—Jockey Bobby Permane, who survived a terrific spill in 1949, was in hospital today with a broken right collarbone after being tossed at Suffolk Downs.

The 29-year-old rider was thrown Monday when his mount, Andre, went to his knees right after the field left the gate for the featured seventh race. He'll probably be out of action four to six weeks.

Fagg Completes Highest Total Of Career

LONDON (Reuters) — Arthur Fagg, Kent opening bat, completed the highest total of his first-class career Monday with 269 not out against Nottinghamshire.

Fagg, who passed the 200 mark in Saturday's play and became the first player to score a double century in county cricket this season, hit 30 boundaries while batting almost without a blemish for seven hours 25 minutes. Kent declared at 507 for six wickets; Nottinghamshire replied with 274 for six.

It was Fagg's sixth double century. His best previous score, however, had been 257.

At Lords, Middlesex outplayed Hampshire to gain a first-innings lead of 263. Jack Robertson, the elegant Middlesex opening batsman hit his 4th hundred at Lords in the course of play.

CLOSING SCORES

Close-of-play scores in Monday's first-class cricket:

Surrey 58 and 122, Australian tourists 256, Australians won by an innings and 76 runs.

Hampshire 153 and 40 for three, Middlesex 416 for eight declared.

Cambridge University 350 and 117 for no wicket, Free Foresters 301.

Warwickshire 403, Lancashire 330 for five.

Northamptonshire 409 for eight declared and 210 for no wicket, Royal Air Force 255.

Leicestershire 243 and 215 for six, Gloucestershire 198.

Glamorgan 378 for five declared and 26 for one, Worcestershire 374.

Kent 507 for six declared, Nottinghamshire 274 for six.

Somerset 127 and 151 for four, Sussex 402 for six declared.

Yorkshire 366 for seven declared and 23 for no wicket, Essex 370 for six declared.

California Club Cancels Opening

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Confronted with an all-out boycott by horsemen and jockeys, the Hollywood Turf Club late Monday called off its opening today.

The announcement was made by the track board of directors.

"There will be no racing Tuesday at Hollywood Park. The racing cannot be properly presented to the public because the horsemen have refused to enter enough horses," the brief statement said.

Track employees were instructed not to come to work today, which seemed to indicate that perhaps the $12,000,000 racing plant might not even open the next day.

ONLY 38 ENTERED

At the last count, only 38 horses had been entered in the inaugural eight-race program, and only one horse was named to race in the $25,000 Premiere Handicap.

The directors met Monday behind closed doors. There was no indication about their stand against granting demands of the members of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association for 40 per cent of the track's share of the pari-mutuel handle for purse money.

The track has argued that its $2,600,000 stakes and purse program, a record figure here and $200,000 more than it was obligated to give, is as high as it will go.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

They'll be thronging around the TV sets Friday evening when old Joe Walcott goes into the ring against Rocky Marciano for the world's heavyweight boxing crown. It'll be strictly boxer vs. slugger as Rocky depends on his youth and his kayo wallop whereas the cagey Negro— who can also hit— was away ahead of Marciano on points in their last fight when he hit the daisy trail. Joe is a first-rate boxer and can beat his younger opponent on points provided he can keep away from him. But we believe the Rock will catch up to Walcott somewhere along the line and rock him to sleep again. Don't bet too much on the outcome— it could be quite a fight indeed.

Big Merv McKenzie, newly-appointed Ontario Athletic Commissioner, will be here Thursday even at Miller Bowl. Not as a lacrosse player, though, but as an official to open properly the local season for the Mann Cup champions against Mimico Mounties. The Petes would prefer to have Merv in local livery and be darned to an official capacity, but McKenzie doesn't expect to play for anyone this seamster. At that, the champs' defence seems pretty well set now with such stalwarts as Jerry Fitzgerald, Harry Wipper, Nip O'Hearn and Lou Nickle out there in front of the one and only Goalie Lloyd (Moon) Wootton, who tops 'em all in the cord cage. Yes, rivals will have a rough run of it ere lighting the lamp behind Moon's broad back.

Moon Is Always Shining

A word about Wootton just to refresh fans' memories. He started playing back in 1941 when he was just 14 years old in Owen Sound. He moved up from midget to juvenile in '43 and helped them to win an Ontario junior title. Senior next and he was a most important cog in one Owen Sound Mann Cup titular team ere coming here three years ago and on two Peterborough Canadian championship squads. Has been voted the outstanding Mann Cup series player twice and regularly makes the first OLA all-star team. The likeable fellow with the smiling moon face is the best lacrosse goalie in Canada and the Petes are lucky to have him. He keeps in trim winters by playing intermediate hockey. A great team player, the Moon.

There's been quite a gap in sports of a major nature here this spring, as our hockey ended early. So, it'll be nice to have the brawny lacrossers strutting their stuff again this week. Season will be ushered in with band music, official opening a lucky draw prize for a Lawn-Boy — latest product put out by Outboard Marines Co. — and four program prizes of $10-baskets from CPC. These will be available for every home game, Prexy Bob Pierson advises. Oh, yes, and there'll be a game, also: Mimico and the Petes tangle, and 'twas the Mounties who finished second to Peterborough in the OLA schedule last year. Lost out in playoffs ot Toronto Yorks, who in turn dropped a torrid series to the local club, which then erased Vancouver to take it all.

Prepping For The Opener

Under the keen scrutiny of Shockey Mein and Howie Dalton, the local Liflocs of the Lakeshore Baseball League have been drilling hard. Prepping for their loop opener here Saturday aft when Cobourg clashes with them in Riverside Park. The Peterborough team— our hope for senior ball within the next two years— are in a strong intermediate circuit, some of the squads no doubt being of near-senior calibre, what with imports and all. But, if the Liflocs' pitching holds up, the boys should do all right as they gained a lot of experience in this league last year, and finished up in strong style. Howie Dalton will be coaching Saturday against the club he piloted in '52.

While the men's City Softball League is shaping up for the opening twin bill next week— entries close at tonight's "Y" meeting— the Girls League is having trouble reorganizing for this semester at the Bowl over east. President Bill Flint didn't get a decent turnout at a recent meeting, and since then he's been trying to contact parties interested in fielding a team. But without much success so far, we're told. The good Burtol team of last year won't be operating, as sponsor (and player) Mabel Gillen is recuperating from a lengthy spell of illness the past winter. Some early league action is required if the circuit isn't to fold up completely.

CLEVELAND TOUGHEST

NEW YORK (AP)—Casey Stengel brought his champion New York Yankees home from their first western swing Monday, convinced Cleveland is the team to beat for the American League pennant.

"They're the best in the league if the Yankees aren't," said the $100,000-a-year brain trust, who is seeking his fifth straight world baseball championship.

"We've only played them one game (won by the Yankees, 11-1) but the records are enough to convince us they're the boys who are going to give us the most trouble."

Having now seen all seven of his rivals in action, Stengel anticipates rougher sailing for his proteges all down the line with Boston Red Sox "the most improved."

"There's a very good young ball club," he added, "you have to hustle all the way to beat 'em."

LEAFS DROP VOISELLE

TORONTO (CP)—Bill Voiselle, veteran pitcher with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League, has been handed an outright release from the Toronto club, general manager Frank Pollock announced Monday. Voiselle, a right-hander, appeared in three of the first 15 games of the Leafs but did not measure up to the record he compiled in spring training games.

OWNER ENDS BUMP DEBATE

NEW YORK (AP)—Alfred G. Vanderbilt, owner of the beaten favorite, had the last word Monday in the wordy debate about the bumping of Native Dancer by Money Broker in the Kentucky Derby.

Vanderbilt, who has had little to say during the argument as to whether the bump was intentional, issued this statement at Belmont Park:

"In order to correct a misquotation, I wish to state that I did not at any time say or imply that Native Dancer was deliberately bumped or fouled in the Kentucky Derby."

NEARULA DERBY FAVORITE

LONDON (AP)—Nearula, winner of the Two Thousand Guineas two weeks ago, held his favored position in betting Monday night at an odds call-over for the June 6 Epsom Derby.

Nearula was backed at 100-30 for the 174th Derby running. The race is over 1½ miles for three-year-olds.

Queen Elizabeth's long staying colt, Aureole, took second place at 9-1 odds.

Victor Scott Wins

YONKERS, N.Y. AP)—Victor Scott turned on the speed in the stretch to beat Casanova by a nose Monday night in the Salem Pace, feature of the first night of grand circuit racing at Yonkers Raceway.

Barry Bedell put the whip to Victor Scott with a sixteenth of a mile to go and the free-legged sidewheeler had enough to catch the pace-setter. Cash Kirk was third with the 7-5 favorite, Meadow Abbe, fourth.

Time for the mile was 2:05.2.

Feud Simmers In Bigtime Football Race

By JIM BASTABLE

TORONTO (CP) — Another international feud is simmering in professional football. If anything, it's proving to big-time American clubs that Canada isn't in the bush league.

The latest tiff between Canadian and United States teams developed Monday over the Canadian signing of George Blanda, quarterback on last year's Chicago Bears of the National Football League. It's almost certain to end up in the courts —as the Dick Huffman case did two years ago.

Coach Carl Voyles of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football Union announced Saturday that the 25-year-old Blanda had signed with his club for the 1953 season.

"He can't do it," cried George Halas, owner-coach of the Bears, in Chicago. "The boy has a reserve option clause in his contract that gives us choice of his services for the following season. And that means 1953."

Not so, said Voyles at Hamilton shortly before he left for his home at Vero Beach, Fla.

ACTION ILLEGAL

"The action is illegal," said Bert Bell in Philadelphia, commissioner of the NFL. "If that's the way they want to play we will have nothing to do with them."

He told the Bears "to get an injunction against Blanda and bring suit against the Canadian team."

Bell added:

"A contract is a contract and it should be honored; and these youngsters should not be taught to go outside the law."

Voyles didn't go for that. He said he signed Blanda in retaliation for the Bears' signing Bill Gregus, from North Carolina's Wake Forest College. Gregus was a linebacking and plunging ace with Tiger-Cats two years ago.

"I warned Bell and the Bears that if they signed Gregus, I'd sign one of their players," Voyles said. "I protested to Bell and he told me that we had no claim on Gregus and that he deserved a chance at big time football."

Bell countered:

"When the Bears signed Gregus he was a free agent. The Bears had notified Blanda they were taking up his option and thus he is under contract, legally, to the Bears."

If the precedent set by Huffman in 1951 applies to Blanda, he'll be with Tiger-Cats next fall.

Musial Studies Batting Slump

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Stan (the Man) Musial looked his batting slump square in the face Monday in hopes of finding the answer.

The six-time National league hitting champion decided he needed more than a private talk with himself. He has had only one hit in 25 trips to the plate. His batting average has slumped early 100 points in a week to .233.

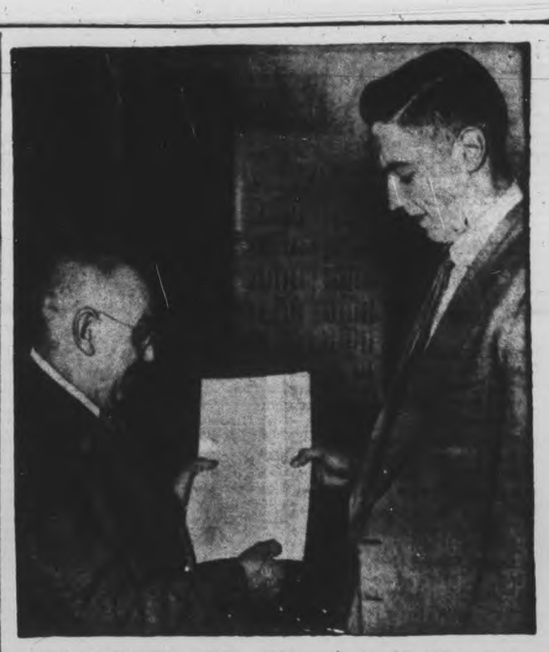
So he asked for special practice on St. Louis Cardinals' day off on the league schedule. Manager Eddie Stanky obliged.

When it was all over—about 50 minutes later—sweat dripped from Stan's face. But he figured maybe he'd discovered a couple of things he'd been doing wrong.

One was his stride; the other the way he had been holding his bat.

He found out, for instance that in 1948 he used a 12-inch stride. That was the year he hit .376 for the league title. This year his stride has been a little longer.

Queen Mary Wins



Quen Mary seniors took a 19-15 School Softball League win over King Edward on the former's diamond. They scored six runs in the first inning, adding 12 next time up and one more in the fourth on 17 hits altogether, committing four miscues. The losers got three runs each in the first and second, one in the fourth and eight in a belated drive in the fifth. They had 11 hits and five errors. Teams:

King Edward—Rowe, Simmons, Beggs, McCullagh, King, Waldie, Hedges, Heard, Warner, Jones.

Queen Mary: Goodfellow, Mann, Haig, Hendry, Wilson, Brisbois, Jobbitt, Perritt, Reynolds, Drury.

Umpires—B. Dawson and G. Ball.

QSHL Apology Accepted

By W. R. WHEATLEY

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The decision of the Quebec Senior Hockey League to turn professional appeared today the only disconcerting episode in a little love feast to welcome the return of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association to the family fold.

Action of the big Quebec circuit came Monday night only a few hours after the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association had practically agreed, through a decision of its resolutions committee, to reinstate the suspended Quebec branch.

The committee's recommendation for reinstatement went before the plenary session today at the CAHA's annual meeting.

The QSHL move was not a surprise, either to the CAHA or to the QAHA delegates awaiting readmission. Its effect could scarcely be assessed at the moment, but there was a general opinion among delegates to the national convention that the CAHA as a whole could not suffer.

CONCENTRATE ON SENIORS

It was felt there now could be more concentration on senior hockey. The QSHL has operated with the Maritime Major League in the post-season series that affected only the two circuits. The QSHL was always the stronger.

President Martin Conway of the QAHA said the situation has arisen since he and his four other representatives from the Quebec branch left home and the matter needs further study.

The CAHA showed far less concern over the QSHL action than it did over the phraseology of the application by the Quebec branch for return to good standing.

President W. B. George and secretary-manager George Dudley of the CAHA said the QSHL decision was okay with them and they felt the Quebec amateur branch; if admitted to regular status, "can take care of its own affairs."

"There was a similar situation in Ontario when the major series folded," they said. "Now we have a stronger senior league in the Allan Cup series in Ontario than before."

CAN PEP UP ENTRIES

The implication was that Quebec can pep up its senior series for competition in the Allan Cup playoffs.

The other major series group affected is the Maritime major League and secretary-treasurer C. S. McCalden of Halifax said the status of players would have to be considered—those owned outright by league teams and those under professional contracts. He foresaw a possibility that his league may have to revert to Allan Cup status and in this event would need eight or 10 imports for each team, instead of the four now allowed.

The situation confronting the QAHA arose originally over granting of a playing certificate by the QAHA to a junior player—Ron Attwell, with Montreal Canadien juniors. The QAHA said it was right. So did the CAHA. The upshot was that the QAHA was suspended for defiance.

WANTED FLAT ADMISSION

At the peace-feeler meetings during the last few days, the QAHA has gone so far as to say it regretted defying the CAHA. The parent body wanted a flat admission that the QAHA was wrong at the start of the Attwell case. The final draft of a statement was acceptable to the CAHA officers. It read:

"The QAHA realizes an improper course was followed in permitting Attwell to play in defiance of the ruling of the executive of the CAHA and regrets this action."

The CAHA officers then passed this statement along to the CAHA resolutions committee. It was accepted and a resolution was formed to re-admit the QAHA. This resolution went before the general meeting today.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

When the former heavyweight fistic champion, Jim Jeffries, died recently, there was unleashed a flood of reminiscences. Half-forgotten names from a glamorous era of the ring came bobbing to the surface, names like Gentleman Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons, Joe Choynski, and others.

But one name, and an important one, in its association with Jeffries, was overlooked entirely. And since the forgotten man is a Canadian, and the only Canadian who ever held the world heavyweight fistic title, I'd like to devote a Calvert column to Tommy Burns, the forgotten man.

Tommy Burns was born in 1881 in the little town of Hanover, Ontario, of German-Canadian parents. His real name was Noah Brosso. And his association with the great Jeffries developed this way: Jeffries retired in 1904, but agreed to referee, and donate his title to the winner of a match between Marvin Hart and Jack Root. Hart won, was named champion, but less than a year later, again with Jeffries refereeing, Burns defeated Hart and became champion. Jeffries refereed when Burns defeated Philadelphia Jack O'Brien.

Though he weighed only 175 pounds, Burns feared no one. There came from Australia to America in 1907 a giant of a man, Bill Squires, fearsome in looks, backed by an imposing record. American heavyweights steered clear of Squires. But not Burns. He signed to risk his title against the scowling, strong-jawed giant. Squires was made a 3-1 favourite, and fans of the day felt sorry for Burns, but they turned out in great numbers at Colma, Cal., and brought along cushions to make themselves comfortable as they watched what was billed as a 45-round match.

It didn't last that long. When the bell rang, Burns moved swiftly out of his corner, swung a right to the jaw of the Australian. That was the end. Squires was out.

Burns was a busy fighter. In the two years he held the title, he fought 12 times as champion, in America, England, Ireland and Australia. 11 times he won, but in the 12th, he was knocked out by Jack Johnson, who thus became champion. Johnson, who had dodged a meeting with another Canadian heavyweight, Sam Longford, in order to get a chance at the title, weighed 20 pounds more than Burns. He beat Tommy badly, and broke his ribs, but the Canadian gamester kept valiantly at it until, in the fourteenth round, the police stepped in and stopped the fight.

It was then that Burns really gained recognition—as "former champion." He had earned his title long before. Future generations will remember Burns for one thing, if for no other. Until Joe Louis came along he held the record for defending his title more times than any other heavyweight champion.

Your comments and suggestions for this column will be welcomed by Elmer Ferguson, c/o Calvert House, 431 Yonge St., Toronto.

Chicago White Sox Edge Cleveland Indians 2-1 Against Bob Lemon

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sport Writer

Are Cleveland Indians suffering from an incurable case of Yankee-phobia? Is it true that the mere thought of Casey Stengel's crew scares the living daylights out of the otherwise dangerous Tribe? Probably not. But the time for the Indians to eliminate such suspicions is fading rapidly. They come into Yankee Stadium tonight for the first of a two-game series. If they blow the opener, most folks probably will advise them to go back to Ohio for another season.

Losing to the Yankees is an old habit of the Indians. It has been many moons and eight long seasons since Cleveland won more games than it lost with New York.

DIDN'T WORK

Monday night the Indians stopped off at their friendly wigwam on Lake Erie for a single game with Chicago. They owned a minute percentage edge over the second-place New Yorkers. A clear victory would have sent them on in to New York with a chance to hold that lead even if they only broke even in the two games.

It didn't work out that way. The same White Sox who bowed to Bob Lemon on a single hit on opening day collected eight against him Monday night and won the game, 2-1. The Indians weren't able to concentrate against Billy Pierce. The lefthander gave up seven hits, all harmless except for Bobby Avila's second home run, in picking up his fifth win against a single setback.

The Cleveland-Chicago contest was the only regular action n either league Monday.

ALL IN WEST

Starting today all the National League teams will be in the West and all the American league in the East for the first time this season.

Along with the Indians in New York, the American League schedule shows St. Louis in Philadelphia, Chicago in Boston and Detroit in Washington. All are night games.

In the National League Brooklyn invades Chicago for the only day contest; the Phillies are in St. Louis, Pittsburgh in Cincinnati and, New York in Milwaukee.

The White Sox got their winning run against Cleveland in the eighth inning when Minnie Minoso and Sherman Lollar singled with two out and Chico Carrasquel doubled home Minoso.

Avila's homer had tied the score in the seventh after the White Sox had taken an early lead in the fifth on a single and stolen base by Jim Rivera, a sacrifice and a ground out by Pierce. Rivera led the Chicago attack with three singles.

Roy Campanella Has Torrid Hitting Streak

NEW YORK (AP)—Fast ball, curve, slider, change up, knuckler —Roy Campanella is hitting 'em all and with plenty of power.

The 31-year-old Brooklyn Dodger catcher is on a torrid hitting streak, bringing him to the top in almost every major batting department this week.

In his last five games, Campy has collected 12 hits in 21 at bats, five home runs and 16 runs batted in.

Roy isn't the National League's leading batter—yet. He's second to Johnny Wyrostek of Philadelphia Phillies. But the stocky backstop is hitting a cool .390, is tops in homers with 10 and in RBI's with 38.

When Campanella won the NL's most valuable player prize in 1951, he batted .325, powered 33 home runs and knocked in 108. If he continues anything close to his present pace, he's a cinch to eclipse each of those marks.

Wyrostek, with 3-for-13, tailed off 45 points last week but still paces the senior circuit with .406.

In the American League, Boston's George Kell leads at .395, a drop of 20 points. The Red Sox third sacker got three hits in 11 times at bat last week. Records include Sunday's games.

Cal Abrams of Pittsburgh Pirates is the National League's third leading batter with a .373 average. He had 6-for-11 and moved up from 10th place.

Behind Kell in the American League comes Cleveland's Al Rosen. The Cleveland third baseman dropped off 18 points to .362.

Mel Parnell of Boston Red Sox and Milwaukee's Max Surkont, each with four wins and no defeats, are the leading major league pitchers.

SEEKS PITCHING BERTH

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Stuart Lare, president and general manager of a manufacturing plant here, is trying out for a place on the St. Thomas pitching staff in the Intercounty Senior Baseball League.

He gets a chance today when Kitchener Panthers visit this city for an exhibition game.

Lare pitched for Montreal Royals when he was owned by Brooklyn Dodgers.

Baseball Clubs In Tight Race

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The International Baseball League clubs are bunched together so closely there hardly is breathing room.

All eight teams took it easy Monday, after heavy going during the week-end, and get back into action tonight. The outcome of these four games may give an idea which club is likely to go which way.

Rochester Red Wings, whose Harry Walker led them to the Governors' Cup last season, are on top of this scramble, and only 3½ games behind are the last-place Springfield Cubs.

Rochester has won seven games against five losses and has a .583 average. Montreal Royals and Buffalo Bisons are tied for second place with eight victories against six losses for a .571 average. With .563 are Toronto Maple Leafs, who hold a 9-7 record.

Tonight Rochester takes on the Cubs at Springfield. Which team will have sole possession of second spot will be decided when Montreal plays host to Buffalo.

Ottawa Athletics will greet Toronto. The A's are two games behind the leaders in seventh place.

Fifth-place Baltimore and Syracuse Chiefs, who are next, will meet on the Orioles' home grounds.

Remember When

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Yankees ended n eight-game losing streak with a 4-0 victory over Boston Red Sox at Yankee Stadium, 13 years ago today. Red Ruffing pitched six-hit ball for his shut-out. That was the year Detroit won the American League pennant after four straight Yankee pennants and World Series triumphs. Detroit lost to Cincinnati in the 1940 series.

Chinese Reds Broadcast Farewell To Canadians

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—Chinese Communists said goodbye to Canadian gunners and infantrymen in April before they left for Canada.

The messages were directed to the 1st Regiment, the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, and the 1st battalion, the Royal 22nd Regiment. They were broadcast over loudspeakers beamed across no man's land toward the Canadian front.

They were an aspect of a stepped-up propaganda drive on the Canadian sector in which the enemy has used loudspeakers and leaflets. So far none of the leaflets has dealt with specifically Canadian themes. The Communists have been using leaflets designed for American and British soldier consumption.

PROFESSIONAL TOUCH

Says Lieut. Bill Beeman of Portsmouth, Ont., intelligence officer at Canadian brigade headquarters:

"Such leaflets are ineffective against us because the Canadian soldier can't put himself into their picture. He couldn't care less, for instance, about what the Communists allege about American conduct in Britain."

"But the broadcasts along the front are done by professionals and they obviously have kept up with their Canadian newspapers," he says.

Two nights before the Van Doos were to leave the front, and while the RCHA was handing over its area to the 81st Field Regiment, RCA, the Communists' loudspeakers boomed out:

"From Chinese to Van Doos!

"Why don't you go home? Your time is up. Artillery and Canadians—go home, time finished!"

The preceding night a woman's voice messaged:

"We are bringing some of your wounded down. Bring patrol to meet. We will not fire on you."

An hour later she changed the instructions:

"Go tomorrow morning at six o'clock to the left of your positions. You will find something."

The closest company sent out a patrol of two officers at 6:10 a.m.

VAIN SEARCH

For an hour they searched the indicated area with a stretcher. They were about 400 yards from the enemy positions and about to turn back when a Chinese stood up and shouted: "Are you going for a walk?"

One of the pair pointed to the stretcher, indicating they were searching for the advertised wounded. Nothing happened, and at 7:10 a.m. they returned to the UN lines.

The next night the loudspeaker said:

"We did not expect you to come this morning, therefore we were not ready. Go again tomorrow morning.

"Between six and eight o'clock you will find between five and 10 wounded prisoners on my left. Don't be afraid. Come out of your foxholes and get them."

A Chinese shouted out to soldiers about to leave in the morning something like "litter" or "letter."

"Letters could mean only propaganda. So they waited for visual evidence of wounded in the valley before going out. None were seen.

IGNORE LEAFLETS

The loudspeakers boom out other messages about leaflets they say have been left, and urge troops to go out for them. Orders now are firm against going out.

The Chinese sometimes put parcels of tea out ahead of the British positions. The labels read: "Have a good cup of tea and forget this hellish war."

Last week they tried to work up a local "armistice" deal with the Canadians. One evening the loudspeakers said:

"We will not shoot tomorrow if you do not shoot today."

The answer went over within seconds—a volley of three-inch mortar bombs.

MP's Hoping End Business By Tonight

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament is gunning for a cleanup of its sessional business tonight — though with some doubts that it can make the deadline.

Aiming for the windup, the Commons is cutting 1½ hours off its eating time today—the lunch and dinner periods—in the hope of getting through the last sessional business in the form of departmental estimates.

Several departments are still to be finished—including some major ones—but immigration Minister Harris said in the House at Monday night's close that it was hoped to get through with them today.

However, he admitted to a reporter later that was a long shot.

WEDNESDAY MORE LIKELY

Wednesday still looked the likeliest date for prorogation. Debates on any number of items could hold up progress today and tonight.

The Commons Monday disposed of the estimates of the veterans and finance departments.

Finance Minister Abbott listened to a miscellany of suggestions as to the allocation of federal funds during debate on his estimates.

The Progressive conservatives headed by party leader George Drew urged a new financial deal for municipalities which now get treasury grants in lieu of taxation on crown property. Mr. Drew said the municipalities are not being adequately dealt with.

The minister did not reply to the representations, which have been presented to the government by opposition members several times previously in this session.

Thomas A. Thompson Dies In Almonte

ALMONTE, Ont. (CP)—Thomas Alfred Thompson, 84, a former Conservative member of Parliament for Lanark constituency, died Sunday at his home here.

Mr. Thompson, who entered public life at 21 as a council member of nearby Ramsay village, represented Lanarak in the House of Commons from 1930 to 1940. Previously he was elected to the Ontario legislature in 1923 and was re-elected in 1926.

He was secretary of the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario for many years.

CHILDREN ABSENT—Prince Charles and Princess Anne will not be in Westminster Abbey when the Queen, shown with a pet corgi, is crowned but they will see their mother before she sets out for the Abbey and when she returns wearing the Imperial State crown. Anne and her brother will join the Royal party on the balcony of the palace, to wave to the cheering crowds.

DOLL PRINCESS—Princess Anne, a friendly, 2½-year-old Dresden doll princess, already is an important young lady in her own right. She has a chrysanthemum and a street named after her, two waltzes have been composed for her and she is a citizen of Edinburgh, Tex., "with all the privileges thereof." Her hobby at the moment is showing big brother Prince Charles, two years older, that he is not really so superior.

Anne Has Tomboy Pleasure In The Pursuits Of Charles

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A wide smile, flashing eyes and porcelain fairness make up the picture of Princess Anne most likely to be remembered on Coronation Day.

For this friendly, chubby child, when on her best behavior, has the looks of a cherubic painting by a Renaissance master.

But appearances are deceiving. Out of the public eye, Anne is just a healthy 2½-year-old with all the normal instincts. Her hobby, at the moment, is showing big brother Prince Charles, two years older, that he is not really so superior. There is little the young Prince can think up in play or mischief that Anne does not manage to share.

On Coronation Day, the children will see the Queen before she sets out for the abbey, and when she returns wearing the imperial state crown.

SET FOR PAGEANTRY

But the most exciting moments of this historic day for the Dresden doll princess, who already has a fortune in jewels lying in store for her 18th birthday, will be the bands, mounted cavalry and gaily-colored uniforms.

When the Queen returns to Buckingham Palace from the abbey, Anne and her brother will join the royal party on the balcony of the palace, to wave to the cheering crowds. This means the roar of a shouting multitude is likely to be the most outstanding feature of that festive day, stored in a childish memory. The young Princess will hear that same sound on many occasions throughout her life.

Like Charles, Anne talks of "mummy's Coronation," but has even less appreciation of what it means than her brother. Although every question asked by the children in regard to royal activities is answered truthfully, neither have any real appreciation of their own importance or that of their parents.

Born to move among kings and perhaps marry into an ancient royal line, Anne has several years yet of unalloyed childish pleasures, before the importance of the crown is forced upon her consciousness.

In the close circle of nursery playmates chosen to form the present world of the heir to the throne and his sister, Anne has little chance of appreciating that her life is different to that of other girls.

LEARNING TO DANCE

As long as she is second in line to the throne, Anne will have an easier schooling, be less tied down and more able to direct her grown-up life as she pleases. Like her aunt, Princess Margaret, this silver-blonde will one day revel in the freedom denied the heir to the throne.

Anne and her brother have already started dancing classes under Marguerite Vacani, who taught their mother and Princess Margaret. Born on Tuesday, Anne will be taught to live up to the adage: "Tuesday's child is full of grace."

At present, however, she has a tomboy pleasure in the pursuits of Prince Charles. With little time for dolls and other girlish toys, she prefers clockwork gadgets and always wants to be the person working the radio-controlled car set presented to the Queen by the city of Windsor, Ont. This toy is reserved for times when the Duke of Edinburgh can direct operations.

Ane, already an important young lady in her own right, has a chrysanthemum and a street named after her, two waltzes have been composed for her and she is a citizen of Edinburgh, Texas, "with all the privileges thereof."

Issue Research Grants

TORONTO (CP)—Planning and Development Minister Warrender announced Monday that cheques totalling $156,000 have been issued by the research council of Ontario for research work at universities and colleges throughout Ontario. Mr. Warrender said the research work will cover a broad range of subjects, many of them continuing projects.

Sentence Excessive

TORONTO (CP)—Nicholas Argeloff, sentenced by Magistrate R. P. Locke at Kitchener to six months definite and three months indeterminate for keeping a common betting house, had his sentence cut Monday to a fine of $100 or 15 days. The Ontario Appeal Court ruled that the magistrate's sentence was "excessive."

Opposition Asks Better Deal For Veterans

OTTAWA (CP)—Members of opposition parties joined forces Monday in the House of Commons to repeat demands for a better deal for Canada's war veterans, particularly the elderly recipients of war veterans' allowances.

From Veterans Minister Lapointe they received the reply that the government is giving continued study to the suggestions, but they would be costly. He indicated that nothing would be done at this time.

In reply to a question by Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) as to whether the government was "opposed" to increasing the allowance rates and increasing the ceiling on permissible income, the minister said:

"There is no provision before Parliament for any immediate changes to the act."

AKS ALLOWANCE RAISED

In the main opposition spokesmen pressed the government to raise allowances paid to "burnt out" pensioners 60 and over to $60 from $50 for single veterans and $120 from $90 a month for married veterans—the scale asked by the Canadian Legion.

They suggested, too, that veterans and their widows and children should get the benefit of the doubt in borderline pension cases. Some like W. Chester S. McLure (PC—Queens) thought veterans—now restricted to an outside income of $120 a year—be allowed to earn any sum without reduction of their pensions.

Mr. Lapointe said to raise the permissible income ceiling to $1,200 a year for single men and $2,000 a year for married men would qualify at least 8,000 veterans for allowances. Another 8,000 would quality for at least part of it. That would boost the cost considerably.

At the morning sitting the CCF moved a motion that the government consider increasing old age and blind pensions "commensurate with the cost of living."

Mr. Knowles, who moved the motion on behalf of his party, made it clear the increase should be to $60 from the present $40 a month.

In a subsequent vote the Liberal majority defeated the motion by a count of 69 to 30. The Progressive Conservatives and Social Crediters supported the CCF amendment.

POOR TEETH

LONDON (CP)—About nine of every 10 young men called up for national service require dental treatment, it was estimated in a survey after 500 youths had been selected as army drivers.

BACK HOME—Pte. Frank G. Paul, of Coplay, Pa. (on stretcher) is carried into a plane at Andrews Air Force Base in Washington. He will be flown to Valley Forge, Pa., hospital for treatment of the wounds he suffered in Korea. Private Paul was recently released from a PoW camp in North Korea.

"NEXT patient please"

ALTHOUGH hospitals don't conduct their business in just this manner, we all know that our hospital beds are being used more today than ever before.

This increased use of hospital accommodation is due to several things. One reason is that people have less fear of going to hospital today because they know that our hospitals have the finest facilities and technical "know-how" to restore them to health again. Doctors, too, use hospitals more, because hospitals provide the necessary trained personnel and scientific equipment to treat conditions efficiently and speed their patients' recovery.

Yes, hospitals have expanded their services greatly in recent years, employing an increasing number of technically skilled workers to help doctors reduce suffering and lengthen life. This expansion of service does add to the daily cost of treatment, but think . . . most patients are out of hospital in half the former time making the total bill little more—sometimes less—than a decade ago. And your chances for recovery are so much greater today!

GIVEN QUEEN'S PORTRAIT

The executive of Peterborough branch 52, Canadian Legion, Monday night accepted a valuable oil painting of Queen Elizabeth II, the gift of Gordon K. Fraser, MP. The portrait has been hung in the auditorium and illuminated.

ANOTHER LATE SESSION

The hands of the City Hall clock pointed at close to 12.45 a.m. today when the finance committee of the council adjourned after a sitting of more than five hours. Press left about 11 o'clock after the business on the file was cleared away. Apparently the overtime —unremunerated—was spent in further talk about salaries.

TRAVELLING CLASS

Some 40 members of Confederation School's Grade 8 class are going to Toronto for a visit Friday with their teacher, L. A. Corbett. The students, whose classes are held in roomier Kenner Collegiate, will visit the Ontario Legislature Buildings, the Royal Ontario Museum, and will see the city from the top of the Canadian Bank of Commerce Building.

$2,000 Bequest To Provide Flowers, Bulbs

The income from $2,000 has been devised by the late Margaret Alison Hamilton for the purchase of bulbs and flowers to be planted in public parks of Peterborough.

This was the substance of a letter received by the finance committee of the council Monday night from Victoria and Grey Trust Co. It was written by E. M. Malcolm, manager of the estates branch of the company.

Miss Hamilton died in Peterborough March 25. In her will she made a bequest of $2,000 to be invested by City Treasurer Couper in securities permitted by the Trustees Act. The income from this sum is to be used for the purchase of flowers and bulbs to be planted in city parks.

Miss Hamilton directed that this gift to the city is to be known as the Percy Hamilton Fund. She was a sister of the Hamilton brothers, grocers on Simcoe St. The Hamilton residence, Rubidge St., was bought from her by the Masonic fraternity of Peterborough.

A letter expressing the council's appreciation of this public gift is to be written by City Clerk Outram to the executors of Miss Hamilton's will.

Deep Freeze Shop Found Within Law

One In 4 Complaints Sustained; Health Dept. Approves

Nick Peconi's deep freeze shop, Lansdowne St. east, from which he intends to sell horse meat for dog food does not contravene the public health act or the regulations under it.

That official statement from Dr. A. E. Berry of the Ontario Department of Health was relayed to the council in finance committee Monday night by Dr. J. P. Wells, MOH.

The next item ticked off was the "car wrecking lot" of which some neighbors had complained. Chief Constable John Thompson reported that there were some parts of cars at the rear of the Peconi lot. The owner promised to clear out that scrap stuff and also sell to H. Albert four cars that sharpened the appearance of a car wrecking lot.

They are to be gone in three weeks, Mr. Peconi promised Chief Thompson. "Why wait three weeks?" Ald. Syd Black asked.

Finally, on the third point of recent complaint, Mr. Peconi can get a building permit if he complies with the building bylaw. That motion by Aldermen Dewart and Graham suggested that the council did not "wish" him to operate the meat plant. City Engineer Chalmers reported that Peconi had told him he would not operate the deep freeze "if the council did not wish it."

INGENUOUS ATTITUDE

It sounded like a rather ingenuous attitude of the council in their manifest expectancy that after all the neighborhood fuss about the horsemeat business, Mr. Peconi would fold up simply because it didn't conform with the esthetics of the city hall.

Of the recent criticisms pointed at him one was the charge that he had begun work on a leanto garage without a building permit. That was sustained. It was also shown that he had similarly proceeded with the altering of his old garage into a deep freeze shop, and that he had packed the walls with sawdust, contrary to the bylaw.

Mr. Peconi's excuse was that he didn't know he was required to get a permit on a comparatively small job, and he also claimed ignorance about the filling in the walls.

"It looks as if we can't do anything," Ald. Black remarked. And there was a further comment: "He did quite a lot without a permit."

According to Dr. Wells, nothing in the public health act prevents Peconi from selling the horsemeat. It is kept in a separate building and nothing else is sold there. The residue of the recent neighborhood complaints against him was that he didn't take out a building permit in the first place and that the insulation in the walls of the deep freeze shop converted from an old garage should not be sawdust.

NOT ADMITTED

On the other side of the account, Mr. Peconi visited the city hall Monday night but was not admitted to the committee room. Two weeks ago eight or nine deputations were heard, thrusting back the final adjournment until 12:30 a.m. Since then it has been suggested that deputations should be heard only in council, and their presentments discussed later in committee.

At any rate, Mr. Peconi left a petition signed by 14 residents of

Kenner Cadets Parade; First Inspection

Despite lack of proper equipment and uniforms, the Kenner Collegiate Cadets demonstrated their enthusiasm and pride in their newly-formed cadet corps today at their first annual inspection.

The first platoon, composed of Forms 10A and 10B under the command of Cadet Lieut. Robert Hollingsworth, walked away with the Best Platoon Trophy donated by the PCVS Cadet Corps for annual competition at Kenner Collegiate. It was presented to Lieut. Hollingsworth by C. S. Browne, principal of PCVS.

Inspecting officer for the day was Col. John Dewart and in his party were: Lt.-Col. M. E. Clarke, Capt. Thomas Stanley, both of the 50th H.A.A. Regiment, Capt. J. A. Cullis, chief instructor at the collegiate, and Lt. H. E. Done, assistant cadet training officer for Eastern Ontario.

The inspection was opened with the corps forming into marching order and parading past the flag, and on the arrival of the inspecting officer and his party there was a general salute given.

MARCH PAST

Following the inspection of the corps there was a march past in general review order in front of the reviewing stand and another general salute was given by the cadet corps, followed by the march of the flag party.

The platoon drill was next and was done simultaneously with the platoon commanders shouting out their various commands. Section drill and a fieldcraft display followed, demonstrating the various gymnastic sports they had learned through the year in their gym classes, and it ended with the corps forming a hollow square.

Both Col. Dewart and Lieut. Done addressed the cadets briefly, congratulating them on their showing.

Camp certificates were presented to Cadet Lieut. R. King and Cadet Major T. Spearin for outstanding work done at summer camp the previous year by Dr. E. P. Ray, principal of Kenner Collegiate.

The Kenner Collegiate Corps is made up of four platoons and the CO of the corps is Cadet Major T. Spearin, second in command, Cadet Capt. L. Bloom, Company Sgt. Major Cadet J. Montgomery, and Company Quartermaster Sgt. Cadet Sgt. F. Ball.

Comparing Defence Costs With US, UK Said Unfair

Honorable James G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture, answered Conservative charges Monday night here that it costs Canada twice as much to produce a soldier as it costs the United States and Great Britain. According to John Diefenbaker, in a speech recently at London, Canada spends $22,000 a year to produce one soldier. It costs the United States half that and the United Kingdom a little less again.

This figure was arrived at by dividing the number of men in Canada's armed forces into the defence budget, the agricultural minister pointed out to the Peterborough Liberal Association.

NEW IN FIELD

The United States and Great Britain, however, have built up their forces over a period of years while Canada is comparatively new in the defence field.

"We're just building up our forces now," Mr. Gardiner said "Its hardly a reasonable comparison to make."

The question of whether Canada's tax money is properly spent was dealt with by the speaker Commenting on the personal integrity of members of parliament, Mr. Gardiner said: "the men I meet in politics bear comparison with those I meet in the church."

He was warned the Liberal association: "I think that 'they' will try to tell you some of these men are not quite honest." Referring to the case of Austin Dewar. Mr. Gardiner pointed out "kiting cheques is a common practice, and I'm told there's no law against it."

The speaker outlined the aims of the Liberal party: maintaining peak production, peak employment and participating in free trade with surpluses.

"Your government has brought you through six years of devastating war and a year of the dreaded foot and mouth disease. We have the highest degree of employment. . trade. . .social services. .ever experienced in Canada."

Mr. Gardiner outlined the War Measures Act, introduced by the Conservatives at the outbreak of the First World War and again by the Liberals at the start of the Second World War. Under this act, powers vested in provincial governments could be taken over by the federal government as the latter saw fit.

He made particular reference to food production and prices under this act during the last war and explained to the audience why the Liberal government can't control output and prices now as it did at that time.

He reminded the Liberal association: "Anything we were able to do then can be done by the province of Ontario now."

Present at the meeting were Liberal township chairman and rural members. Max Swanston, candidate for Peterborough West, spoke briefly as did Senator J. J. Duffus who introduced the guest speaker.

TO SERVE IN GERMANY—Cadet G. R. Fanjoy, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy, 586 Sherbrooke St., a third-year student at the Royal Military College in Kingston, has been selected to serve with the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade in Germany during the summer months. Cadet Fanjoy will return to the college in the fall for his final year of study.

Sullivan home, it has been occupied by the Sisters for the last 17 years. They expect to move into their new monastery on the west side of the city before July 1.

Mr. Lillico said today he had no definite plans yet, "but it will probably be a remodelling job. The building is in excellent condition".

Fraser Presses For Relief On VLA Holdings

OTTAWA (CP)—Two members of the House of Commons told the government Monday small holders under the Veterans Land Act are forced to own too much land, but they got little encouragement from Veterans Minister Lapointe.

G. K. Fraser (PC-Peterborough West) said that veterans living on small holdings in areas which have been absorbed by cities and towns now are faced with taxes too high to handle. He suggested that they be allowed to sell part of their lots.

NO EXCEPTIONS

Mr. Lapointe said no exception could be made for any one group. They must maintain a certain amount of land just as do any other settlers under the VLA section.

H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) said the increase of minimum acreage under the small-holdings section to three acres from one-half an acre has barred hundreds of veterans in his riding from getting settled under the act. They simply couldn't get the land. He couldn't see any logic in the present acreage.

(Veterans living on VLA group projects often have only a half-acre. But individual small holdings must have three acres or two if land is above a certain price.)

City Council To Offer $20,000 For Land Owned By Woollen Mills

7.5 Acre Property May Be Considered As Memorial Centre; Report Company Wants $26,000 For Lot

An offer of $20,000 for the 7.5 acres owned by Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Ltd. at the northeast corner of Monaghan Road and McDonnel St. was recommended to city council by its finance committee Monday night. It was reported that the company was asking $26,000 for this property west of their manufacturing plant on McDonnel St. On the other hand Assessment Commissioner J. E. Davis estimated its actual value at $16,500, a difference of $9,500.

This is the land that was unidentified in a recent recommendation of the committee of the whole council in which this affirmative, if not committing, phrase appeared: "that the city will purchase this property."

Mayor Waddell was authorized to negotiate terms but other matters intervened before his departure for the coronation of Queen Elizabeth. The committee of the whole report followed conversations with a deputation of the building committee of the Memorial Community Centre. But, nothing of purpose was specified in the statement reaching the council.

ALTERNATIVE SITE

Ald. T. D. Miller, who is acting Mayor, was chairman of Monday night's meeting of the finance committee. He commented that the Woollens site would provide an alternative if Morrow Park is ultimately unavailable for the location of the Centre.

"It is not for any definite purpose," Acting Mayor Miller said. "It is zoned for industrial use, and could be suitable for some preferred industry."

Ald. Norman Graham commented that the surface soil was shallow over a lot of flagstone for a considerable area of the Woollens field.

"We exposed rock when we laid the new pavement on McDonnel St. last year," City Engineer Chalmers said.

KEEP OFFER DOWN

"I don't think we should have to offer much over the valuation of our assessor," Ald. H. T. Rehill said. On the other hand, the field was level and has been used as a pyaground.

"There is the question of its worth as a playing field," Ald. Rehill said. "It is the only one left in that section of the city." His motion to offer the company $18,000 was seconded by Ald. Syd Black. The latter remarked: "I don't see why we should have to go above the assessor's figure."

It was said that Assessment Commissioner Davis had taken into his reckoning of value the fact that lots, if the property was subdivided, were not serviced.

An amendment by Aldermen Burrows and Graham proposed $20,000 for the Woollens acres, and the chairman counting the raised hands, declared it "carried". Apparently the vote was 6-3, thereby ruling out the motion.

Pianist Equals Highest Mark In Festival

"This is the best piano playing I've heard since coming to Peterborough," John Russell said about a contestant's performance during the Monday evening sessions of the Peterborough Kiwanis Music Festival.

Frances McPhee, of Buckhorn, was the contestant and was awarded 90 marks (the highest mark given at the festival to date) for her playing in class 145 —Prelude and Fugue by Bach. This is the second time this high mark has been given at this year's festival. Kingston Collegiate and Vocational Institute Glee Club was awarded 90 marks earlier in the festival.

"This contestant shows complete mastery of the situation," Mr. Russell said. Miss McPhee also won the Bach Prelude and Fugue class in the 1952 festival.

HIGH PRAISE

The final class of the evening —mixed voice choirs—won high praise from Adjudicator George Heath-Gracie for their "enterprise and achievement."

The two choirs entered in this class were the Coventry Singers, of Peterborough, under the direction of Christopher Gledhill, and the Glenlyon Singers, of Perth, under the direction of John Hooper. The Peterborough group were awarded the highest total mark given to a choral group so far in the festival—177 marks. The Perth choir was one mark behind with 176.

Mr. Heath-Gracie was particularly enthusiastic about the second selections (competitors' own choice) sung by these choirs. "These selections provided two of the most delightful surprises for me," he said.

Plan Gardens For Hospital

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Plans for construction of a metropolitan centennial gardens, to be donated by residents and business men, were announced Monday.

The project will cover 88,000 square feet and will include a reflecting pool.

Harold C. Backett, architect and landscape specialist, said the gardens, to be located in front of metropolitan general hospital, will be the "envy of every city in the country."

Work on the gardens will start in two weeks and is expected to be completed next fall.

Idea for the gardens came from alderman Albert Long who noticed the dismal view from the hospital when he was a patient there recently. The hospital board of governors, of which Mr Long is a member, agreed to the plan and Mr. Backett offered his services free.

Transport Drivers' Return To Work

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Drivers and mechanics employed by the Windsor branch of Kingsway Transports, Ltd., returned to work Monday following a week-long strike.

Major point of difference between the employees, members of local 880, Teamsters' Union, (AFL), and the company was dismissal of two drivers. The dispute will be arbitrated later this week by Eric Taylor of Toronto, chairman of a three-man conciliation board which met here during the week-end to consider other problems.

Mr. Taylor and the other two members met to hear differences between the union and major truck operators but the Kingsway strike came up for discussion. The hearings were adjourned Monday after a three-day session.

Raft Intends To Return To Dancing

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — George Raft at 57 is dusting off his dancing shoes for a return to the night club floors. He claims he's "dead" in the movies.

"As far as pictures are concerned, I'm dead," he said. "Nobody has been breaking their necks trying to hire me. There's no money in pictures any more, so I'm going back to being a dancer."

The longtime portrayer of coin-flipping gangsters will open his act at the Flamingo in Las Vegas in August. Then he'll tour Latin-America, where, he said, he has a vast following, "because they think I'm a Latin." (He is half-Italian.)

"After that, I want to play the Palladium in London and other places in Europe," he remarked. "I'm still a big star over there. They remember the stars they saw before the war, whereas the new actors aren't well known. A guy like Kirk Douglas is big here, but few people know him in Europe."

TRAINS LIKE PRIZEFIGHTER

Raft is training for the dance tour like a prizefighter. At present he is dieting and working out in a gym. In a couple of weeks, he'll begin dancing and choosing his partners.

"It's kinda rugged getting back in shape at my age," he said. Raft's age has always been listed in the record books as a question mark, and I asked him about it.

"I was born in 1895," he answered, "and now I don't care who knows it." Raft looks much younger than his 57 years. His hair has receded and is flecked with grey (he refused to dye), but his skin is that of a 20-year-old.

What happened to his picture career?

"Lots of things," he said. "For one thing, I think I made a mistake when I stopped appearing with big names. My biggest successes were with people like Gary Cooper, Carole Lombard, Marlene Dietrich and so forth. Maybe they made me look good; maybe I was better with them. When I started appearing with them unknowns like Ava Gardner or Janet Blair, they rose but I slipped."

Alexander Re-elected President Of Fund

OTTAWA (CP)—B. M. Alexandor, QC, of Ottawa, was re-elected president of the Royal Canadian Air Force Benevolent Fund at the 10th annual meeting here Monday.

Named chairman of the board was D. Park Jamieson, QC, of Sarnia. H. Wright, QC, of Kingston, was chosen honorary counsel.

The annual report disclosed that at the end of 1952 the fund amounted to $3,709,000, a decrease during the year of approximately $12,700.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A teacher's reward for good behavior brought death to a 10-year-old boy who was killed when struck down by a car on Highway No. 2 near Lesperance road Monday.

Dead is Robert Blackburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Blackburn, of Sandwich South.

The accident occurred when the boy was entrusted by his teacher with a letter for the mail.

Patients Often Heroes Of Medical Advances

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, MD

Readers of newspapers are familiar with the extraordinarily interesting studies of gamma globulin as a possible help in preventing the paralyzing effects of polio. One noteworthy feature of these scientific studies is the assistance rendered by the public.

In this connection one of the scientific reports, for example, said:

"The whole community apparently decided that it had been offered an opportunity to participate in a very important project that could do them no harm and might lead to immediate local benefit and to long-term benefit for many others."

The public cooperated with the experiments by the thousands.

This brings to mind the many contributions which patients themselves rather than their doctors have made to the advancement of medical knowledge. Too often, the patient has been more or less forgotten and only the scientist or doctor remembered.

Probably the most celebrated of all patients was Alexis St. Martin, who contributed—at times most unwillingly—to the modern knowledge of how the stomach behaves.

Young Alexis, when 19 years old was shot in the abdomen at close range on June 6, 1822. He recovered from this accident but it left him with his stomach exposed to view.

Dr. William Beaumont, a United States Army surgeon, observed the process of digestion in Alexis St. Martin's stomach over a period of years.

MISSING 10 YEARS

The patient was extraordinarily elsuive, disappearing at frequent intervals. At one time he was lost entirely for over 10 years. Alexis St. Martin, in spite of this hole in his stomach lived until the ripe old age of 83.

Another American patient whose service to medical science is not generally known was Mrs. Jane Todd Crawford, on whom Dr. Ephriam McDowell performed the first ovariotomy, which is an operation for the removal of a cyst or tumor of the ovary.

From her remote farmhouse in the wilds of Kentucky she went on horseback to the town of Danville, where the operation was performed, in December, 1809. At that time neither doctor nor patient recognized the importance of the operation to coming generations.

Another example is Isambard Brunel, a distinguished engineer.

HE SWALLOWED COIN

In 1843, Brunel was entertaining some children by pretending to pass a coin from his ear into his mouth when he accidentally inhaled the coin. This was followed by an attack of choking and coughing and the patient could feel the coin move in his windpipe when he coughed or bent forward.

Attempts to remove the coin failed on several occasions, but some six weeks after the accident Brunel supervised the construction of a table which could be moved into the upright position. He had himself strapped to this table, turned upside down and shaken.

After a few coughs he heard what he called the delightful music of the coin clinking against his teeth.

There are many other patients who have served us all, a few being well known but most whose praises are unsung.

Toronto Man Leaves For California Trial

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Harry W. C. Hedderson, 46, of Toronto, captured here by federal bureau of investigation agents April 14, left for California Monday in the custody of two Riverside county, Cal., deputy sheriffs.

Hedderson is wanted on the west coast on an armed robbery charge. He waived extradition Friday. He had been held here as a fugitive.

He is also wanted in connection with a $90,000 gold robbery at Sudbury, Ont.

Demands War Prisoners Given Higher Payment

OTTAWA (CP)—Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra) a veteran of the First World War, appealed Monday to the government to widen the regulations covering the granting of payments to prisoners of war during the last war.

Speaking in the House of Commons during a veterans affairs debate, Mr. Green said the biggest group of wartime prisoners in Germany can only get reparations when they can prove maltreatment and can prove they were incapable of working on discharge.

There was a "nasty slur" creeping into the question. There had been suggestions—not in the Commons but in parts of the country—that these men "surrendered" and don't deserve consideration.

One of the largest groups of prisoners, he said, were veterans of Dieppe. They were thrown into that operation "without the slightest chance of coming through" and many were left on the beaches with no choice but to surrender. These men were shackled for a month by the Germans, yet that apparently did not count in the eyes of Canadian authorities.

Thousands of Canadian airmen were shot out of the skies over Europe and were captured, yet they couldn't get anything unless they proved maltreatment had affected their ability to work on discharge. Many of these men had suffered terribly from forced marches.

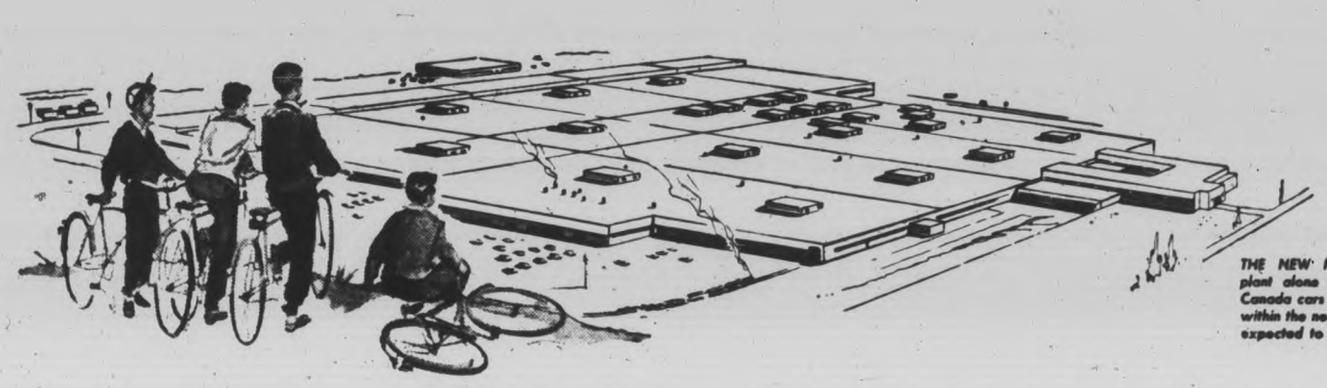
largest plant under one roof in Canada!

Forty-nine years ago, a little group of enthusiastic, forward-looking Canadians founded Ford of Canada, and opened Canada's first automobile plant. Now, still pioneering—still building for the future—Ford of Canada begins production in the greatest automobile assembly plant ever constructed in this country.



Ford-Oakville is, in fact, the largest plant under one roof in Canada. But sheer physical size is not the important thing about this new industrial giant. Brought into operation in Ford of Canada's 50th Year, this great new plant is a multi-million-dollar pledge of this company's firm, continuing resolve to keep in step with Canada through the great future that plainly lies ahead. Built in record time . . . by Canadians . . . to serve Canadians . . . to build cars and trucks to suit our Canadian needs and preferences, Ford-Oakville is truly an achievement of which all throughout the country may well be proud.

Ford of Canada is in the automobile business. All the vast new facilities of Ford-Oakville are for one purpose only—the assembly of Ford and Monarch, Mercury and Meteor cars—and Ford and Mercury Trucks.

Manufacturing operations will continue to be handled at Ford of Canada's Windsor plants—where another vast expansion program is now under way, to provide the largest automotive engine plant in Canada, the most up-to-date automotive foundry, and a machine shop second to none in modern tools and precision equipment.

These Ford of Canada plants represent a distinct forward step in Canada's fast-moving progress as an industrial nation. They will mean better cars and trucks for you—better values for your money—and better service through our 1,100 dealers from coast to coast.

FIFTY YEARS FORWARD WITH FORD

THE NEW FORD-OAKVILLE . . . Assembly plant alone covers 32½ acres. All Ford of Canada cars and trucks will be assembled here within the near future, by a plant working force expected to reach 4,000 men.

Pope Urging Frank Talks As Peace Aid

VATICAN CITY (CP)—The Pope today called on the world powers to initiate "a frank and loyal discussion" as a step toward world peace.

Such talks, he contended, would be the "first and indispensable condition of peace."

The Pontiff's words came a few hours after Prime Minister Churchill advocated that world leaders meet at once to try to ease east-west differences.

"We feel that we can credit ourselves with having given in our messages a meaning that is clear and realistic to the peace which the world really needs," the Pope said.

FRANK DISCUSSION

"For the moment we can express the hope—if we may use that word—that we may see a frank and loyal discussion take place between the powers.

"Although this would not yet mean that peace was assured, it is at least the first and indispensable condition of peace, and, if that is lacking, there is no knowing how to take any step towards its attainment."

The Pope expressed his plea for peace—his latest in a long series that began 14 years ago, when he was elected to St. Peter's throne—in a special audience granted to foreign correspondents in Rome. It was the first such audience the Pope ever gave.

Churches Straight, Tipsy Catch Eye In Mexico

MEXICO CITY—One of the first things that strikes visitors to Mexico's capital is the contrast between churches straight and tipsy. Like the palaces and many other buildings, the old churches rest on the mud blanket which was formerly Lake Texcoco. The majority, having settled several inches or several feet in mud, show more irregularity and tipsiness than most of the other buildings because they are higher and have domes and towers.

Nuestra Senora de Loreto, a church facing a like-named plaza off Calle San Ildefonso, is tipsiest of all and worth finding. It is nearly as far out of plumb as the Leaning Tower of Pisa and as you stand in the tiny square gazing at it, and particularly at the huge dome on top, you almost expect to be a witness to its collapse, now a century and a half overdue.

Manuel Tolsa who built the Little Horse built this for the Jesuits who wanted it to house a Loreto madonna brought from Italy. To enter it, you must descend several steps to a level four feet below the square and then mount several steps to the present floor.

The fine baroque church of Santo Domingo, near the letter writers, is a great reminder of the monastery and central headquarters of the Dominicans in New Spain. This is supposed to have cost $200,000, a fantastic sum for the year 1736. The interior contains some fine churrigueresque. It is very impressive seen with the long view from the square.

STRIKING TOWER

The bell tower is striking too. The large clock on the plaza side is at a height of 30 feet. Above the clock are three bells hanging in a vertical row. Above the bells comes a stretch of yellow tile work and then a bell chamber with a larger bell. The eye climbs up the tower to behold a small cupola with more yellow tile work and above this a tiled roof sloping up steeply to the absolute pinnacle which is a cross against Mexico's blue skies.

Then there is La Santisima Trinidad, a few blocks east of the National Museum at the corner of Moneda and Academia. The Santisima has one of the few notable churrigueresque facades of the capital's churches and side walls of ancient tezontle. Its glazed tile dome and its exceedingly off-plumb tower with florid facade make a true Mexican combination.

UNUSUAL STREET NAMES

There is a unique system for naming streets in the capital. The idea is to enable one to locate the section of the city as soon as the street name is given. For example in the Colonia Santa Maria, all streets running north and south are named for trees; those from east to west for flowers or notable Mexicans. The Colonia Juarez streets are named for foreign cities such as Londres, Berlin, Manchester, etc. In Roma and Condesa colonias, the names are for Mexican states and cities; in Cuauthemoc for rivers; San Rafael for celebrated men of all nationalities. In the very poor colonia de la Bolsa one sees Bach, Beethoven and other great musicians on the street plaques.

Another puzzle for the visitor is that streets often bear names changing once or more along the way. Madero which becomes Juarez at San Juan de Letran used to be called the Calle de Plateros because of the silversmiths who most of the old street names have been altered for Revolt heroes and dates; Latin American Republics, Mexican and foreign cities; scientists, writers, poets, musicians, lakes, trees, etc. All that survives of the old custom of naming blocks is that each has a number—1a, 2a or 1st and 2nd followed by the street's name.

Forest Fire Danger Reduced By Rain

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The danger of forest fires was reduced Monday when rain and snow swept across Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec.

Thousands of tired firefighters who battled fires in bush and forests were given their first break since a summer-like heat wave parched central Canadian provinces.

Eighty fires were burning in Ontario Monday in 20,000 acres of mixed timber. Most of them were held or put out, but one was out of control 30 miles northeast of North Bay. The 5,000-acre bush fire was battled by 170 men.

One blaze, at Markstay, near Sudbury late Sunday gutted a $40,000 lumber mill, left 13 families homeless and destroyed buildings and 2,200 acres of forest. Officials blamed a cigaret carelessly thrown away.

Although farmers feared for their crops as a result of icy storms in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, officials of the Manitoba department of agriculture said the rain and snow "couldn't have come at a better time" to help in the fight against forest blazes.

UNDER CONTROL

Some 60 fires in Quebec were brought under control, but the situation had reached a point where the provincial forest protection service considered banning forest travel.

There have been no official estimates of damage, but they may run into millions of dollars. Many firefighters blamed careless trappers, anglers and settlers trying to clear land for the fires.

The situation in the West eased after five days of fires. Several small blazes were reported in the Maritimes.

Conditions in some parts of Ontario remained serious and unless substantial rainfall comes, the danger will remain high in southern sections of the province. Frank Miller, forest protection supervisor at North Bay, said unless there is rain all bushland in the southeastern section of Northern Ontario will be banned for travel.

USE EVERY DEVICE

Every possibly-useful device is used by firefighters to bring a blaze under control. Small groups of trained bush firefighters are equipped with such items as a plow, a bulldozer and a mobile radio unit.

Another method is to drop large paper bags filled with water from aircraft. They are not likely to extinguish a big fire, but serve to check a small blaze before it can develop and so give firefighters a chance to race to the scene and deal with it.

Says Walcott Will Retire If He Loses

CHICAGO (AP)—Jersey Joe Walcott's manager said Monday he will retire the 39-year-old ex-champ if he loses to Rocky Marciano Friday night but insisted the old boy is a cinch to regain the heavyweight boxing title.

"I have everything fixed for Joe to get $500 a week the rest of his life," said Felix Bocchicchio, his manager. "But he's not going to lose. I think he is a cinch. The price of 3 to 1 is way out of line. It should be a 6 to 5 and take your pick."

Bocchicchio talked about Walcott at a press luncheon preceding a showing of films of the first Walcott-Marciano fight last September when Rocky knocked out Walcott in the 13th round.

POSITIVE OF WIN

"If Joe wins, this won't be his last fight," said Felix. "You boys are going to see him execute a one-two combination that is the greatest thing in the world. . .

"We expect the champion to be pressing. He's going to tear in there and he'll find Mr. Walcott ready. He may be damned sorry he came in so fast. And we'll be ready from the opening gong."

Business Hours Still Problem

SIEGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP)—Whether to open at night or not is one of the most controversial problems facing retailers, J Gordon Dakins of New York, president of the National Dry Goods Association, said today.

In an address prepared for the annual convention of the Canadian Retail Federation, Mr. Dakins said the problem is basically local in character and few, if any, communities have the same identical problems of shopping needs

Night openings bring problems of what to merchandize. Because the husband can usually go along, high price home appliances move better and advertising will have to be slanted to tastes.

Too, selling is at a faster pace and advertisements have to do more pre-selling.

He said experience in the United States has tended to show opening late one night a week is profitable, but the added profit gained from opening a second night is doubtful.

Hoyt Wilhelm Has Yet To Yield Earned Run

NEW YORK (AP)—Hoyt Wilhelm, ace New York Giants' relief pitcher, is bucking baseball's second year jinx this season, but he's having even better success than he did in his rookie campaign.

In the American League, Whitey Ford of New York Yankees shows the lowest earned run mark The young southpaw permitted only four runs in 30 frames for a 1.20 average. His record is 2-0.

Drop In Canadian Dollar Expected To Affect Many

By ALEX DIMEO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The recent drop in the value of the Canadian dollar will affect many Canadians and Americans.

To the average Canadian it will mean the end of holiday or business travel at a premium across the border.

To the American tourist in Canada, it will end the nuisance of having to use a 95-cent dollar.

Tourist officials, however, don't think the disappearance of last summer five-per-cent premium on the Canadian dollar will have much effect on their industry.

The fact the two currencies recently have come to almost even terms won't mean a great increase in tourist travel or tourist spending here.

Canadian holidays will be just a bit more pleasant for Americans.

HIGHER RETURNS

To the business man, the increase in value of the U. S. dollar should mean higher returns for many basic Canadian exports, including pulp and paper, lumber, base metals, grain and gold. As an example, pulp and paper companies showed profits last year as much as 18 per cent less than the previous year. This was blamed mostly on lower returns in U. S. money. Increased labor costs were also partly responsible.

A spokesman for the Canadian Exporters' Association aid the decrease in value of the Canadian dollar is a boon to Canadian exporters. With the Canadian dollar at a premium, they said it was virtually impossible for the exporter to realize a profit.

A survey of some companies, which export to the United States, reveals all welcome the Canadian companies, those companies which import component parts of their products and export the whole, also consider the change a healthy development, despite the fact that they must pay more for incoming material.

Canadian officials attribute the decline to the reduced demand for Canadian dollars, caused by a decline in Canadian exports. Other causes noted were the tendency of American investors to sell Canadian securities and the reluctance of Canadian companies to float bond issues in the United States at a time of rising interest rates in that country. Canadian exports in the first quarter of 1953 dropped to $900,600,000 from $989,000,000 for the corresponding period last year.

In New York, bankers attributed the drop to American investors selling Canadian securities and reinvesting their money in United States issues, for greater interest rates. This, they say, has increased the supply of Canadian dollars on foreign exchange markets, and tended to push down their price in terms of Canadian dollars.

London brokers expressed still another view. Some observers said it was the cessation in American investment rather than a withdrawal of capital from Canada that has caused the current setback. Also, some continental interests which have transferred funds to Canada now are taking their profits, they said.

Foreign exchange officials in Montreal say that Canadians can look forward to a leveling off near par, and if trade balance is achieved the Canadian dollar will return to a premium in terms of American funds.

Older Pilots Good

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There now are more than 1,000 civilian pilots in the United States past the age of 60, Dr. Ross A. McFarland of Harvard University school of public health told the world meeting of the Aero Medical Association today. But the senior fliers still are doing a good job. A study of 60 civilian air crashes shows that pilot aging had nothing to do with the crackups, Dr. McFarland said.

Suggests Retailers Trim Credit Sales

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott estimated today that the debt of Canadians to their storekeepers has reached a record of more than $1,500,000,000 and suggested that some retailers trim credit sales if they want to stay in business.

Shopkeepers who sell too much on credit may not only be discouraging the consumer's habit of saving against the future, but also endangering their own business investments, Mr. Abbott said in a speech prepared for the annual meeting of the Canadian Retail Federation.

Retailers were planning to spend a lot of money on capital expansion this year—about $300,000,000 including repair and maintenance costs—an increase of 50 per cent over 1952.

"Just as it would be unfortunate to see a fall in the high rate of personal saving, so, too, it would be undesirable if any portion of your considerable annual investment in retailing facilities was endangered by the possibility of too many credit sales turning sour," Mr. Abbott said.

RISE IN SPENDING

There had been a "very significant" rise in consumer spending and in outstanding retail credit in 1952, following elimination of federal credit controls. But while credit was going up, so was the rate of personal savings in Canada.

"It would be unfortunate," said Mr. Abbott, "if consumers were encouraged to pledge so much of their future earnings that the rate of net personal saving dropped."

The saving habit was important to Canada. If the government's policies had had the effect of persuading Canadians that they had nothing to save for, "then we would be free-wheeling to disaster."

"During this period in which we must finance a high level of production for defence, a period in which there are many demands on available goods and many calls for the taxpayer's dollar, the evil of a watered-down dollar is always close at hand.

"I believe that that danger is temporarily at bay," said Mr. Abbott, "but it would not be prudent to forget that it is there."

FAIRLY STEADY

The volume of consumer credit outstanding was continuing to rise "at a more than moderate rate" during the current quarter. It would seem "reasonable" to expect that "fairly soon" the rate of increase "should ease off as repayments begin to come in greater volume."

He had been encouraged to see that the proportion of total retail credit sales was continuing to be fairly steady at just under one-half of cash sales.

"At the turn of the year, consumer credit outstanding in Canada was over $1,500,000,000—50 per cent higher than at the end of March, 1952. We know that it has gone up somewhat since then. This is a pretty rapid growth in outstanding credit, even allowing for the backlog of potential purchases built up while consumer credit was restricted."

The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics covers an area of about 8,500,000 square miles.

Labor Votes To Aid City Minor Baseball

Peterborough Labor Council Monday night voted to raise enough money to help sponsor minor baseball in the city.

In response to a request from Pat Calladine, they passed the motion unanimously. Mr. Calladine had said service clubs in Peterborough were backing the scheme.

Labor Council Sends City Second Letter

Unsatisfied with city council's response to their request for removal of the "vote-for-four" clause in the city election legislation, Peterborough Labor Council Monday night voted to send a second letter to council.

This second letter will ask what the council proposes to do, if anything, on the question.

The labor council received a letter from the city clerk, outlining the history of the present legislation on civic elections. This they felt was not satisfactory, and did not answer their original letter.

"I don't think they intended to do very much about it," said Ed. Humphrey.

Scores Tactics Used By Quaker

Labor Council president Fred Burrett denounced as "damnable" Monday night the tactics reported used by Quaker Oats Co. in connection with the present strike.

Commenting on reports that the company had farmed out work to other mills in the country and was attempting to bring in at least one Quaker product from the United States Mr. Burrett said:

"I think these are damnable tactics that the Quaker Oats Co. is using to try to break this strike."

Mr. Burrett said the council was seeking support from related unions across Canada and in the U.S. in this matter.

Former council president Ed. Humphrey said it was easy to see that "Eisenhower and his 'millionaire cabinet' is out to break organized labor." He suggested that these efforts were reaching Canada through the Canadian branches of U.S. companies.

The council passed a motion calling for a letter to Quaker president R. R. Faryon asking that the company bargain in good faith with the union.

Mrs. Fanning, retiring president of the Ladies' Club, arranged for the girls to form a curling club through teacher Miss Mildred Bailey, and so Mrs. Fanning and Miss Bailey were invited to pour tea at this final event of the season. Sandwiches were made for the occasion by the home economics class and fresh spring flowers were prettily arranged on the table.

Only girls of PCVS and Kenner Collegiate were in the club this year and they had as president Miss Shirley Peryer and as secretary-treasurer, Miss Sally Poole. There was a membership of 20 girls, two from KCI, and four teachers. She then presented the balance of the funds, in the amount of $22 to Mrs. Selkirk for the Peterborough Curling Club.

The teachers who supported the girls in their first season at curling, and also played the game with enthusiasm, were Miss McGregor, Miss Margaret White, Miss Katherine Macdougall and Miss Bailey.

Princess Trains As Nurse Does 9-Hour Day Stint

LONDON (Reuters)—Among the royal, titled and famous guests staying at Buckingham Palace for the Coronation at the special invitation of the Queen will be a pretty, fair-haired nurse not yet out of training.

She is Princess Margherita Von Baden, 21, daughter of a noble family in southern Germany and niece of the Duke of Edinburgh.

Dropping her titles, Margherita does a nine-hour day along with other training nurses at St. Thomas' hospital, a large state-run hospital in shabby, overcrowded Lambeth, Southeast London.

The princess, who seldom sees her uncle, puts away her starched uniform May 28 to join her parents at the Palace. Her mother is the Duke's eldest sister. The Duke's two other sisters also married German noblemen and live in Bavaria.

Margherita will see the crowning ceremony inside Westminster Abbey June 2 from seats reserved for foreign royalty.

"I love nursing and enjoy every minute of my work," she says, "but I am looking forward enormously to staying at Buckingham Palace with my uncle and the Queen. What an honor to be invited."

Margherita began nursing 2½ years ago after attending a finishing school in Britain. She has moved out of the "probationary" stage of making beds and changing bandages but still has 18 months to go before she is fully qualified.

What will she do then? "One cannot plan ahead these days," she says. "In a way, it is more fun not to."

Girl 17 Advised To Drop Divorced Father Of 27

DEAR MISS DIX: I have met a man of 27, divorced, with three children. I find him good company. I'm only 17, but have always gotten along better with older people. I'm not in love with him, but I wonder if I should stop seeing him before I become seriously inclined.

ANNE

A DIFFICULT PROBLEM

ANSWER: Seventeen is an age to find fresh, new romance, instead of making do with a divorced man. It's a good thing you aren't in love with him, and I strongly urge you to end this friendship before it is too late. The stepmother role calls for wisdom far beyond your years, and the job of second wife isn't easy to fill at any age.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Recently we moved from a nearby city and I enrolled in the local school. I am finding it very difficult to break into the groups here, although I was well liked in my old school. I'm 14.

H. S.

ANSWER: As you grew up with the boys and girls in the old school, you were naturally a member of the group and had no need to work to be accepted. Now you are in a position where you must prove eligibility to be one of the crowd. Join every possible activity, even if you must work in from the edges. Don't be afraid to wash the dishes after refreshments are served. Prove you are co-operative and pleasant—then you can't lose. Ignore all apparent rebuffs; they almost certainly aren't intended rudenesses.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: The boy I like is younger than I am, and, though he comes to see me during the week, he doesn't date me weekends. We get along very well, except that he seems rather distant at times.

E. Q. S.

ANSWER: You are more mature than the boy, and expect the same stability from him. He's too young for steady dating, which is what you expect. Give the lad a chance to grow up.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Should a mother be expected to wash her twelve-year-old daughter's hair?

MRS. T. H.

ANSWER: Most youngsters of that age take considerable pride in washing their own hair, and also in setting it. Usually they do a mighty fine job. You've spoiled your child by doing these things for her too long. Relax, and insist on her taking over her personal chores.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I've been going with a boy from another school, and my mother says if I continue to date him, the boys from my own school won't ask me out. Is she right? I'm 15.

WORRIED SUE

ANSWER: Your Mom is certainly on the right track. The best way to teen-age popularity is through your own crowd. You will jeopardize your chances of dating by showing your preference for boys of another school. Don't you agree that it would be natural for your male schoolmates to resent your marked preference for the pupil in another school? Remember how fiercely school pride burns.

British Housewife Looks Forward To Rationing's End

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON (CP)—After 14 years of food rationing, the British housewife looks forward with a reasonable degree of hope to the day when she will throw away her ration book.

The fact is controls are being shed one by one, almost without anybody noticing.

"I hope," Food Minister Gwilym Lloyd-George told a meeting of women, "that by next year we shall be nearer still to complete freedom and the abolition of the ration book."

Eggs—the golden nuggets of wartime—recently came off the ration. Now you can order bacon and eggs in a restaurant and nobody lifts an eyebrow. Candy was freed early in February after being on the restricted list, except for a short period, since June 26, 1942. Instead of being limited to 24 ounces a month, those with a sweet tooth now can order as many bars as they want.

The remarkable thing is that on balance Britons are taking the new liberties calmly, almost as though they had got so used to rationing they couldn't accustom themselves to plenty in the pantry. Occasionally there were queues before candy counters, but nothing sensational.

Still rationed are sugar, butter, margarine, cooking fats, bacon, some cheeses and fresh meat. Some say everything except cheese and meat will be free of controls by autumn and that all foods will be a matter of customer's choice by 1955. The hope was given a further fillip in Britain's new budget, with the announcement that sugar will be decontrolled "shortly."

There have been hints from the opposition Labor party that it fears decontrol will mean pricing such commodities as butter and bacon beyond the reach of the working class, especially if derationing is accompanied by abolition of the remaining food subsidies, which tend to keep the price of basic items at an artificially low level.

Subsidies were clipped roughly by half in the 1952-53 budget and now run more than £200,000,000 a year. It has been estimated that subsidies on butter, bacon, cooking fats and margarine total £60,000,000, reaching their highest levels on butter and bacon.

The Conservative government has countered arguments about rising prices by contending that, for instance in the case of eggs and tea, the cost has remained at about the same level as under rationing. They claim that lower world food prices make it unnecessary for the housewife to pay more on the open market than under rationing.

Many trade sources, however, are pessimistic about lower prices.

A London margarine manufacturer said that unless world prices fall further, the cost of margarine would inevitably go up once rationing ended. He said the only cheaper supplies of essential vegetable oils are in the Philippines, a dollar area which is an unlikely shopping place for Britain.

A buyer for a retail and wholesale grocer said butter has shown no tendency to become cheaper. A dairy produce importer agreed and predicted removal of controls and subsidies might result in a price rise.

Some present prices are: butter three shillings a pound, margarine 1s 4d, cooking fats 1s 6d, bacon two shillings to 5s 9d, varying as to cuts, sugar sevenpence a pound. In Britain, the average industrial wage is about £9 a week.

Marmora L.G. Plans Dance

MARMORA (ENS)—St. Paul's Ladies' Guild met in the parish hall.

Mrs. W. D. Lavender opened and closed the meeting with prayer.

The treasurer's report of the general funds and the decorating fund was encouraging. Part of the former was voted to the parish treasurer.

Mrs. Thomas Peace displayed material to be used in making a Coronation quilt for which tickets will be sold. Mesdames F. Leal, E. Hewitt and D. Robertson were named conveners of a table at the autumn bazaar.

A motion passed in January that cards only be sent to sick members of the congregation was further clarified. A letter of thanks is to be sent ot Roy Frost for his donation of lights to the parish hall. A dance was planned for the town hall on Wednesday, May 20 with proceeds going to the artificial ice fund. Refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

CORONATION COSTUME: Fifty teen-age girls going to the Coronation as guests of Canadian-born international industrialist, W. Garfield Weston, will be outfitted with a specially-designed travel wardrobe. Modelled here are a Coronation-blue wool travel suit, which also is designed to be worn with a white cardigan or blouse, and a checked-taffeta dress featuring a full flared skirt. The crocheted blue, silver-spiked, nylon hat is designed to be worn with either ensemble. Accenting the wardrobe are a red leather shoulder bag and white gloves.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Last-Minute Dinner Dessert

In every cook's life comes the hour when time is galloping off in all directions—and there's no dessert for dinner.

A certain irreverent young man in my life, initial of P., has called me last-minute Mary on occasions. That explains my acquaintance with such desserts as lemon or orange-cake puddings and fudge puddings—dishes that may be served almost as soon as taken from the oven.

You'll welcome these desserts in your hour of need, but there's one thing I have to say about fudge pudding. While the recipe does not look large the pudding is rich and will serve eight people generously.

Another thing to keep under your hat until you are sick and your loving husband is obliged to prepare the meals: these desserts a man can make. They are so simple and straightforward, and the reward of rich fine flavor—and appreciation—will be a great satisfaction to your darling.

QUICK ORANGE-CAKE PUDDING

Into a large bowl put your sifter and in the sifter put ¼ cup sifted flour, 1 cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt and sift together into bowl. Then add 1½ to 2 teaspoons grated orange rind, 1-3 cup orange juice, 2 egg yolks, ⅞ cup milk, and beat until the batter is smooth. Now fold in 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into medium-sized pudding dish (or 6 individual dishes) and stand in larger pan containing hot water and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 45 minutes. Serve warm in winter, cold in summer. For special occasions provide some whipped cream for topping.

Quick Lemon-Cake Pudding: Use lemon rind and juice instead of orange juice in above pudding but use only ¼ cup lemon juice, and 1 cup milk.

FUDGE PUDDING

(6 generous servings)

Put your sifter in the bowl and into it put 1 cup sifted flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons cocoa. Sift these together then add to them ½ cup milk and 2 tablespoons melted shortening or butter. Then stir in 1 cup chopped nuts. Butter a 9-inch square pan and spread batter in pan. Mix together 1 cup brown sugar and 4 tablespoons cocoa and sprinkle over batter. Now carefully pour over entire pudding 1¾ cups hot water. Sounds wacky but don't worry for it works out all right for during the baking the batter rises to top and chocolate sauce settles to bottom. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 45 minutes. When you serve it cut it in squares and invert squares on dessert plates, and spoon some of the sauce in the pan over each square.

DATE DELIGHTS

These are delicious fruity individual puddings, in which you may substitute steamed apricots and cut up maraschino cherries for the dates, if you like, for a change.

Put sifter in mixing bowl and into it put 1 cup sifted flour, ½ teaspoon each salt, baking powder and baking soda. Sift together into bowl then add ¼ cup soft shortening, ½ cup sugar, 1 egg, 1-3 cup sour or buttermilk, 1 tablespoon grated orange rind. Beat with rotary or electric beater until batter is smooth, then stir in 1 cup cutup dates (or other soft dried fruits—figs are good too). Fill greased muffin tins or individual pudding dishes two-thirds full and bake 245 to 30 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. Serve these hot, and pour over, just before passing, a mixture of ¾ cup strained orange juice and ¼ cup white sugar. This is a quick and delicious sauce. If you prefer to serve the orange syrup hot, heat it in top of doubleboiler.

Deep Freeze

the east Lansdowne St. vicinity, including several business men. They declared that they had inspected the premises in which Peconi proposed to install a small electric deep freezer, "and we found the same to be clean and sanitary; the premises and residence generally are the neatest and best kept in the district; and we recommend that he be granted a licence to maintain the deep freezer for the purpose of storing meat."

Against the intimations of that appeal in behalf of Mr. Peconi was the report of City Engineer Chalmers that Mr. Penoci had told him he wouldn't operate the freezer if the council did not wish him to do so.

Pianist Equals

"The singing was very, very lovely and full of thought," he remarked about the Coventry Singers' singing of Corpus Christi by Warlock. The Perth choir chose, All Creatures Now Are Merry Minded by Benet.

"I can't praise too much these two choirs for their enterprise and achievement and I would like to congratulate them and their talented conductors," the adjudicator said.

The high vocal solo mark for the day, 89, was awarded William Perry, Lindsay tenor, for his singing of Go Lovely Rose by Quilter, in Class 24.

"I haven't heard better solo singing in Peterborough. This singer had just the right voice for this song," Mr. Heath-Grarie remarked.

Another interesting feature of Monday's session was Class 6—ladies' choir. There were two competitors in this class, the Campbellford Choralians and PCVS Choral Club. This was the first time in a Peterborough festival the PCVS group have had competition.

The Choral Club were awarded first with 171 marks. "These are very tuneful and accomplished singers," Mr. Heath-Gracie said.

The Campbellford group were also praised for their performance. "The blend and musicality throughout was first rate." The second-place choir was awarded 167 marks.

Today is rural school day at the festival with approximately 700 rural school children taking part.

Tonight, the final session of the festival, will be church choir night.

Two special events have also been arranged for this final session. Following the final class of the evening, church choirs open, Mr. Heath-Gracie will lead the competing choirs in a mass singing of the set piece. During the evening, Mr. Russell will give a half-hour piano recital.

The results of Monday's sessions are as follows:

The fine was paid by Sproule's employer, a Lindsay scrap metal dealer.

Ask Extension Of Water Main On St. Mary St.

North Monaghan council granted permission Monday to Elmo Pierce, the city superintendant of sanitation, to clear out the ditch along the road in front of the property used by the city as a dump.

As previously approved by the city council, Mr. Pierce plans to level the old dump and its accumulated ashes, and generally straighten out that property and make it as presentable as he can. The landfill method of garbage disposal is proceeding in the broad field to the east of the dump.

In North Monaghan it is generally understood that it will not be long until the city will have to secure other and extensive ground for the burying of its refuse.

Fred Stenson applied for a water main on St. Mary's St., extending past St. Alphonsus school to serve 10 lots west of Goodfellow Road. Council approved his request for a water line to connect with lots No. 1 to 5, and lots 11 to 15, plan 74. The Utilities Commission, it was said, has already expressed their assent.

Bury Prejudice Build For Understanding

CAMPBELLFORD — (ENS) — Dr. Richard D. Jones, chief of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews' addressed the Rotary Club on Monday. Dr. Jones, a native of Elizabeth, NJ, is a former Wesleyan Methodist minister and a graduate of Wesleyan College, Boston University and Northwestern University. He is a renowned world traveller, student and teacher.

"It is only common sense that we should give everyone the privilges we want for ourselves" was the theme on which Dr. Jones premised his remarks to the club.

Why do people from so many lands seek entrance into Canada, asked the speaker. Firstly, he said it is because it is the land of opportunity. From Newfoundland through to British Columbia it has become the modern land of promise. "We, as Canadiaps, do not appreciate this but the rest of the world does."

People come to a land where they can meet those who have a similar background to their own. "In Canada we have all nationalities and this in itself attracts, immigrants for the stranger desires company of his own tongue. Itis regrettabel that the barrier of immigration are not further lowered."

"Canada is a land of freedom and good government. We do not have to submit to political controls as is the rule in most European coutries. We have decent, honest, cultured and refined men in our parliaments. Let us keep it so. Let us stand on our own feet and not imitate anyone. John Fisher is a notable Canadian because he is doing the greatest and one of the most needed jobs in Canada today—selling Canada to Canadians.

"The U. S. A. talks about the great melting pot which makes Americans of all newcomers. We cannot and would not be a melting pot for all nations, but rather would foster a cultural pluralism with all working together, side by side, burying prejudice and building understanding." The speaker complimented Rotary upon its work toward international understanding.

Past-presidents of the club were in charge of the meeting, Harold Carr presiding, Art Loucks introducing the speaker and A. D. Bennett thanking him.

Dr. Jones spoke to the pupils of the High School in the afternoon.

POLICE OFFICERS have begun a search of all boxcars from Vancouver to Toronto in an effort to locate the three Quigley boys who have been missing from their Toronto home since Friday, May 1. Left to right are: Henry, Howard and Paul (artist's conception) Quigley.

Council Reviews City Bylaw On Basic Zoning

Ald. Gordon Farquharson elicited in the course of the session of the finance committee of the council Monday night the information that the basic zoning bylaw of the city planning is being reviewed.

"There is a great deal of discussion on certain matters, I have noticed, due to the fact that the zoning bylaw has not been passed," he said. "I'd move that a committee be appointed to take hold of the problem and draft an acceptable bylaw."

"We have a 36-page bylaw," said Acting Mayor Miller, "and we have now gone through 17 pages, three of us. So we are working on it.

With the chairman's announcement that a subcommittee was delving into the clauses of the bylaw, Ald. Farquharson said he was happy to recall his motion. His proposal was directed to ineffectual zoning as indicated by reference to a number of instances of late in which the protracted suspension of the bylaw and its preliminaries was mentioned as an impediment to decisive action.

An example Monday night, and the latest, was the application of Jones Brothers, fuel dealers on Ware St., for permission to install fuel oil tanks on their premises. They are planning to put in two tanks each of 10,000 gallons or one of 10,000 gals. capacity and another of 5,000 gals. In the information from City Engineer Chalmers, they expressed their willingness to put the tanks underground if that was required by the council. Mr. Chalmers reported that the area along the C. N. R. which is adjacent to Ware St., is zoned for residenital purposes, but Jones Brothers have carried on their fuel business for years, and prior to city planning and zoning.

"I move we grant them permission to put in the tanks," said Ald. Farquharson. "They already have a fuel yard in the same premises." Ald. A. B. Burrows seconded that motion.

"I don't think that part of the neighborhood lends itself to zoning," Acting Mayor Miller remarked.

Discussion reverted to the fact that the zoning bylaw is not in force, and the council accordingly could not compel the burying of the Jones tanks.

"They said they were willing to put them underground if that was the wish of the council, but they don't have to do it," Ald. P. J. Anglesey commented.

That part of the conversation ended on a rider to the motion to the effect that the council "suggested" that the tanks be placed below the surface.

Only recently the council agreed to the transfer of the McColl-Frontenac tanks in the vicinity of Ross St. to Douglas MacPherson, leaving them as they have been above ground.

As to the committee's "understanding that the Jones tanks would be placed underground," Ald. Rehill said that in view of two or three instances of exception "I don't see how you can do that."

CLAIMS DANGER

"There is a great deal of opinion today that they are not so safe underground as people think they are," Ald. Rehill said. "There is controversy about the advisability of that, partly because there is no way of detecting leaks, and as a result a whole area can be contaminated by leakage, even getting into sewers."

Zoning entered into an earlier phase of the committee's discussion when Nick Peconi's deep freeze building for keeping horse meat for sale as dog food was considered.

City Solicitor Huycke said that control over that business had to do with a zoning bylaw. He briefly recalled that Peterborough was one of the first cities in the province to go into town planning and zoning. In that early stage of teh planning legislation, provincial authorities took the position that every ratepayer should receive a copy of the planning bylaw, Mr. Huycke said.

That requirement was regarded by the council as a practical impossibility, and also involved excessive expense. Mr. Huycke mentioned the concern of former Ald. James Dutton about that impediment. It was proposed that public meetings be held throughout the city to explain the plan and zoning. But, that appeared to be a dubious expedient.

"Since then," Mr. Huycke said, "the Municipal Board has permitted cities like Windsor and Toronto to advertise the scope and purpose of the City Plan, and that's where it stands now."

At any rate, Ald. Farquharson brought out the news that a new chapter of progress with the plan is under tedious way.

Warn Time Running Out On Seaway Plan

BOSTON (AP)—"Time is running out" for United States participation in the St. Lawrence seaway and power project, Senator Charles Tobey (Rep.-N. H.) warned today.

If the U. S. does not act quickly to join Canada in constructing the project, it will lose "a voice in the control of a vital and strategic waterway," he told the American Public Power Association convention.

"Our Canadian friends recognize that the self-liquidating project is a sound business proposition," Tobey said. "That is why they are so eager to finance and build it themselves entirely within the boundary of their own country."

The New Hampshire Republican pointed out that the Canadian Parliament in December 1951, passed legislation enabling the Dominion to construct the project within its borders—with the provision that the door for U. S. participation would be left open" as long as feasible."

The time is almost here when we will have to decide, he said, and "it may well be that the present session of the Congress is when the hour of decision must come."

"There is no issue before Congress as to federal development of power on the St. Lawrence river," he said. "That has been taken over by the province of Ontario and the state of New York.

"There is no issue before Congress as to the merits of the seaway phase of the project. That has already been determined by Canada.

"There is no issue before Congress that affects the economic interests of the railroads, the coal companies nor the power companies. That issue has also been settled by Canadian initiative.

"The issue before Congress is this: Is the United States. . .going to participate with Canada. . .and thus have a voice in its control or is the United States going to let control (fall to) the Canadians by default?"

City MD Says Value Of Press Underestimated

TORONTO (CP) — The general council of the Ontario Medical Association Monday night unanimously approved the forwarding of a resolution to the board of governors asking for a press code.

The code would be designed to cover the dealings of the medical profession with the press and to foster an increased appreciation of the profession in the province.

Dr. J. C. Dawson of Peterborough said doctors have too long underestimated the importance of the press in interpreting medical news for the public.

Another resolution passed by the council called on the board to ask insurance companies to pay a suitable fee for group insurance reports or any other type of insurance information required from doctors.

The association said 9.6 per cent of the province's doctors are against compulsory health insurance and 40.4 per cent in favor.

In a report to the annual convention, the association said most of the doctors in favor of a national health plan believe it should be administered by the medical profession.

But, the statement added, "the possibility of any government turning over for administration a fund which will approximate $1,000,000,000 a year is so remote as not to warrant discussion."

Order New Trial In Legion Theft

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Court of Appeal Monday ordered a new trial for Otto C. Nesbitt, charged with the theft of $1,000 from the Carleton Place branch of the Canadian Legion.

The attorney-general's department appealed Nesbitt's case after he was acquitted by Judge F. W. Wilson at Perth, on the grounds that the money was obtained through an illegal lottery and therefore was not capable of being stolen.

The charge was that the money was taken by Nesbitt while he was selling tickets on a car being raffled off in a legion lottery.

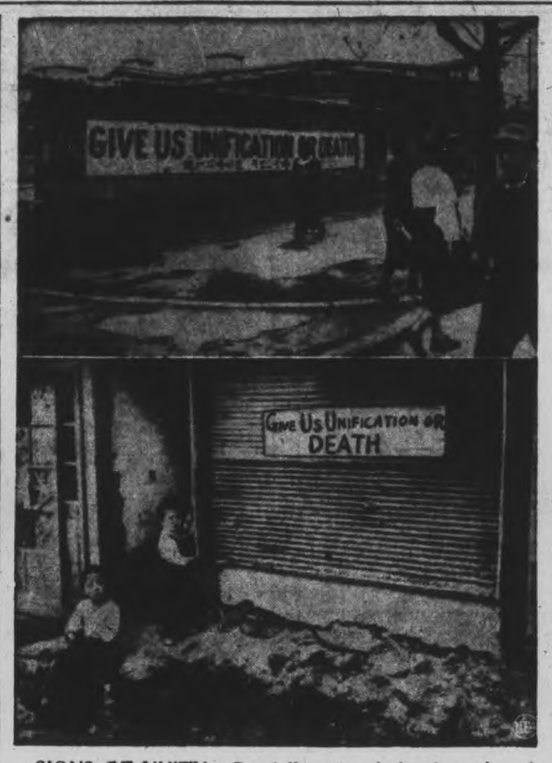
Avoid Gossip Pope Advises Office Workers

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—The Pope's advice to office workers is to hold their tongues, avoid gossip and sex talk, and to get on with their jobs.

The text of a speech by the Pope, made to 4,000 civil servants in the Basilica of St. Peter's Sunday, was made public Monday.

The pontiff said that unfortunately jokes are often made about sex, adding that it is even more regrettable when such talk "becomes the instrument of slander, gossip or calumny."

He told them not to discuss things they would not mention "in the presence of your mother, your wife or daughter."



MUST GOVERN TONGUES

"If you want to appear truly Christian, you must govern your tongues during the exercise of your duty," he told the civil servants.

"You must know how to stay silent and how to speak at the proper time—but above all how to stay silent. . .

"Every time that in your offices there is too much useless talk, or talk that has nothing to do with your work, your handling of the files would suffer inevitable delay, with harm, sometimes grave, to the persons concerned.

"And if this talk should be not only useless but—God forbid—also harmful in itself, then even more energetically should you curb your tongues."

Doctors Save Ottawa Money

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Doctors at Victoria Hospital and local RCAF medical officers have run up a saving in defence spending estimated at $2,000,000 through a five-year heart research program.

The work has been under the direction of Dr. G. W. Manning, assistant professor of clinical investigation, University of Western Ontario, and a leader in aviation research. Dr. Manning reported on his work at a meeting in Los Angeles Monday of the International Aero Medicine Association.

The saving was made through 5,000 heart examinations made on applicants for aircrew. Out of this number 27 applicants were rejected because of heart abnormality

It is calculated that it costs the government between $50,000 and $100,000 to train a pilot. Catching the 27 medically unfit means substantial saving by rejection before training began.

The heart examinations were done on electrocardiographs, machines which give a visual record of the heart's activities.

Nationalization Not Answer To Need For Hospitals

"We must remember that the best hospitals have not developed in a national scheme," Dr. W. I. Taylor, medical administrator of the Peterborough clinic said dring an address at the Rotary luncheon meeting Monday.

Dr. Taylor, who came to Peterborough recently after taking an important part in the development of DVA hospitals in Canada, made a plea for the continuation of volunteer hospitals in his address.

"It is true that there are not enough hospitals today," the speaker said. "There is not enough money to finance them in many communities and that financial problems of existing hospitals are often causing continual strained relations between the hospitals and civic administrators. But is nationalization the cure?"

ANSWER TO NEED

He pointed out that hospitals in Canada have arisen from community need. This need has been met by generous response of people to build and operate them. They have an essential local flavor; are staffed without political influence, and are controlled within the community.

"There is still the possibility of making local appeals to support something entirely worthy such as hospitals. And it must never be forgotten that in giving away responsibility we give away a certain amount of authority. We lose a freedom we can not afford to lose."

HISTORY OF HOSPITALS

In his address, Dr. Taylor gave a brief outline of the history of hospitals from the time they were first established 4,000 years ago to the present time. He explained that much was owed to the medical workers of the past— the Romans, Greeks, Moslems, Indians, Hebrews.

The speaker made particular mention of Florence Nightingale, whose contribaution resulted "in a change of the whole concept of hospitals and nursing care."

"Hospitals today, from an organizational point of view, resemble no other plant or institution other than a city itself. They are even more diversified than a university. Up until the First World War, they were laregly devoted to nursing care. Now they help doctors with diagnostic work and the educational aspetc has also been introduced.

"Hospitals are living things. They should change and develop from day to day."

Dr. Taylor was introduced by Dr. L. W. Thompson and thanked by J. A. Dewart.

During the meeting two new members were initiated into the club— James McClenaghan and Cecil Joynt.

U.K. Troops Dig Trenches As Suez Tension Growing

Secret Plane Lost Trenton Directs Search For Fliers

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—Search planes scanned Lake Ontario today for two airmen missing after an unexplained explosion that caused the loss of the Bell X-2, an experimental rocket-powered craft. The two, one the chief test pilot for Bell Aircraft Corp. here, fell, jumped or were blasted from the bomb bay of a B-50 bomber, a mother ship to which the X-2 was attached. The X-2, known in U.S. aviation circles as "the hottest plane in the world," was blasted free of the mother ship Tuesday night about 15 miles off the U.S. shore of the lake northeast of Rochester. The ship was flying at 30,000 feet.

Bell officials said they did not know whether the explosion, which injured one of the six remaining crew members aboard the B-50, occurred in the B-50 or in the X-2 itself.

BIG PLANE LANDS

The B-50 landed safely here. The company said no one was aboard the X-2 at the time of the accident.

The missing men were Jean (Skip) Ziegler, 32, Bell's chief test pilot, and Frank Walko, 33, a Bell flight engineer. The injured man, Robert F. Walters, 27, of Buffalo, suffered an eye injury and burns in the blast.

Navy, air force and Bell planes joined the search, under direction of the RCAF at Trenton, Ont.

SIGHT OIL SLICK

Trenton reported that wreckage and oil slick were sighted in the lake near the Ontario shore today. However, the wreckage could not be identified because of heavy fog. The oil slick was spotted about 30 miles south of Trenton.

The Bell X-2 is believed to be capable of flying much faster than the speed of sound. It's predecessor, the Bell X-1, has made brief test flights at speeds reported in the 1,000-mile-an-hour range. Sound travels at about 780 miles an hour at sea level.

TO BE TESTED SOON

The X-1A, second in the series of rocket-propelled ships built for research by Bell for the United States government, is expected to be tested this summer at Edwards air force base, Calif., where the X-1 broke the sound barrier.

The X-2 is reported to be faster than either of the previous models. Bell is believed to have more planes of the X-2 type.

Most details of the X-2 are secret.

Russian Threat Unchanged Ridgway Says

PARIS (AP)—Gen. Matthew Ridgway, newly-appointed U. S. army chief of staff, declared today that "from a soldier's viewpoint there is no information known to me that indicates a lessening of the threat" from Russia.

The retiring NATO commander in Europe, speaking at a press conference at his headquarters outside Paris, emphasized that he was referring to "capabilities, not intentions."

Later, in response to a question, he added:

"I have heard of no indications of imminent hostilities."

Ridgway was accompanied by Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, who is to succeed him as the NATO commander.

Gruenther indicated he was completely in accord with Ridgway's viewpoints.

Ridgway leaves Saturday for the United States to testify before Congress in support of continued appropriations for foreign defence aid. He will return here for a farewell tour of the NATO countries.

To questioners Gruenther said he had not seen anything which would change the point of view he shared with his two predecessors, Gen. Eisenhower and Ridgway, that German troops are needed in Western defence.

Both he and Ridgway said that atomic defence weapons would be brought into use in defenee of the West in event of attack.

Gruenther said NATO probably is "farther behind in air strength than in any other field. Our second is logistics. These two will have high priorities for some time."

Hungry Horses Eat Tarpaper

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—A Humane Society inspector said today that four horses he found on a lonely bush farm near here recently were so hungry they were eating tarpaper from the walls of a barn.

Harold Allard said it took him six hours to travel over a 3½-mile bush road in a jeep to bring two bales of hay to the horses.

The horses were so hungry they had to be restrained from eating the covers off the bales. Mr. Allard said many horses on backwoods farms and in bush camps have gone hungry this spring because bad road conditions would not allow provisions to be brought to them.

Some bush-camp owners have been turning their horses loose to forage for themselves.

Mr. Allard told of another case in Prince township, west of here. He found two horses locked in an old house. They had been there for two days.

6,000 In Ceremonies

OTTAWA (CP)—More than 6,000 officers and men of Canada's active armed forces will participate in Coronation Day ceremonies here June 2, defence headquarters announced today.

Highlights of the ceremonies will include the trooping of the color by the Governor-General's Foot Guards, religious observances, Coronation music by massed bands of 449 members, a national ceremony on Parliament Hill, and the relayed broadcast of the Queen's address.

3 Get Stiff Fines For Starting Fires

FORT FRANCES (CP)—Three Rainy River district farmers received stiff fines Tuesday after being found guilty of starting fires which destroyed thousands of acres of bushland and destroyed several buildings.

Magistrate F. G. Cornell agreed with the Crown attorney that the fires, which could have been disastrous but for week-end rainstorms, were the result of carelessness.

He fined Peter Gruette, 56, of North Branch $200, and Jonas Widgren, 66, of Abor Vitae and Rufus Wood, 67, of Pindwood $100 each.

The magistrate said all but Gruette had obtained fire permits, but should have known better than to start burning bush when the forest fire hazard was so high.

17 Sentenced To Die For Village Massacre

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—Seventeen Kikuyu tribesmen were sentenced to death today for their part in the Mau Mau massacre of Lari village last March 26, in which 150 men, women and children died.

They were charged specifically with murdering the wife of a loyal headman during the night of terror in the foothills village.

Their trial was the first of 13 arising out of the massacre.

Commandos Sail From Malta On Secret Orders

LONDON (AP)—Three landing craft loaded with Royal Marine Commandos sailed under secret orders from the Mediterranean fortress island of Malta Tuesday night as the tense Anglo-Egyptian dispute over the vital Suez Canal Zone worsened. There was no official announcement of their destination, but speculation immediately arose that they would reinforce Britain's Suez garrison. Egypt's premier, Maj.-Gen. Mohammed Naguib, has threatened to oust British forces from the zone with Egyptian blood if necessary.

The admiralty reported that the 8,000-ton light cruiser Bermuda now is at Port Said, in the canal zone, but declined to comment on unofficial reports that four Royal Navy destroyers — Chieftain, Cheviot, Chequers and Chevron—had been rushed to the area.

PRECAUTIONARY MEASURE

An army spokesman, announcing the shift of the marines, said "certain movements of the Royal Marine Commandos have been approved as a precautionary measure."

His announcement came shortly after Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd told the House of Commons that British soldiers in Egypt have been "ambushed, shot and assaulted" in some 30 attacks since the beginning of April.

Declaring that many of the attacks apparently were carried out with "at least the connivance" of members of the Egyptian armed forces, Lloyd added that "our soldiers have no option but to defend themselves."

DIGGING TRENCHES

Reports from Port Said, at the canal's northern end, said British troops were digging trenches at several points in the zone and have set up tank - supported military guards at certain crossroads.

A British Army spokesman in Cairo commented that it was the "normal responsibility of commanders to ensure at all times the security of troops and installations."

Fuad Galal, Egypt's minister of national guidance, told a press conference in Cairo Tuesday night that the stalemated talks "can resume only on the basis of Egypt's stand which has not changed — unconditional evacuation of the Suez base and full Egyptian control of it."

Egypt Gives 3-Month Deadline To UK

CAIRO (AP)—Lt.-Col. Gamel Nasser, chief of staff to Premier Naguib, said today that unless Britain evacuates the Suez canal zone within two or three months the temper of the Egyptian people will not even allow the existence of the base.

This is the first time Egypt has given any hint of a deadline for evacuation.

Abdel Nasser, 35, a leading figure in Naguib's government, said neither statements by Prime Minister Churchill nor the visit here of U. S. State Secretary John Foster Dulles would have any effect on the increasingly critical Suez situation so long as British troops remain there.

Abdel Nasser gave his views in an interview with Alexander MacDonald, Editor of the Bangkok Post, who is visiting Cairo.

Abdel Nasser discounted Suez as a defence base. He said there is nothing in the way of a defence line to halt an enemy such as Russia from sweeping down through Iran and Iraq and into Egypt and taking over the base. Russia, he added, might do this in a matter of 15 days.

"The installations themselves are merely a rear supply base," he declared, saying that the Arab nations are prepared to raise 16 divisions to aid in defence of the area. Naturally, he said, these must be integrated with "other forces." These he did not define, but it was assumed he meant only Western forces.

He said it is "too early yet to talk of a defence community in the Middle East so long as Britain remains in the area."

UN Gives Reds New Blueprint For Armistice

By GEORGE A. McARTHUR

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The United Nations command today handed the Communists a new blueprint for an armistice in Korea. It was a sweeping 11-point plan for exchanging prisoners of war, last big roadblock to a truce.

The Allies would free 34,000 North Koreans who refuse to go home and—on certain conditions—give temporary custody of 14,500 balky Chinese to a five-country commission made up of Sweden, Switzerland, Poland, Czechoslovakia and India.

The Communists called the proposal a "step backward" and said the Allied attitude "threatens the prospects of the whole armistice negotiations."

The broad plane — a counter-proposal to one advanced by the Communists—is based on the long-standing Allied position that no prisoner will be sent home against his will.

After the lengthy document was read and the Communists commented acidly, the truce delegations adjourned until Thursday morning.

Lt-Gen. William K. Harrison, Jr., senior Allied delegate, presented the plan to his Communist counterpart, North Korean Gen. Nam Il in a one-hour, 40-minute session.

ALLIED PROPOSALS

The Allies proposed:

1. Repatriation of prisoners immediately after an armistice, except those refusing to go home. Releasing to civilian status all prisoners of Korean nationality unwilling to return to Red rule. Releasing all non-Korean prisoners who persist in refusing to return to Communist control after 60 days in custody of a neutral commission.

2. Conditional acceptance of the Communist nomination of India, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Sweden and Switzerland as members of the custodial commission—but only if India heads the body and provides any troops needed.

3. Rejection of the Reds' proposal that a political conference determine the fate of prisoners refusing to go home after being in neutral custody.

Play Up West's Differences

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet press today reported on Prime Minister Churchill's foreign policy speech Monday to the British House of Commons. There is plenty of reason to believe Moscow is interpreting the mixed reception to the speech as an indication of widening differences between the United States and Britain. The approval of Churchill's ideas in certain sections of French politics apparently also is not lost upon the Russians. The development of conflict of opinion between the United States and its European partners often has been predicted here, and reactions in England, the United States and France to the Churchill speech may be looked upon by the Russians as the beginning of a series of such conflicts.

(A joint study by the American Council of Foreign Relations and the British Royal Institute of International Affairs says a Soviet peace offensive could intensify differences between the Americans and British. The study, released Tuesday night, was prepared before Georgi Malenkov succeeded Stalin as Soviet premier. It says that if the U.S.S.R refrained for a time from muddying international waters, perhaps in expectation of such conflicts among Western powers, "disagreements that would otherwise have been suppressed may be allowed to come to the surface." Stalin, in his last essay before his death, predicted the development of such conflicts.)

DIDN'T APPROVE

The Soviet press, while devoting about 600 words to the Churchill speech, by no means embraced his ideas. The account raised the issue of Western support for the rearming of Western Germany and made clear that the U.S.S.R. objected to this. The Soviet press asked:

"Are the words of the prime minister to be understood to mean the English government intends to continue the policy of remilitarization of Western Germany, the policy of partition of Germany?"

The raising of this specific question, with regard to Churchill's pledge not to renounce "fulfillment of obligations which we took upon ourselves in relation to Western Germany," shows plainly that the U.S.S.R. regards the issue as a major obstacle to a German settlement or any considerable easing of world tension. But at the same time, the impression was given that the West's position on Germany was not an obstacle to holding big power talks, as suggested by Churchill. The Russians have sand before they have no objection to top-level talks.

Hours Of Horror Described After Ship Goes Down

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP)—Capt. Albert Stiglin told a grim story here Tuesday of death and peril in the Lake Superior storm sinking of his ore freighter the Henry Steinbrenner. Treachery of the weather formed a major part of the captain's tale. Stiglin, 46-year-old veteran Great Lakes skipper, was one of several survivors brought to this lake port before dawn Tuesday by rescue boats.

As a U.S. Coast Guard inquiry impended, others who lived through the disaster off Isle Royale were en route here in additional craft.

At the same time it was disclosed that survivors on the Steinbrenner's raft tried vainly to keep a dying fellow seaman alive.

The Steinbrenner went down in 600 feet of water early Monday. With hatch covers torn off by powerful winds, waves filled her hold with water.

The latest checkup at the Grand Marais, Minn., Coast Guard station listed 10 dead, 16 survivors, and five men missing.

4 IN HOSPITAL

Wan and tired, Capt. Stiglin met reporters while four of his crew, described as in a "state of shock," rested in hospital.

He told of the Steinbrenner's departure from Duluth, Minn., Sunday on seas "smoother than a pond" only to encounter a savage storm the next night.

All the crew left the ship on its two lifeboats and one raft, he said.

The raft, with Stiglin as one of 10 men on it, capsized.

"The Lord only knows where the fellows hit," he said.

Only six, including the captain, got back on the raft.

"We spent four hours on the raft. It bobbed up and down on the top of the high waves. Spray blew over us, drenching our clothing. Once we saw one of the lifeboats bobbing in the water.

"The first mate (Andrew Kraft) lost consciousness on the raft. He died shortly after the rescue ship showed up."

Deckhand Jim Lambardais, 39, said he tried to fasten slipping hatch covers aboard the freighter shortly before she foundered.

"Water was pouring into No. 11 hatch at the stern," he said in an interview in hospital. "Every time she rolled, the hatch would roll and the water pour in."

Radar Waves Said Dangerous

LOS ANGELES (CP)—Radar waves may be a danger to persons working with or near radar equipment, Commander Sidney I. Brodey of the U. S. Navy told the Aero Medical Association here Tuesday.

Brodey, a member of the U. S. Navy bureau of aeronautics, has found that moderate strength radar waves can kill rabbits in a little more than one minute and are fatal to rats in 22 seconds.

The waves kill by producing heat just underneath the skin. They raise the blood temperature and paralyze the animal's respiratory system.

Nobody knows yet just how dangerous the waves would be to humans. However, much more powerful radar transmitters are being put into use by the armed forces.

200 Planes Smash At Red Troop Centre

SEOUL (AP)—Nearly 200 Allied Sabre jets and Thunderjet fighter-bombers roared deep into northwest Korea today and smashed a Communist troop and supply centre near Sinanju on the Yellow Sea.

Earlier, Sabres destroyed two MiGs and damaged a third in aerial battles over North Korea.

In a morning raid, Sabre dive bombers blasted Red troop concentrations north of the western and central fronts and slammed explosives at an earth dam below Sukchon on the west coast.

On the ground, counter-attacking South Koreans won back three small hills in brief early morning fights. About 160 Reds overran the South Korean positions in the second pre-dawn attack in two days on the east-central front.

Action was limited to light squad and platoon-size probes elsewhere on the 155-mile front.

7-Cent Raise At Swift Plant

STRATFORD (CP)—Final settlement of the strike of Swift Canadian employees calls for an immediate pay increase of 7½ cents an hour, and an additional three cent increase Aug. 1.

The agreement is effective for one year from May 1.

Plant manager W. D. Sinclair said it might take a week to get the plant into full swing following the shut-down which has lasted since March 6.

The 61 striking employees are members of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL). Settlement followed three days of talks under chief conciliation officer Louis Fine.

When the August increase becomes effective, wage scales for women will range from 69-76½ cents an hour, and from 88½ cents to $1.07½ an hour for men.

Feeds Baby Like Doll

Mother Dies In Coma Child 4 Saves Sister's Life

BLOXWICH, England (Reuters)—Ever since Christmas four-year-old Jeanette Cockayne played mother with her doll, Suzette, who is about the size of baby sister Carol.

She fed Suzette regularly with her doll's feeding bottle full of water.

One day in April Jeanette's mother, Mrs. Jean Cockayne, 27, lay still on her bed. Jeanette tried to awaken her because she was hungry and eight-month-old Carol was crying for her bottle.

Jeanette did not know that her mother had died in a diabetic coma.

Her father, policeman Gilbert Cockayne, was out of town. The house was empty and little sister Carol kept crying.

Jeanette was too short to reach the door lock to get out and bring help. She tried knocking on the windows and waving to passing neighbors. They just waved back.

So she decided to take over where mother left off. She got her doll's feeding bottle, filled it with water and fed baby sister Carol.

"I used to watch mummy give Carol her bottle," Jeanette said Tuesday night, "I gave it to her lots of times."

She was just tall enough to reach the cookie jar on the kitchen shelf. She shared the cookies with her baby sister. She ate the rest and drank cups of water.

For four days this went on and still nobody came "to help me wake mummy up."

Then a neighbor noticed too many milk bottles on the Cockaynes' front step. A housewife knocked on the door and whispered to Jeanette to stand on a chair and open the door.

They found Mrs. Cockayne dead in her bed. And little Carol was smiling and healthy.

Lowly Pig King Of Livestock Market

TORONTO (CP)—The lowly pig is king of the livestock market today.

Orders from Toronto and Montreal combined with a scarcity of hogs to boost the price to $31.50 a hundredweight—highest this year.

Salesmen of United Livestock Sales, the body which handles pig marketing in Ontario, said farmers reduced their herds early this year when federal price support of $26 a hundredweight was removed.

For a time pig prices fell to $23 but started to rise as the scarcity was felt.

Salesmen said they expect a "good run" of hogs toward the end of August as farmers go back into pig production for the higher prices.

49 Of Forest Fires In Ontario Now Brought Under Control, With Help Of Showers

TORONTO— (CP) — All but one of the 50 forest fires in Ontario were under control today. The department of lands and forest said the worst of the battle is over.

Scattered showers during the last two days helped firefighters curb the flames which have destroyed thousands of acres of valuable spruce, pine and balsam in a seven-day rampage. At one time more than 100 fires were burning.

The blaze out of control today has already burned 3,000 acres of mixed growth in the Falconbridge district near Sudbury. Firefighters expected to have it under control late today.

No estimates of the value of timber destroyed have been made— but it will run into thousands of dollars.

Fires were burning in rain-sprinkled woods in the districts of Sioux Lookout, Fort Frances, Port Arthur, Geraldton, Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury, North Bay, Parry Sound, Pembroke and Tweed.

The rain also prompted officials to lift travel restrictions near Port Arthur and Pembroke.

One 5,500-acre blaze in the Jocko river area northeast of North Bay was under control today for the first time since Sunday.

Young Paratrooper Fatally Stabbed

SHILO, Man. (CP)—A 29-year-old paratrooper was fatally stabbed with a hunting knife Tuesday during a washroom quarrel which allegedly followed an argument over a missing wallet.

He was L.Cpl. A. W. N. Smith of Toronto.

RCMP are holding Pte. R. J. Finn, 24, formerly of Ireland and recently of Camp Petawawa, Ont.

About 10 men were said to have been in the washroom when the quarrel started. After a violent argument, Smith was stabbed in the lower left abdomen. The knife allegedly used was not army issue.

Both men were members of the 2nd battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment and had been taking paratroop training at Rivers, Man.

Tricky Operation

Destroyer Takes On Fuel From Rolling Magnificent

ABOARD MAGNIFICENT (CP)—The cocky destroyer Sioux pulled alongside this flat-top in a choppy Atlantic Tuesday to take on fuel supplies.

As the sleek, 2,600-ton destroyer came abreast of the 17,700-ton Magnificent, lines were fixed across the 150 feet of water separating them and the six-inch oil line was heaved aboard by Sioux's sailors.

It's a tricky operation on a white-capped sea. If a bad roll forced them apart the oil line would snap. A line from the carrier to the Sioux's forepeak marked off in stretches of 25 feet enabled the ships to keep approximately the same distance apart.

Sioux dropped back aft of the carrier after refueling to take up her customary station during flying operations from the Magnificent. Both squadrons of Avengers and Sea Furies got airborne. One returned when it couldn't raise its undercarriage for normal flight.

It was only the second time since Canada's Coronation squadron left Halifax last Thursday that the weather has been good enough for the Furies to take off.

The cruisers Quebec and Ontario, meanwhile, carried out dummy torpedo attacks on the carrier and gave their anti-aircraft guns a workout. The Quebec was getting along nicely after making her own repairs on a burst main steam joint in the engine room, a job which normally is done only in dockyard.

The joint burst just before the cruiser left Halifax, forcing her to use two shafts instead of four. One of the most ticklish parts of the job was lowering a 400-pound casting into place while the ship was taking a buffeting from the weather.

The squadron was some 800 miles off Spithead Tuesday night. The four ships are due there Friday where, joined by the frigates La Hulloise and Swansea, they will participate in the royal naval review June 15.

Congress Tired Taking Orders From U.S. Allies

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chairman Dewey Short of the House of Representatives armed services committee said today Congress is tired of taking "dictation from our so-called allies." The Missouri Republican made the remark in joining angry congressional reaction to statements in the British House of Commons on Tuesday that some Americans do not want to settle the Korean war. Clement Attlee, former prime minister and leader of the Opposition Labor party, also raised the question whether President Eisenhower or Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep.-Wis.) is running United States foreign policy.

"That's almost an insult," Short said in an interview.

COMMUNIST SALUTE

McCarthy himself said that when he heard of Attlee making such statements, he recalled "the picture of him in Spain reviewing the Communist troops and giving the clenched fist salute." He had an aide bring out a picture of a group standing with raised fists, and said it showed Attlee and Spanish Communist leaders at a review during the civil war.

Representative Lawrence H. Smith (Rep. Wis.) said in a separate interview he had returned from Europe convinced the Europeans "would not defend themselves" against a Russian attack. He said the entire American-supported military buildup is a "questionable venture."

One congressman, who requested anonymity, said a number of influential congressmen had views similar to those expressed by Smith, who has consistently opposed European military build-up aid, although he is chairman of the European sub-committee of the House foreign affairs committee.

Representative John Vorys (Rep.-O.), commenting on Attlee's speech, said: "I'm sure that American foreign policy is not being run by Attlee or any other Britisher, and I'm glad of it."

Driver Scratched In Collision

TRENTON, — A Trenton milk man was only scratched Tuesday morning when the milk truck he was driving along Highway No. 2 five miles east of Trenton, was involved in a collision with a transport truck.

After being thrown into the back of the truck amid broken milk bottles, William Patrick, 21 climbed out of his demolished vehicle with only a few scratches

Belleville Provincial Police said that a dense early morning fog which greatly restricted visibility was the cause of the accident. They said that Patrick was driving west along the highway when he collided with an eastbound transport driven by Fred Carter, Toronto. Carter was uninjured when his vehicle left the road and plowed a deep furrow 50 feet long across the grass.

The front end of the light panel milk delivery truck was flattened. The front wheels were smashed and the engine was thrown ou of the wreckage.

Hopes Growing About Seaway

By JAMES C. MUNN

WASHINGTON (AP)—An initial decision by a federal power commission examiner gave fresh lift today to New York state's hopes that it may soon join with Canada in construction of a huge St. Lawrence river power project.

Examiner Glen R. Law, in a decision that is subject to review by the commission, directed Tuesday that the power authority of New York be granted a 50-year licence to build the American half of the estimated $600,000,000 project, to share equally in the estimated 12,000,000,000 kilowatt hour annual output.

The Canadian phase of the joint undertaking, in the river's International Rapids section, would be carried out by the Ontario hydro-electric commission.

But before actual construction begins, opponent-initiated obstacles may have to be overcome

Tornado Toll Reaches 97, Floods Lessen

WACO, Tex. (CP)—The death toll from Monday's $28,000,000 Texas tornado rose to 97 today as search parties, working through the night by floodlight, found 10 more bodies in battered Waco.

The toll now stands at 88 dead and 300 injured in Waco which suffered an estimated $25,000,000 damage; and nine dead and close to 100 injured in the west Texas plains city of San Angelo where damage was $3,000,000.

Waco had one thing to be thankful for today.

FLOOD DANGER LESSENS

Flood dangers from muddy, swollen waters of the Brazos river appeared past as the river level dropped today.

Tributaries of the Brazos had been swollen as a result of seven-inch rains which preceded and followed the mammoth, freakishly silent tornado which crushed two square miles here Monday afternoon.

STILL SEARCH RUBBLE

Tired, grimy workers, some almost at the point of exhaustion, still dug into heaps of rubble that had been modern store buildings before Monday's big blow.

Workers burst through the tangled twisted mass late Tuesday night into the basement of the destroyed five-storey R. T. Dennis building where it had been feared from 30 to 50 bodies would be found. There was none there.

Portable generators, huge searchlights and earth-moving equipment were rushed to the stricken city in trucks flanked by police cars. Blood plasma came from far and near for the injured.

San Angelo citizens dug into their own pockets for money to aid the storm victims and in other cities funds were being raised to aid the losers to the deadly, destructive winds. The whole of Texas reeled under wild, unusual weather.

Dalhart, in the northern reaches of the Texas panhandle, had a snowstorm as the temperatuge dropped below freezing. Stockmen were warned to look after their animals in the snow-swept panhandle areas.

DUST STORMS TOO

Dust torms lashed Midland, Wink, San Angelo and Big Spring areas of west Texas with grit. Visibility was lowest at Wink where it was cut to a half mile.

More twisters were sighted in the vicinities of Sherman, in north-east Texas; Gladewater, in east Texas; and San Antonio, in south Texas. But no damage as reported.

The weather bureau said the wild weather was caused by cold air blowing out of Canada and colliding with warm, moist air from the Gulf of Mexico.

Three Men Held On Car Theft Charge

BELLEVILLE (CP)—Three men, two of them from Nova Scotia, were held here by Ontario Provincial Police today on charges of assault and car theft.

Samuel Thompson, 22; formerly of Belfast, Northern Ireland; and Michael Kavanaugh, 24, and Robert Marshall, 35, both of Nova Scotia, were arrested today while driving in a car reported stolen from Raymond Doyle of nearby Shannonville.

Doyle told police the three men assaulted him and drove away.

Police Question Man In 4 Fire Deaths

MONTREAL (CP) — Provincial police today questioned a man held in connection with the Feb. 10 fire at Lac Ste. Marie, 40 miles north of Hull, in which 29-year-old Mrs. Germaine Lachapelle and her three children were killed.

Police did not identify the man who was brought here from Hull Que., Tuesday night.

Detective Arthur Normandeau returned to the scene of the fire Tuesday and said as a result of his investigations the man was brought here.

Allow Peanut Day

A request by the Peterborough Club of the Associated Canadian Travellers to hold annual Peanut Day September 19 was granted by the Police Commission Tuesday.

During the meeting, members discussed designs of shoulder flashes, the purchase of which is being contemplated by the commission.

The flashes are meant to distinguish members of different police departments and are part of a province-wide scheme.

RAYBESTOS, WESTCLOX CLOSE

Another industry following the lead set by the Canadian General Electric Co. is the Canadian Raybestos Co. They are giving their employees June 2, Coronation Day, a holiday with pay. A similar decision has been made by the Western Clock Co. which brings nearly all the major industries in Peterborough into line.

Rain Helps Trees Planted At Nassau

The 15,000 red pines planted at Nassau ten days ago by the Lakefield High School 4-H Forestry Club must have perked up under the dampening of Tuesday night's rain. And the cooler weather should also promote rooting.

The timely moisture should stimulate the new life that is in the land, from fall wheat to the spring grain that is already showing in fields sown before the heavier rains of nearly two weeks ago; likewise to the asparagus crop, the grazing meadows and the fields of new pasture.

THROUGH THE PAVEMENT

Another slash has been made through the Charlotte St. pavement, near the corner of Aylmer St., evidently for the laying of a water line. A busman remarked this week that it won't be long until the council will have to put down a new top.

Fraser Suggests Railroad Cars Be Used To Advertise Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—The House of Commons heard suggestions Tuesday how railway crossing accidents might be cut and Canada given some free advertising through distinctive marking of railway freight cars.

G. K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough West) said he recently saw an American freight car marked "product of Maine" in big white letters that threw a reflection from car headlights at crossings at night. Canada should do the same.

W. G. Weir (L—Portage-Neepawa) said truck drivers had suggested to him that freight cars should be marked with a wide white or yellow band that would make them easily seen at crossings.

Transport Minister Chevrier said he would bring the suggestions to the attention of the board of transport commissioners.

15 In City Win Awards At Festival

43 Prizewinners Announced For Performances

The Seventh Annual Peterborough Music Festival scholarship, award and prize winners were announced today by Festival Chairman Norman Armstrong.

Fifteen of the total number of 43 have been awarded to Peterborough competitors and 28 go to out-of-town competitors.

The winners in the music section were chosen by George Heath-Gracie and John Russell following the final festival Tuesday night. The verse speaking and drama section awards were chosen by Adjudicator Miss Irene Fairclough.

This is the first year scholarships were available at the Peterborough festival and more than $500 worth were donated by interested industries, groups and citizens in the city and district. These scholarships are awarded for future tuition purposes only and are in addition to awards and cash prizes that have been donated this and previous years.

Awards and scholarships are given to competitors who show the most promise of future success musically. The winners need not necessarily have placed first, second or third in competition.

There were 750 entries in the Peterborough festival this year. Of this number, 260 were from Peterborough and the remainder, 490, were from out-of-town. In the actual competitions, Peterborough entries placed first in 62 classes, second in 37 classes and third in 21 classes. Out-of-town entries placed first in 98 classes, second in 61 classes and third in 49 classes.

The greatest number of out-of-town competition winners came from Port Hope (83 entries). Competitors from this town placed first in 10 classes; second in five classes and third in 12 classes.

Angry Scientists Demand Ban On U.S. Comics

LONDON (AP)—A group of hopping mad scientists today demanded a British ban on U. S. films, fiction and comic books about mad scientists.

The Association of Scientific Workers declared such imports are giving the profession a bad name. The public, it asserted, is getting an entirely wrong impression "as to the true purposes of science."

The association, a trade union of 12,000 scientists and technicians, said all too often the Americans depict its kind of people as "insane and with the extraordinary ambition to destroy the world."

In addition to its beefs about the treatment of scientists, the association made these points against U. S. comic books:

1. They present woman as "an inferior being whose only weapons in the struggle for survival are her curves."

2. They glorify violence and treat murder as just doing what comes naturally.

3. They engender racial prejudice by portraying their heroes as square-jawed, handsome white men and the villians as sinister persons of other races "fit only to be rubbed out by the hero."

Dulles, Stassen Arrive In Israel

TEL AVIV (CP)—State Secretary John Foster Dulles and foreign aid chief Harold Stassen of the United States arrived in Israel by plane from Cairo today on their Middle East tour.

The U. S. embassy was sealed off and troops and police riot squads were placed on the alert in preparation for Communist demonstrations against Dulles.

While here, they will confer with Prime Minister David Ben Gurion and other government officials.

The talks are expected to centre on relations between Israel and the Arab states, technically still at war.

Quaker Strikers Finding Other Work

Ald. W. J. Beggs of UPWA confirmed a report today that many of the employees of the Quaker Oats Co., who are on strike have obtained work at various other jobs.

"It has really been surprising the volume of work that has turned up right here in Peterborough and elsewhere in this part of the province," Mr. Beggs said.

The report said that some of the men are getting more money than their wages at Quaker, and it was a possibility that a few of them may decide to continue in this new employment.

PoliceUrgedToChange Radio Frequency

Communication was read to the Peterborough Police Commission Tuesday from the Department of Transport, urging the department here to install higher frequency radio equipment, in line with an agreement reached five years ago by the International Joint Commission.

The Police Commission previously asked for an extension of deadline to 1954. The letter pointed out, however, that five years' notice had already been given on the matter.

Cost of the new equipment has been estimated by one firm at over $4,300.

With the present equipment, radio transmission is liable to interfere with television reception. Police Chief John Thompson remarked that at present he could notice every time a police car passed his house because of this.

A Department of Transport inspector was in Peterborough recently testing the effect transmission of police calls has on television reception.

John Russell Presents Brief Recital

At the end of the last session of the Kiwanis Festival on Tuesday night Mr. John Russell, the junior adjudicator, played a short group of pianoforte pieces. Although he was out of practice and the instrument was not intended for concert purposes, there was a charming intimacy about this brief recital and the large audience was delighted with it.

Mr. Russell played a set of variations in G minor by Handel, to begin and followed it with Bach's choral prelude on "Mortify Us By Thy Grace." He followed this with Scriabin's Nocturne in D flat, for the left hand alone and then, in spite of the heat of the hall and his own fatigue, he set about the Chopin Scherzo Number 2, in B flat minor; this is one of the war-horses of the concert pianist and it does not lend itself to performance on a piano intended for domestic use, nor can a pianist who has had no chance to practice for several weeks attempt it with complete success. What Mr. Russell the adjudicator would have said if he had been called upon to give a criticism of Mr. Russell, the pianist, we can only guess. But this was neither a festival entry nor a concert performance; it was a pleasant period of relaxation among friends, and no critical voice was raised in the foyer afterward. As an encore the pianist played Debussy's "Clair de Lune".

Mr. Russell plays in the English style of pianism, with a warm, full tone, and with a great deal of poetic grace. His demonstrations during the festival adjudications had aroused a desire in the public to hear him play, and it was a gracious and friendly act on his part to consent to do so when the festival was over.

Set Town Policy On Subdivisions

COBOURG— (ENS) — Council last night decided to set aside this Thursday night for a committee meeting of the whole council in order to set up a policy in regard to what the town shall provide for housing subdivisions. Several applications regarding subdivisions have been filed with the council but before anything can be done in connection with the applications, council has to draft a policy and confirm it by bylaw.

Councillor J. F. Rolph informed the council that he had taken it up with Richardson Transport in regard to complaints from householders near the trucking company's warehouse concerning the racket at night keeping them awake and the company had advised him that they were negotiating a new site.

Council adopted the recommendation of the streets committee that an asphalt-type surface be placed on University Avenue from College to D'Arcy street, totalling 4,900 square yards at a price of $1.25 a square yard. Councillor H. Richardson reported to council on the proceedings of the recent recreational centre meeting and advised that a statement on capital expenditures would be coming from the recreational centre board.

Request from Dr. W. E. Wilkins for permission to operate property of his between King and Swayne as a motel, was tabled pending more information.

JUST LISTENING, express agent Fred Phibbs of Cobourg refused to open the box that is marked "Snakes," sent from a Texas snake farm. He is so far unable to find out whom they belong to. They were addressed to someone in Colborne, but there is no one there by that name.—(Murray Smith Photo.)

Two Boxes Of Snakes Waiting At Station In Cobourg For Owner To Claim Them

COBOURG (ENS)—Two boxes of snakes arrived at the CNR station here Monday, consigned to Oliver Sommerville, Colborne.

They left a Texas snake farm on May 5 and were in bond to Cobourg in the amount of $50. It seemed a routine matter to Fred Phibbs, the express agent here, although snakes don't come every day, but everything seemed in order until he got in touch with Colborne, the destination.

"Nobody here by that name," was the reply from the station agent at Colborne. Mr. Phibbs wondered if there was a travelling show headed for Colborne which would pick up the snakes on arrival, but a check-up revealed that there was no show booked yet. Only thing booked for Colborne were the horse races for May 18, and it seemed most unlikely that any snakes would be on that program.

Mr. Phibbs regarded the two boxes of snakes with a puzzled air. The boxes reposed out on a platform truck in the fresh air. Reason for that was that they were getting a little high. Expressman Phibbs pondered about the smell. He wondered if the things just smelled like that all the time or if some of them had died.

"You can depend on it that I am not going to open either of those boxes to find out," said Mr. Phibbs very emphatically.

The phone rang, and while talking to the party on the other end of the line, Mr. Phibbs asked, "Say, do you know what snakes are supposed to live on? You don't, eh?"

Turning to The Examiner, the express agent explained that he has just been talking to the customs office.

"They don't know anything more about snakes than I do. Suppose we did know what the blamed things ate, who would feed them? In fact, who would open the boxes in the first place? I know I wouldn't. Well, I am going to wire Port Colborne. Maybe somebody made a mistake and left the first word off and made it out to Colborne. I sure hope that is the right place because I don't know what we are going to do with these snakes," said Mr. Phibbs.

"Snakes alive! What a problem," commented the reporter.

Mr. Phibbs winced.

Cause Unknown, Fire Levels House In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD — (ENS)—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cunningham, Maple St. was destroyed by fire about 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. No one was in the house at the time of the outbreak. Mr. Cunningham was away and his wife and two daughters Barbara, 11, and Bonnie, 2, were visiting neighbours when Mrs. George Parcells noticed smoke coming from the house and called the Campbellford volunteer fire department.

Firemen under Chief Alec McDonald, using two lines of hose, fought the blaze for half an hour before it was brought under control.

The frame house, owned by John Parcells, was a total loss and neighbours were able to save only a few of the Cunningham's belongings before flames, which had gained considerable headway before being noticed, drove them back.

Cause of the outbreak has not been determined.

Captain Mutton of the Salvation Army has made temporary arrangements until the family finds new quarters.

Driving Impaired Man Fined $75

Booth was stopepd in a service station when Constable Cawood found him.

Indefinite Terms In Jail Should Be Lengthened

TORONTO (CP)—Minimum indefinite sentences of six months and maximums of 12 months were urged Tuesday by P. A. Smith, chief of the Ontario parole and rehabilitation board.

He told the legislature's select committee on reform institutions that some magistrates give sentences of 10 months definite and one month indefinite. The single month was almost useless to the parole board because it hardly had time to work with the parolee.

The committee met for one day at Queen's Park before leaving on an inspection trip today and Thursday through the Burwash industrial farm near Sudbury.

Col. Hedley Basher, deputy reforms minister, said the province plans to spend $24,000,000 in the next 10 or more years to renovate reform institutions.

Under the plan, about $2,000,000 will go to construction of a new building at Burwash.

He said plans call for the replacement of temporary buildings, the improvement of existing facilities and the construction of a new $2,000,000 institution for psychopaths at Millbrook, near Peterborough.

Britain Supports A Conference

Mr. Attlee spoke more openly yesterday as Leader of the Opposition than he could have done as Prime Minister. He said: "There are elements in the United States that do not want a settlement in Korea." It is a suspicion which many Canadians have held. Most of the cold water thrown on Red talks of peace has been American; it has been almost enough to fill an impassable moat between the Reds and the western world. The armistice talks in Korea are now faltering on the question of whether or not there should be political discussions between the two sides, following a temporary settlement of the prisoner of war issue. The American view (always called the UN view in American despatches, though it is in reality far from being a united UN view) is that a political conference about this, or even a higher one involving the chiefs of the three or four big powers, might be unnecessary and would probably be dangerous.

* * *

Churchill's Monday statement in the British House of Commons foreign policy debate is better poised in the real world of give and take, and of accomplishment by slow degrees. Churchill has called for a conference of the leading powers, meeting with a measure of informality "and a still greater measure of privacy and seclusion." Sir Winston does not see why anyone should be frightened of having a try.

> "If there is not at the summit of nations the will to win the greatest prize and the greatest honour offered to mankind, doom-laden responsibility will fall upon those who now possess the power to decide. At the worst the participants in the meeting will have established more intimate contacts. At best we might have a generation of peace."

It may be that no hard and fast agreement would be reached, the British Prime Minister said, "but there might be a general feeling among those gathered together that they might do something better than tear the human race, including themselves, into bits."

* * *

Why should the United States be frightened of having a try?

Who Is Open To Immoral Influence?

An interesting case was tried in the county court in Ottawa last autumn, in which a news dealer was charged with distributing books and magazines which were obscene. Judge McDougall decided that the charge had been proven, and fined the defendant. The case was appealed, and was heard again in the Supreme Court of Ontario before Chief Justice Pickup, who upheld the decision of the lower court. In law the decision as to what matter is obscene relies upon a decision made many years ago by an English judge, who held that obscene publications are those which would tend to deprave and corrupt persons whose minds are open to such influence, and who might have access to the publications in question. Commenting upon his decision, Mr. Justice Pickup said:

> "It may be that what would tend to corrupt and deprave in one generation might not in another generation, but that is a question of fact.
>
> "Counsel contended that the tendency to corrupt and deprave should be related to normal persons only. If this means persons who are immune to immoral influences from obscenity, the legislation under consideration would not be necessary at all.
>
> "On the other hand, I am not holding that matter is obscene which tends to corrupt and deprave only persons who are corrupt and depraved.
>
> "Between these two extremes there must be a large section of the public, young and old, whose minds are not corrupt and depraved, but are open to immoral influences. Into the hands of such, a publication of this sort may fall."

What interests us in this matter is that the books which were considered to be obscene were all available in cheap copies, priced at 25 cents and 35 cents; but all of these books, if we are not much mistaken, had previously been offered for sale in Canada in a more expensive form, costing $2.50 or $3.50. Is it suggested by the decision of the courts that young people have access only to cheap books? Surely not. The public libraries are filled with books which have been expensively printed, but which are available without charge to anyone who possesses a library card, including great numbers of young people. We have no doubt that all the books complained of are to be found in some libraries. Certainly there are books in public libraries which are as obscene as the books which appeared in this case, if the court's definition is a correct one.

We seriously doubt if people are corrupted by books of the kind which were complained of at Ottawa. To corrupt surely a book must present vice in an attractive light? We could name books which certainly present vice in an attractive light which are free from any obscene word, or any scene which is described in inflammatory language, and these books enter Canada freely, and are to be found in every well-stocked public library. Yet no complaint is made against them. A book which is full of dirty words and descriptions of disgusting incidents may, in its total effect, disgust the reader with filth and bad behaviour; surely its tendency, then, is a moral one?

As for immoral influences, we are all open to them at some times in our lives, whether from books, or—much more likely—from associations and examples. We cannot avoid them, for it is not in the imperfect nature of man to provide a moral climate which is utterly pure.

The point we wish to make is this: any legislation against immoral literature is guesswork at best, for what is immoral to one man is unobjectionable to another, and some people will pick immorality out of writing in which others will see no offense. In proceedings against immorality, therefore, we must act with the greatest caution, to make sure that we do not weave a net of precedent and guesswork which will trap and suppress far more than dirty books and magazines. In a world full of immoral influences, we have to take some chances.

Heat In Egypt

The Anglo-Egyptian negotiations over the Suez Canal Zone broke down last week. Forthwith the Egyptian premier-dictator General Neguib made an inflammatory speech and called the British "the enemy." The British Government has wasted no time in making its position clear to Egypt, through the British Ambassador in Cairo and Churchill's statements in the House of Commons.

Sir Winston said: "If at any time the Egyptians want to renew the negotiations we are willing, and if they will renew them with us and the United States that will be still better. Of course if the boastful and threatening speeches were to be translated into action, and our troops in the Canal Zone were to be the object of renewed attack and our soldiers were killed, we should have no choice but to defend ourselves. I am advised that we are entirely capable of doing this without requiring any physical assistance from the United States or any one else."

This last sentence is pointed. The U.S. Secretary of State, Mr. John Foster Dulles, arrived in Egypt on Monday, and his mediation—not at the behest of the British—may not be in accord with British interests, or British Foreign Office skill in dealing with the Middle East. The British Government has made clear that she can and will see the thing through, without dependence on the U.S.

The British policy is far from stubborn. In the talks Britain offered Egypt evacuation of her forces and restoration of Egyptian control and sovereignty over the Canal base—this, fifteen years before the expiration of the treaty which gives Britain full control over the Canal Zone. All she asked in return was that some British technicians would have authority over certain installations and stores within the base—the British-bought and built base.

Hot heads in Cairo have refused to accept this empirical and generous offer, demanding indisputed sovereignty. It seems to us they have been offered it: for with the British troops gone, Britain would have to depend on Egyptian good faith and good will to secure the authority any remaining British technicians might exercise within the base.

The Anglo-Egyptian conflict of ideas and policy is serious, but not profoundly alarming. Anglo-Egyptian relations have merely declined again to their natural condition of crisis. The Egyptians cannot seem to realize that Britain wants the Suez kept secure; she does not want its sovereignty.

Be Careful With Your Cheers

An interesting note in the Ottawa Journal reads thus:

> We are to be excessively cautious about our Coronation cheering since we learned that "Hooray" is a corruption of a Turkish war cry meaning "Kill them all."

We are curious about words and their origins, and we should like to know more about this. Our office dictionary (the Shorter Oxford) tells us that Hurrah, and Hooray, and Hurray and Huzza are all the same word; Hurrah and Huzza are described as "literary and dignified"; Hooray and Hurray are what people really should shout when they cheer. Nothing is said about the Turks, but is suggested that the origin of the word may be a Cossack cry "Ura!", which has been used as a name for a Cossack attack.

However, we do not intend to ignore the Journal's warning. We have been reading a book about the U.S. Marine Corps, in which those famous fighting men are described as giving vent to their pleasure in a curious cry—"Double peachy!" May we suggest this as a perfectly safe outlet for Coronation enthusiasm?

Come on, boys! Three Double Peachies for the Queen!

A snail, we learn, has 1,000 teeth. So when you find yourself pursued by a snail, move a few inches and save yourself a nasty bite.

Turbulent City Of Gold

By HUGH LATIMER (in Johannesburg)

JOHANNESBURG, with 912,000 inhabitants, is the biggest city in size in South Africa. So much did the fathers of Union (of South Africa) fear this monument of gold and greed that they took care to place their legislative capital at Cape Town, their administrative capital at Pretoria and their judicial capital at Bloemfontein, and for good measure they loaded the rural vote so that it outweights by three to two the vote of the urban uitlanders ("outsiders" or "foreigners".)

* * *

IT WAS ALL to no avail. Every city in Southern Africa to this day tries to ape Johannesburg, its absurb skyscrapers in the Veld, and its vulgar over-lettered hoardings over the facades of buildings. This matters little in Johannesburg itself where there are only five buildings of architectural worth, none of which is over four stories high.

* * *

THE INFLUENCE of this 1886 mining-town has grown and grown. Today it exports to the rest of South Africa not only its architecture but its atmosphere. Two elements in particular; the sense of ever-present violence, and the racialism of the mining-camp.

* * *

THE SOUL of Johannesburg lives in its bars, where women are not allowed to go, not even as barmaids. This anti-barmaid rule is not merely quaint, it is severely practical. A Johannesburg barman needs to be at least six feet tall and capable of holding back two fighting adversaries at once, each at the length of an arm. The Johannesburg miners are big men with easily-aroused passions, and the Union is the cheapest place in the world to get drunk in.

* * *

THE SUBJECT of the bar disputes is always connected in some way with racial antagonism— between the Afrikaners and other Europeans. The same subject recurs with boring regularlity in the polite conversation of lunch-tables and sitting-rooms. This inter-White racialism with which Johannesburg is obsessed is a much more serious thing than the good-humoured rivalry between Scots, English, Welsh and Irish which explodes into fights in every town in the world. It is closer to the Franco-German antagonism of the first half of this century.

* * *

RACIALISM, or tribalism, is the chief disease of Africa. Where the disease is rife, all human relationships seem to be affected. It is no coincidence that it is in the Transvall, Johannesburg's province, that one meets at its most developed not only inter-White antagonism but also the White man's genuine hatred of the Black, and of course its inevitable response, Racial peace is indivisible.

* * *

PART of this particular hatred of the African stems from physical fear. On the pavements of Johannesburg one gives a wide berth to three or four Africans walking together; they may have knives. In fact, however, crime knows no colour-bar. One evening when I arrived in Johannesburg recently a lad armed with a crowbar and a knife had just been caught as he was creeping up behind an old lady who was sitting on a bench in front of the City Hall. He was a European. I suppose the old lady thought she was safe in the centre of the town, but it took the police half-an-hour to arrive after a telephone call. The following night a European was stabbed by an African in one of the main shopping streets of the city and in an intersecting street three nights later the dead body of another European was found in the morning, assailant unknown. After this the scene of crime seemed to shift from the shopping centre to the suburbs, and like the rest of Johannesburg's citizens I gave up counting. Despite Mau Mau it seems safer at the moment to live in Nairobi Kenya, for European anyway.

* * *

OTHER TOWNS in South Africa are not like Johannesburg. In particular, Cape Town, with its three hundred years of experience, does not have the harsh racial conflicts of the north, though they are being introduced by legislative action of Dr. Malan's government. There, unlike Johannesburg, everyone is bilingual (speaking both English and Afrikaans), or attempts to be, even the latest immigrants. There seems a genuine attempt on the part of the two language groups to get to know one another or make allowances for one another. Intermarriage between Whites is making nonsense of the whole Afrikaner-English quarrel; indeed, the typical English-speaking Capetownian has an Afrikaans surname like Botha or Van Der Byl, while the platterland (country district) towns are full of Afrikaans-speaking citizens with English names like Smith, King, Bodley or Freeman. Significantly, colour relationships are also better in the Western Cape; and only in that long-settled area is it possible in 1953 to visualise a united South African nation.

* * *

YET South Africans know better than to look for the salvation of their country from Cape Town. The heart of every vital movement in South Africa's current history is to be found in Johannesburg, the heart of Afrikaner nationalism's stubborn fight against the outside world; the heart of the non-European resistance movement; the heart of liberalism and of Christianity's revolt against inhumanity. In social thinking as in business, Johannesburg remains pre-eminently the city of enterprise.

Parking Meter Fund

(Saskatoon Star-Phoenix)

City Council's raid on the nickels and pennies retrieved from parking meters for the purpose of knocking a mill off the property tax is indefensible. It is inconsistent with good taxation principles. And it violates the conditions under which the decision to erect meters along downtown curbs was made. It is high time the city's parking policy was definitely established — and acted upon.

The first thing for council to get into its head, we think, is that parking meters are not properly tax collectors. They are not even devices for selling parking space, though that is the light in which some council members apparently regard them. The purpose of the meters is to regulate parking and to distribute the space available among as many motorists as possible. The revenue collected is only a means to this end, not an end in itself.

An America View: STYMIE

A Legend Destroyed

(Michael Davie Interviews Sam Goldwyn)

BEFORE going to Claridges, I looked in "Who's Who" for the bare record of the legendary figure.

Goldwyn, Samuel: Motion Picture Producer. Born in Warsaw, 1882, the son of Abraham and Hannah Goldfish. Emigrated to the United States, 1896. Attended night schools in New York. Organized Jesse Lasky Feature Photoplay Company, 1913. Goldwyn Pictures Corporation (later Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer). Since 1923 has produced own pictures independently. Address: Samuel Goldwyn Studios, 1041, N. Formosa, Los Angeles 46, Calf. Cables: Goldsam.

Door of Claridges suite opened by lady, presumably Mrs. Goldwyn (Mr. and Mrs. Goldwyn have been married for twenty-eight years), who then disappears. Goldwyn, far taller than I had expected, wearing very well-pressed suit without trouser turn-ups, very brightly polished tan shoes.

Goldwyn moves slowly and deliberately. Welcomes me with great friendliness, talking easily. Goes over to cocktail cabinet and pours two glasses of whiskey. Room filled with bunches of flowers. Piles of letters and one or two apparently unopened parcels on a writing-desk. Coal fire burning in the grate.

I ask him if he is going to be here for the Coronation. "Well, we don't know. We may be back by then. We're going over to Paris and then to the South of France and Austria. Going to buy some pictures in Paris."

He talks slowly.

No trace of a tycoon's bark.

"Pictures, Mr. Goldwyn?"

"Paintings, I'm told they've got a new painting there by Matisse and another one by that man what's his name, Monet. They're like stories for motion pictures, you know, they don't come along every day, you have to wait for them. I can't say I'm a collector of paintings, but I've got a few. I got some Picassos and some — uh — Chagall. They want me to see Picasso in Paris."

Now and again, sitting well down into his armchair, he raises his hands in front of him. I ask if there had been any reaction to his statement in support of Chaplin. He gestures towards the desk. "All that. A lot of letters. Charlie is a fine man, you know. He used to keep on people in the studios for maybe twenty years after they were any use to him.

"The New York Times rang me when Charlie said in Geneva he wasn't going back to the States and I made a statement to them. They printed it next day and I had a lot of letters and a lot of calls. Bob Sherwood and Bennett Cerf gave us a party in New York—you know that Coronation party they made such a fuss about over there— and your British fellow, what's his name, Tree, Tree....?"

"Ronald Tree?"

"Yeah, Tree came up and congratulated me, said what a fine and fearless thing I had done, but what was there to be afraid of? Hell, if you can't say what you think. You know, there's as many people against McCarthy back there as there is here, but his own State of Wisconsin votes him in again. Like Mark Twain said, It's differences of opinion makes a horserace."

* * *

I ASK if he remembers how many pictures he has made. Shakes his head and grins, looking like a jovial imp, a cross between Jimmy Durante and Lord Beaverbrook. "I used to make thirty-six pictures a year when I was with Lasky, then I used to make twenty-six a year. Then I started on my own because I wanted quality not quantity, and stories don't come along that easily, and a good story is the foundation of everything. If I make a picture now I have to have fun. I have to love it. Like "The Best Years of Our Lives.' "

"That was a good film."

'Oh, you saw that, huh? Yeah, it was a great, great picture. When I saw the boys coming back I had to do something, I have to love a picture. Take that picture Hans Andersen. Everyone said I was craszy to put $4 million into a fairy story. The critics complained that it wasn't accurate about Hans Andersen, but right at the start I put in a word saying it was a fairy story. Don't they read, or anything? The critics are giving me a lunch here maybe I'll talk to them about that." He grins, tolerant and anecdotal.

He looks at the fire. "You remember 'Wuthering Heights'? That was the greatest love story ever screened." His superlatives follow a convention: plainly he doesn't mean what he says. "What do you call the head of Oxford, huh? The dean?"

"The Vice-Chancellor."

"Yeah, well the head of Oxford invited me down there once during the war, I said to him, 'tell me, why did you ask me to come here?' I didn't go to college or anything. 'Well,' he said, 'I've been trying to interest my students in "Wuthering Heights" for years and you've done better in one afternoon than I have in years.' That's what he said."

Goldwyn talks slowly on, without excitement, scattering familiar names. Beaverbrook, Camrose, Henry Luce, Irving Berlin.

I ask if he has ever been responsible for a Goldwynism. Did he ever say "include me out" or "I can answer that in two words: impossible"?

A flattered grin. "I'd be smart fellow if I'd said things like that? Huh? Let me tell you. I remember once Coolidge came out West and I was asked to look after him. I went up to the station to meet him, there were about 300,000 people there as well, just a few friends, and Douglas Fairbanks, was with me. Douglas Fairbanks, Senior, that was. Douglas had read all the stories in the newspapers about Coolidge fishing, so he talked about fishing for a quarter of an hour. Then Coolidge said, 'I don't fish.' "

He reverts to motion pictures again; the difficulty of getting stories. "I sent two men out to Korea a year ago, and they came back with nothing."

He says he'd like to make a picture in Britain, he'd really like that.

"You know, I came to London when I ran away when I was twelve. Things were pretty rough. When I feel bad now, when a picture doesn't work out or something, I think of those days, you know, and I say to myself, well, what have you got to complain of?"

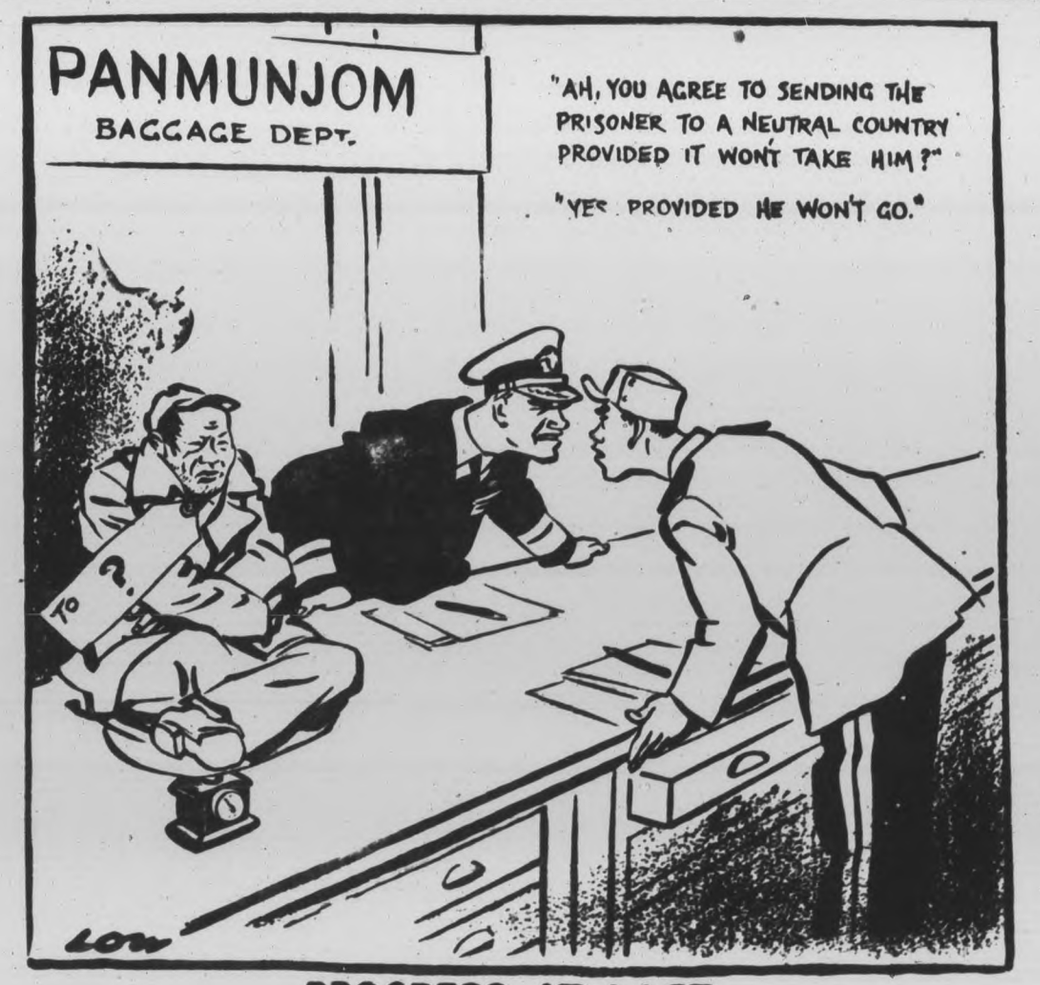
Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)



As we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly . . . For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality. (I Cor. 15: 49, 53.)

O house of Jacob, come ye, and let us walk in the light of the Lord. (Isa. 2: 5.)

And he will destroy in this mountain the face of the covering cast over all people, and the veil that is spread over all nations. He will swallow up death in victory: and the Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces; and the rebuke of his people shall he take away from off all the earth: for the Lord hath spoken it. And it shall be said in that day, Lo, this is our God; we have waited for him and he will save us: this is the Lord; we have waited for him, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation. At the time it was thought she might never play golf again.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Pot Roast With Herbs On Special-Purpose Menu

A quick switch in my plans was made when I discovered boneless rolled hams were hovering around 85 cents per pound. Right alongside were blade and rib roasts of beef—5 pounds of which could be had for about $1.95. So for Sunday we had beef instead of that luxury-priced ham, naturally.

I'm still fooling around with herbs, so this was our menu. (The ice cream was included because Ruth D. would like the recipe for vanilla ice cream using skim milk powder.)

DIRECTIONS

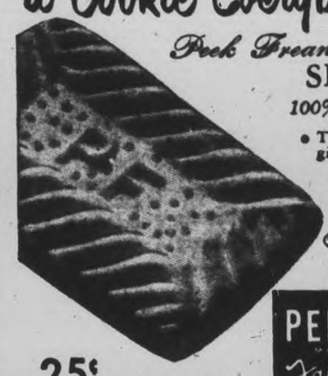
POT ROAST WITH HERBS

You need a five-lb. blade, chuck or short rib roast with a good fat edge, about ¼ cup drippings, about 1 tablespoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 2 chopped onions, ½ teaspoon each crumbled basil and thyme, 4 medium celery stalks with leaves, ½ cup hot water. Melt the drippings in heavy frying pan or Dutch oven. Brown the meat on all sides in this fat. Sprinkle over all remaining ingredients, cover very snugly and simmer for 3¼ to 3½ hours, or until meat is tender. This amount makes 9 generous servings. Skim off the excess fat to make gravy and bring sauce up to 3 cups by adding boiling water. Mix 4½ tablespoons flour with ½ cup cold water to make a smooth paste, and stir into the sauce in pan, and simmer for about 5 minutes, stirring. Pour around roast on ht plater. You could make an outer border of the boiled new potatoes.

TOMATO ASPIC (jelly moulds)

One and ½ tablespoons gelatin, one-third cup cold water, 2½ cups canned tomatoes (in summer fresh peeled tomatoes may be used), ¼ cup water, 1 bay leaf, 1 slice onion, ¼ cup chopped celery leaves, 4 cloves, 4 pepper berries, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1½ teaspoons salt, 2 teaspoons lemon juice. Soak gelatin in ½ cup cold water 5 minutes. Simmer together all remaining ingredients except lemon juice for 20 minutes, then add lemon juice and strain all through sieve. Stir in gelatin until dissolved. Pour into moistened individual moulds or into 1 large shallow mould and chill. If chilled in shallow mould cut into squares or diamonds with knife dipped in hot water.

VARIATION: When aspic begins to congeal you may add as much as 1 cup of drained peas or chopped celery, or hard-cooked egg or mixtures of these with sliced stuffed olives or chopped parsley. If hard-cooked eggs are moulded in this it may be used as a luncheon dish, when cottage cheese makes a delicious accompaniment. The last idea will appeal to my reducing buddies.



HOMEMADE VANILLA ICE CREAM

(using skim milk powder)

Sorry to say that to give this the delicious smoothness you folks crave this recipe calls for 1 cup cream. Makes 1 quart.

Two teaspoons gelatin, ¼ cup water, 2 cups water, 1 cup skim milk powder, ¾ cup sugar, 2 teaspoons flour, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 4 egg yolks slightly beaten, 2 teaspoons vanilla, 1 cup heavy cream, 4 stiffly beaten egg whites. Soak the gelatin in the ¼ cup cold water 5 minutes. Sprinkle the skim milk powder over the 2 cups water, let stand 5 minutes then beat with rotary beater 1 minute to dissolve it. Heat milk in double boiler until quite hot, then stir the soaked gelatin into it. Mix together dry the sugar, flour and salt, and stir them into the milk mixture until thick, cover and cook 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir a little of this hot mixture into the beaten yolks, return to double boiler and cook stirring 2 minutes. Pour into bowl, add vanilla, and chill. Beat until very light with rotary beater and fold in beaten whites. Fold in stiffly beaten cream. Pour into freezing tray and freeze to a mush. Turn into cold bowl and break up with fork and beat again until fluffy but not melted. Imediately return to tray, cover with waxed paper and freeze until firm.

Fight To End Midway—Marciano Predicts

By JACK HAND

CHICAGO (AP) — Champion Rocky Marciano said Tuesday his 15-round title bout Friday with ex-champion Jersey Joe Walcott will end "about midway" and Marciano will remain the heavyweight king.

Marciano, who ended more than eight weeks of training for the bout with a two-round stint Tuesday, told newspaper men he thought Walcott could last the route But he added: "I hope not."

Asked if he thought Walcott could produce any surprise during the title bout in Chicago Stadium he replied:

"I don't see what he could produce that would be new to me." Newspaper men recalled last September's title bout when Marciano dethroned Walcott, and quoted Jersey Joe's manager, Felix Bocchicchio, as saying he thought Rocky had taken a beating then and had not fully recovered.

SCOFFS AT STATEMENT

Marciano scoffed at the statement. He said he thought that he had Walcott in a position to end the fight earlier than in the 13th round. The big factor which prevented the earlier ending Marciano said, was that his eyes had clouded a little from blood and Walcott's blows.

Marciano weighed 187 before the sparring session Tuesday, and expects to hit 185 for the title bout.

Walcott boxed his customary six rounds Tuesday, tapering off his heavy drills. He appeared a little tired. Bocchicchio said Jersey Joe is to drill today in a session closed to the public.

Walcott held a press conference before his workout. In it he circled as well as he does in the ring. First he said he hoped to knock out Marciano as soon as possible and then he declared his attack would depend on the way the battle goes.

INTEREST PICKS UP

Nobody has been breaking down any doors trying to buy $50 tickets but interest in the match seems to be picking up. The customers' early indifference was attributed to the high ringside tab and the severe letdown when the Chuck Davey balloon burst against Kid Gavilan.

Tommy King of the International Boxing Club's publicity department reported $356,000 in cash already "in." On Sunday Truman Gibson, IBC secretary estimated "close to $400,000 in cash and commitments." They probably will settle for a $500,000 gate by Friday, plus the $300,000 extra for radio-TV with the Chicago area blacked out on TV.

Despite the 3 to 1 odds favoring Marciano, there was solid optimism in the camp of the 39-year-old Walcott who is trying to become the first man ever to win back the heavyweight title.

Introduce Ambitious Plan To Encourage Track-Field Sport

By JACK SULLIVAN

TORONTO (CP)—An ambitious track and field plan to encourage and promote the sport in all provinces from Newfoundland to British Columbia was related here Tuesday. It could herald a return to the lush days of the '20s and '30s when the country's athletes competed on even terms with the world's best.

The scheme—called the "Canadian Olympic Training Plan"—was launched at a press luncheon by Canadian National Exhibition, provincial, civic and national amateur sports leaders. It received the blessing of the Canadian Olympic Association, British Empire Games committee and the Amateur Athletic Union.

The plan, proposed a year ago by CNE president J. A. Northey, entails annual provincial championships and a Dominion meet. The first Canada-wide meet will be held next Sept. 5 on the regulation quarter-mile CNE track here with athletes from every province.

HELD ON SAME TRACK

Future Dominion meets will be held on the same track.

Officials announced an initial contribution of $20,000 has been received from anonymous "angels" to start operations at once. This money will be used to bring competitors and coaches from the provinces here and to receive coaching from a leading British or American coach one week prior to the initial meet.

George Duthie, manager of the CNE sports department, will start a country-wide tour May 21 to help organize provincial championships. He will confer with AAU and provincial education and health department officials and possibly representatives of service clubs.

Duthie's first stop will be Vancouver May 22.

It is believed likely the September Dominion meet will be recognized by the AAU, track and field's sports governing body, as the official Canadian championships of 1953.

PROVINCIAL NATURE

In recent years Canadian track championships conducted by the AAU have been of a "provincial" nature. Only three or four provinces have been represented, mainly because athletes could not afford the transportation and lodgings cost and the AAU could not give the financial assistance.

It is possible, too, that the trials for the 1954 British Empire Games may be held here with the support of this newly-announced program. The meet probably would be held next spring, a few months before the games open at Vancouver.

A. Sidney Dawes of Montreal, past president of the Canadian Olympic Association, gave his whole-hearted support to the plan. "Track and field needs more help than any other sport in Canada and the COA and British Empire Games committee are 100 per cent behind this idea," he said.

Jim Worrall of Toronto, president of the AAU, said that "if the CNE can overcome the difficulty of encouraging track and field in Canada the AAU is behind it."

Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario hydro-electric power commission and of the CNE sports committee, was chosen chairman of a committee appointed to handle all arrangements. Duthie was chosen secretary.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Golfers are flocking to the local fairways as official opening days approach at the Peterborough and Kawartha Clubs. Which recalls an item we saw lately by Doug Vaughan concerning Ben Hogan, best golfer in the world today. Hogan is supposed to have a "secret swing," but he explains is thusly: When he gets up in the morning he grabs a club, usually a wood. With feet close together Ben clamps his arms tight in to his stomach with the club also held close to the body. He starts a short swing of a few inches, arms still close. Then he gradually lengthens the backswing, a foot at a time. He does this for 20 minutes each day till he's taking a full swing, all the while from a close to the body position.

* * * * * *

His theory is to minimize hand, wrist and arm action. Believes the body pivot is the controlling factor, that if the body action is good, then the arms and hands must naturally be correct. Of course, a golfer must have a good swing to start with, a knowledge of the game and be pretty fair at putting. You average golfer may not have the time to spend 20 minutes at this exercise before breakfast, and that possibly is one of the main differences between a top-flight golfer and a average guy. Anyway, don't say we didn't tell you how to be a champion, and we trust pro instructors Alf Hill and Lex Robson won't think we're horning in on their jobs!

Presents For Champs

It was interesting to read the other day where more than 10,000 folks turned out in Barrie to welcome home the Flyers as Canadian junior "A" hockey champions. Also interesting to learn that the players all received travelling bags from the Mayor on behalf of the town. It seems they appreciate championship clubs in many cities more than is the case here. Petes' Timbermen, last fall, won the Mann Cup, emblematic of the Canadian senior 'A' lacrosse crown (for the second straight year), our football Orfuns reached the Canadian intermediate "A" finals, and a few other local clubs gained provincial laurels. And what civic recognition did these winners get? None at all. Guess we must turn up too many title-holders in Peterborough.

* * * * * *

The Mann Cup champs have one 1953 win under their belts beating the Yorks in Orillia last Saturday, and make their home debut against Mimico here Thursday night. An 8.45 touch in Miller Bowl when the Trailermen will be seeking a second triumph in as many starts. The Mounties have a sprinkling of veterans, several first-rate players with experience and youth, and a number of youngsters coming up. Likely to be a fast team, playing wide-open lacrosse. The local club has last year's good crew back, plus several ex-juniors. They have a smart passing attack, a strong defence and the best goalie in the business. Opening ceremony, band music, good draw prizes up, and an OLA senior "A" game— all this should pack in the lacrosse-hungry fans.

* * * * * *

Chuck Likes Saints

Coach Chuck Davidson of the Mounties—Mimico variety, not police— rates St. Catharines as the team to finish atop the league, but thinks Peterborough might take the playoffs. He adds: "Peterborough will get some trouble for the Mann Cup berth from both St. Catharines and Toronto West Yorks." We feel he may be just tossing out a smoke screen to get rival coaches to under-rate Mimico, the club which finished second in the standing to the Petes last year. 'Tis said the Mounties are a rugged bunch with the average age of payers being just 22 years. Big Joe Nolan, who played for the Petes several years ago, is a newcomer to the Mimico crew. The 190-pound defenceman could always hand out a jolting bodycheck, too.

Lakeshore Baseball League opens its schedule Saturday on several fronts. Oshawa goes to Lindsay in what should be a hot scrap between strong squads. Of local interest is the afternoon fixture in Riverside when Cobourg Legionnaire mix it with the Peterborough Liflocs, a hustling young outfit which beat Cobourg several times last summer in league play. As the Port Hope writer points out, at least three of the Lakeshore Loop teams must scintillate to hold their own. Oshawa Transporters will be bucking the I-C Merchants there for fan following, and Lindsay has two intermediate teams in different cricuits, so the crowd may be divided. Says he: "Even Peterborough can't afford to lose. The only team in the city, they will have to step fast to draw the crowd from softball and lacrosse." But we look for a big opening-day crowd in Riverside.

THOUSANDS OF 'EM — National League refugees, Johnny Mize, left, of the Yankees and the Browns' Bob Elliott approached their long-cherised dream, but as American Leaguers. Members of the select 2,000-Hit Club were ready to welcome the big first and third basemen.

Oshawa Entry To Stay In Lakeshore Circuit

COBOURG — The Lakeshore Baseball League steered safely by the biggest shoal it has encountered in years at Monday night's meeting, it was disclosed Tuesday by President R D. Dodge.

Before the meeting began it looked as if the newly-entered Oshawa intermediate A—senior Bs might have to be ousted from the loop

Oshawa had been expected to raid both Whitby and Bowmanville clubs for playing material and each had threatened to withdraw if the raids took place. Both clubs are charter members and both had depended on Oshawa boys for their teams over the years.

However, when the Oshawa club presented its certificates to the meeting for inspection all but one player was in the clear as far as being a member of either Whitby or Oshawa. He was pitcher Legree of the Bowmanville 1952 club and Oshawa abandoned any claim to him in order to avoid the controversy. Legree counted on heavily by the Rubbertown squad, will remain with them this season.

JUNIOR MEMBERS

Oshawa team heads disclosed they will use mostly members of the 1951 all-star junior club that ran away with the Lakeshore League which still a junior entry. Most of the boys of that year are in the motor city and will be out with the team. In addition, the major Oshawa team of the Intercounty League will discard some players it is expected, and any one of them that hasn't taken part in more than five games of the inter-county loop schedule will be eligible for the intermediate team.

Oshawa meet Lindsay in Lindsay Saturday in the league opener. Lindsay leader Andy Widdis told the loop he will be forced to rely on Peterborough talent this year due to the wholesale departure of his 1952 Merchant team members to the new Lindsay entry in the Tri-County League known as the Muskies. Formed around the near title hockey squad of this winter, the Muskies have taken all but pitchers L. Tamblyn and D. Loucks, Widdis told the Lakeshore heads.

The league decided that this year the all star game will be an east-west affairs and will take place in Colborne under the lights July 14, Ed Campbell of Cobourg Legionnaires will manage the Easterners and Maxmillan Youth of Bowmanville the Western team. Umpires wil officiate for free. Proceeds go to the league's fund.

Ford Baffles Cleveland To Give Yankees 7-0 Win

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

Whitey Ford, a cocky New York Yankee lefthander, and Bob Buhl, a Milwaukee rookie making his first major league start, have joined the growing list of young pitchers who are out to prove that today's baseball isn't as lively as some folks claim. Last month home runs were flying in all directions at such distances that travelling secretaries with the ball clubs were carrying tape measures as standard equipment. But in the last week it's been a different story.

A week ago Bobo Holloman of St. Louis Browns tossed a no-hitter. Sunday Don Liddle of Milwaukee broke in as a starter with a two-hitter. And Bob Porterfield of Washington threw a one-hitter.

Tuesday night Ford baffled Cleveland Indians on one hit—a slow rolling grounder that never got as far as third base. Buhl, another Braves' first-year man, mastered New York Giants on two hits.

Ford won his game 7-0, giving the Yankees a comfortable two-game bulge on top of the American league over the second-place Indians. Buhl lost his shutout in the ninth, but still triumphed easily 8-1.

VICTORY MASTERPIECE

The Yankee victory was a masterpiece by Ford, who refused to sign his contract this spring until he got paid what he thought a Yankee was worth. Whitey, back in the big leagues after a two-year army hitch, has a phenomenal record—12 major league starts and 12 major league victories. The only time he has been beaten was in relief against Philadelphia in 1950.

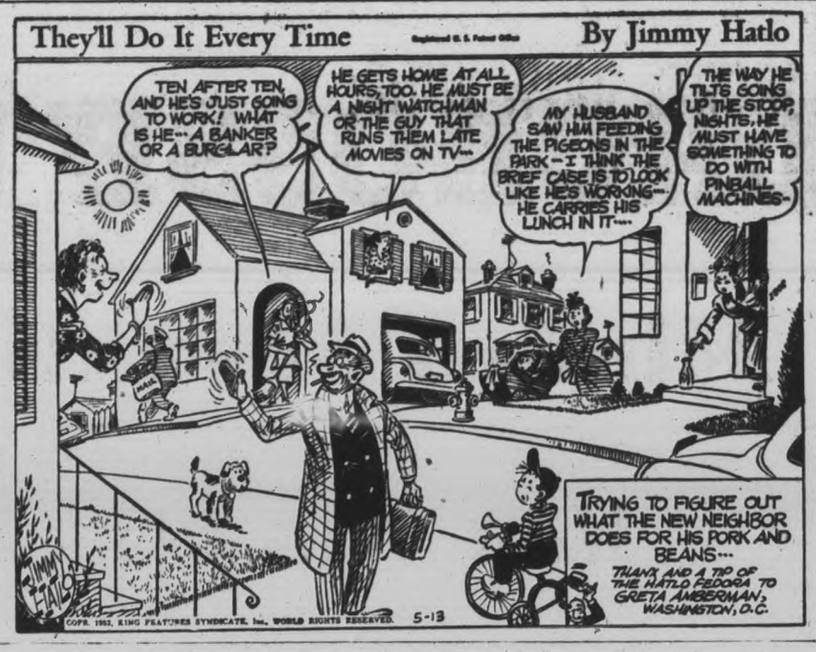
"I've never pitched a one-hitter before," he said after Tuesday night's game.

"That was my best one. As long as the hit had to come I'm glad it came that early. I don't know if I would have been able to stand the tension."

Early Wynn, who was opposing Ford on the mound, just got his bat on a 3-and-2 pitch in the sixth inning and dribbled it between the mound and third base. Ford charged in along with third baseman Gil McDougald. When he saw Ford couldn't make it, McDougald made a stab for the ball but couldn't find the handle.

The official scorer called it a hit on the theory that Wynn would have beat any throw McDougald could have made, even if he came up with the ball.

Buhl, working in 40-degree temperatures with a brisk wind, gave up a breeze-blown Texas league single to Don Mueller in the fourth inning and a double to Bobby Thompson at the start of the ninth.



TAKE OVER LEAGUE

Philadelphia Phillies took over the lead in the National League by edging St. Louis Cardinals 6-5, after Brooklyn had lost the only daylight contest 6-4 to Chicago Cubs on Dee Fondy's 11th-inning home run. Pittsburgh and Cincinnati were rained out at Cincinnati after 2½ innings with the Pirates leading 5-1.

Holloman, making his first appearance since tossing his no-hitter, gave up two runs and lasted less than two innings at Philadelphia before he retired with a blistered finger on his pitching hand.

Don Larsen took over for the Browns and they went on to whip the Athletics 7-3. Washington won its fifth in a row 10-1 over Detroit and Chicago won an uphill battle at Boston 9-7 in 10 innings.

Ezzard Charles Wins Unanimous Decision

TOLEDO, O. (AP) — Ezzard Charles, former world heavyweight champion, came back strongly in the last five rounds Tuesday night to gain a unanimous decision over Bill Gilliam. Charles weighed 189½, Gilliam 210½.

Charles, finding the range, closed his bigger opponent's left eye in the ninth round and floored Gilliam with a short right to the jaw in the 10th. It was the only knockdown in the fight.

Gilliam took the lead in the early rounds, and threw left jabs that kept the Cincinnati fighter off balance. In the third round, the Orange, N.J., heavy landed a solid right to the head which shook Charles. Again in the fourth round Gilliam kept his left in Charles' face with no retaliation.

Southeast Asia Taxi Girls Have Big Thirst

By JACK MACBETH

HONG KONG (AP)—No young man of any nationality has any excuse for being lonely any night in almost any city in Southeast Asia.

All the big towns in this area seem to have one thing in common: Huge dance pavilions, as modern music and friendly females.

After observing, with habitual restrait and dignity, night life in Manila, Singapore, Rangoon, Bangkok, Jakarta, Saigon, Hanoi and Hong Kong, researchers give this account of their findings:

There is little to choose between the dance halls but there is much to choose from in each of them. For instance, the taxi girls

They're almost all uniformly tiny, pretty and their shapes vary but little. They almost all cost the same to dance with. And few of them have much to say, except the Chinese.

They are the best dancers, fastest talkers, deafest listeners and most aggressive.

A fellow can be sitting by himself, thinking politics perhaps, minding his own business. Then along comes Ting Ling Lu, sits down, calls the waiter, orders the most expensive drink in the house, grabs the poor boy's hand and smiles invitingly:

'Come on, keed, dance me!"

But the other Southeast Asian girls learn fast. One Vietnamese girl started off like this in French:

"I have much thirst. I have much hunger. I like you. Dance me!"

Two hours and about $15 later, she paid this little farewell tribute to her crestfallen partner: "I like you. I eat well. I drink well. I tired now. Good night now."

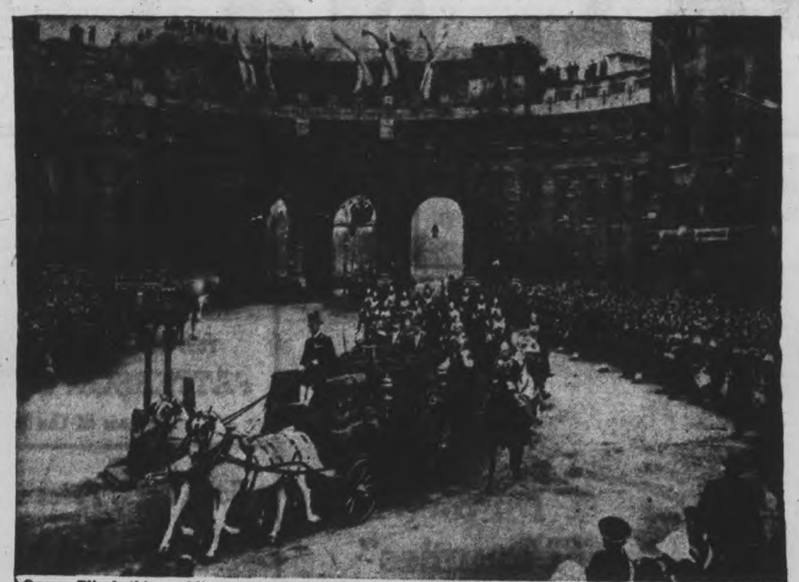
Some of the area's taxi girls are, naturally, a little on the rough side. But most are well groomed, soft spoken, outwardly coy, and as morally correct as their little chum who works behind a counter or in a bank.

A successful taxi-girl can earn as much as $75 a week. Out here, that's good money.

Even the names of the dance halls vary little. They are usually called the "Contented Universe" or the "Garden of Eden."

Drinks are reliable but expensive; as much as $2 a tot for whisky. The bouncers are charming people—judo experts.

Fighting Trim



LONDON (CP)—Defence Minister Earl Alexander says he has never known the country's armed forces "more efficient or in better fighting trim than they are today." Field Marshal Alexander was replying to the toast to the armed services at the Coronation dinner of the Royal Academy of Arts.

ELIZABETH the Queen

By Marion Crawford
Former Governess to Her Majesty

© 1952 BY PRENTICE HALL, INC. DISTRIBUTED BY NEA SERVICE

Queen Elizabeth's wedding procession moves past Admiralty Arch en route to Westminster Abbey.

VII.

Queen Elizabeth was planning her first home at the time when I was planning mine. I had been married just one month when I sat with my husband in Westminster Abbey and saw the little girl I had watched growing to regal womanhood married to the man of her choice.

Through all the pageantry and music I thought of the truest meaning of a wedding—the making of a home.

I remembered the Princess saying to me, as she looked up from a heap of patterns she was studying. "Do you think that the blue or the beige would go better in this room?"

She was speaking then of Sunninghill Park, which not long after was to be burned to the ground. But we often spoke of my own little home, Nottingham Cottage, which was being got ready at the same time.

Opposite the front door of that same cottage was the very door from which Prince Philip stepped out on his wedding morning.

And from my window above I would often see also a figure dressed in grey, with a sort of nun's veil round her head. This was Princess Andrew of Greece, Lord Mountbatten's sister, and the mother of Prince Philip.

Sometimes I would pass her on the walks leading from Kensington Palace as she went out to do her shopping, and I would wish her a good morning. Most often she would smile an answer, but sometimes, probably wrapped in thought, she would not seem to realize anything of her surroundings.

The high cost of everything appalled Princess Elizabeth when she was planning her home. She and Princess Margaret had been brought up to be careful with money. With goods too.

In furnishing her home Princess Elizabeth was able to draw on stocks of material that her mother a careful buyer, had accumulated. Much of it had been bought before the war at the British Industries Fairs and other exhibitions.

Nothing that comes to the Royal Family, by purchase or gift, is ever wasted. Everything is labeled and put away, safe from moths and other dangers, and catalogues are kept of all the Royal possessions, so that when anything is needed it may be available at once.

Princess Elizabeth would say to me, "Mummy says she has something that might do for this corner. That will save a little expense anyway."

The Queen was kind to me in this way too. She allowed me to choose several pieces to take to my own first home.

"Have anything you like, Crawfie," she was good enough to say; and I spent many delightful hours assessing the merits of various pieces of furniture in relation to my tiny rooms of the cottage.

In the end I chose a tall combined china cupboard and desk and a mahogany table, among several other things, and these became the most admired pieces in my dining-room.

All through my Palace years, when I was moving to and from London, Windsor, and occasionally Balmoral, I was constantly haunted by a desire to have a place of my own; to be able to come down to a kitchen where my cups were laid out, to find my cutlery stacked neatly in a drawer, to eat at my own table.

For years I collected things for a home that did not yet exist. I would search the antique shops in Church Street, Kensington, for pieces of china and other articles that appealed to me. To get a bargain was a great thrill.

It gave me a sense of achievement, a feeling that so many pounds or shillings had been saved—forgetting that there had been no real need to spend money at all.

I surrounded myself with belongings which gave me, even in the gloomy, impersonal recesses of Buckingham Palace, a feeling of having an individual private life.

But I knew that a cupboard or two full of my own china would never take the place of a real home. So I looked forward to my own, at the same time when Queen Elizabeth was planning hers.

When I did eventually move into Nottingham Cottage, I often changed the layout of the furniture in the rooms. In the middle of something else I would suddenly get up and say, "I think that little easy chair would look better on the right of the fireplace"—and immediately go over and place it there. George, my husband, found this hard to understand, but smiled indulgently.

BBC Soap Opera Rouses Paper's Anger

LONDON (AP)—Britain's soapless radio soap opera about a doctor's family—"Mrs. Dale's Diary"—was denounced today as an insult to the medical profession.

The Journal of St. Bartholomew's hospital said the non-stop morning serial ought to be taken off the air by the BBC.

The Journal said among other things that Dr. Dale spends most of his time at home, thus giving the impression that medicos are a bunch of lazy louts.

It added that Mrs. Dale is too bird-brained for a doctor's wife and that the conversation in their home is just plain trivial. Vowed the Journal:

"If we thought for one moment that doctors run any risk of marrying Mrs. Dales and begetting little Dales, we would demand that the medical college set up a properly run marriage bureau."

"It is about time this nonsense came to an end."

The Journal's remarks about the serial were put up to Jonquil Antony, one of the Dale diary script-writing team, who chances to be a doctor's daughter herself. Her comment was something of a crusher:

"From my experience, the level of culture in a doctor's home is not substantially higher than in anybody else's."

And having no sponsors to take fright from The Journal blast, the BBC indicated Mrs. Dale will continue to be heard.

Baptize 3 Children At Roseneath Service

ROSENEATH (ENS) — Three infants were baptized at Roseneath United Church on Sunday morning by the pastor, the Rev. J. R. Wheeler. The infants were: Ralph Alan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sherwin, Cobourg; John David, son of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Thackeray, and Howard Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mouncey.

A special Mother's Day service was held with the pupils and teachers of the Sunday school assisting with the service. Mr. Norman Sherwin, assistant superintendent, was in charge, assisted by Mr. Douglas L. Coyle.

ST. JAMES' ANGLICAN

At a Mother's Day service at St. James Anglican Church, a hymn, "Father, Thou In Love Hast Taught Us," written by the Rector, the Rev. A. J. Patstone, was sung, with Mrs. Frank Brown at the organ.

Canadians Spend $373,800,000 On Health Services In Year

OTTAWA (CP)—The first country-wide sickness survey shows Canadians spent a total of $373,800,000 on health services in the 12 months between the fall of 1950 and the fall of 1951, the bureau of statistics reported today.

This meant an average expenditure for each family unit of $82.10 for the year. The term family unit covers families made up of husbands and wives with or without children, and single persons outside these family groups.

The survey was conducted jointly by the federal health department, all provincial health departments and the bureau of statistics. The object was to estimate the prevalence of illness and accidents, expenditures on health services and the amount of nursing, medical and other health care obtained by Canadians.

The $373,800,000 figure does not include payments made by government or similar agencies and therefore does not represent the total costs of health service in Canada. Further compilations of figures will be released later.

PREPAYMENT PLANS

Of the $373,800,000 an estimated $88,400,000 or 23.7 per cent was spent in prepayment plans for medical care, hospital care and combined plans of care and services.

Direct payments for services to general medical practictioners and specialists, for eye and dental services, hospital care, and nursing both at home and in hospital, cost $203,200,000, or 54.4 per cent.

Spending on drugs and appliances came to $75,300,000—$73,000,000 was for medicine—or 20.1 per ent, leaving $7,000,000 or 1.9 per cent for care and services not falling within the three main classifications.

An analysis of average expenditure by size of family unit shows the family of five-to-six persons with the largest spending on health services at $114.70. Next was the three-to-four size at $110.40, followed by the family of seven or more at $104.80.

"ZACKS" - 424 GEORGE ST.

Canada Lags In Shipping

OTTAWA (CP)—A new era of water transportation has come and Canada stands in "grave danger" of being left behind, Howard Green (PC—Vancouver Quadra) said today in the Commons.

Addressing himself to Transport Minister Chevrier as transport estimates came before the House, he said three major factors have combined to produce this era—the emergence of fast cargo vessels on the high seas, the great increase in use of oil tankers and the impending St. Lawrence seaway.

The Vancouver lawyer said the first factor finds Canada with a fleet of slow deep sea craft that were built in the war. At a time when Alberta oil was becoming a great national product, this country should be able to transport it to the markets of the world but she wasn't. She had only a few tankers.

Looking east, he said Canadian shipping should handle much of the iron ore coming out of Labrador. He wondered whether this would happen or whether American and other ships "will beat us out."

Giantess' Home Crumbles To Ruin

NEW ANNAN, N.S. (CP)—The birthplace of a woman who was almost as famed as Nova Scotia's giant MacAskill is unmarked and crumbling into ruin in this farming village.

Leonard Swan says he hopes his relatives will help finance something to mark the birthplace of his famous aunt, Anne Swan, once billed by P. T. Barnum as "the only giantess in the world."

Anne Swan, who was seven feet six inches tall and wore size 16½ shoes, was a star attraction for years under Barnum's big top and later married another performer, a Kentucky giant named Capt. Martin Van Buren Bates.

She died in 1888 the day after her 36th birthday in their specially built home with nine-foot doors and 14-foot ceilings in Seville, O. She was buried there, with a statue over her grave.

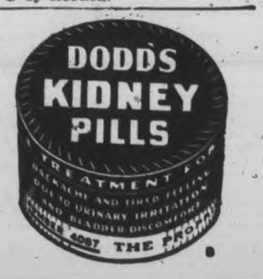
Their two children, a girl weighing 18½ pounds and a boy 22 pounds, died at birth.

Despite her size, Anne Swan was an attractive and graceful woman, and in a command performance in London was presented with a gold watch by Queen Victoria. Leonard owns it today.

She helped her family and once, on a visit home, thousands journeyed to this community to get a free look at the 350-pound woman. Only reminders of her in Nova Scotia today, however, are a few dresses and bonnets and a size 16½ shoe in the nearby Greenhill museum, and the gold watch.

MURDER CHARGE — Russell Tongay falls into deep thought as he stands at the bail window of Miami Courthouse with his wife, Betty. Tongay is charged with second degree murder of his five-year-old daughter, Kathy, who had gained fame for her swimming prowess. Tongay was released in $5,000 bail. Reason for death was thought to be a ruptured appendix brought on by a beating.

91 Candidates File Papers



HALIFAX (CP)—Ninety-one candidates filed nomination papers Tuesday to contest the 37 seats in the May 26 Nova Scotia general election.

In Pictou West, W. E. Salsman, nominated at a CCF convention, announced his withdrawal and did not file papers. In Antigonish, Terrence Thompson, defeated Progressive Conservative in the last election, filed papers as an independent.

Liberals, who held 27 seats at dissolution, entered standard-bearers in all seats and the Progressive Conservatives, who formed an eight-man opposition, entered all but one riding. The CCF, who had two members, entered 16 candidates.

There were two Independents, both in Antigonish against the sitting member, Liberal Colin Chisholm. There was only one woman entered, Mrs. Florence Welton in Cumberland Centre.

In the last election in June, 1949, Liberals under Premier MacDonald captured 28 seats. They dropped one to a Progressive Conservative in a by-election.

Mother's Day Service Held At Dartford

DARTFORD (ENS)—A combined Sunday school and church service was held at 9:30 am Sunday at the United Church.

Mr. John Atkinson conducted the service using the Mother's Day program.

A choir of girls led the singing and sang an anthem with Clarice and Marily Honey taking the duet. Stories were read by Mrs. Percy Honey and Bill Honey.

The Rev. A. L. Sisco chose for his subect "The Parents' Prayers."

The church was decorated with spring flowers. The bouquet on the communion table was from Mr. Burton Dulmage in memory of Mrs. Dulmage.

Give True Bill In Perjury Case

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A Supreme Court jury Tuesday returned a true bill against Cecil Smith, who is charged with perjury in connection with statements he made recently before a police commission hearing.

True bills also were returned against David Crnec, 20, of Windsor, and Robert MacDonald, 26, of Vancouver, who face 11 charges each of breaking and entering and theft from stores and garages in Windsor and Essex county.

Smith charged he was the victim of a "police shakedown" and said he paid a bribe to Sgt. Gilbert Robitaille to keep from being convicted on a liquor charge. Four charges laid against the police officer on the basis of Smith's statement were later dismissed and the perjury charge was laid against Smith. His trial will open next week.

Declares MP Spreads Gossip

TORONTO (CP)—Jack Frankel, manager of Consolidated Finance Corporation, Tuesday asserted that Alistair Stewart (CCF—Winnipeg North) is "using his immunity as a member of Parliament to spread evil gossip" in the House of Commons.

He was commenting on a charge made in the Commons Monday by Mr. Stewart, who said the corporation was engaging "in all the elements of a racket."

Mr. Stewart said the company has been advertising for prospective "victims," and that it charges them an over-all fee of 25 per cent for taking care of customers' consolidated debts.

Mr. Frankel said:

"Not one statement is true. We definitely don't charge anything near 25 per cent."

Lure Of Beehive Proves Fatal To 400-Pound Bear

MARMORA (ENS)—The lure of a bee hive has once more proved fatal to a bear.

On Saturday night, May 2, four hives, belonging to Joseph Herman on the farm of Dr. H. G. Parkin at Tiffin, were smashed and their contents upset by a bear or bears. This prompted Mr. Herman to watch with a shotgun.

No bear was seen on Sunday but after dark on Monday evening the watcher sensed a bear was within 30 yards of him. He tried to operate his flashlight but it failed to work. He fired a shot at bruin but missed.

The bar advanced on his hind legs but retired as first one shot and then another wounded him. He left a trail of blood which was seen the next morning.

Early Tuesday morning another bear visited a nearby apiary, disregarding a lighted lantern within eight feet of it. It carried off a hive for 50 yards before smashing it and eating the contents.

James Gordenier, a local hunter was contacted with regard to placing traps there on Tuesday but did not act until Friday.

That Tuesday evening a local farmer killed two cubs which were up a tree. He left their carcasses in a fork of the tree intending to remove them the next morning. But when he returned he found they had vanished. It is thought the mother bear came and removed them to her den, the location of which remains a mystery.

On Saturday morning Gordenier hurried to the farm to see if there were any developments and found one trap had been dragged off by a bear. It had knocked down four panels of the fence to which the trap had been attached.

He caught up with the bear about 800 yards away, estimating it to be about 400 pounds in weight. It soon showed an inclination to charge, despite its handicap, but was killed before it could do further damage.

This was the second bear to be shot in that district that week.

About two miles away in Seymour township, Harold Simpson accounted for a male bear about 6:30 last Tuesday evening in his wheat field.

"It was 300 younds at least as I found when my partner and I were dragging its carcass," he said. "I have three more to shoot yet, a female and two cubs I saw in the same field."

Russian Colonel Wages Personal War With Ike

By DON WHITEHEAD

WASHINGTON (AP)—The President doesn't know it, but if Lt.-Col. Solodovnik of the Russian Army had had his way, Eisenhower most certainly would never have become President of the United States.

The little colonel started a personal war against Eisenhower in the winter of 1942-43. That was when he advocated firing the supreme commander of Allied forces in North Africa — Eisenhower. And he told British authorities as much.

As everyone knows, the general wasn't fired. He went ahead to lead the Allies to victory in Europe. And, probably to Solodovnik's dismay, he became President.

The little Russian appeared in the western desert as a correspondent attached to the British 8th army. He filed regular dispatches back to the Russian news agency, Tass, in Moscow. But it was well known that he was in fact an artillery colonel—not a newspaper man.

Reporters got to know Solodovnik pretty well. He spoke a fair brand of English and he mixed a good deal with correspondents who followed the fortunes of the fight against Rommel's famed Afrika Corps.

BELLIGERENT TYPE

But even in those days as an ally, Solodovnik displayed a belligerent attitude toward the British and American effort. He poked sly fun at the war in the desert.

One day Col. Philip Astley, the British press officer, briefed Solodovnik on details of Montgomery's attack against Rommel just south of Bengasi. Monty has used the Highland and New Zealand divisions to spearhead a thrust.

For the desert war, that was a good-sized spearhead, although the Russians in those days were using massed divisions in their fighting. When Astley explained to Solodovnik the two-division tactic, the little Russian quipped: "Oh, I understand. A patrol action!"

If Solodovnik thought he was needling the British forces, he was wrong. His crack tickled the British sense of humor so much they spread the story through the army themselves.

During that winter, the fighting in North Africa bogged down. Eisenhower's time-table for capturing Tunisia stalled in mud and rain and growing German resistance. Solodovnik flew from the desert into North Africa, by British courtesy, to look over the situation.

URGED IKE BE FIRED

After a few days, he returned and wrote a long disaptch for Moscow. He presented it to the special censor who handled only Solodovnik's writings. Things began popping. Solodovnik was called into the tent of Montgomery's chief of staff.

Roughly, this was how the conversation went to listeners outside:

Officer: "Solodovnik, we cannot approve this story."

Solodovnik: "But why?"

Officer: "You spent only a few days in North Africa. You had only a superficial look at the situation. Obviously you could not know all the facts. Therefore, we cannot let you send this dispatch saying that Gen. Eisenhower should be removed from his command."

Solodovnik left soon after that. I saw him once in Italy as a member of the Russian mission observing the fighting there. He had been promoted to full colonel.

Then, near the war's end, the Americans and Russians met on the Mulde river in Germany. Russia's Gen. Koniev invited America's Gen. Omar N. Bradley to dinner at his headquarters in an old German mansion south of Berlin.

There on the steps stood Solodovnik, wearing this time the insignia of a major general.

But Solodovnik was cool toward his old companions of the western desert. Maybe he was brooding because Eisenhower hadn't been fired.

Sir Alan Lascelles Acts Ears And Eyes Of Queen

By ROBERT F.S. JONES

LONDON (CP)—You can't run a modern Coronation without an army of people behind the scenes.

The backroom boy No. 1—the man at the Queen's elbow to help her decide all the knotty little points of protocol—is Sir Alan Lascelles, her personal private secretary.

Lascelles is a member of the 36-man Coronation committee, but he's strictly behind the scenes. The procession, guests, order of service, decorations are in the hands of the earl marshal, the Duke of Norfolk; Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, the archbishop of Canterbury, and the minister of public works, David Eccles.

ADVISES QUEEN

Sir Alan is the go-between for the committee and the Queen—the man who advises her on any of her personal problems connected with the ceremony.

King George VI appointed Lascelles his private secretary in 1943. One of the Queen's first acts was to ask him to carry on. Previously he had been assistant private secretary to King George V, King Edward VIII and King George VI.

As the Queen's political adviser, Lascelles gets a precis from his good friend Prime Minister Churchill of each cabinet meeting and interprets the country's political scene to the Queen.

GHOST WRITER

If the Queen wants to know what to say in a major speech. Lascelles—credited with "ghost writing" some of King George's best wartime speeches—helps her out. He briefs her before she has an audience with an ambassador or foreign envoy.

Acting as the ears and eyes of a monarch has given him acute dyspepsia and a yearning for a quiet and contemplative life.

Lascelles, 64, started off with a few years at Marlborough College followed by a spell at Oxford. He fought as an infantry major in the First World War, and then went to Bombay as private secretary to the governor, Lord Lloyd. In India he met and married the beautiful daughter of Viscount Chelmsford, the viceroy.

STARTED IN 1920

A distant relative of the Royal Family, Lascelles started his career as royal adviser in 1920, when he spent nine years globetrotting with the Duke of Windsor—then Prince of Wales.

From 1931 until 1935 he was private secretary to Lord Bessborough, governor-general of Canada. He was called back into the royal household when George V decided he wanted an expert in Commonwealth affairs close at hand.

During the royal tour in 1939 George VI—who nicknamed him "Tommy" and used to chaff him about his unruly black hair—knighted him on the Royal train travelling from Canada to Washington.

Fiji Islander Commands Unit In Jungle War

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—A milestone in the advance of Pacific island peoples toward full nationhood has been reached with the appointment of a Fiji islander to command a battalion of his people in the jungle war in Malaya.

Lt.-Col. Ratu Edward Cakobau will be the only non-white battalion commander in the Malayan campaign. Hhe will have white New Zealand officers serving under him.

It is believed to be the first time a Pacific islander has risen to command a battalion at home or on active service overseas.

The Fijians are splendid troops, but in the past they have always been commanded by Europeans, usually from New Zealand, and a high proportion of the officers have also been white.

Fijians won an enviable reputation fighting the Japanese in the jungles of the Pacific islands during the Second World War On Bougainville they lived for months behind the Japanese lines, harrying lines of communication and raiding camps at night, and they were rated by the Americans as probably the finest jungle fighters in the Pacific campaign.

Colonel Cakobau served in this campaign and won the Military Cross. A man of splendid physique, he is one of the leaders of his race. The title Ratu means a man of chiefly rank, and the Cakobau family is one of the leading noble houses, tracing its ancestry back into the history of Fiji, an island group in the South Pacific, north of New Zealand.

HOLDS GOVERNMENT OFFICE

He was educated in New Zealand. In civil life he is an administrative officer in the Fijian government, in which native officers are playing an increasingly important role as the British administration trains the people to manage a greater part of their own affairs. He attended the first post-war colonial administration course at Oxford and London. He is also a top-class athlete and has represented his country at both cricket and rugby football.

When Fiji was asked to supply a battalion of volunteers to fight the terrorists in Malaya, Edward Cakobau was appointed second-in-command with the rank of major. The battalion has done so well that its term of service in Malaya has been increased from two to four years.

Israeli Bachelors Ask More Women Immigrants

TEL AVIV (Reuters)—Bachelors in Israel are demanding "equal rights."

Posters have appeared on walls and billboards in Tel Aviv calling upon the authorities to encourage the immigration of unmarried women to equalize the sexes.

At present, the posters declare, unmarried women are so scarce that the bachelors are being "exploited." "There are some 49,000 surplus bachelors who have no hope of marriage even in the remote future," says the League for the Protection of Bachelors' Rights which drew up the posters.

"Women," the posters read "are aware of this surplus and exploit it. It is no secret that today's girls will look only at taxi-owners, physicians or engineers, while you—the worker—are destined to live and die single, without a wife, a home or children."

The league's posters claimed to quote official statistics to prove its case about the "surplus" of males.

Actually, the latest official figures released here disclose that the number of males in Israel exceeds the number of females by 26,000, the total number of males being 738,000.

A 25-year-old teacher who helped to draft the posters, explained the purposes of the league.

He said that most of the members, whose number he refused to disclose, are between the ages of 25 and 30.

The league also demands income tax relief for bachelors who are now "discriminated against."

Drew, Macdonald Made Members Of Privy Council

OTTAWA (CP)—The House of Commons passed from gracious compliments to hot personal feuding Tuesday as members moved through the waning hours of this 21st Parliament. The end of its sittings may come today or Thursday.

The compliments went to George Drew, the 59-year-old leader of the official Opposition, and to Speaker Ross Macdonald, 61, with announcement that they and two other members of the official Coronation delegation have been made members of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada.

The others are Rt. Hon. Thibaudeau Rinfret, 73, chief justice of Canada, and Senator Elie Beauregard, 68, Speaker of the Senate.

The appointments entitle them to use the term honorable with their names for life and to sit with a body which rarely sits. The Privy Council is a relic of the British past when such a body advised the King or Queen in the days before political parties invented cabinets and usurped virtually all its powers.

The Canadian Privy Council consists of 43 men, including all members of the present cabinet, living members of former cabinets and a few outstanding outsiders such as the Duke of Windsor and Earl Alexander, former governor-general. Mr. Drew becomes the first leader of the official Opposition in Canada to be an adviser of the Queen in this honorary capacity while holding the position he now holds.

Prime Minister St. Laurent told the House in announcing the appointments that it was felt they would be fitting in view of the fact the four men will play prominent parts in the Coronation delegation. His announcement was applauded by the members and described by Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) as "a gracious gesture" by Mr. St. Laurent.

The atmosphere was typical of a Parliament which can swing from one mood to another with the flick of a caustic tongue. The caustic tongues were not lacking Tuesday as the weary remnants of the membership—many have gone home—pounded through nine. hours of sittings between 11 a. m. and 10 p. m.

REVIVES FEUD

Percy Wright (CCF—Melfort) sparked a brief revival of a feud with Trade Minister Howe and challenged him to call Mr. Wright before the bar of the House to answer criticisms about transport controller Roy Milner.

This spilled into the House a battle that started in a committee when Mr. Wright compared Mr. Milner's interest in the welfare of the farmers. He said that making Mr. Milner a member of the board of grain commissioners was like putting a "weasel in a chicken coop. . .He is interested in the chickens for what he can get out of them."

Mr. Howe once threatened to have legal action taken against Mr. Wright but later said parliamentary immunity prevents this. Mr. Wright took up the issue again by his challenge to the minister to call him before his fellow members to be tried.

Mr. Howe said he wouldn't do that. Mr. Wright should be left to enjoy his last few hours as a sitting member, a subtle prophecy of electoral defeat. But he still thought what Mr. Wright had said about Mr. Milner was disgusting.

As for Mr. Milner, Mr. Howe said Alberta's grain growers think he's fine.

Feud No. 2 concerned the waitresses in restaurants at TCA airports. The Rev. E. Hansell (SC—Macleod) said they wear dirty smocks. George Murray (L—Cariboo) called that "a dirty Socred smear" and offered to "break a lance any afternoon" for the honor of the young ladies. This challenge wasn't accepted either.

OTHER THINGS QUIET

Otherwise things were fairly quiet, with transport minister Chevrier and Fisheries Minister Sinclair taking the brunt of opposition questions as their departmental estimates went slowly through.

These were among the developments:

1. Mr. Chevrier said Canada will be looking for new facilities for both Trans-Canada Air Lines and Canadian Pacific Airlines in renegotiation of the air agreement with the U. S. soon.

2. Mr. St. Laurent ruled out civil service hopes for a general pay boost at this time.

3. Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra) said fast ocean cargo ships, more and more oil tankers and the St. Lawrence seaway are opening up a new shipping era which may find Canada left far behind. Mr. Chevrier said the government is considering subsidies for shipping but didn't indicate there is much hope for such a plan.

4. Progressive Conservative and CCF members made new demands for lower freight rates. Mr. Chevrier held out the hope that implementation of a royal commission report might eventually cut rates for the Maritimes and Western Canada. If it didn't work out that way, the government would reconsider the situation.

5. Mr. Sinclair said the government has decided to inaugurate a plan of insurance to cover fishermen's boats and gear, a statement greeted warmly by members from fishing constituencies.

KING-SIZE TROUT—Frank Morris of Galt, proudly displays his whopper speckled trout to his admiring young sons. He caught the 22-inch three pound-10 ounce beauty in Mill Creek in Soper Park near the Galt arena. It was the biggest speckled trout caught in the district in many years. He used dew worms for bait. Son Wayne (right), 10, and Frank, 9, are with their dad.

Dies On 100th Birthday

PADUA, Italy (AP)—Relatives and friends met here Monday to help grandma Luigia Scanferlato celebrate her 100th birthday.

After a few glasses of wine they asked her to sing for them—and she did: "A Song of Love, dedicated to Rudolf Valentino," great Latin lover of the silent film days.

In the middle of the song grandma Scanferlato collapsed and died.

Don't Intend To Call Special Session

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said Tuesday in the Commons that the government has no intention of calling a special fall session of Parliament this year.

But he suggested the regular 1954 session might start before the end of the year, as was the case with the current 1953 session.

The government's intentions came out when Justice Minister Garson, apparently inadvertently, referred to tabling some documents in the House next fall.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, wanted to know what that meant.

SLIP OF TONGUE

The prime minister, saying he wanted to answer recent sugestions of a fall session, declared the government has no intention of calling a special assembly.

The intention, always subject to emergencies, was that the next session would be the regular 1954 one, whether it was called before the end of this year or after.

44-Hr. Week For Police; Salaries Up

Cost-of-Living Bonus Dropped, Salaries Are Increased $600

A new salary schedule and a 44-hour week were included in the first written agreement between the Board of Police Commissioners and the Peterborough Police Association approved by both groups Tuesday.

Although the agreement calls for general salary increases of $600, this will be largely offset by the fact that the cost of living bonus of more than $400 has been dropped.

SOLE BARGAINING AGENT

The agreement, to be executed Thursday, is effective from January 1 until December 31 of this year and until replaced by a new agreement, decision or award. It recognizes the police association as the sole bargaining agent for all employees of the police department except the Chief Constable whose salary was set at $4,650 by the commission at Tuesday's meeting.

The following salary schedule was contained in the agreement: Deputy chief $4,200; inspector of detectives $4,100; sergeant of detectives $3,800, sergeant and identification officer $3,675; sergeant $3,675; detective $3,575; patrol sergeant $3,575; 1st class constable $3,450; 2nd class constable $3,350; 3rd class constable $3,200; 4th class constable $3,100.

SERVICE PAY

Employees of the police department are entitled to the same sick leave gratuities and pension plan as other city employees. All employees with five years service will be paid an extra 10 cents a day service pay, increasing at the rate of 10 cents a day for each additional five years service until a maximum of 25 years service is attained, all based on a 365-day year.

Employees with one year or more continuous service will be entitled to two weeks annual vacation with pay, plus seven additional statutory holidays, plus normal days off in a week. Employees with 10 years or more continuous service will be entitled to three weeks annual vacation with pay, plus the same statutory holidays and days off. In every case, statutory holidays will be taken in the fall or spring.

All full-time plain-clothes employees will be paid up to $150 a year clothing allowance. A clothing allowance of 50 cents a day will be allowed employees serving as plain-clothesmen on a part-time basis.

Employees will be allowed one hour for each half-day at court when called off duty, to be accumulative to a total of eight hours. When accumulated these hours may be taken off duty at not more than one day at a time and subject to the Chief Constable's discretion.

AID TO WIDOWS

Widows of employees killed in the performance of their duties will be paid for all annual holidays, accumulative sick leave or statutory holidays standing to the credit of the employee. The estate or other dependents of an employee killed in the performance of his duties will receive three months salary, paid over a period of six months.

The police commission is to supply each employee with one complete uniform each year and a pair of summer weight pants, three shirts, two pairs of boots, one pair of winter gloves, two ties, one overcoat, one pea-jacket, one cap, one fur hat, one rain coat and baton, flashlights and belts as required.

All promotions will be governed by ability, fitness and efficiency, provided that, where they are equal, seniority of service shall govern.

An employee having a grievance may take it up with his immediate superior. If a satisfactory settlement is not arrived at, he may submit his grievance in writing to the Chief Constable who will give a reply in writing within five days.

If the employee is not satisfied with the decision of the Chief, he may report the matter to a representative of the police association who will take the matter up with the police commission. If a settlement satisfactory to both parties is not arrived at, the matter may be referred to arbitration as provided by the Police Act.

YOUNG HOPEFULS—St. Peter's High School auditorium and Trinity Church Hall were filled to capacity Tuesday during rural school day of the Kiwanis Club's music festival. The day featured choirs, duets and solos from the rural schools of Eastern and Central Ontario. Watching every movement of the director's hands children from SS No. 5 South Monaghan (above) make their bid for first place honors. But unfortunately SS No. 3 Smith won the class with 86 marks. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Regulate Parking On Romaine St. After Petition

Garfield Bryant and his Romaine St. associates appear to be batting 1.000 in persuasiveness at the City Hall. They objected to the cost of an asphaltic pavement on the basis of assessing it against abutting property. The city council acceded to their petition and protest, and the work department laid a temporary top that is still standing up to traffic.

More recently the Romaine St. people objected to the double and generally indiscriminate parking by employees of Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co. who evidently considered that they were saving more or less time, or something, by leaving their cars in front of the houses of those ratepayers instead of on the lot provided by the company.

ALL ACCEPTED

So, at the meeting of the finance committee of the council Monday night, all the recommendations of the special traffic committee were accepted. At the top of the list was a clause permiting one hour parking, only, on the north side of Romaine St. between Monaghan Road and Park St. And, that means no parking on the south side.

No parking on the west side of Kent, Maple and Lynch Streets, extending north from Romaine, and only one hour parking on the east side.

Parking on Chamberlain St., both sides is restricted to one hour all the time, between Park and Monaghan Road.

This busline street has been cluttered by industrial workers' cars. Residents recently asked the council to give them some consideration, and their petition was passed on to the special traffic committee of which City Clerk Outram is a member.

Rink St., north side, no parking between the CPR and Rubidge St. This is adjacent to the Colonial Weaving Co.

Benson Ave.—No parking on the east side from a point opposite the south side of Manning Ave. to the north side of O'Carroll.

IMPROVE SAFETY

This is intended to improve the safety of children crossing Benson from Queen Alexandra school.

Wolsley St. to be a through street from Stewart to Barnardo . . . Water St., a through street, from Langton St. to the north boundary of the city.

The request of Sunshine Dairy for parking permission on Driscoll Terrace was not granted. Committee considered the street too narrow.

Stop and go lights are to be placed at Charlotte and Reid Streets synchronized with the lights at Charlotte and Park Streets.

At the suggestion of Ald. N. G. Graham, it was recommended to the council that parking be permitted one hour on the south side only on Wolfe St. between Stewart and Rubidge Streets.

A resident on Lafayette St. recently remarked to the Examiner that the council had cleared their short and narrow street of factory workers' cars. The device is, a sign on one side: no parking at any time; and on the other parking only from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Capacity Audience Hears Final Session Of Festival

A capacity audience attended the final session of the Peterborough Kiwanis Music Festival Tuesday evening in St. Peter's School auditorium. It was church choir night and the added treats of the evening were mass choir singing under the direction of Adjudicator George Heath-Gracie and a short piano recital by Adjudicator John Russell.

George St. United Church choir under the direction of Charles Allen again was awarded first place with 173 marks. Murray St. Baptist Church choir, under the direction of Stanley Northrop, placed second with 170 marks and St. Andrew's United Church choir under the direction of Harry Northrop, third with 166 marks.

Mr. Heath-Gracie complimented all three choirs on their discipline and good preparation and the competence of their directors.

NEED NEW BLOOD

In his general remarks on church choirs, the adjudicator stressed the need for "new blood" in a choir. "This is one case where the institution might be said to matter more than the people in it," he said.

Tuesday was rural school day at the festival and approximately 750 rural school students took part in sessions at St. Peter's School and Trinity United Church Hall.

The high mark for the day, 88 was awarded to John Mark of Oakwood for his singing of, The Little Clock, by Saunders in class 50—solo, rural school students, and to Bailieboro School for their singing of, The Fairy Ring, by Anderson in class 123.

The main general criticism of the day was the importance of getting words clearly in group singing.

During the choral sessions Mr. Russell expressed some interesting remarks on the difficulties of boys' singing voices changing.

"There is no reason why children with changing voices should not sing if they want to," he said. "If they use their voices discreetly at this time no harm will be done and there is always the possibility that if the voice is not used, it may be lost for later singing."

VIOLIN WINNER

Florence Brotherhood of Columbus was awarded 87 marks for her playing of Chanson Louis XIII and Pavane, by Kreisler in the open violin solo class, and was given high praise by Mr. Russell.

"This is a very beautiful, sensitive and musical performance," he said.

In his adjudication of Miss Brotherwood, who was the only competitior in this class, Mr. Russell also asked that more parents consider the violin as an instrument for their children.

"String playing is growing across this country," he said, "but it should grow a great deal more."

The finals for the Mortlock Award (winners of classes 134 to 138) was also held Tuesday evening. The winner named by Mr. Russell was David Hancock, who previously placed first in class 136 —piano solo, under 12 years, The Gay Cavalier, by Dunhill.

The results of Tuesday's sessions are as follows:

260 Acres Of Timber Lost From Fire In Sawdust Pile

BANCROFT (ENS).—A bush fire believed to have started by a burning sawdust pile in the mill yard owned by C. W. Bierworth & Sons on Highway 61 one mile south of here was still burning today although now under control. Officials of the department of Lands and Forests have estimated that 260 acres of mixed timber has been destroyed in an area stretching from the highway to Bronson.

Some 300 cords of slabwood in the mill yard valued at $1,800 were lost and at one time a planing mill owned by the Bancroft Lumber and Fuel Ltd. was threatened.

Sixty-five fire fighters plus an unknown number of volunteers using two bulldozers, two pumpers and hand equipment were in actions for two days when finally the fire was brought under control late Tuesday.

Chief Ranger Orville Goodman said today the fire hazard in the district remains extremely high in spite of Tuesday night's shower and he has asked the public to take every possible precaution to prevent further losses in valuable timber.

Officials of the department are probing the cause of the fire.

Aircraft Crash Brings Court Action

Aftermath of the crash of an aircraft into hydro wires at Stony Lake two years ago is the Supreme Court civil action now being heard before Mr. Justice McLennan at the non-jury sittings.

The Fairchild aircraft owned by Rockland Airways and piloted by Tom Mathias, veteran commercial pilot, crashed into some hydro wires stretching across a channel from the mainland to Lindsay Island. Mathias, a co-partner in the firm, was coming in for a landing with two passengers, when the plane struck the wires, some 20 feet above the water, a mile west of McCracken's Landing.

The three men had a narrow escape from drowning and the aircraft was wrecked.

Rockland Airways, who maintain a base on Lake Chemong, are suing Oscar B. MacMillan and his wife, Iva, who own Lindsay Island and presumably had the wires erected. They are asking for damages of $7,902 and costs.

Mathias is a partner in Rockland with George A. Stephens, retired Anstruther Township lumberman. He testified that he took off from Lake Chemong base, six and a half miles west of Peterborough, on the afternoon of July 30, 1951. With him in the aircraft were Ken Wyatt in the left front seat and Orville Braden in the back seat.

SITUATION REVERSED

Last summer a division court action brought against the company by the MacMillans was dismissed. Now the situation is reversed with Rockland Airways being the plaintiffs and the case is being heard in Supreme Court.

Mathias said they landed at the South Beach Hotel and pulled into the wharf for 15 minutes then they flew up to Clear Lake and into Stony where they circled three times before making their final approach. The time was about 3 p.m., he said, and the sun was almost overhead. The wires were invisible until they were almost on top of them.

"Everybody yelled 'wires' all at once . . . It happened very quickly . . . We would have landed about 200 feet further down."

The aircraft travelling at an estimated speed of 90 miles an hour fell sharply into the water and lodged on a rock ledge. Two boats came over to assist the trio in the water.

Plaintiffs through their legal counsel, Alex Elliott, QC, claim that the wire was nuisance and had no right to be there.

T. J. Carley, QC, counsel for the McMillans, suggested that Mathias was "buzzing the area" and had already struck the undercarriage of his aircraft on some trees.

The case is continuing.

Peterborough To Celebrate Coronation Three Days With Series Special Events

Community Religious Service In Arena To Start Observance; Street Dance Parade, Fireworks, Street Decorations

Peterborough's celebration of the Coronation will extend over three days—Sunday, May 31 to Tuesday, June 2, the actual day of the Coronation—it was decided at a 3½-hour meeting of the Coronation Day committee Tuesday night. Special orders of service have been prepared by all the churches for Sunday morning, and the first community observance will be a service in Civic Arena Sunday evening, May 31, sponsored by the Ministerial Association with massed church choirs and the Citizens' Band taking part.

With Tuesday a public holiday and most of the city's industrial plants closed down, it is expected that school children will also have a holiday so that observance of the occasion in each of the schools is expected to take place on Monday. A street dance is planned for that night, probably on Aylmer St. opposite the CNR station, sponsored by one or more of the service clubs.

A special ceremony for school children is planned to take place at the exhibition grounds at 3 p.m. Tuesday. There will be a parade starting from the city hall at 7:30 p.m. to the market place opposite George St. wharf where a brief civic ceremony will be held. A display of fireworks on Little Lake at 10 p.m. will mark the climax of the celebration.

Street decorations will include the erection of colored lights, pennants and decorated light standards in the business section.

HEATED DISCUSSION

Discussion of celebration plans was involved and sometimes heated as proposals and counter-proposals were put forward, discussed, discarded, amended and adopted before Ald. Syd Black, chairman of the committee, finally brought about unanimity of opinion on a detailed plan for the celebration. In the end, harmony prevailed but several details remained to be ironed out.

Acting Mayor T. D. Miller suggested that plans prepared at the previous meeting might have to be altered with the announcement by CGE and De Laval Co. that their plants would be closed down. He expected that most other firms in the city would follow suit, including retail merchants, and he planned to ask city council next Monday night to proclaim Coronation Day a holiday.

Chief point at issue was where to hold Tuesday's civic ceremony. Previous plans had called for a parade to the exhibition grounds for a ceremony there. But consensus was that the fireworks display should be held on Little Lake and Ald. Harold Rehill pointed out two objections to this: Movement from one spot to the other would cause a traffic jam and most people would not attend both events if they were held at different places.

As a result, it was decided to hold the evening ceremony in the market square, where a special dais would be erected for the purpose and where people could easily walk to a vantage point for the fireworks display.

Heat Knocks Out 6 Cadets At Inspection

Six PCVS Cadets collapsed in the 75-degree heat Tuesday afternoon at Nicholls Oval during the Collegiate's annual cadet inspection and had to be carried off the field and given first aid treatment.

Several other cadets also felt the effects of the heat, but were treated on the field, and were able to carry on in the inspection.

Architect Wins Third Prize For Home Design

E. H. Zeidler of the city architectural firm of W. and W. R. L. Blackwell and Craig has been awarded third place in the contemporary home design competition sponsored by the Canadian Home Journal.

Entries in the contest were received from architects and architectural students from all parts of Canada. Prizes were awarded to 11 Canadian architects; honorable mention going to eight of these.

Mr. Zeidler, more than pleased by the award, said today he he had submitted two designs and did not yet know which one had been given the prize.

A graduate of the University of Karlsruhe, Germany, he studied before that at the famed Bauhaus School—now in the Russian zone of Germany—which was founded by architects Walter Gropius and Mies Van der Rohe.

From the Bauhaus he went to Karlsruhe, and after graduating from there worked in western Germany for three years. He came to Canada in 1951 with a job as designer in Blackwell and Craig's Toronto office.

NOT OUTRAGEOUS

Asked to define "contemporary" as it applies to architecture, Mr. Zeidler said it was an attempt to be modern without being outrageous.

In more detail he explained that an architect must keep three points in mind when making a design. The design must be structurally correct, it must suit the owner's wants, and it must bring together the features of the first two points in a clean and pleasant design which expresses the feeling of the time.

First and second prizes were awarded to Montreal architects.

In making the awards, the judges declared all designs submitted to be of very high standard; implying that the placing of Mr. Zeidler's design among the first three is a sign of its merit and originality.

Several Rule Changes Suggested At CAHA Meet

By W. R. Wheatley

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association wants something done to hobble teams that ice the puck when short handed and to silence players who protest with lurid profanity when they are tossed into the penalty box.

At its opening general meeting Tuesday, the association accepted proposals on these points for rule changes, but turned thumbs down on several others.

It threw out a proposal by the Saskatchewan branch that the slap shot be banned as a dangerous part of hockey and thereby allowed the embryo Boom Boom Geoffrions to continue blasting away to their hearts' content.

A footnote was appended to the rules telling referees to deal strictly with players for kneeing and to hand out major penalties "when warranted."

A proposal that time keepers call attention to referees of swearing by outraged penalty servers was rejected. It was felt the time keeper should not become an active official in the game itself.

GO TO COMMITTEE

All suggestions for rule changes will go before the rules committee of the National Hockey League in accordance with a mutual agreement between the two bodies Each knows what the other plans and can act accordingly so that both wind up with essentially the same rules.

Soon after opening its first plenary session at the 36th annual convention, the association welcomed back the reinstated Quebec Amateur Hockey Association—one of the parent body's biggest branches—which had been suspended for defying the national organization's edict over a player's status.

Scarcely were the five Quebec delegates seated when president Martin Conway of the QAHA arose and proposed that future disputes between CAHA branches be settled by arbitration, the arbitrator to have no connection whatever with the CAHA or its branches.

The vote was a surprising 11-to-9 count by hand in favor of the Quebec resolution, but it was lost because a two-thirds majority was necessary.

The resolutions committee continued its deliberations on many subjects today as a prelude to another general meeting tonight.

The arbitration suggestion was the only resolution proposed by the Quebec delegates which did not get prompt passage on to the committee.

One of the most important provides that a committee consider future relations between the major-series leagues and the CAHA. It was the only official recognition the convention has taken so far of the decision by the Quebec Senior League to turn professional. The Maritime Major League is the only other circuit concerned.

The Quebec delegates also put across for consideration a proposal that officers of branches involved in a dispute shall have no vote themselves when questions are put to a vote by branches.

UP TO MEETING

The rules committee left it up to the general meeting to deal with the proposal of the Ontario Hockey Association about putting a check rein on teams for icing the puck. It was agreed that the present rule forbidding icing be rewritten to make provision against this practice by short handed teams

Another proposed rule change, accepted, was aimed at stricter penalties for boarding. It incorporated the words "in contact with the boards" to deal with players who are cross-checked, body-checked, charged or tripped

Players who deliberately shoot at goal keepers after play has been stopped were given a slap. Under a suggestion by the British Columbia branch, the offending player would be given a misconduct penalty.

One of the many resolutions given approval was that of secretary-manager George Dudley. It provides, in effect, that the CAHA executive must "follow the book" in dealing with squawks over player replacements and other playoff questions. Executive decisions cannot be made arbitrarily between annual meetings.

The OHA was host to the delegates Tuesday night at dinner at which Louis Blake Duff of Welland, Ont., was the guest speaker. The OHA's miniature gold hockey sticks, awarded for outstanding work in amateur hockey, were presented to past presidents of the CAHA.

A proposal by James T. Sutherland of Kingston, life member and one of the founders of the Hockey Hall of Fame, that the word "amateur be dropped" from the association's name didn't get before the general meeting. It was not endorsed at Monday's meeting of the resolution committee.

A resolution from the Ontario Hockey Association asked that voting at executive meetings—now one for each officer and two for each branch—provide for two more votes for each branch whose registration of players the preceding year exceeded $5,000. The meeting approved a suggestion that the OHA advise the Northern Ontario Hockey Association to apply for full membership, if desired, as a separate branch.

Cubs Defeat Rochester In 4-2 Triumph

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The front-running Rochester Red Wings were defeated Tuesday night when Vern Fear, recovering from a wild streak in the second and third innings, pitched Springfield Cubs to a 4-2 International League victory over the Wings.

Montreal Royals and Buffalo Bisons, tied for second place with a .571 average, were blacked out when the lights failed in the fifth inning with Montreal ahead 4-0. The game was suspended and will take up where it left off tonight.

In other league games, a two-run rally in the ninth touched off by Lou Limmer's one-run homer gave Ottawa Athletics a 6-5 edge over the fourth-place Toronto Maple Leafs; and Howie Fox, relieving starter Charley Marshall in the fourth, pitched and batted Baltimore Orioles to a 2-1 victory over Syracuse Chiefs.

REEDER LOSER

At Springfield, the loser was Denny Reeder. Rochester tied the game in the fourth but the Cubs got two more in the same frame to clinch the verdict.

Before the lights went out in Montreal, Fred Kapuscinski was nicked for two runs in the fourth on a walk, Tim Thompson's triple and a run-making fly. He gave up two more in the fifth when Sandy Amoros belted his second four-bagger of the season with one on.

At Ottawa, Limmer's 60-foot belt came with two out in the final frame. Reliefer Vic Lombardi, who went to the mound in the seventh, then hit Taft Wright. Dick Greco followed with a single, moving Wright to second. Gerry Scala singled to bring in Alf Pinkston who ran for Wright from second.

At Baltimore, big righthander Fox allowed only two of the three visiting hits, delivered a ninth-inning single to centre with the bases loaded and two out to decide the test.

Galen Hanover Wins Three-Length Victory

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—Galen Hanover, taking the lead at the half-mile pole, went on to score an easy three-length victory Tuesday night in the Kensico Pace at Yonkers Raceway's Grand Circuit meeting.

Warner Bull brought Galen Hanover into the lead without trouble. Selby's Pride closed well for second with Ginger Tass third. The 8-5 favorite, Margaret Abbedale, was a poor fourth.

Moving Day For 18 Players On Ball Clubs

NEW YORK (AP)—This is moving day for 18 players on 10 major league baseball clubs as the teams trim their rosters to the 25-man limit called for by midnight tonight.

There was a flurry of shifting Tuesday as team managers approached the deadline, and some said they would wait until after today's games before making final decisions.

The voluntary retirement of Dom DiMaggio, Boston Red Sox outfielder and last of the three DiMaggio brothers to play in the big leagues, helped manager Lou Boudreau make up his mind.

The Red Sox sent southpaw relief hurler Bill Werle to the Boston farm at Louisville on option. Two more must be trimmed by tonight.

GOES TO SENATORS

John Schmitz, 32-year-old New York Yankee lefthander, was sent to Washington Senators for the $10,000 waiver price.

The Senators, in turn, sold pitcher Sandalio Consuegra to Chicago White Sox a few hours after the Pale Hose had obtained outfielder Allie Clark from Philadelphia Athletics.

Chicago and the Athletics must trim away two players, the Senators one, the Yankees three, St. Louis Browns two. Cleveland and Detroit are all set.

Four teams in the National League are within the limit, but Brooklyn Dodgers, Cincinnati Reds and St. Louis Cardinals each must drop one player. Pittsburgh Pirates must cut away three players.

72 Candidates Attend Bomber School

WINNIPEG (CP)—Genial George Trafton is up to his hips in football talent and up to his fedora brim in beef.

The Winnipeg Blue Bombers coach opened the club's spring training grind Monday and on the second night, 72 candidates jammed practice facilities. There were 58 men out the first night.

This invasion of the new-born football season, only days after Winnipeg witnessed its last Memorial Cup game of the dying hockey season, constitutes only part of the Bomber potential. All the candidates are from junior, intermediate, high school and university teams.

Bomber regulars Gar Baxter, Lorne Benson, Len Meltzer, Steve Patrick, Keith Pearce, Ron Vaecher, Roger Savoie and Bud Korchak were out for the early workouts.

Trafton barely returned from a player hunt in Michigan in time for the first session as his plane was grounded and he finished the trip by bus and taxi.

PICK BEST PROSPECTS

The early grind, which continues until the end of May, is designed to pick out the likely prospects for regular berths with the Bombers. These are invited to the regular practices which begin July 15.

There is a lot of beef in the early line-up. The estimated average weight is more than 180 pounds and many of the huskies weigh over 200-pounds. This had Trafton smiling although he said he wouldn't be able to estimate the value of the school for a week or so.

The grind, which will go five nights a week, has drawn the cream of Manitoba talent including members of the St. Boniface-Norwood Legionaires, Canadian intermediate champions last season, and the now-defunct Winnipeg Light Infantry juniors.

Five out-of-towners joined the ranks, four from the East. Harry Wolfe of Montreal, Don Peart, last year with University of Toronto, John de Paulo of Port Arthur and Lloyd Atkinson of Barrie, Ont., all made the jump westward.

Hans Firken, with four years experience in junior football at Edmonton, is the other out-of-town prospect.

Glamorgan Wins Victory By One Run

LONDON (Reuters)—Glamorgan scored a dramatic victory by one run Tuesday over Worcestershire in a county cricket match.

The game seemed headed for a draw when Worcestershire injected new life into it by capturing the last five Glamorgan wickets of the second innings for 19 runs. Bowler Dave Shepherd took four wickets at a personal cost of 18. But Worcestrshire could not quite score the winning runs.

Final scores of Tuesday's first-class matches:

Northamptonshire 409 for eight declared and 201 for no wicket declared. RAF 255 and 223. Northampton won by 132 runs.

DOM DIMAGGIO RETIRES

BOSTON (AP)—Dom DiMaggio, veteran Boston Red Sox centre-fielder and the last of the three DiMaggio brothers in major league baseball, announced his retirement Tuesday night.

Shortly before the Red Sox-Chicago White Sox game began, DiMaggio said in a statement:

"As of this date, May 12, 1953, I have voluntarily retired from baseball.

"I want it perfectly understood there is nothing wrong with my right eye which recently underwent treatment. I believe I could have played at least one more year of good baseball, but under the circumstances I prefer to turn my interests elsewhere rather than be a hanger on."

DiMaggio, 35, regular centre-fielder since 1940, has always worn thick glasses. Last winter he was in hospital for eye treatment and was several weeks late in arriving at the Sox Sarasota training camp.

DiMaggio's famous brother, Joe, retired a member of New York Yankees at the close of the 1951 season. His brother Vincent was at one time a member of Boston Braves.

BASEBALL VETERAN DIES

KINGSTON (CP)—Edward John (Teddy) Gallagher, 57, former Kingston athlete, died Tuesday. He started his baseball career in 1913 with the Sapolios and later played for Joseph Daly on the original Ponies.

Noted as an excellent pitcher, he once struck out 22 men in one game and often struck out as many as 16 or 17 in a single contest.

He was also a hockey player and was on many Kingston teams of the sports era before the First World War.

GIANTS DROP 3 PITCHERS

MILWAUKEE (AP)—New York Giants Tuesday released pitchers Roger Bowman, Max Lanier and George Spencer.

Bowman went to Pittsburgh Pirates for the waiver price. Waivers also were asked on the other pair but in Lanier's case the intention was to grant the 37-year-old southpaw his unconditional release. He is expected to join Cleveland Indians. No destination was announced for Spencer.

OLDTIME PITCHER DIES

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Oren Edgar Summers, who had a notable career as a major league baseball pitcher more than two score years ago, died Tuesday at the age of 68.

The 18 innings he pitched for Detroit Tigers in their 0-0 game with Washington July 16, 1909, still stands as a record.

Summers pitched for the Tigers in two world series, in 1908 against Chicago and 1909 against Pittsburgh.

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP)—A two-year-old colt named Black Monday is making it "bright Monday" for the hunch players. He won his first racing start at Wolverhampton Monday, April 20, paying 10-1. He raced again last Monday, winning at 7-4 odds. His next race? At Wolverhampton next Monday.

Racing Cancelled For Second Day

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Hollywood Turf Club officials Tuesday cancelled racing for the second straight day and announced that they will call off the entire Hollywood Park meeting unless a settlement is reached by Friday with horsemen demanding more purse money.

The $12,400,000 showplace failed to open on schedule Tuesday for the first time in its 14-year history, and today's card was blacked out when the horsemen again refused to relax their all-out boycott.

The Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association is demanding 40 per cent of the track's share of the pari-mutuel handle.

Planning Indoor Rowing Pool

TORONTO (CP)—An indoor rowing pool, a new wrinkle in Canada but an established piece of equipment in the United States and Britain, may be built in Toronto this fall, it was announced Tuesday night. The pool would provide year-round training facilities for oarsmen.

The idea, advanced several weeks ago by A. Sidney Dawes of Montreal, past president of the Canadian Olympic Association, was considered at a meeting of rowing officials from Toronto and Hamilton with Dawes. The Montrealer has offered to pay $5.000 towards its initial cost.

A five-man committee, headed by Tom Alison of the Toronto Argonaut Rowing Club, was chosen to investigate the possibilities of constructing the 40-by-40-foot pool. information on the feasibility of the pool will be sought from four U.S. colleges who have used the pool idea for years—Yale, Navy, Harvard and the University of Pennsylvania.

Ultimately, it is hoped to construct pools in Montreal, Ottawa, Hamilton, St. Catharines, Brockville, Fort William and Winnipeg. Committee members stressed however, they would have to be built from "local capital."

The shells would be anchored down in water two or three feet deep and oarsmen would train with hole-dotted oars.

Matthews Wins 10-Round Draw

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Favored Harry Matthews, 181¼, Seattle, had to fight from behind to get a 10-round draw with Freddie Beshore, 196¾, Los Angeles, here Tuesday night.

It was a split decision, referee Ralph Gruman voting 60-to-50 for Matthews: judge Freddie Steele, 56½ to 53½ for Beshore; and judge Bobby Richards calling it even.

There were no knockdowns.

Matthews, showing the effects of a recent illness and a long lay-off, absorbed some damaging body punches and was trailing on most ringside scorecards until the ninth round.

Then the Seattle veteran staggered Beshore with a right to the jaw and tagged him with three more vicious punches, and the Los Angeles man was in trouble at the bell.

Matthews tried hard for a knockout in the 10th, but Beshore avoided further serious punishment.

A crowd of 4,752 paid $23,272 to see the fight.

Remember When

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Carl Hubbell, ace pitcher of New York Giants, scored his 21st straight victory when the Giants beat Pittsburgh Pirates 5-2 at New York 16 years ago today. Hubbell's string, which eclipsed Rube Marquard's 20 straight of 25 years previously, was broken the following May 31, when Brooklyn batted him out of the box.

Cockell Captures Heavyweight Title

LONDON (AP)—Don Cockell, one-time British light heavyweight champion, gained the British and Empire heavyweight titles Tuesday night by outpointing Johnny Williams of Rugby in a 15-rounder. It was an uninspiring bout.

Cockell weighed 207 pounds and it showed, but at least he tried to make it a fight while Williams kept back-pedalling. Cockell finished with his left eye closed, his other swollen, his mouth and nose battered from left jabs—but ringsiders said he deserved the victory.

Offered To Hamilton

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Repchik, 19-year-old rookie Southpaw pitcher who trained with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League this spring, was offered Tuesday to Hamilton Cardinals of the class D Pony League.

His option was given to the Cardinals so that he might be close enough to Toronto to train with the Leafs when the Cardinals are idle, the Toronto club said.

Atlantic Battle Sunday May 24

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Brooke Claxton announced Tuesday that "Battle of the Atlantic Sunday," commemorating RCN and Canadian merchant marine contributions to victory in the Second World War, will be observed May 24.

The Battle of the Atlantic was the longest of the war, 5½ years of continuous effort to keep North Atlantic sea lanes open.

Observance was previously set for May 17, but changed to avoid conflict with Victoria Day, being celebrated May 18 this year.

Church parades will be held at naval bases and special services will be conducted aboard ships at sea. Naval veterans have been invited to take part in observances.

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP)—"You're fine $10.10 for speeding," police justice Robert LaPlante told a Canadian motorist Tuesday.

"What's the extra 10 cents for," asked Alexander Smart of Corn wall.

"Discount on Canadian currency," replied LaPlante.

To Exploit Latent Resources In Newfoundland Province

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The British and Newfoundland Corporation is getting ready to start a search for buried treasure on the biggest hunting ground in Canada's history.

About $400,000 will be spent this summer to track down the hidden resources of Newfoundland and Labrador.

The corporation has lots of room to find its raw material. Its exclusive territory includes about 1,400 miles of rich Labrador timberland, 60,000 miles of potential mining area in Labrador and Newfoundland, and every horsepower of undeveloped hydro power in the island and its huge northern dependency.

The Liberal government is optimistic about its latest effort to find out what the province is worth in terms of its rivers, forests and minerals. Premier Smallwood calls the corporation the biggest combination of industrial and financial giants ever brought together for prospecting and developing natural resources.

20 FIRMS SPARK DRIVE

Twenty international firms, headed by N. M. Rothschilds and Sons of London, will spark the drive. The first president is B. C. Gardner, chairman of the Bank of Montreal.

Opposition members were critical as the bill ratifying the agreement went through the legislature. They saw the $1,250,000 the corporation is compelled to spend in the next five years as a small price to pay for its vast holdings.

They balked also at turning over all Newfoundland's unalienated water power rights for as long as 198 years, particularly by a government which had condemned previous administrations for their free-spending ways with the island's resources.

But the government claims actual expenditures will far exceed the minimum specified in the agreement, and feels there are adequate safeguard if the expected development fails to materialize.

In brief, here is what the corporation gets and what it gives in return:

It gets a 20-year option on all waterpower rights not granted or committed, plus an option on rights reverting to the Crown during the same period. Within 20 years the corporation may ask for full development leases for 99 years, renewable for another 99 years, but the leases will be cancelled if there is any delay in development.

The corporation agrees to supply electric power to anyone asking for it. Failure to do so will allow the government to grant rights to other interests.

The corporation receives a 20-year option in 1,480 square miles of timber in Labrador's Lake Melville area. A 99-year cutting lease may be demanded in that period, but the corporation agrees to export wood only if it cannot be used economically in Newfoundland.

Within one year, the corporation may select 50,000 square miles in Labrador and 10,000 miles in Newfoundland for mining exploration, with renewable five-year leases totalling 20 years. Its holdings will be reduced on a sliding scale, leaving only actual development areas at the end of the 20-year period. On these areas, mining leases may be granted for 99 years.

Aside from benefits of industrial expansion, the provincial treasury stands to gain directly if the project is successful.

The corporation will hand over eight per cent of its net profits before taxes, an additional five per cent of net profits for minerals developed, 12½ per cent of the gross value of oil or natural gas developed, two dollars a square mile on timber development licences, $1 a cord on wood exported, and 50 cent a horsepower on developed hydro.

REHEARSAL AT DAWN—With the giant clock, Big Ben, marking dawn at Westminster Abbey annex, early rising Londoners watch a coach pass down the coronation route which Queen Elizabeth II will follow on the day she is crowned.

More Students Wanted For Ministry

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Huron College, situated in the second largest Anglican diocese in Canada, should provide clergy to meet the ministry needs of the diocese of Huron and other dioceses as well, the principal of Huron College said Tuesday.

The Rev. Dr. W. R. Coleman told members of the diocesan synod that the college is not doing this.

Eight students will receive their licentiate in theology tonight at the college's annual convocation, he said. This is a larger number than in the past, "but it is not large enough."

He said it raised the question of recruiting for the ministry "which is not being given enough serious thought in the diocese."

Dr. Coleman proposed regional conferences to which young men would be invited even though they may have given no thought to the ministry.

ASKS DRIVE CONTINUED

Reporting on the college's financial campaign, Rev. canon H. F. Appleyard of Grace Church, Brantford, called for a continuation of the drive to raise the remaining $121,480 required to erase the school's debt.

A resolution calling for an increase "with the least possible delay" in the minimum salaries paid to clergy in the 280 parishes of the diocese was passed by unanimous vote of delegates.

The resolution called for minimum stipends of $2,200 for single and $2,400 for married clergymen, plus car allowance where necessary for both classes.

Previous minimum for both married and unmarried clergy was $2,000 a year.

May Get Bargain In Cheese With Open Market Selling

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian consumers may get a bargain in cheese with the resumption of open market selling in Ontario Friday. But the shift may bring ballooning surpluses of butter in government warehouses next winter.

Historically, dairy men have found that as a rule of thumb, the price of cheddar must be about one-half the price of butter to keep a well-balanced movement of milk flowing into the two dairy products.

Knock that price ratio out of line and a shift in the milk flow follows. Reduce the price of cheese without reducing the price of butter and the flow of milk is attracted more to butter, dairy men say. Cut the price of butter and maintain a high price on cheese and the milk flow is reversed.

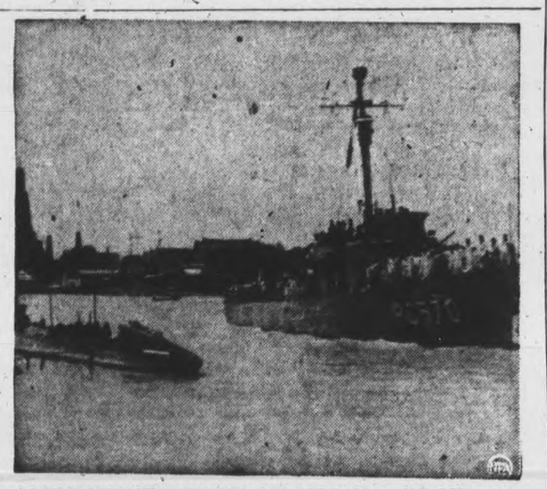
Ontario is Canada's big cheese-producing province. Under a producer-government program, cheddar was virtually supported at 30 cents a pound wholesale. The federal government is supporting creamery butter at 58 cents a pound wholesale.

PICTURE CHANGED

Now the picture has changed. Charles Heath, secretary of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association, announced in Belleville Tuesday that the 30-cent-a-pound price support on cheese has been removed.

Cheddar will go on public auction next Friday without the strength of a floor price. A Belleville cheese buyer predicted retail cheese prices will drop five or six cents a pound.

In Otawa, Wood St. John, secretary-manager of the National Dairy Council, emphasized that if cheese prices drop, there will be a "substantial" diversion of milk to butter factories.



DEFINITE DROP

A spokesman for the Ontario department of agriculture said "there is no doubt" the price support removal will bring retail prices down, but he said he could not predict how much.

"There is little chance of shipping more Canadian cheese out of the country because Britain shows no interest in it and United States quotas are filled," he said.

Highland Regiment To Take Replacements Along When It Sails For Korea

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—The 2nd Canadian Highland battalion's trip to Korea next October will be the largest one-battalion move here in almost three years, The Canadian Press learns.

The battalion will relieve the 3rd battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, in November.

Unlike other units since the 2nd Patricias came in 1950, the Highlanders will come out at full strength, plus replacements estimated sufficient to carry them through their year here. More than 1,100 officers and men will come.

Hitherto new units have arrived just strong enough to relieve men actually eligible for rotation Those ineligible for home stay on in the new units until due for rotation, when they return individually.

REASON FOR POLICY

A prime reason for the new policy is that the army's hybrid units, formed when the 27th brigade was raised, will be moving into the rotation cycle, confronting it with a psychological problem.

The hybrid battalions have a company from each of five parent units, plus a composite headquarters company representing all five. There tend to be conflicting loyalties—as between company and battalion—but soldiers already in them have perhaps accustomed themselves to the conflict.

However, it would be difficult next November to take a man who had fought as a 3rd Patricia and overnight make him a 48th Highlander, for instance, with the possibility that a month later he would get another type of job with another company and become a Seaforth Highlander.

Rather than have that develop, the change-over will be complete.

All Patricias with the 3rd battalion next November will be rotated, regardless of their time in the theatre.

SOME "WASTAGE"

To reduce the apparent inequality of the deal, the Patricias will be allowed to "waste" a bit during the latter part of their stay. Men leaving during that period will not be replaced unless their absence affects the unit's fighting efficiency materially.

Next year it may be that soldiers will be required to stay as long as 15 months, it is learned. The army is said to be working out a new system of rotation, staggering battalion change-overs so that one takes place every three or four months.

Order Final Payment On New High School

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—Lakefield District High School Board has accepted the new high school building as completed on March 10, 1953, except for trivial items and items to be repaired under the guarantee clause of the contract.

As the 37 days required by the Mechanics Lien Act have expired since completion, the board also ordered payment of the hold-back amount in the contract with the exception of $2,000 to cover the above items.

T. J. Carley, QC, and architect James Craig, both of Peterborough, were on hand to discuss legal aspects of taking over the new building, including the responsibility of the board for accounts owed by sub-contractors to suppliers.

Robert A. Graham, representing the teaching staff, brought to the board's attention again the matter of salaries and as a result the salaries of the present staff, including the principal, will be increased $100 a year as of September 1 1953.

Principal J. E. Stephens was present and reported attendance for the month of April as 210 students and average attendance 91.73 per cent.

It was decided to call a special meeting on May 20 to deal with unfinished business.

Transportation costs for April were. Roy Brown, $370.15; F. S. Coyle, $320; C. Dewdney, $60; C. Hilker, $96; S. Pearson, $848; M. Reddick, $325; T. S. A. Burleigh Anstruther and Chandos, $199.33; total, $2,218.48. The finance committee authorized payments on other acounts totalling $825.89.

MAIN STREET IN HEBRON, Neb., presents a picture of devastation as damaged buildings and scattered debris litter the tornado-swept street after a roaring twister cut a path through the tiny town over the weekend. Postgraduate Plan Urged For Doctors

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Medical Association may be asked to accept a plan for postgraduate education of practising doctors when it meets again for its annual convention.

The education committee Tuesday put forward a proposal for appointment of a director to further such a program and for the financing of a postgraduate school.

Dr. H. G. Hall, committee chairman, said doctors must keep abreast of developments in medicine and expand the present program of lectures into using existing hospitals as lecture centres with ward calls to supplement.

URGE 50-CENT CHARGE

The finance committee proposed that a charge of 50 cents or 2½ per cent be made on dues collected by the Ontario body for the Canadian Medical Association. Dr. Carl Hill said the Ontario body does the work and now turns over a $20 fee.

A recommendation that a doctor's fee for an initial physical examination and complete history of the case be increased above the $5 level was adopted by the general council. The recommendation will go to the tariff committee of the association.

PORK CHOP REST—A Communist prisoner captured in the fighting for Korea's Pork Chop Hill, happily lights up an American cigarette given him by a U.S. 7th Infantry Division medic. The prisoner's hand had just been bandaged by this medic who seems to be enjoying the incident.

Duguid To Stand Trial Second Time

TORONTO (CP)—Harry Duguid, the elusive bank robber and jailbreaker who dodged police for six years, was sentenced Tuesday to eight years in prison for the $14,500 armed holdup of a Toronto bank in 1943.

An hour after he was sentenced, police said they were making arrangements to escort him to Welland to stand trial on a charge of robbing a Stamford bank of $19,000 and escaping from the Welland county jail in 1947.

They said he probably will be taken to Welland today.

Duguid, 38, faces a charge of the $19,000 armed robbery from the Imperial bank branch at Stamford, in 1947 and sawing his way out of jail after his arrest that year.

Seeking To Build Public Feeling For Democratic World Government

By ART BRYDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—A country-wide Canadian organization is moving toward what it feels is the only solution to establishing world peace.

A quietly-confident professor from the University of Manitoba, backed by a number of leading Canadians, is leading the World Federalists of Canada in an effort to build public feeling for a democratic world government.

Prof. B. G. Whitmore of Winnipeg, chairman of the national executive committee, says if world rule is settled by another war, there may be nothing left to rule. An elected governing body is the only alternative.

NATIONAL GROUP

The World Federalists of Canada, a member of the world movement for world federal government, is a grass-roots organization. It began with small groups of persons holding the same views on the problems of world government forming in separate communities.

As the activities of these groups widened, they heard of each other and links grew which strengthened into the national organization. Besides Mr. Whitmore, the executive committee is made up of vice-chairman H. A. Miller, a Toronto music store proprietor, Mrs. G. J. McEwan, an Ottawa housewife, and Clement Roles, engineer and lecturer at the University of Alberta.

Sponsors of the movement are Senator L. M. Gouin of Montreal, Dr. N. A. M. MacKenzie of Vancouver, president of the University of British Columbia, Senator J. T. Haig of Winnipeg, Mr Justice Ralph Maybank of Winnipeg and Alistair Stewart, CCF member of Parliament for Winnipeg North.

Through publicized meetings, broadcasts and pamphlets, the group is working for two of several major steps toward world government. One is the formation of a union of Atlantic nations, which the professor terms "practical politics for now."

WOULD REVISE CHARTER

Another is the reform of the United Nations charter, a question which must be raised at the 1955 UN meeting. The WFC would like to see some proposals adopted to allow the UN to act more independently. It also wants wider reforms brought up and debated. These would be designed to give the UN control of its own army so that an effective joint governing body could be set up.

World government is not close enough for all its details to be clear but Prof. Whitmore says the form will likely be decided and the constitution "hammered out" at a convention of representatives from all countries. He says the men to sit in the world Parliament should not be appointed by their governments but elected directly by the people.

How much this latter requirement may have to be softened to allow the entry of countries such as Russia, Prof. Whitmore is not prepared to say.

The group reasons this way: The proposed government must have positive physical force to back its laws. Peace depends on law and law depends on government. Therefore world law depends on world government.

ADJUSTMENT OF VIEW

A major problem will be the objection of individual nations to giving up part of their national freedom since they will be subject to the authority of the new government. Their participation should be considered as joining rather than giving.

The chance of smaller countries being dominated by larger units such as the United States or Russia will be less under the new federal system than it is now, Prof. Whitmore says. Each will have at least a small voice in every decision.

The movement is taking root in Asia. Last November a conference was held in Japan, sponsored by the Japanese parliamentary committee for world federation.

The next congress of the world movement will be at Copenhagen, Denmark, in joint session with the World Association of Parliamentarians for World Government in Auguts.

WALTHAM REUNION—Cpl. Wendell H. Treffery, of Terryville, Con., enjoys the warmth of a reunion with his fiancee and folks at Murphy Army Hospital in Waltham, Mass. Surrounding the PoW returnee are his fiancee, Dorothea Asplund (right), and his mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hawksley.

Charge Parents Neglected 3 Children

TORONTO (CP)—A mother and father were charged Tuesday with failing to provide the necessities of life after their three children were found hungry and dirty in a central Toronto flat.

Police charged Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Jones and said there was only a bowl of jelly in the flat when they found the children, David, 4, and Malcolm and Philip, two-year-old twins, alone Monday night.

Mrs. Jones denied neglecting to feed the children.

Job Openings Up 20% Since Last Year

TORONTO (CP)—The unemployment insurance commission reported Tuesday job openings in Ontario up to April 30 were up 20 per cent over the same period last year. The report shows almost every branch of industry expanding.

The picture was marred only by a decline in the production of farm implements, textiles, leathers and certain food products.

Automotive production in Ontario was at an all-time high.

Warships Lit Up

HALIFAX (CP)—Each night at least two of the half-dozen Canadian naval units assembled here to sail for the Coronation naval review in England are being illuminated by strings of lights. The vessels, including the aircraft carrier Magnificent and the cruiser Ontario, depart May 7.

Don't Favor Plebiscite On Rent Controls

OSHAWA (CP)—Oshawa and district labor council Tuesday night decided to tell city council it does not favor a plebiscite on whether rent controls should continue after they are dropped next March by the Ontario government.

The group said controls should be administered without a vote being taken. City council will on the plebiscite at the next meeting.

Burton Re-elected Pest Control Head

GUELPH (CP)—Stanley Burton of Kingston Tuesday was re-elected president of the Canadian Pest Control Operators at the group's 11th annual conference being held at the Ontario Agricultural College.

Bill Westover of Brantford was elected a vice-president, and W. Clare Johnson of Kitchener a director.

Craftsmen Spend Years Restoring Royal Coach

LONDON (Reuters)—Craftsmen have taken three years to complete the restoration of eight painted panels on the royal state coach, in which the Queen will drive to Westminster Abbey for her coronation.

The panels were cracked and split when William Brown, 62, head of a family of picture restorers, took over the job.

He said: "There have been four generations of skilled craftsmen in my family but this has been the most difficult job we have ever tackled.

"New methods were invented and new techniques used to do it."

Nixon Believes Drew To Be Deposed

PARIS, Ont. (CP)—Hon. Harry Nixon, Liberal member of the Ontario egislature, said Tuesday night: "In my opinion, Drew has reached the end of his tether."

Mr. Nixon, addressing the Brant Liberal Association, said he believed the Tories would be looking for a new leader to replace George Drew after the next election.

He rapped provincial government expenditures, particularly for education and urged that Ontario Indians be granted the franchise.

FOREST FIRE TOLL — Forest fires have ravaged central Canadian provinces following a summer-like heat wave. Residents were driven from their homes and thousands of acres of valued timberland destroyed in Manitoba as that province experienced its worst outbreak in history. All that remains of pensioner George Saunder's farm cottage near Badger—in the path of one of the bush fires—is this heap of tangled, blackened wreckage. Later, snow and rain swept across Manitoba, northern Ontario and northern Quebec lessening the danger a little.

Sunday In Chapultepec Popular Mexican Outing

MEXICO CITY.—From ancient times Chapultepec Castle at one end of the beautiful Paseo de la Reforma has been a fortress and pleasure spot for the Aztec and Mexican people.

The Aztecs had a beautiful temple on Chapultepci (Grasshopper Hill) and they used the springs at the base for their main water supply. Later Montezuma had a summer palace there. Cortes planned at fortress on that spot and a later viceroy built one but it was demolished by U.S. forces in 1847.

Then Maximilian and Carlotta made it their residence and the rooms were like a French chateau. It was Carlotta who ordered the building of the two-mile long Paseo de la Reforma to connect the downtown area with the imperial residence. The boulevard leads straight from the Little Horse statue to the Hill. For a brief period it was the White House of Mexico's presidents till Cardenas refused to live in it, then it was made a museum.

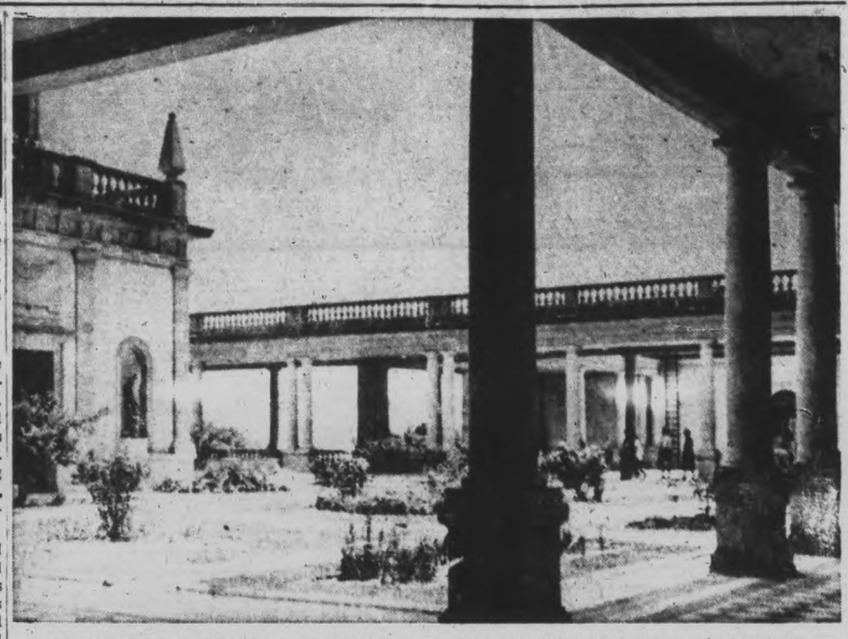
The forest of Chapultepec surrounding the castle is one of the great and romantic forests of the world comparable to the Bois de Boulogne in France and Hyde Park in London. It is distinguished by tall cedars, cousins of California's redwoods. Their name is Ahuehuete meaning "Old man by the river." Students and lovers pace back and forth beneath them. There is a monument to the students of the military college here who died like heroes in the invasion of U.S. forces. The names of the six victims are listed. When their position became untenable they leaped from the parapet to death on the rocks below. The last one to jump, wrapped himself in the Mexican flag to save it from capture.

COLORFUL SPOT

You can take a bus from the Paseo marked "Lomas de Chapultepec" to the base of the hill. Then take a local bus marked "Servicio al Castillo" which takes you up and back for 10 centavos. Like the Tuileries or Luxembourg gardens it has fountains, flowers, pretty walks and interesting people.

Sunday is the especially good day to go to savor the color and fascination of the place. Charros and charras in glittering cotumes prance showily on their beautiful horses. There is a brass band playing and the ponds are full of boats with humble people on a holiday.

The winding road near the Don Quixote fountain leads to the perpendicular rock. You can avoid the climb by taking a taxi at the foot of the hill. The view of the city and valley and of Popocatepetl and Ixtaccihuatl from the terrace will always be charming.



The beautiful stream and lake-dotted woodland is almost as ancient as time and intersected by well-kept drives and delightful walks. There are boats for hire on the lakelets. The park is most frequented between 10-12 a.m. and 3-5 p.m. Before breakfast the pedestrian has the place to himself. At noon, particularly on Sundays, the charros (Mexican cowboys) come out.

FIRST HOSPITAL IN NEW WORLD

The Hospital of Jesus Nazareno on Pino Suarez No. 35, four block south of the Zocalo, is the oldest hospital in the New World. It was founded by Cortes in 1527 on the site where Cortes and Montezuma first met. The building was renovated in 1938 but the two beautiful patios and stairway are unchanged. It is particularly noted as an eye hospital and if ever I am ill in Mexico City, that is the place where I should choose to be a patient. The lovely flowers and fountains in the patios are a pleasant sight for patients when they can be wheeled into the galleries with their fine arches. There are Moorish tiles and frescoes, part of the original decorations, to be seen on the walls.

In the Church of Jesus Nazareno which adjoins the hospital, are said to lie the remains of Cortes. It is one of the most interesting city churches from an historical point of view. Founded in 1524 by Cortes it is a quiet old church with simple architecture, lovely to behold.

Diagonally across from the hospital is the Casa del Conde de Santiago, a 17th century building, one of the finest examples of the old seignorial mansions in the city. Elaborately carved and studded doors lead to a spacious patio with corridors and a fine stairway. All the coats of arms of members of the families who lived there are engraved on the walls. Outside on the street wall, the drainage system dating from Spanish times is in the shape of cannons, but done in stone. The cornerstone is a large monolithic sculpture of an Aztec tiger, salvaged from the Great Teocalli (temple) and said to have been placed there by Cortes.

CHAPULTEC CASTLE is in one of Mexico City's loveliest parks at the end of the broad Paseo de la Reforma. Originally this site was used by Montezuma as a summer palace and during the brief and unhappy tenure of office of the Emperor Maximilian and Empress Carlotta, it served as the Imperial Palace. Today it is a museum. The above photo is a view of the terrace with a slight resemblance to Versailles.

Tire Blew Out Says Accused

A charge of careless driving against Wayne Kellett of 728 Stormont Street, was dismissed by Magistrate W. R. Philp in court Tuesday. The charge was laid on April 16 by Provincial Police after Kellett's car was found in a ditch with tire marks measuring 243 feet leading up to it.

Testimony of PC John McKendry indicated the car had travelled some distance on the shoulder and in the ditch of Highway No. 28 eight miles north of Apsley, plowing up rocks before coming to a stop.

When the officer showed Kellett and a passenger a flat tire on the right front wheel he said they expressed surprise.

The defence maintained, however, the tire had caused the car to go off the road in the first place. Both the accused and his passenger, Ted Archer, agreed the tire had blown out.

Although the magistrate commented on the evidence of the accused showing surprise as stated by the constable, he decided to give Kellett "the benefit of the doubt," and dismissed the charge.

Canada Proceeds With Plans For Navigation Part Of Seaway

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is proceeding with plans for the navigation part of the St. Lawrence seaway "just as though we were going to build the project on our side," Transport Minister Chevrier said Tuesday in the Commons.

The minister reiterated the federal government view that it is considered more economical to build the shipping locks on the Canadian side of the river.

He spoke shortly after the federal power commission in Washington had received a recommendation that the U.S. designate New York state as the authority to cooperate with Ontario in building the power development.

CAN'T AGREE

Mr. Chevrier was asked about a statement by President Eisenhower Saturday to the effect that construction of canals on the U.S. side of the International Rapids side would be more economical than on the Canadian side and would result in lower tolls.

"I find myself unable to agree with that statement," Mr. Chevrier said, "because that statement is not in conformity with our information."

Suggests Nurses' Alumnae Have Organized Sports

The Alumnae of St. Joseph's Hospital has recently been reorganized and is planning greater activity in the coming year. The first event under direction of the new president, Miss Joyce Elery was the annual dinner and entertainment of the graduating class which took place Tuesday evening at the Empress Hotel.

For this occasion the Alumnae secured Mr. D. A. McGillis as guest speaker. Mr. McGillis is an ardent sportsman and so he has noticed that the nurses do not have any form of organized sport among themselves. His suggestion was that they should get together and form a team for softball, basketball, swimming or tennis and that they might raise funds for the team by holding dances, etc.

Mr. McGillis also had a few remarks pertaining to the service of the nursing profession as it had been rendered to his family. He thinks that "too many people do not realize how necessary nurses are."

The speakers suggestion regarding sports is quite likely to get some consideration since Mrs. Masters, in thanking Mr. McGillis, asked if they might call on him for coaching. Mr. McGillis promised all the support he could give.

He was introduced to the nurses by Miss Helen Hendricks who was in charge of arrangments for the dinner, assisted by Miss Patricia Jackson.

The graduates were introduced by Miss Adeline Bradamore and each stood and made a bow. They are Misses Eiveen and Ruth Boyce, Catherine Farley, Helen Fitzgerald, Joan Gray, of Peterborough; Ann Brick, Anna Corkery of Ennismore; Fay Butts, of Kinmount; Doris Calberry of Hastings; Shirley Clysdale of Villiers; Hazel Colgan of Britt, Elaine Graham of Havelock, Alice Hogan of Indian River, Marie Hogan of Lindsay, Jane Holland of Hamilton, Evelyn Jackett of Fenelon Falls, Anita Lyons, Rosemary Maloney of Renfrew, Bernardine Moher of Lakefield, Jacqueline Molyneaux of Parry Sound, Rose Ann Morrow of South Mountain, Eileen O'Brien of Toronto, Rose Quinn of Campbellford, Jacquelyn Rogers of Norwood, Linda Rohtla of Cobourg and Elizabeth Rumball of Sudbury. A 27th graduate, Sister St. Dominic of Peterborough, was not present.

A toast to the graduates was proposed by Mrs. Harold Grady and the response was given by Miss Morrow.

Two groups of popular song selections were sung by Miss Pam Humphreys. She was accompanied by Miss T. Dion, a student nurse at St. Joseph's.

Just at close of the evening the graduates sang their class song. The words, which they have composed themselves to describe hospital life as they have found it, are sung to the now almost forgotten tune of "The Thing."

Mrs. Aitken To Be Here Thursday On 2 Engagements

Kate Aitken, prominent broadcaster, journalist, and world traveller, will visit Peterborough this Thursday, to fill two speaking engagements and to broadcast her network show from CHEX at 10:30 in the morning.

Speaking to the Women's Federation of Trinity United Church in the afternoon, Mrs. Aitken will give highlights from her 25,000 mile trip to South Africa in January. She will discuss, in the course of her address, how South Africa's racial, political, and social problems affect both Canada and the partnership in Western democracies.

In the evening Mrs. Aitken will be guest speaker at the banquet being held in the Empress Hotel by the Alumnae of the Peterborough Civic Hospital. Her subject will be "The Widening Horizon".

In addition to her sixteen radio broadcasts each week and frequent appearances on television in both Toronto and Montreal, tireless "Mrs. A." has an absorbing personal project these days—Kate Aitken Spa, a beauty farm which she is establishing at Erindale just outside Toronto.

Each season Mrs. Aitken travels thousands of miles across Canada and many more thousands of miles across oceans and continents acquiring first-hand information on global affairs for her broadcast and lecture audiences. Miss C. Bailey Describes Coronation In Detail

The pomp, color and reverent solemnity of the ceremony of crowning Queen Elizabeth II was graphically described by Miss Cora Bailey, principal of Parkhill Public School, to the Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary of Trinity Church Monday evening. She said this is the only pageant of patriotism mixed with religion used in the 20th century.

Miss Bailey's school has planned to enact the coronation pageant during Empire Week and she brought numerous articles fashioned by her pupils, which added much to her description of the ceremony.

She told how the highest religious dignitaries, the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Dean of Westminster Abbey, performed the rites of the ceremony in Westminster Abbey, the temple and shrine of English history, and according to the legend, she said, it was supposedly consecrated by Peter.

Miss Bailey had with her crowns representing the crown of Edward, made of gold and studded with pearls, the Black Prince's ruby and a huge diamond; it had two crosses in front, the upper one over an oval representing the earth to denote that a higher king in heaven rules over all the earth. Also the Imperial Crown which the Queen will wear after the ceremony, and which is much lighter, being made of silver open work and also studded with rubies and sapphires with the two crosses in front. Then she had plainer crowns representing those to be worn by other members of the royal family and the state cap that Elizabeth will wear when entering for the ceremony, which is red with a band of ermine. She also had an imitation ampulla, a golden vessel in the shape of a dove, to hold the oil to annoint the Queen. Then she had a pair of spurs which the Queen will be presented with to denote chivalry and knighthood, and a sword to show the possibility of wars and it will be girded on her waist. The Orb, representing the earth, with a white cross above it to show that the whole world is subject to the power of Christ and two gold sceptres, one topped with the cross to denote kingly power and the other with a dove to denote equity and mercy, a glove to denote the handshake of her people, a ring with the Cross of St. George and St. Andrew and supposed to be blessed by St. John the Evangelist, and bracelets to denote sovereignty.

Miss Bailey described the floor space of Westminster Abbey as being the shape of a cross, of which she had a colored chart. She said that the ceremony took place in the centre of the cross on a raised platform and the guests will all sit in the wings of the cross.

She said that the Queen will sit in three chairs during the ceremony, the estate chair, the coronation chair and the throne chair.

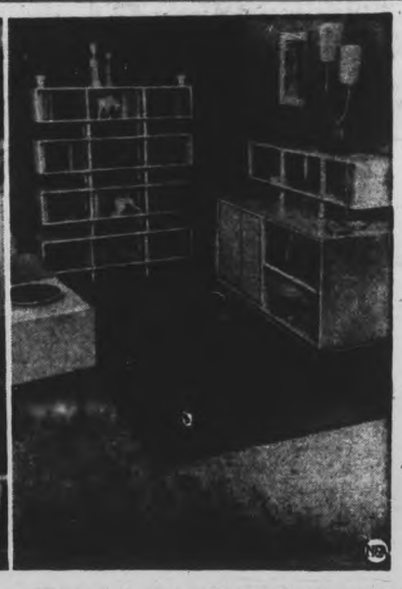
She described the Queen as entering the church gowned in a long flowing red robe and her state cap. She will follow the Archbishop and the Dean to the centre and take the chair of estate, and the Archbishop immediately begins the ceremony of recognition in which he calls to each of the four corners of the church that he is presenting Elizabeth II for Queen and asks if they are willing, to which they each reply, "God Save the Queen." She is then led by the Archbishop to the altar where she takes her oath and promises to serve and govern to the best of her ability. She then puts her hand on the Bible and seals it with a kiss. She will then be led to St. Edward's chair for coronation, the chair in which all the kings and queens since Edward I have been crowned except the two Mary's and in which the Stone of Scone is under the seat.

Under the robe the Queen will wear a red satin gown to her knees, Miss Bailey described. She will be clothed with a cloak of gold on removal of the robe, and four Knights of the Garter will hold over her, very closely, a gold canopy while the Dean of Westminster pours holy oil from the golden ampulla into a golden spoon and with his fingers anoints her bare head, breast and palms in the form of a cross. The canopy is removed and the presentation of the spurs, sword, ring, orb, sceptres, glove and bracelets will be made, with an explanation as to the meaning of each.

Next she will leave the coronation chair carrying the orb and sceptres, with the ring on her finger and the bracelets on her arm, and will walk up the steps to the throne chair. She will be lifted into it to denote that she is placed above all others. The Archbishop will take the crown to the altar for prayer and blessing then will return and place it on Elizabeth's head at which moment the lights will all go on and Westminster Abbey will look like one big jewelled cross and everyone will sing and shout "God Save the Queen," led by choir boys.

Homage will then be paid to the new Queen, first by the Archbishop for all bishops. She said that he will kneel before her and kiss her left cheek, then the Duke of Edinburgh will pay homage to his wife for all dukes, and the chief Earl for all earls, then a baron and so on down through all titled people. She will then go alone to the altar to be followed by the Archbishop and the Dean for Holy Communion.

After partaking of communion, the Queen will retire, she said to Edward's Chapel and remove the heavy crown, to be replaced by the lighter Imperial Crown and the gold cloak for purple robes. She will then lead the procession out of the Abbey and be met by the royal coach.



During her talk, Miss Bailey recited legends relating to Westminster Abbey, the Stone of Scone, the Ampulla and the ring which added to their meaning.

Mrs. Ida Dawson tendered a sincere vote of thanks to Miss Bailey for her splendid description of the ceremony so soon to take place.

Mrs. F. W. Horton conducted the business session when plans were made to pack a bale for Korea on Friday afternoon at the church. Mrs. H. Frost, Mrs. W. A. Davidson and Mrs. R. Woodcock were chosen as a committee to arrange for the CGIT banquet on May 25.

The girls' sextette of PCVS added a gay note to the meeting by singing two lively numbers, "Sweet Kitty Clover" and "The Three Trees." A delicious lunch was served by Mrs. R. Woodcock and Mrs. F. Rappe and their group.

IN THE INTEREST OF EASY HOUSEKEEPING, this new coffee table (left) has two spacious storage compartments concealed by a wood-grained formica top. One is lined with cork. Divider buffet (right) can be built with removable divider units, acts as room divider if needed. It contains four drawers (one sectioned for silver) as well as sliding-door compartments.

DOROTHY DIX:

Promise To Attend Church Means Little After Marriage

DEAR MISS DIX: Before our marriage, Ray promised to go to church with me every Sunday, but after three years, I'm ashamed to say how seldom we have been to church. Since most of the social activity in this town centers around the church, we have, as a consequence of our neglect, failed to meet other young people. This, together with the fact that I always was a regular churchgoer. I miss religious services and am anxious to get my husband back to attending church. How can I do it?

TERRY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Ray undoubtedly lacked religious training in his youth—though you don't go into his background—and has come to regard church-going as something for women and children. There are any number of reasons in favor of his attending religious services. I suggest that you consult your clergyman—with Ray present, if possible.

RELIGION'S IMPORTANCE

The home with a religious affiliation has a far better chance of remaining intact than does a godless one. A survey by the American Youth Commission reveals that only six per cent of families who attend church together are broken, while the percentage is 15.2 for families of mixed faiths and 16.7 of those with no religious belief. The observance of religious ceremonies, regular attendance at church or temple, a firm and united belief in God, are the finest foundations for a home.

The social life of a church provides an excellent way to make new friends. Your church also cements the relationships of life—with God, with other members of the family, and with the folks of your community.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My three-year-old marriage should be successful, but it isn't. We have a lovely home, we both have good jobs, and each has a car. My husband is generous, a fine, decent, hard-working man. But he will not take me out and shows little affection. We have no children.

B. S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: There is too much "each has his own" in your marriage, and not enough "ours." One car to share would be much better than two to take you divergent ways. In order for your husband to show more interest in you, and in his home, you must make your family unit a centripetal force, drawing you towards it, rather than a centrifugal force sending you away. Children would doubtless accomplish the purpose; if you are unable to have one of your own, and shy away from adoption, take a foster child into your home for a while.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am much interested in becoming a model, and would like some information on the work.

L. B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I would urge you strongly to be careful in your choice of a modeling school. There are many reputable ones, and you should be careful to choose one of these. Because the better schools are apt to be expensive, girls are easily led to one that is a cheaper, unqualified, so-called modeling school. If you cannot make a good selection yourself, ask the local Better Business Bureau for advice. It would be better for you to begin a modeling career in your own city rather than in New York, where the field is overcrowded.

National Unity Stressed At CMA Meeting

TORONTO (CP)—Jean Desy, director of the CBC international service, today said national unity can only come about if Canadians achieve it on the spiritual plane.

In an address prepared for the Ontario Medical Association, Mr. Desy said suspicion and mistrust can be avoided if questions arising from the "fundamental duality" of Canada "are approached in a spirit of comprehension and co-operation."

"By joining in a unique political frame peoples of different traditions and outlooks but descended from the same stock, and representing various facets of Western civilization, we are trying to restore the integrity of Christendom where race, complexion, nationality and idiom mattered less than spiritual brotherhood.

"Let us not forget that the success of this venture might set an inspiring example to a divided world. National unity can only come about if we achieve it on a spiritual plane, partaking, as Shakespeare puts it, of 'one feast, one house, one mutual happiness.' "

CAN SPEAK FREELY

"I should like to think that a time will come when our high-school, college and university graduates will no longer be unable after years of schooling to express their thoughts freely in the two official languages of their country.

"Any Canadian who wishes really to understand Canada should regard learning English and French as no less important than studying Canadian history and geography."

The leaders of "both groups should realize, however, that it is their mission to interpret one to the other and to make them aware of their interlocking fortunes."

"The idea that national strength does not require the existence of a single tradition or language, but rather the harmonious blending of a variety of traits, finds increasing acceptance in both groups."

SHIP OF DEATH—This is the ill-fated Great Lakes ore freighter Henry Steinbrenner which heeled over and sank in a terrific Lake Superior storm Sunday. At least ten of her crew of 31 were drowned. The Steinbrenner, a 52-year-old craft, had a career that seemed prey to evil forces from the start. Her launching was attended by accident and she sank once in 1910, later to be refloated and put back in service.

Had Liquor Man Fined $300

Pleading guilty to a charge of unlawfully having liquor, Ted Rosebush of RR 1, Coe Hill, was fined $300, and $2.50 costs, in Magistrate's Court Tuesday. The liquor was found March 8 when Provincial Police raided the accused's home.

As the result of the raid, Rosebush was also found guilty on a charge of keeping liquor for sale. The second charge, unlawfully having, was laid because the defendant was on the interdicted list at the time.

Rosebush was found not guilty on a second charge of the same nature because liquor found in his car was proved to be that of his brother, who travelled 600 miles to testify.

In addition to the heavy fine, Rosebush's home was declared a public place for one year.

Omemee Man Killed By 'Dead' Chinese During Big May Attack On Platoon

By BILL BOSS

IN KOREA (CP)—Pte. Russell Leon Gardiner of Omemee was killed while accompanying Lt. Ed. Hollyer of Toronto, commander of a platoon position of the 3rd battalion, the Royal Canadian Regiment, during the May 2-3 attack when a two-battalion Chinese attack was successfully beaten off. This platoon was the main objective.

Gardiner volunteered to accompany Hollyer on rounds of the position during a lull. A Chinese who feigned death at their approach came to "life". Just as Gardiner was about to fell him the Chinese whipped around his burp gun and shot the Canadian through the chest.

The platoon was briefly overrun but lacing fire from the 81st field regiment RCA, rendered the ridge uninhabitable and it was reoccupied in daylight without trouble.

Early in the battle the enemy bombardment knocked Sgt. Peter Stone of New Westminster, B. C., down in a trench, his face in the dirt. Other explosions partly buried him. Stone stayed that way through most of the battle. At one point two Chinese signallers, one with a radio set, used his rear end and back as a perch on which to sit while messaging their headquarters.

GRENADED FROM BEHIND

A patrol under Lieut. Robert H. Scullion of Hamilton, sent into the position during the battle's final stage to look for casualties, discovered dead or wounded RCR soldiers in almost every weapon pit. They had been attacked by surprise, grenaded from behind.

Lt.-Col. Ken Campbell of Petawawa, Ont., their CO, said: "They stayed there with everything they had, right to the end. There was no bugging out. You can't ask for anything more."

Korean Army soldiers attached to the platoon are considered to have fought well. Pte. Ronald Hubbard of Brantford, Ont., No. 1 man on a bren gun, said his Katcom (Korean Army troops attached to the Commonwealth Division) stayed with him throughout and kept the weapon replenished with full magazines.

Lieut. Laurie Cote of Aylmer, Que., said his Katcom also kept his automatic weapon's magazines charged "until we ran out of ammunition."

CARED FOR WOUNDED

The Chinese cared for several wounded Canadians during the battle. One was Pte. John Junkins of Ottawa. Wounded on a patrol, he was carried back into Canadian positions, where a medical assistant tended him. The battle was too pitched to allow evacuation. Then the Chinese over-ran the position. He told interrogators that a Chinese medical assistant checked his dressings and gave him some water.

Pte. Clayton Morningstar of Niagara Falls, Ont., suffered five bullet wounds in the stomach. He was out most of the night with his wounds. He told officers later "I'm all right—no darn Chinese is going to kill me."

Pte. V. E. Colyer of Meldrum Creek, B. C., Hollyer's signaller, also was a steadying influence in the platoon command post. By taunts such as "aren't we getting just a little excited around here" at the height of the battle, he kept the atmosphere stable.

Cpl. Ronald J. Brayton of Halifax, a medical assistant, calmly tended casualties during the battle, administered morphia and bandaged wounds. He also went out alone after casualties and brought them into the lines.

More than 42 wounded soldiers passed through the regimental aid post operated by Capt. Robert A. Duncan, whose team included Sgt. A. J. Turner of Montreal and Cpl. Harry Collison of Brockville. No casualty was more than 10 minutes in the efficient set-up before being on his way down the line.

LOTS OF HELP

Duncan said: "We had all the help in the world. Neighboring units sent us extra stretchers, jeep ambulances, and one small British unit nearby even sent us 1,000 shell dressings."

Capt. Jack Jenkins of Brockville was dispatched by Col. Campbell to the company area to organize casualty evacuation along the narrow jeep road that runs in full view of the enemy. He not only kept the ambulances humming, but went out to help bring in casualties as well.

One of the final shoots of the battle was from a spotter aircraft flown by Capt. Peter Hees of Vancouver. He directed gunfire onto enemy parties collecting their dead in no man's land the next day. One volley alone killed 12.

Woman Killed By Taxi Husband Awarded $2,672

Edmund Edwards, 63, of Otonabee township on Tuesday afternoon was awarded $2,672 by Mr. Justice McLellan of the Supreme Court. The action, brought under the provisions of the Fatal Accidents Act, resulted from the death of Edward's wife on Dec. 10, 1950, some three months after she was struck and fatally injured by a taxi on George St.

The award included $1,172 for out-of-pocket expenses and a further $1,500 for general damages. The general damages, computed by Mr. Justice McLellan, were an estimate of the money which Edwards could reasonably have anticiapted had his wife remained alive.

ARBITRARY ESTIMATE

Mr. Justice McLennan said that the $1,500 general damages awarded under statute was an arbitrary estimate of Edwards' pecuniary loss. It was arrived at after he considered the ages of Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, her life expectancy which was estimated at 18.5 years, and the possibility of illness and accidents to both of them.

Mrs. Edwards was fatally injured shortly after 10 p.m. on a rainy night, Sept. 13, 1950. She had just come from a bingo game at the Canadian Legion and started to walk from the northwest to the northeast corner of George and Brock Sts. She was struck by a northbound taxi driven by Floyd Michels, now 22 and a trooper in the RCAC, and owned by Frank Thompson of City Cabs.

Michels and Thompson were co-defendents in the action.

SOUNDED HIS HORN

Michaels said he saw the 65-year-old woman step from the curb as he was about 200 feet north of the intersection. He sounded his horn when she was three feet from the west sidewalk and she stopped and looked at him.

"I figured she'd seen me then so I kept on," said Michels.

However, Mrs. Edwards suddenly appeared in front of him when he was a short distance in front of her. He tried to turn left to avoid her and applied his brakes but the taxi struck her and knocked her across the intersection, near the south east curb.

Mr. Justice McLennan said flatly: "I don't think I can place any reliance on Michels explanation of how the accident occurred. I don't believe Mrs. Edwards stopped."

Even if she did she had a right to enter the cross-walk when the car was 200 feet north, said Mr. Justice McLennan.

He found that there was no contributory evidence on the part of Mrs. Edwards.

To Celebrate

Ald. Rehill was appointed chairman of a sub-committee to prepare the evening's program in which religious and civic leaders of the community will take part.

Most controversial point of the meeting was the question of what to provide for school children.

NOT REPRESENTED

Both the Board of Education and the Separate School Board came in for criticism at the meeting.

"It's very disappointing to me that there is no one here from either of the boards," the Rev. H. G. Douglas said.

Acting Mayor Miller said that chairmen of both boards and the superintendent of schools had been invited to attend but they had not shown up.

"There's been a lot said about the importance of stressing the significance of the Coronation on the school children," he said, "and we ought to do something for them."

"I think our efforts should be directed through those who are elected by the people to supervise the guidance of their children," Norman Crowe said.

"It's up to this committee to provide the program," Ald. Rehill said.

"I understand that the federal government is striking a Coronation medal and the Board of Education plans to give one to each of the children," Ald. Black said. "But I'm at a loss to know what we can do for the boys and girls."

James Fraser, Chamber of Commerce secretary, said that Royal Oak acorns could be obtained to plant at each of the schools and that the Department of Lands and Forests ought to co-operate to provide maple trees.

MEET CHAIRMEN

Finally, on the suggestion of Ald. Black, it was decided that he and the acting mayor would meet the two board chairmen today to get their suggestions as to what should be done in the way of a separate celebration for school children. Barring any plan from that quarter, the committee will go ahead and plan something on its own.

Taking part in the Tuesday night parade will be the Citizens' Band, the Salvation Army Band, the CGE pipe band, the 50th HAA Regiment, Sea Cadets and PCVS trumpet bands and the Grove School Band. Marching units will include Legion and Reserve Army groups, Sea and Air cadets, High School cadets and Boy Scouts. Other organizations wishing to take part are asked to contact James Fraser, manager of the Chamber of Commerce. Parade marshal will be Ed Davis.

There will also be floats entered by merchants and industries and whatever equipment can be spared will be provided by the fire department. It is expected that many boy scouts will be busy preparing and lighting one of a series of beacons across the country but District Commissioner Dr. G. R. Langley said as many as possible will parade.

WINDOW DISPLAYS

Don Lewis of the retail section of the Chamber of Commerce reported that although many of the merchants would have window displays costing upwards of $100 they were willing to pay the cost of placing shields on the 100-odd lamp posts in the business section.

Ald. Miller was delegated to contact the PUC with regard to stringing colored lights in the business section and the fire department about putting up pennants and shields on the lamp posts.

Harry Yelland, representing the Air Force Association, reported that no jet planes were available for a fly-past due to training commitments and a scheduled fly-past at Ottawa but it was hoped to obtain training aircraft.

Big Bush Fire Near Ottawa

NORTH BAY (CP)—A 5,500-acre bush fire was burning along the banks of the Ottawa river 30 miles northeast of here Tuesday night, but scattered snowflurries are expected to help bring it under control.

District forester Frank Sider said 230 men were fighting the fire. A change in wind Tuesday helped keep the northern section of the blaze in check.

Heavy rain fell within 30 miles of the fire, but when the wind changed the rain was not carried over the area.

Sider said two new fires broke out near Sturgeon Falls, one in McPherson township which was brought under control, and the other in Springer township, which was held after spreading through two acres.

Four Honorary Degrees

OTTAWA (CP)—The University of Ottawa announced Tuesday it will confer the honorary degree of doctor of laws on four Canadians during graduation exercises June 7.

The degrees will go to Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux of the Supreme Court of Canada, Education Minister Dunlop of Ontario, Solicitor-General Rivard of Quebec and Edwin Alexander Gardner, chief architect of the federal public works department.

Paintings Sunk

TORONTO (CP)—Valuable European art work destined for the Canadian International Trade Fair here and a five-ton crane went to the bottom of Toronto harbor Tuesday in an unloading accident. The crane tipped over on even ground when a huge crate from the hold of the Austrian ship Anna Mario was in the air.

Found Guilty Jailed 7 Days

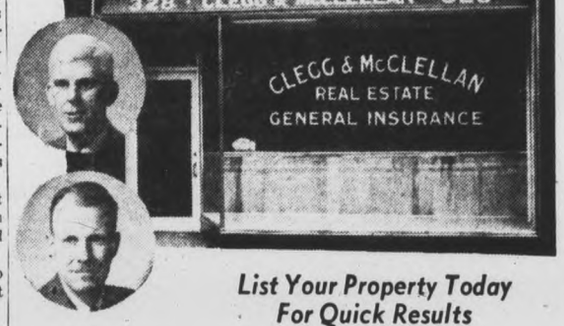
Found guilty Tuesday on charges of drunk driving and driving without proper lights, Charles Harrington of Ennismore was sentenced to jail for seven days, and fined $5, and $2.50 costs, in Magistrate's Court. In addition the truck he was driving the night of May 8 when the charges were laid, was impounded for three months.

Harrington was driving on No. 7 Highway near Fowler's Corners when he was observed by OPP Constable Gordon Gray driving in his wrong lane. To avoid Harrington, PC Gray was forced to take to the shoulder of the road.

Following Harrington, the officer saw him stop in the centre of the road. When the driver left his ligth truck PC Gray noticed he had difficulty standing up. One time he fell against his truck. His eyes were bloodshot, his clothing disarranged, and his hair hanging.

On the floor of the truck were four full bottles of wine and another partially filled. PC Thomas Armstrong corroborated Constable Gray's statements.

In addition the rear taillight of the truck was broken. Constable Armstrong also testified he had seen the broken taillight three days prior while patrolling Enfismore, although Harrington maintained in court that the light worked, even if not equipped with a red reflector.



Harrington also faces a charge of having liquor in a place other than his residence.

Press Search For Secret Plane, Fliers

Hold Little Hope Two Airmen Can Still Be Alive

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. — (CP)—U.S. aircraft today resumed the search for a top-secret experimental plane and two Bell Aircraft Corp. employees lost over Lake Ontario.

But hope that Bell's chief test pilot and a flight engineer would be found alive had practically vanished.

Canadian aircraft did not participate in the search today. The RCAF at Trenton, Ont., said "U. S. authorities told us this morning we were no longer needed in the search operations. Three RCAF Dakotas had swept the lake Wednesday.

A Bell helicopter joined the search, scouring the lake off the Orleans county shore near Kendall. A farmer reported Wednesday night that he had seen two objects floating about two miles off shore in that area.

DOUBT IT'S WRECKAGE

But a Bell spokesman expressed doubt that it could be the wreckage of the Bell X-2, a plane believed capable of flying in the 2,000-mile-per-hour speed range. The X-2 never has flown under its own power.

The X-2 was dropped from a B-50 mother ship Tuesday night between Rochester and Trenton, Ont., while on a routine test flight at 30,000 feet. The plane fell after an explosion damaged it.

Bell's chief test pilot, Jean L. Ziegler, 33, and an engineer, Frank Wolko, 33, fell, jumped or were blown out of the mother ship Another crew member suffered burns. Six others returned safely on the B-50.

RCAF pilots flying out of Trenton reported Wednesday that they had spotted debris on the lake, but were forced to return to Trenton by bad weather before they could examine it closely.

Bell officials said, however, that the X-2 was built mostly of stainless steel and that it was doubtful that it would float.

Four Durable Men Needed

LONDON (CP)—Four "durable" Canadians have been appointed by the earl marshal's office to act as gold staff officers at the Queen's Coronation, it was learned today.

Gold staff officers in effect are royal ushers in the grand manner. They carry short gold staffs bearing the Queen's cipher and will direct guests to their seats in Westminster Abbey.

The job means that the four Canadians will have to be in the abbey before 5 a. m. and will be on their feet continuously until early afternoon—hence, a Canadian official said, the need for "durable" men.

The Canadians, nominated by Canada House and appointed by the earl marshal the Duke of Norfolk, are Lt.-Col. H. E. C. Price of Quebec City, secretary of the Canadian joint staff; Louis Couillard of Ottawa, first secretary at Canada House; Robert Campbell Smith of Vancouver, commercial secretary; and G. C. Crean of Toronto, counsellor.

One of the gold staff officers at the 1937 coronation was L. B. Pearson, now Canada's external affairs minister.

UK Foreign Office Denies Charges

LONDON (AP)—A foreign office spokesman denied today that Britain "fabricated" charges of anti-British violence by Egyptians in the canal zone last month.

The spokesman was commenting on a Cairo statement by Lt.-Col. Gamel Abdel Nasser, acting chief of staff of the Egyptian Army, who accused British Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd of "fabricating accusations against Egypt."

Lloyd told the House of Commons Tuesday there were reasons to believe the Egyptian authorities were connected with acts of violence in which several Britons were killed, injured or disappeared in the canal zone.

The foreign office spokesman said there have been "one or two" unusual incidents in the canal zone since the beginning of May, but most acts by Egyptians against British forces in the last two weeks have been ordinary acts of theft, such as stealing military cables. The April incidents mentioned by Lloyd, he said, were "not in the cable-cutting category."

Find Coronation Costs Canada Over Million

OTTAWA (CP)—The Coronation of Queen Elizabeth next month is going to cost Canada $1,000,000—maybe more.

State Secretary Bradley told the Commons Wednesday that this estimated amount for the June 2 events covers:

Decorations for public buildings in the capital and elsewhere in Canada—$243,500.

Sending some 800 service men and women to London and providing a contingent of troops for the Ottawa ceremonies—$468,000.

Travelling expenses of Canada's official delegation, salaries and office expenses of Mr. Bradley's department—$67,970.

SPECIAL MEDALLION

Striking a special medallion by the mint to be distributed to school children—$100,000.

Sending an RCMP troop for the Coronation parade—$75,200.

Decorations and other expenses at Canada House in London—$14,000.

External affairs department expenses—$25,000.

Those were the major items mentioned by Mr. Bradley in reply to Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton).

Chief Resigns, Things In Mess

TIMMINS (CP) — Wilf Perreault quit as police chief of nearby Mountjoy township today. That left things in an awful mess.

The chief happened to be the local dog catcher, licence collector, sanitary inspector, weed inspector, fence viewer and holder of "other minor posts."

The reason for the resignation: He didn't like working 'round the clock seven days a week.

Chief Perreault didn't even wait for council to accept the resignation. And, council members had something to say about that.

They said they sympathized with Perreault, but he knew when he took the job that he was to work seven days a week—and be on call at any hour.

Furthermore, four council members said in a statement that Perreault had lost their confidence.

Predict Future Super-Jets To Take Roofs Off Houses

LONDON (AP)—A British flight expert said today the super-jet planes of the near future will cave in windows, unroof houses and shatter the human eardrum. This preview was given by A. H. Yates, senior lecturer in aerodynamics at the Bletchley College of Aeronautics, in a letter to the London Times.

Yates said the supersonic "bang" now heard on the ground when a plane breaks through the so-called sound barrier is only the beginning.

"Whenever an aircraft flies at a speed greater than that of sound in air (660 to 760 miles an hour, depending on its height) it creates shock waves in the air which move away from it as do the bow waves from a ship travelling fast through water.

"The waves travel on, losing strength only slowly, until they strike the ear on the ground beneath (or break upon the beach).

"At present aircraft can fly supersonically only in dives at high altitudes and usually slow down to the subsonic speeds, at which no shock waves are formed, before getting within three miles of our ears.

"For this reason the bangs we hear do not cause aural discomfort; the pressure jump has been calculated and measured and found to be off the order of only one pound to a square foot.

"Within a few years aircraft will be capable of exceeding the speed of sound in level flight"—and then look out.

"An aircraft flying low at supersonic speeds, perhaps only 100 miles an hour faster than at present, would create havoc not only with our eardrums but by material damage to our homes.

"Calculations of the pressure rise caused by the shock wave from an aircraft flying supersonically 1,000 feet above ground show a sudden change of about 10 pounds a square foot when the shock wave passes.

"Besides being damaging to the ear this is sufficient to break most windows. Since the shock wave is being created constantly (and not merely during the acceleration through the 'sound barrier') a level flying aircraft could devastate a large area during a low, fast flight.

"It is clear that supersonic flying can be permitted only over the sea or at great heights, and disciplinary action against low flying will have to be much stricter than it is today.

"The danger of an enemy, or a thoughtless friend, raising the roof merely by flying past is a very real one."

McCarthy Asks Britain Apologize

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Joseph McCarthy said today Britain should apologize for what he termed a "cheap attack" by former prime minister Attlee on President Eisenhower and the American people.

Conservative party members of Parliament, McCarthy said, sat silently last Tuesday while Attlee made "one of the most insulting speeches ever made in the legislative body of a recipient nation against an ally which has been pouring out her economic life blood for practically every other nation on earth."

In a speech prepared for Senate delivery, the Wisconsin Republican said:

"The American people are entitled to an apology for this cheap, uncalled for, fantastic attack upon the president and people of the United States.

"We are entitled to an explanation as to whether the majority party in Britain agrees with Mr. Attlee, who was rejected by the British people."

Attlee made this eight-point reply to today's speech by McCarthy and other remarks the senator has made in the last few days:

"1. I made no attack on America, Americans or the American constitution. I gave a factual account of certain features of the American constitution, notably the division of power between Congress and the president which is not always understood in this country.

"2. I never suggested that President Eisenhower's presence would "hinder" direct peace talks. I only said that he should be able to talk with the same authority as a British prime minister.

"3. I did not say America was isolationist; but that the constitution was framed at a time when the conception of the United States in relation to the rest of the world was isolationist. I thought that that was generally agreed.

"4. Senator McCarthy characteristically revives an old canard that I reviewed Communist troops (in the Spanish civil war). The Span-

Bomb Stockpile Threat In Year

VALLEJO, Calif. (AP) — The U. S. Air Force deputy chief, Thomas D. White, said today Russia probably will have an atomic bomb stockpile big enough to endanger the security of the Free world within one year.

The U. S. strategic bombing force "must receive a major share of our resources" to "hit more effectively than we are hit," the lieutenant general said in a speech prepared for an armed forces day gathering.

White urged an increased U. S. air defence, with ground and air missiles including guided missiles which he said are becoming available for such use.

A defence system composed largely of guided missiles he said, might enable U. S. defenses to shoot down as much as 60 per cent of an attacking bomber fleet.

Believe Duke's Influence Changed RCAF Fly-Past

LONDON (CP)—The influence of the air-minded Duke of Edinburgh was read today into plans for the 168-plane fly-past scheduled Coronation Day afternoon by RCAF and RAF jet fighters.

The fly-past will break with tradition by streaking from south to north across London instead of east to west—cutting across the front of Buckingham Palace.

A spokesman for the air ministry suggested that the Queen's husband, a competent and enthusiastic pilot, may have had something to do with it. The new direction will allow the crowned Queen on her balcony to follow the 345-mile-an-hour ceremonial with her eyes, instead of having to twist her neck to watch the jets fly from front to back of the castle.

The fly-past is one of the most intricate ever attempted in Britain.

Twenty-four Canadian-built Sabre jets from RCAF No. 1 fighter wing at North Luffenham, Rutland, will head south for London and pick up one of six 24-plane RAF groups. The whole ensemble will move into formation over Canterbury, make a half circle out over the English channel and come in over London —two broad spearheads of RAF Meteors with the Canadian planes linking them, throttled back to keep in line with the slower British craft.

Contributing planes and pilots will be Squadrons 439 and 441. Leading the planes will be Wing Cmdr. Doug Lindsey of Arnprior, Ont., Korean veteran who is chief operations officer for the wing.

Sqdn. Ldr. Cal Bricker of Grenfell, Sask., will lead planes from 439 and Flt. Lt. P. C Walker of Ottawa is expected to lead planes from 441. The third squadron, 410, will be on gunnery practice in the north of England at the time.

Reds Reject Latest Allied Counter-Plan

Harrison Declares Communists Took PoWs To Manchuria

PANMUNJOM (AP) — The Communists today said no to the latest Allied plan for exchanging war prisoners and neither side gave any indication of yielding on that last major barrier to an armistice in Korea.

Nearby, the Reds tore down tents used for exchanging sick and wounded war prisoners, indicating they're through trading.

At today's truce meeting, the Reds called the Allied counter-proposal to their eight-point May 7 offer "absolutely unacceptable."

The chief Allied negotiator, Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison Jr., answered with charges that the Reds illegally took Allied prisoners across the Yalu river into Manchuria and used others for labor troops.

He charged the Reds with reducing warfare to a "new viciousness" by impressing some 50,000 captives into the Communist armed forces, rather than releasing them at the front as the Reds have maintained.

COUNTER-OFFER

The Allied counter-offer would free 34,000 North Korean prisoners who refuse repatriation and, under certain conditions, would put 14,500 Chinese in temporary custody of a five-country commission made up of Sweden, Switzerland, India, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

If two months of Red "explanations" fail to sway the Chinese, the Allies would release them outright. The Red plan would leave their fate to a high-level, post-armistice conference.

The UN command carefully weeded out of the Reds' May 7 proposal any provision that could force prisoners home against their will and suggested that India be the only country on the commission to supply troops.

North Korean Gen. Nam Il called the Allied plan "unreasonable and absurd" and said it was simply a "disguise" to hold prisoners forcibly.

Harrison defended the Allied counter-proposal, recounting the negotiations since they were renewed April 26 after being broken off last fall. He said the main issue is still the question of releasing all prisoners immediately after an armistice or leaving their fate hanging for the political conference to decide. The Allies have insisted that the Red plan would give the prisoners a choice of only forced repatriation or indefinite imprisonment.

Need Further Surgery To Save Twin's Life

EDGEWATER PARK, Miss. (AP)—Further surgery is needed if Rodney Dee Brodie, the surviving Brodie Siamese twin, is to live, a plastic surgeon reported here.

A supporting structure of bone or other material, to cover the spot where the babies' heads were separated, must be provided, reported Dr. Paul W. Greeley, professor of surgery in the plastic surgery department of the University of Illinois medical school.

Dr. Greeley submitted his report Wednesday to the annual meeting of the American Association of Plastic Surgeons. Greeley was the chief plastic surgeon on the team of 12 surgeons which separated the babies' heads last December.

Rodney will spend the rest of his life with part of his dead brother's skin covering part of his head, Greeley said.

Say Dahlem Arrested In New Red Purge

BERLIN (AP)—The U. S. high commission newspaper, Neue Zeitung, said today Franz Dahlem, one of the big five of East Germany's Communist politburo, has been arrested in a new purge.

Party boss Walter Ulbricht fired Dahlem on Tuesday as chief of the party's cadre system. Dahlem was sharply criticized in public meetings for failure to oust lukewarm party men from key jobs in the district and county machines.

The 56-year-old Dahlem has been a top German Communist for 30 years. He held a front line job as commissar in the Spanish war and was the leader of the alien Communist cells set up in France after Hitler came to power.

Princess In Norway

LONDON (Reuters)—Princess Margaret left London airport this morning to attend the wedding in Oslo Friday of Princess Ragnhild, granddaughter of King Haakon, to Erling Lorentzen, 30-year-old Norwegian shipowner.

Biggest Income Drop

OTTAWA (CP)— Ontario farmers bore the heaviest brunt of the drop as farmers' net income declined to $1,949,900,000 last year from the peak of $2,188,600,000 in 1951. In Ontario, net farm income decreased by more than $120,000,000 to $454,600,000 from $576,400,000, the Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Mouse Causes Big Panic At Royal Party

LONDON (Reuters) — A little white mouse came out at an annual ball for 300 debutantes Tuesday night and the terrified girls hauled up their billowing skirts without a thought for party manners.

An Argentine debutante saved the day by scooping up the mouse and hiding it in the bow of her pretty dress. But the affair of the mouse had just begun.

Just before the Argentinian, 18-year-old Gillian Eddy, curtsied demurely before the Duchess of Gloucester, her prisoner scooted to the top of her hairdo and sat there solemnly washing its face.

DUCHESS STARTLED

The Duchess, the Queen's aunt, gazed down sweetly on the curtseying girl, espied the mouse on her head, and, after momentary panic, regained her royal calm.

Miss Eddy, a lover of animls, wanted to go on dancing with the mouse on her head but officials handed the creature to a newspaperman to get rid of quickly.

Caroline Combe, another debutante, confessed she brought the mouse in a white box to the ball because "I wanted to liven things up a bit."

Wants Evidence Of Good Faith

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today he has no objection to a conference of top leaders of the major powers, but that he would first like to see some evidence of good faith from the Soviet Union.

And as yet, he declared, he has seen no evidence of good faith on the part of the Russians in their talk of wanting world peace.

Eisenhower made his remarks at a press conference in reply to a request for comment on Prime Minister Churchill's speech earlier this week urging a high-level conference without great delay.

Eisenhower also declared:

"I have met no one in the United States who does not want peace."

The president permitted direct quotation of that remark, made in reply to a request for comment on statements by Clement Attlee, former British prime minister.

ORDER EXHUMATION

LONDON (Reuters)—Authorities today ordered the exhumation of the body of Mrs. Beryl Evans, whose husband was hanged three years ago for her murder in the London home of John Christie.

Boycott Starts After Exchange Of Bitter Charges

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt was reported today trying to throw an economic noose around the 80,000 British soldiers it wants to push out of the bitterly-disputed Suez Canal Zone. Interior ministry sources said Premier Naguib's cabinet has prohibited commercial transactions with British forces in the Suez except by "special approval by the supply ministry." The order, these sources said, applies to foodstuffs, alcoholic beverages, building materials and other raw materials. Banning of Egyptian sales of all these would force Britain to supply its vast establishment entirely from outside Egypt.

Egyptian political circles viewed the cabinet's move as the start of a growing economic boycott of British forces in the canal zone. It followed a hot exchange of charges between Britain and Egypt in which each accused the other of a series of shooting attacks in the canal zone since April 1.

TOUCHES OFF FIRING

Cairo newspaper claimed today that an Egyptian gun salvo Wednesday night, announcing the beginning of the Moslem holy month or Ramadan, touched off five hours of British firing in which one Egyptian was wounded.

An Associated Press dispatch from Port Said, however, said that all was quiet today at the canal's northern end. The dispatch said that one British vessel arrived from Cyprus today.

This report added that the Royal Navy destroyers Chequers, Chevron and Chieftain were expected there "any time" today.

In connection with the economic boycott threat, the newspaper Al Ahram indicated today that the government might act soon against the native labor force employed in the canal zone.

Following 1951 troubles in the Suez, Egypt ordered 40,000 native workers off the British payroll. An unspecified number went back to work after the disorders subsided.

COUNTER-CHARGES

The Egyptians charged Wednesday night that British soldiers had killed eight Egyptians and wounded 17 in the zone since April 1.

Cutting Of Nerves Can Stop Pain

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. James C. White, chief of neurosurgery at the Massachusetts General hospital, Wednesday night said the cutting of nerves will stop pain when the disease causing it cannot be cured.

Delivering the annual Jackson memorial lecture at the Montreal Neurological Institute, Dr. White said research at Boston showed that cutting of pain tracts in the spinal column can halt pain in incurable cases of cancer.

Cutting of certain nerves could also stop pain in the intestines, gall bladder, kidneys, bladder and heart.

PARKED WELL ABOVE the public parking area of the old Market Square, a small 'coon found himself a hot seat on a utilities pole behind the Bradburn block. No one could figure out where the animal came from and it caused much comment from early workers today. Efforts of the police department scared the 'coon from its perch into hiding until nightfall. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Broad Effort To Conserve Ontario Forests

TORONTO (CP)—A broad co-operative effort to conserve and increase the productivity of the province's forests will be undertaken immediately in Northern Ontario, Premier Frost announced today.

The premier said that for the first time every group directly interested in forestry has been brought together to attack the problem.

Seven groups will participate in the program. They are: land and forests department, the research council of Ontario, the forestry faculty of the University of Toronto, Abitibi Power and Paper Co., Ontario Paper Co., the forestry branch of the resources and development department and the Pulp and Paper Research Institute of Canada.

"The purpose of the immediate program is to increase and to create conditions favoring the natural reproduction of spruce for pulpwood on the mixed wood slopes of the Lakehead region where in some instances the valuable softwoods have failed to re-establish themselves," Premier Frost said.

Half of the project's cost will be provided by the Ontario research council and the remainder by the two paper companies, the premier said. The other participants will provide their services, facilities and materials.

As the work proceeds other pulp and paper companies operating limits in the Lakehead area would be given an opportunity to participate in the program.

A long-range project which is expected to extend over a period of years the first field work will begin at once on part of the Ontario Paper Company limits near Heron Bay on the north shore of Lake Superior.

Mr. Frost said the project was initiated by the Abitibi Power and Paper Co. and the Ontario Paper Company.

"The problem of improving the regeneration of spruce in the Lakehead region is complex," the premier added. "Its solution calls for the use of many scientific talents, more than can be found within a single agency. Experts in soils, in meteorology, in botany and plant ecology, in forestry and in logging engineering will be needed. They will work side by side with the company loggers, seeking a practical solution to the problem."

Slide Rule Helps Win Acquittal

CHICOPEE, Mass. (AP)—A slide rule and a mathematics formula helped win a speeding charge acquittal in district court Wednesday for Sgt. Henry J. Vance.

The U. S. Air Force sergeant was accused of speeding 60 miles an hour by a policeman who overtook him in a cruiser.

Vance took out a slide rule and told the judge that by his calculations the police cruiser would have had to go 109 miles an hour to catch up to him in the distance specified by the arresting officer.

Vance said: "Allowing 15 seconds for the officer to make a decision and accelerate his machine, he'd have had to do 109 miles an hour and I don't think his cruiser will go that fast."

Two Letter Deliveries Won't Return Yet

OTTAWA (CP)—The post office grossed more money in the last fiscal year than ever but the time still isn't ready for return of the two-deliveries-a-day mail system, Postmaster-General Cote said Wednesday.

With regret, he told G. K. Fraser (PC - Peterborough West), that he wouldn't feel justified in incurring the additional costs that two deliveries for residential city areas would bring. Further, he thought improvements in the one-delivery system have taken off some of the pressure.

Mr. Cote said postal revenues hit $130,000,000 last fiscal year, an increase of about $8,000,000 over the previous year. But soaring costs cut the profit to $5,000,000 from $6,500,000.

Plane Skimming Treetops Say Witnesses

Three witnesses said today that they saw the Rockland Airways seaplane that crashed into hydro wires on Stony Lake, July 30, 1951, skimming around the McCracken's Landing-Lindsay Island area at treetop height.

Gordon Crowe, a general handyman, said that when the plane zoomed overhead "I thought it must have brushed the tops of the trees because some dead branches tumbled down."

His work-partner, Joseph Moore of Dummer township, was watching, fascinated from Towle Island, 1,000 feet away by his estimate.

"The plane was clipping along at treetop height," said Mr. Moore. "There was a boat in the water and I just stood and watched the plane, because I though it was going to hit the boat . . . I was sure it was going to hit . . . (Then) it came up from the boat and hit the hydro wires.

"I thought it was out of control when I saw it coming in."

Miss Louise Woodgate of Toronto was chatting with a seven-year-old girl on the mainland dock of Mrs. Lafay when she saw the plane flying low, coming in, she believed, for a landing.

TREES SHOOK

Once while the seaplane was circling around the area nearby she observed that "the trees shook." As she watched the aircraft as it came toward her down the channel.

"I saw it hit the wires and dip down into the lake," she said "When it hit I knew there was going to be a crash."

These descriptions—plus a laconic account of what it feels like to crash and fight your way out of a sunken aircraft—were heard early today in the present civil action being heard before Mr. Justice McLennan in Supreme Court.

Rockland Airways are suing Oscar B. MacMillan and his wife, Iva, for being responsible for the crashing of their aircraft on a fine, sunny July day, two years ago. They are asking $7,902 damages plus costs of the action.

Tom Mathias, pilot and co-partner of Rockland Airways, claimed that the aircraft had made a triple circuit and was coming in for a normal landing, into a northwest wind, in the channel between the south shore of Stony Lake, west of McCracken's Landing, and Lindsay Island. The island is owned by the MacMillans who have strung hydro wires from the mainland to the island. Height of the wires has been estimated between 20 and 30 feet above the water.

Through their counsel, Alex Elliott, QC, Rockland Airways have claimed that the MacMillans had no right to string wires over the channel without official permission. They contend that the channel is a navigable body of water and must be open for vessels.

By putting up the wires the MacMillans had committed a nuisance, they contend.

WHY FIRST LANDING?

The MacMillans are being defended by T. J. Carley, QC, and Robert Carley. They have suggested that Mathias was "buzzing the area." Today Mr. Carley Sr. asked Ken Wyatt, one of the three men in the seaplane, why they had landed and docked at the South Beach Hotel before going on to McCracken's Landing, their ultimate destination.

Wyatt, a licenced pilot himself, testified that he and Mathias were out of aircraft 15 minutes at South Beach.

"Were you in the beverage room there?" asked Mr. Carley.

"No," said Wyatt, who also denied that any of them had gone into the beverage room or that there was any liquor in the aircraft.

Wyatt said he accompanied Mathias while they spoke to an American in the hotel about his renting an aircraft.

"Our purpose in going up to Stony Lake was to see if there were any persons interested in passenger hops—sightseeing," he explained.

When they were circling for a landing — he believed they were going to Carveth's Boat Livery — Mathias pointed out where there were hydro wires leading across to Davis Island. He said he couldn't see the wires themselves because of the sun but he could see the "slash" on the mainland where the bush had been cut down for the poles.

Mathias, the pilot, did not see the similar wires in the Lindsay Island channel until they were about 30 feet away and coming in for a landing, said Wyatt. None of the three occupants did until it was too late to avoid the wires.

BROKE SAFETY BELT

"We hit them and the plane nosed over and crashed into the water. I was in the front, right pilot's seat. The impact of the crash broke my safety belt. Water was coming in; the cabin kept filling and the doors were jammed.

"I couldn't get out that way but I managed to get through the windscreen."

It had been broken when Mathias was thrown through it. Mathias and he were injured, but the third man, Orville Braden, was not hurt.

They were rescued by a boat driven by Russell Carveth.

The case is continuing.

OTTAWA (CP)—The bush fire at Aylen Station northwest of Pembroke which earlier this week raged out of control along a 12-mile front, is out.

Most of the fire crew was laid off Wednesday and the rest will be let go as soon as the damper is put on the last of the remaining smouldering stumps. However, forest travel in the area is still banned.

Meanwhile, forest travel has been reopened in several Quebec counties north and northwest of Ottawa as the more serious fires have been controlled.

Burned Out Lent Cottage

LINDSAY (ENS).—Two Haliburton county families are living in a borrowed cottage on Trooper Lake, after they were burned out of their frame farm home near Gooderham this week. Mr. and Mrs. David McDuff, their small daughter and their son, his wife and four small children, were forced to flee the flames that burned through their home in a flash fire of undetermined origin.

They saved very little of their personal belongings with the exception of some furniture. Neighbors and a pumper engine from the Department of Lands and Forests extinguished a fire on the roof of the barn before it became serious.

A Mr. Jennings donated the use of his cottage to the two families after the fire.

Federal Pension Share Totals $19,128,837

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government's share of old age assistance pensions for needy persons between 65 and 69 totalled $19,128,837 in the year ended March 31, the Health department reported today.

The payments are shared on a 50-50 basis with provincial governments up to a maximum of $40 a month, except in Newfoundland, where the maximum is $30. Payments vary because the old age assistance act provides for a reduction in payments if the recipient's income rises beyond a stated level.

At the end of March, 87,675 persons were receiving assistance.

CWL Presents Spiritual Bouquet To Elizabeth II

The members of the Catholic Women's League of Canada are preparing a spiritual bouquet for presentation to Queen Elizabeth on the occasion of her coronation.

It consists of special prayers imploring Almighty God to bestow peace on the reign of Her Majesty, and also to grant the world peace. Members undertake to offer the prayers for that particular intention, from Sunday worship to little ejaculations during the day, asking God's blessing on Commonwealth and its young Queen. Thousands of women across Canada are joining their prayers in this purpose of petition for Elizabeth II.

The promises of the women of the parishes of the diocese of Peterborough are reported to have been collected this week, the last of them being received at today's masses celebrating the Ascension of Jesus. They will be combined with those of the members of the league from all parts of Canada, thereby comprising the spiritual bouquet for the occasion of the coronation.

Cabinet Ministers Can Serve As Directors

OTTAWA (CP)—Should cabinet ministers be allowed to serve as directors of private corporations? Well, let their "conscience be their guide," says Prime Minister St. Laurent.

J. M. MacDonnell (PC—Toronto Greenwood) asked the prime minister where he got that rule, enunciated during a brief exchange at the House opening on government delay in replying to members' questions on the Commons order paper.

Mr. St. Laurent replied that he got it "from the prime minister of the day" when he first was appointed to the cabinet back in 1941. The "prime minister of the day" was Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King who died in 1950.

The question on cabinet ministers and corporations developed after George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, urged the prime minister to take some steps to provide replies to a batch of questions, some of which had been hanging fire for several weeks.

INSTITUTED TO SPEED THINGS

Mr. St. Laurent said various departments had been instructed to get replies as quickly as possible. However, some of the questions required a lot of research.

George Hees (PC — Toronto Broadview) referred to a question by C. W. Hodgson (PC—Victoria, Ont.) asking whether any cabinet ministers were members of advisory boards of Canadian corporations.

"What's the difficulty of answering that one?" he asked.

Mr. St. Laurent paused, reflected and said there was none so far as he was concerned. He was not a director of any corporation —unless it was a public one.

The prime minister said he did not know about the "private affairs" of his ministers. He had not been as "inquisitive" as others about the affairs of his colleagues.

Wife Dies After Party Murder Charge Laid

PEMBROKE (CP)—Kenneth Wilson, 32, of Arnprior, was charged with murder Wednesday in connection with the death of his wife after a party in their home.

Mrs. Lois Wilson, 29-year-old mother of five children, died in hospital at Arnprior May 7, four days after she allegedly suffered a severe beating. At that time Wilson, a steam-shovel operator, was arrested and charged with assault and causing grievous bodily harm.

The more serious charge was laid Wednesday by crown attorney Al Neville.

The party was a family affair May 2 that also included two neighbors, Leo Piche and Albert Schnobb. It lasted until 2 a.m. Sunday morning, but those present said it was a quiet affair with no show of bad feelings.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL (CP)—The U. S. dollar was at a discount of ¼ per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today. Wednesday's noon rate was 99 21-32 cents. Pound sterling $2.80½, against $2.80⅛.

B.C. Plane Crash Unsolved May Have Struck Whale

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP)—Cause of a flying boat crash here Monday has investigators baffled, and they even have considered the possibility the amphibian hit a whale, it was learned Wednesday.

Stewardess Clara Langen, 25, of Humboldt, Sask., and RCMP Constable Stephen Kaspar, 26, of Allan, Sask., were killed when the Canadian Pacific Airlines Canso crashed on landing in the harbor.

President Grant McConachie of CPA who flew to the scene, said two separate teams of investigators failed to find out why the aircraft "porpoised"—jumped into the air—after landing.

CONDITIONS RIGHT

"It was a perfect day. Landing conditions were just right. The boat made a fine landing, ran about 100 feet along the surface, porpoised and crashed on her nose.

"If the plane did hit something under water it would have to be a big object to throw a heavy aircraft up into the air like that."

This fact had led investigators to consider the possibility the plane hit a whale. But the sea would likely have been colored with blood if that had happened, Mr. McConachie said.

Sixteen other passengers and the pilot and co-pilot were rescued by fishing boats.

A government statement said the incidents had been due to "the British military's provocative actions."

A British military spokesman said two persons had been killed and two wounded on the British side since April 1. The British minister of state, Selwyn Lloyd, told the House of Commons in London Tuesday there had been 30 attacks on the British since April 1.

The Egyptian casualty figures were announced shortly after Egypt's chief of staff, Lt. - Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser, predicted a popular uprising against British forces unless Britain removes its 80,000-man garrison from the canal zone within two or three months.

Egypt has demanded unconditional British evacuation of the zone.

MUST MAINTAIN BASE

Britain says its huge base there must be maintained for the use of the free world. Negotiations between the two countries on the dispute broke down a week ago when Britain stood fast on demands that 5,000 British technicians remain to keep the base in operating condition. The Egyptians said they could do the job with only 500.

In his announcement to the House of Commons, Lloyd charged that members of the Egyptian Army "at least connived" at attacks on Britons.

Nasser hit back in a press statement accusing the British minister of "fabricating accusations against Egypt."

"The Egyptian Army had absolutely nothing to do with these incidents," the statement declared. "These incidents—which by the way are very few—have been taking place since the British came to Egypt.

CAN RECIPROCATE

"If we have to reciprocate, we can give a large number of cases where the British were brutal, aggressive, and inhuman towards the simple, peace-loving Egyptian citizens."

The chief of staff made his prediction of a possible uprising against Britain in an interview. In the past, Nasser has urged guerrilla warfare if Britain refuses to budge.

The new wave of violence marked the latest in a series of clashes between Britain and Egypt since October, 1951, when Egypt denounced the 1936 treaty giving Britain the right to garrison the canal zone.

Truck Quit, Fishermen Spend Night Out

LINDSAY (ENS) — Dr. H. P. Bishop, Lloyd Coneybeare and Al Gauthier, all of Haliburton, had an uncomfortable experience this week when they tried their fishing luck for the first time this season on Stormy Lake in Haliburton County.

After an unsuccessful afternoon of fishing, they began to start home in their truck. Unfortunately the vehicle first became stuck in the mud road, then finally quit completely.

The trio spent part of the night in an abandoned ranger's shack near the lake, but the roof leaked, and they finally began to walk home.

A search party, organized by provincial police officers, finally met the party on the road back to Highway 35, as dawn broke the next day.

LINDSAY (ENS) — Premier Leslie M. Frost of Lindsay, and M. P. Clayton Hodgson, Haliburton, were special guests Tuesday when the new nurses' residence at the Haliburton Red Cross Outpost Hospital was officially opened.

The $20,000 structure has just been completed on the grounds of the hospital, and contains living quarters, including living and dining rooms, kitchen, laundry room, five bedrooms, and committee and workrooms. Premier Frost, principal speaker on the program, was introduced by Mr. Hodgson. He made an emphatic point in his address of his belief that every community should have its own small hospital service of some kind, and paid tribute to the Haliburton Red Cross executive for their work in making the outpost hospital, and the nurses' residence possible. He then opened the doors of the residence officially.

Others on the program were the Rev. A. T. Rutherford, president of the Haliburton Red Cross; W. R. Curry, Mr. Peacock, warden of the county, local Reeves H. Black, R. Booth, Commissioner Stringer of the Red Cross, and A. G. Schofield, founder of the Outpost Hospital movement in the Red Cross, now in his 85th year.

School Chorus Awarded Top Festival Marks

COBOURG (ENS) — Highest marks in the Northumberland Music Festival so far this week went to the rural school chorus of S.S. No. 12, Haldimand, when adjudicator Eric Lewis yesterday gave this group a mark of 91. Previous to that the highest had been 89 per cent given to the Campbellford High School Glee Club who sang on Tuesday night.

School choirs comprised the program Wednesday afternoon and the adjudicator devoted some time to an explanation of the delicate shadings of tone and clarity of enunciation necessary to do justice to the numbers. He cautioned against slurring the line of one song which made the words sound like "washing the sheep" instead of "watching the sheep."

In spite of the large number of children awaiting their turn to sing, the noise level was kept quite low in the Trinity United Church auditorium, no small problem when the feet of scores of children are considered.

Following are yesterday's results:

Class 43—Rural school chorus, 1-rm, under 19 enrolment, unison—SS 13, Haldimand, 88%; SS 14, Hamilton, 87 and USS 1 and 25, Alnwick, 83. Class 44—Rural school chorus, 1-rm, 19 or over on roll, unison—SS 12, Haldimand, 91; SS 4 Cramahe, 90; USS 6 and 7, Haldimand and Cramahe, 89. SS 5, Brignton, 89. Class 45—Rural school chorus, 1-rm, 2-pt, unaccompanied—USS 3 and 29, Percy and Brignton, 93; SS 28, Brighton, 81 and SS 9, Cramahe, 81.

Class 17—Boy's vocal solo, 12 years and under—Gary Thomas, Cobourg, 84; Gary Little, Campbellford, 83 and Allstair Plewis, Frankford, 81. Class 23—girl's vocal solo, 11 years and under—Shirley Baker, Campbellford, 86; Margaret Peake, Campbellford, 85; Patsy Zufelt, Harwood 84 and Diane Kingscott, Warkworth, 84.

Tuesday night's results—Class 27, girl's vocal solo, 16 and under—Donna McColl, Wooler, 84; Beverley Robison, Cobourg, 83 and Jane Rivers, Cobourg, 81. Class 54, girl's vocal duet, high school, 15 years and under — Pauline Drope and Joan Barrett, Harwood, 89; Sandra MacDonald and June Eason, Campbellford, 86; Donna McColl and Lynda Terry, Wooler, 85. Say Soybean Growers May Get Bonus

CHATHAM (CP)—With a 20 per cent increase predicted over last year's 4,000,000 bushel crop, Ontario soybean growers may get an unexpected bonus of $210,000 this year.

The bonus of 4.2 cents a bushel will come if the crop, rapidly developing into southwestern Ontario's largest, is reclassified as a grain by the freight rate reclassification committee of the Railway Association of Canada.

Hearings for reclassification, requested by the Ontario soybean growers' marketing board, will be held in Montreal late this month.

In a classification by themselves, soybeans now have the highest freight rate of any grain crop grown in this section of the province.

FIRST TIME CONSIDERED

It costs 25.2 cents a bushel to ship them from Chatham to Toronto. The rate on corn is 19.6 cents a bushel and the rate on wheat is 21 cents a bushel.

Because the production of soybeans has not become a sizable factor until recent years, this is the first time that they have been considered for reclassification.

Eighty-five per cent of Ontario's production now is concentrated in the counties of Kent and Essex, with Kent producing about half of Canada's soybeans. The crop was worth over $5,000,000 to Kent county growers last year.

Merchants Win Soccer Game

With 10 minutes to go Harold Payne's hard drive escaped the Canadian-Scottish Club's goalie to give Peterborough Merchants a 3-2 victory in the city soccer league Wednesday night.

Up to that moment the Scots had played an uphill game. For in the first half M. Buchan had given the Merchants a 2-0 lead, the first on a 20-yard drive which caught the corner and the second on a 10-yard drive which just went in under the bar.

Early in the second the Scots rallied and were helped by a penalty kick which was successfully taken by Daley. Then with about 20 minutes to go Caldwell evened the count at two-all. Payne's goal spoiled that rally.

On Saturday the Scots will play the UEW at 2 p.m. in a city league game, followed by an Eastern Ontario League game between the Merchants and Kingston, beginning at 5 p.m. Both games will be played at King Edward park.

Letter Charged Plane Defective

MAYFIELD, Ky. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Organ Spain said Wednesday a letter written by their son the day before he was killed in the crash of a U. S. Air Force bomber in Korea told of the plane's poor mechanical condition.

The couple said airman Charles Spain, 19, wrote them on July 21, 1952, that his crew of 13 was preparing to fly into enemy territory in a B-29 that had been condemned and was to have been sent out of Korea.

Two hours after the takeoff July 22, the bomber caught fire and crashed in South Korea, killing all aboard.

In Tokyo, the air force public information office reported that maintenance records show the B-29 had been inspected properly and there was nothing in the records to support Spain's letter that the bomber was defective.

Three New QCs Have Been Appointed

TORONTO (CP)—Appointment of three new Queen's counsels was announced today in the Ontario Gazette. They are J. D. Pickup, Toronto; John Yaremko, Toronto, John Malcolm Robb, Belleville.

Mr. Pickup is a son of Hon. J. W. Pickup, chief justice of Ontario and Mr. Yaremko is Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Toronto Bellwoods.

Holding Husband In Fire Death Inquiry

MONTREAL (CP) — Provincial police said today they are holding 32-year-old Claude Lachapelle as a material witness in the Feb. 10 fire at Lac Ste. Marie, in which Lachapelle's wife and his three children were burned to death.

Police said they held Lachapelle on a coroner's warrant.

Lachapelle was brought to Montreal from Hull, Que., Tuesday night for questioning in the death of his 29-year-old wife and children.

Detective Arthur Normandeau brought Lachapelle here after visiting the fire scene early this week. The detective declined to say what additional information had been turned up.

Lieut. Ubald Legault, head of the homicide squad, said it had been established that Lachapelle was in the log cabin, 60 miles from Hull, Que., when the fire started.

The Report On Indecent And Salacious Literature

The Senate Special Committee's report on the sale and distribution of indecent and salacious literature was presented to the Senate on Wednesday, April 29th. This matter was dealt with by a special committee sponsored by the late Senator Hayes Doone of Charlotte, New Brunswick. It will be remembered that an attempt was made to set up a similar committee in the House of Commons, but it was voted down.

* * *

The committee heard many delegations and many witnesses. The report is a fairly long one, consuming eight foolscap pages. It is a fair and restrained report. The committee evidently weighed much of the evidence given before it, and found it wanting in specific indications that the literature complained of was doing the harm which many witnesses indicated. The witnesses dealt too largely in general charges and not enough in specific instances. Dealing with so many general charges and with witnesses who often could not back up their attacks on books and magazines with facts, the committee had a hard task, but we feel that it acquitted itself well. Its final appeal is to the decency and patriotism of the publishers of questionable magazines and books and also to the Canadian public. It requested to be backed up in its desire to clean up the newsstands of literature which it feels will undermine the morals of young people. What the response will be remains to be seen.

* * *

The committee concludes its report by suggesting that "in view of the fact that the solution of this problem is in no way complete, this committee be reappointed during the next session of Parliament, to keep reviewing the situation with a view to further and definite action." The Peterborough Examiner feels that the committee might be reconvened if it intends to try to bring about some definite action by the offenders. We can see no good object being served, however, if the committee is to continue to be a sounding board for extremists who would like to control the reading of the people of Canada, and pattern it to their way of thinking. Surely the committee has heard enough arguments from people of this kind.

* * *

We believe, that if the committee is reconvened at the next session of Parliament, it should (and could we believe under its terms of reference) summon representatives of the publishers, wholesalers, distributors and news agents, and explore the possibilities of getting these men to do something themselves to improve the situation. Without their voluntary co-operation little can, we fear, be accomplished. It will be remembered that the United States special House committee could not itself decide what was meant by "objectionable matter," and therefore did not recommend any changes in existing Federal laws.

* * *

There is no doubt at all that some of the presentations before the Senate Committee were very greatly exaggerated. Because of this and because they were often the opinion of people unfamiliar with the books and magazines which they condemned their opinions had little weight. Their main weakness was that they had no statistics to prove what they were contending.

* * *

If the literature which was complained about had had the bad effect which many witnesses attributed to it, it seems to us that it would show in two places: Increase in juvenile delinquency, and in the number of illegitimate children born. It is encouraging to note that in the Province of Ontario at any rate, this is not the case. In fact there has, in the past decade been a percentage decrease, both in illegitimacy and juvenile delinquency. With regard to juvenile delinquency, we have been able to secure the figures from 1941. In 1941, the population of Ontario, was 3,788,000. The number of juvenile delinquents was 3,467, or 92 per 100,000 of population. In 1950, the population was 4,471,000. The number of juvenile delinquents was 3,056, or 68 per 100,000 of population—a reduction of 24 per 100,000.

* * *

With regard to illegitimacy, there is also a reduction. In 1941, the population of Ontario was as stated above. The number of illegitimate children born in Ontario that year was 3,384, or 89 per 100,000. In 1951, ten years later, the number of illegitimate children born was 3,807, or 83 per 100,000. A reduction of six per 100,000 in ten years.

* * *

These figures speak well for Ontario, and indicates that so far as this Province is concerned, there is no startling evidence that the so-called indecent and salacious literature which is complained of is having a detrimental effect on the morals of our young people. Much more can be accomplished by parental oversight and control than prohibiting laws.

Decision For The Seaway

Last Thursday Mr. St. Laurent, Mr. Pearson and two cabinet aides, J. W. Pickersgill and Gordon Robertson landed in Washington with pomp and circumstance. The official visit was well-known—in Canada at any rate—to be more than a pleasant exchange of international courtesy. The Canadians had business with the President and his advisers.

American restrictions against Canadian dairy products and threatening American legislation against Canada's hundred million dollar a year metal exports were two topics they wished to discuss. Another was the St. Lawrence seaway and power plan, which special American groups have been blocking for twenty years. One part of the Canadian errand has quickly secured results.

Before the visit concluded, the White House issued a statement pledging the full support of the President and his Cabinet to the seaway, with the aim of winning congressional approval. That was the first act—and it was more than a formal restatement of Presidential favour. The second stage towards the realization of the seaway and power plants on the St. Lawrence was reached yesterday. The presiding examiner of the Federal Power Commission gave his decision. He recommended the issuance of a licence to the State of New York's power authority to undertake, with Canada, the power development.

Thus a big hurdle has been surmounted. Canada has said she will build the seaway alone, if necessary. The power development is supplementary to it, but requires joint Canadian-American approval. Canada has given it: the Ontario Hydro will develop the Canadian share of the power potential. Now the State of New York has been designated as the legatee of the American share. A decision on this has long kept the development in suspension.

A third American obstacle must now be overcome, provided the Federal Power Commission accepts the recommendation of its chief examiner, which it is likely to do. The third hurdle is the American courts. Opposing American forces may try to continue their blockade by seeking a court injunction preventing the New York Power Authority from entering into the work. Judging from the assurance President Eisenhower has given Prime Minister St. Laurent, legislative objection should be circumvented, and there is not a great likelihood that the project or licensing of the New York power authority can be found unconstitutional. An injunction will not be granted lightly.

Affairs march. There is now a real possibility that work on the power development will start this autumn. Deepening of the seaway would follow.

An Honour For Mr. Drew

When Mr. George Drew resigned the Premiership of Ontario to become national Progressive Conservative leader, he lost the designation "Honourable" which goes with the office. Until last Tuesday he was plain Mr. Now he is again the Honourable George Drew, and will be so for life, because he has been made a member of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada. This courtesy was given him before he leaves to attend the Coronation as Leader of the Opposition and one of the official Canadian party. Partisan politicians please note the unpartisan nature of the tribute. Mr. Drew was named to the Canadian Privy Council and thus given the right to be styled Honourable, on the advice and recommendation of his political opponent, the Liberal Prime Minister, the Right Honourable Louis St. Laurent, President of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada, member of the Imperial Privy Council.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Three Communists standing for election to the Australian Senate got two votes among them. If that isn't enthusiasm held in check, we don't know what is.

The CCF government of Saskatchewan has closed down its woollen mill, which it had kept in operation at a loss. It is surely rough on an electorate to make it pay for the wool which is pulled over its eyes?

A new machine hits golf balls farther and more accurately than any player, but this will mean no decrease in golf enthusiasm. Nowadays "fun" usually means doing something by hand that a machine can do quicker and better.

The Vancouver Province says: "It goes without saying that Winston Churchill is proud of his Order of the Garter. He is also pretty proud of his membership in the bricklayers' union which he has held for many years." Quick, somebody, give the Province some mortar. That sequence of statements needs it.

Laos And Beyond

By O. M. GREEN

THERE is a strong belief— it is more than a suspicion— that the invasion of Laos was planned by Moscow and Peking twenty months ago. Two similar attempts have been made in the past two years, but both failed owing chiefly to the Vietminh's difficulty in bringing up supplies through the Laotian mountains. The strength of the present invasion in four separate columns, and the wealth of military equipment with which they have been supplied through China, certainly points to long and careful preparation.

Moreover, the "Peace Conference for Asia and the Pacific Territories," held in Peking last September and attended by delegates from thirty-three States, was a clear danger signal: it gave birth to a permanent Peace Liaison Committee in Peking, which is in effect a Far Eastern Cominform. No speeches more vicious were made during the Conference than those addressed to Indo-China. Even her women were exhorted to use violence in order to gain their "liberation." And in recent months the doings of Vietminh have figured prominently in Peking Radio's broadcasts.

✧ ✧ ✧

NUMERICALLY the French-Vietnamese forces should outnumber those of Vietminh when the Vietnamese Army reaches a strength of 200,000 by December next. But while there are no Vietnamese officers higher than majors, the Vietminh have plenty of commanders of senior rank who have learnt their trade (as Mao Tse-tung's generals did) by seven years' hard fighting with the French; and their commander-in-chief is the brilliant Vo Nguyyen Giap (General de Lattre do Tassingny said that, if he could get Giap on his side, he would finish the war in a month). Unless the Vietminh can be pushed back from Luang Prabang and Vientiane they should have little difficulty in driving eastwards across the narrow neck of Annam to seize Vinh on the coast thereby cutting Indo-China in two.

✧ ✧ ✧

BUT the military importance of such a victory would be secondary to its political value. The Communists cannot attempt military action beyond the confines of Indo-China (where they can argue that they are fighting only to free their country from the French without risking a major international war. But if they can take Luang Prabang, the royal capital of Laos, or Vientiane, its administrative centre, they would have a recognisable capital in which to install the Resistance Government of Laos, which they proclaimed on April 22. The moral effect on South East Asia would be enormous. It is on this that the Communists count for further progress, not without hope. Once firmly established in the centre of South East Asia, in direct contact with neighbouring countries, they would be well placed for a political conquest of these countries by infiltration and undermining methods even without outright military aggression.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT IS an ugly discovery that the Laotians generally believed to be loyal to the French, have put up irregulars to fight with the Vietminh, and that men of local importance (one of them is half-brother of Laos's Prime Minister) have supported the Resistance Government. In Cambodia, the leader of the rebel Issarak Party is said to have gone over to the King, but even if this is so it must be doubted whether many of his supporters, who have long been in open sympathy with Vietminh, will be inclined to follow him.

The Siamese are the least fertile soil for Communism, as they are the best fed, best clothed, most carefree people in Asia. But they are accustomed to changes of Government by coup d'etat; and if the ex-Premier Pridi Panomyong managed to overthrow Marshal Pibul Songgram and install a pro-Vietminh Government, no resistance from the people need be expected.

✧ ✧ ✧

ON THE BORDERS of Burma the relations of the Shan peoples with the Government in Rangoon are reasonably harmonious. But the Shans are closely related to the Thais of the Communist-controlled Thai country. And behind them are the elusive forces of Burmese Communists and Karens. The Burmese Government is the hardest of all to help. It cannot crush its rebels itself and it will not allow anyone else to help it do so.

The effect on Malaya of a Red inundation of its neighbours is too large a matter to discuss here: it could not be other than very grave. Whatever superficial agreement there may be at the top between the United Malay National Organisation and the Malayan Chinese Association, there is no appreciable sign of reconciliation between the two communities: and one cannot ignore the Chinese tendency to shout with the winning side.

✧ ✧ ✧

TO COMPLETE the gloomy picture, Nepal's political and social disorders have led to an alarming growth of Communism there, particularly among the northern Nepalese, who are continually regaled with descriptions of the blessings that Communist China has brought to Tibet. Through Nepal, too, agitators can easily penetrate into India, where, in the past two years, the Communists have gained considerably in strength and organization.

The whole plan will take a long time to work out, but a more important fact is that no serious resistance by the peoples endangered can be looked for. The time-honoured Communist propaganda is already in full blast—promises to safeguard the life and property of orderly folk, their churches and temples, and particularly to respect the rights and interests of foreigners. Exactly the same promises were broadcast by Mao Tse-tung before he got Tientsin and Shanghai. Both Chinese and foreigners in China now know how false they were. The people of Cambodia, Siam and Burma do not. Probably their only conscious desire is that their villages should not be made a battlefield; which does not promise much help for anti-Communist Governments.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE LAUNCHING of the Communist offensive against South-East Asia at this precise time must deepen the suspicion with which the Russian peace gestures and China's concessions in the armistice negotiations in Korea are necessarily viewed. It seems likely that the Chinese may come to terms in Korea, after spinning out the talks as long as possible, while they proclaim to all Asia their own longing for peace and the wicked Americans' lust for war. What does not seem to be always appreciated is their confidence, which is only too likely to be justified, that if all foreign troops are withdrawn from Korea, that country must ultimately fall to China. Meanwhile it is probably calculated in Moscow and Peking that Western eyes may be too much fixed on the hope of some accommodation with Russia in Europe, and of freedom from the wasting stalemate in Korea, to notice the far-reaching dangers now threatening South-East Asia.

Aperitifs On Paper

BOOKS IN REVIEW By JULIE BOUDER

AMONG the new books at the Peterborough Public Library the first three chosen for consideration today have this in common— they all deal with great or near-great men of letters, most of whom have flourished in the last sixty years. Two are works of literary criticism and the third a little volume of reminiscences about literary figures of the late nineteenth century, the so-called "yellow" period of English writing. Taken separately or together they make a fresh and sparkling aperitif, a stimulant to savour again books we have once enjoyed, or to explore the possibilities of fare we have barely tasted. Such stimulation is one of the desirable results of good criticism; for what does it profit a man to read criticism, no matter how penetrating, of an author with whom he has but a slight acquaintance? Criticism of a book we haven't read is as dry and unsatisfactory as gossip about someone we don't know; in either case we have an uncomfortable sense of being deficient, left out— and a consequent feeling of pique.

Literary criticism is a special field in which the art of appreciation, based on an informed understanding, combines with several other elements— arguments for one. In assessing the value of a piece of writing the worthwhile critic conducts a sort of one-man debate, in which he becomes successively the affirmative, the negative and the judge. Arland Ussher and V. S. Pritchett are two among the hundreds of people writing criticism today whose work always bears close examiantion. Let us have a look at two of their most recent publications in book form.

THREE GREAT IRISHMEN: Shaw, Yeats, Joyce, by Arland Ussher. This scholarly little book of 160 pages bears out the old saying that "good goods come in small parcels". Bernard Shaw, the subject of the first essay, is much better known than either Yeats or Joyce, partly because his plays still attract audiences and therefore are produced, and partly because of his special genius for being noticed. G. B. S. made himself a legend, and the author, who writes frankly as "one who was never a Shavian," has some fresh and interesting opinions on it. Anyone seriously interested in Shaw should find them worth consideration.

I wonder how many people read William Butler Yeats nowadays. Few, probably, with the exception of students of his times or technique, and the "dedicated Irishmen" one meets occasionally. Yet this man (whose hackneyed and certainly not representative, "I will arise and go now, and go to Innisfree" has been delivered in sing-song by a generation of Ontario schoolboys), is not only Ireland's greatest poet, but one of the finest to write in English in any age. Moreover he is the man to whom all readers of modern plays owe a debt of gratitude for his leadership of the Irish Literary Revival and the Irish National Theatre. The image of this strange and wonderful lyric poet is illumined by Ussher's knowledge and his evident profound understanding; an image a trifle over-rosy and bizarre, like the fanciful paintings of his brother Jack Yeats.

Doubting Thomist and Joking Jesuit is the heading for the essay on James Joyce and to anyone genuinely interested it explains much that is puzzling about the author of Ulysses and Finnegan's Wake. Early criticisms by Shaw, Yeats, Chesterton and Rebecca West are included, bursting with epithets and denunciations that would surely bring to Joyce's lips a wry smile if he could reread them today when his name is accepted among the great writers of English prose. Particularly gratifying to this reviewer is Ussher's repeated mention of the humour that pervades much of Joyce's writing; people talk solemnly and pretentiously about him, apparently ignorant of the fact that his serio-comic symbolism contains passages of great comedy.

Ussher, an Irishman himself, writes of his three great countrymen wittily and wisely, and in a vigorous style. The originality of his ideas and the freshness of his viewpoint are well worth the attention of any reader interested in a critical appraisal of Shaw, Yeats, and Joyce. A word of warning, though! The scope of the essays is broad and embraces each man's philosophy and literary "religion," with references to his works. The author takes for granted that the reader is as well acquainted with the Blooms and Stephen Dedalus as with Mrs. Warren and Candida. A book for the fairly widely read and mature; certainly not for the "Jung and earsily Freudened."

BOOKS IN GENERAL by V. S. Pritchett. A book of thirty-four wonderful little essays which have appeared in the literary section of the New Statesman and Nation under the same title. To read it is to be taken on a lively walk while the learned, urbane and good-humoured Pritchett discusses Cellini, Swift, Sterne and Zola, stopping on the way to eavesdrop on the bickering Carlyles and laugh aloud with W. W. Jacobs And what a knowledge of literature he has! His wide reading enables him to throw light on Clough with quotations from Stendhal and E. M. Forster, or on Daudet's Sapho with a line from Tolstoy. He says what he has to say with just the right economy of phrase and with great good sense. This is rich writing— criticism with cream.

THE ROMANTIC 90's by Richard Le Gallienne. A reprint of the account of the Beardsley period (first published 1926) by one of the circle whose poetry, essays and criticism issued from under the sign of the Bodley Head. This is an entertaining book full of anecdote about Wilde and Whistler, Swinburne, Meredith, the Meynells — all the coterie variously called romantic, "yellow," decadent, who were trying at the end of the nineteenth century to fix the quintessence of the times in words and paint. In Le Gallienne's words, "The amount of creative revolutionary energy packed into that amazing decade is almost bewildering in its variety. So much was going on at once, in so many directions, with so passionate a fervour. London was like a ten-ringed circus, with vividly orginal performers claiming one's distracted attention in every ring." A delightful book, with photographs, facsimiles of letters, and for frontispiece a caricature of the author by 'the inimitable Max' Beerbolm.

DIVERSION of a different sort of those of the fin de siecle are everywhere in London now, with the coronation of Queen Elizabeth less than three weeks away. The event has caused a spate of special books on British royalty, of which the Public Library has a good selection. The best this reviwer has seen about the actual ceremony is The History of the Coronation by Lawrence E. Tanner, Keeper of the Muniments and Library, Westminster Abbey. Profusely illustrated with drawings of medieval coronations and other historic crownings, it is brought up to date with photographs of the present Queen (as well as a series of the coronation of her father, King George VI), the Abbey, and dignitaries who will take part. The ritual is described in detail, and there is a chapter on the origins of the service. Beautiful in make-up and printed on fine paper, this book is a fitting memento of a great occasion. There is a special charm and interest in the facsimile of The Sun newspaper of June 28th, 1838, printed in gold in honour of the coronation of Queen Victoria by Clowes and Son, the firm of printers—now known as William Clowes and Son, who brought out the facsimile and this fine book.

The Royal Story by Richard J. Doyle is a tapestry of legend, fable and fact surrounding the rulers of the throne, and of the days of Boadicea. It is the story of the throne, and of the loyalty, devotion, intrigue and villainy of the people near it. Written in an easy style, the story runs along in the chatty manner of many present-day newspaper columnists. A handy little book for reference, spiced with anecdotes.

Then there is Leonard Wibberley's The Coronation Book, the Dramatic Story in History and Legend. This book is illustrated, and for those particularly interested in the crown jewels there are photographs of them.

Alan A. Michie writes about what the monarchy is and what it does under the headings The Institution of the Monarchy, The Apparatus of Majesty, The Royal Family, and adds chapters on the Privy Purse, Royal Homes and Royal Housekeeping. A comprehensive book about the accoutrements and appurtenances of a British sovereign. This book is also illustrated, and its title is: "God Save The Queen!"

Letter To The Editor

THANKS FIRE HELPERS

Sir: We owe a deep debt of gratitude to all those who assisted at our barn fire last Sunday, also to the telephone operator at Warsaw. The situation had become most desperate, and we could have only held out for a few seconds longer, when powerful help arrived from every quarter and the struggle was won. Had we lost the barn all the buildings on the farm would have gone as the high wind was "dead on" and the buildings in close proximity. Our deepest and sincerest thanks to all.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnston Blakely, Warsaw

Currie Costs

(Financial Post)

In Edmonton the other day Mines Minister George Prudham referred to the expense of the Currie report. He said it cost Canadians more than the irregularities it revealed in the Petawawa camp.

We don't suppose Mr. Prudham pressed the argument too far. We hope he didn't. For it's a poor one.

It implies that the cop should call off the chase because the gas he's burning up costs more than the fine to be imposed. In the extreme it could mean a whole range of different types of theft. There would be "hot pursuit" thievery, plain "pursueable" thievery, and for stealing apples, grapefruit, cans of tomatoes, the odd chicken and other inexpensive items, "exempt" thievery, because the value of the loot is less than the wear on the squad car and on the policemen's nerves.

Mr. Prudham certainly didn't mean this. But that's where the argument can lead.

Regardless of what significance is attached to the Currie findings, certainly its cost to taxpayers, within reason, has no bearing whatever on its real worth.

Noble Chore

(London Free Press)

Two of the meatiest Clydesdales or Shires in London, England, have been chosen to lug the two-and-a-half ton state coach to be used by the Speaker of the House of Commons in the coronation parade. These noble beasts—Sovereign and Royal, brewery nags—have thus been honoured by the state.

These glistening steeds will not be overwrought. They weigh about a ton apiece, and London's streets are smooth. Then, they are used to it. A loaded beer waggon turns the scale at about the same figure as the state coach — plus the Speaker.

Trainer Says It's True, Elephants Never Forget

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Is it true that elephants never forget?

Paul Jones thinks so, and he's been working with them for 29 years. He is here to help direct 11 pachyderm actors through a Hollywood movie.

"Sure, they remember," says Jones. "Why, I was in the service for five years during the war. When I got back, the elephants remembered me just the same as if I'd been there yesterday I've had elephants remember me after 10 years or more."

Further evidence: When the Cole Brothers circus elephants arrived here for their film debuts, they were paraded through the Los Angeles streets. Then they were loaded into trucks to be brought to the studio. Three of the beasts balked. They had been in a highway accident five years ago, and they refused to tangle with Los Angeles traffic.

TRIO WALKS

The trio walked all the way to the studio. This delighted Paramount, which is featuring them in a film called "Elephant Walk."

Jones, a rugged big-top veteran, speaks with affection about his elephants. He ran away from his Erie, Penn., home to join the circus. He started working with the elephants right away, "because they always fascinated me."

Not only do they have good memories, he said; they're also the smartest animal in the circus. They may all look alike to you and me, but Jones can tell them apart.

HAVE DIFFERENT FACES

"They all have different faces, same as humans," he explained. "You get used to seeing them. It's a funny thing—the pony trainer knows all his animals by name, but can't tell my elephants apart. I know the elephants, but I could not recognize his ponies."

Jones said that most circus elephants are females. The males do not train as well; they're unpredictable and can go on rampages. Then they have to be destroyed.

GRANT'S SPORT CORNER

By DON GRANT

Nothing's too hard to do, especially when it's for an old friend. So for a minute let's turn away from the spring season back to winter and hockey.

Hockey fans will remember my dark-haired friend who played defence for the Petes three years ago. He's the big fellow who gave city hockey color by bouncing one and all, and at the same time gave the fans their money's worth with his antics and backtalk. He's Bill McMaster.

For the past two years Bill has been playing hockey to the tune of the bagpipes in bonnie Scotland's hockey league for Dumfermline. And he's really enjoyed those years.

Played 70 Games In Past Season

Bill loves hockey and while in Scotland he had oodles of it. Over there he played some 70 games during the past season in three cup schedules. Dumfermline won the Scottish Cup, Falkirk won the Canada Cup, and then Dumfermline lost out to Ayr in the big cup, the National league.

During those two years Bill rose from a so-so player who had lots of color to a top performer behind the blueline. In fact he improved so much he has been mentioned for the all-star Scottish team.

Around this neck of the woods, Bill was known mostly for his robust actions along the ice lanes. He taunted both players and crowds to the point where some actually hated him, but they still admired him.

His first season in Scotland taught him to quiet his playing down to minor penalties instead of majors for fighting. But he still retained his power to "get the crowd going."

When Bill first went to Scotland he thought he would bounce them around at will, but laughs now as he recalls "I got bounced".

Abrupt End To Fistic Encounters

His fights came to an abrupt end midway through the first season. In his third one he tangled with a former boxer turned hockey player. Bill missed the lad on the first punch, and broke his thumb against the boards. The other fellow didn't miss. He connected firmly on Bill's nose, shattering it. To make matters worse, a $10 fine followed that brawl.

Bill chuckles when he recalls how the crowds "loved" him. Remember how he bowed to them, laughed at them at the Civic? Well he didn't change with the result he was loved in Dumfermline and hated in other Scottish centres.

Apparently hockey fans over there are much the same as here, quite excitable. One Falkirk woman forgot her lady-like manners and when Bill skated past, leaned over the rail spitting on his clean sweater.

Good-natured Bill laughs off those actions, realizing that fans when excited do things they would not ordinarily do.

Found People Very Friendly

On the whole Bill found the Scots very friendly and very enthusiastic about hockey. He recalls that often while walking along streets, people would lean out windows to ask how the team made out.

At a glance one would think these imports aren't too well paid. Bill was paid £12 a week, about $36. But he's quick to point out that the cost of living is much lower, basing his reasoning on the room and board which was $6.50 a week. He compared his wages to about $70 a week in Canada.

To fill in time Bill worked for an auctioneer as a clerk, and last summer in order to keep in shape on a construction job. It also helped bring in a few extra pennies.

Bill's biggest rave (Memorial Centre people, please note) was about the arenas. Dumfermline's ice surface was 200 feet by 90 feet and the arena seated 4,500. In the rink was a lounge, a bar, and a restaurant. Ayr's arena was the largest, seating 6,000, with an ice surface 210 by 90 feet. The Civic arena will feel like a band box to Bill after those rinks.

Here's something fans ! ! Prices for the games varied between two and three bob, from 28 cents to 42 cents a seat.

Bill literally ran into another former player, Moe Fife, several times during games. According to Bill, Moe's "really playing good hockey". He made the Scottish all-star team last year and his chances are good again this year.

Would Like To Get High-Scoring Pete

I don't know whether Chum Fryia knows it or not, but coach Keith Kewley of Paisley is interested in getting the high-scoring Petes player to Scotland. Through newspaper clippings (a plug for the Examiner), Kewley has followed Chum's play and would like to see Chum in a Paisley uniform next season.

At present Kewley is negotiating with Dumfermline for Bill's release. He's even offered to trade two of his high scorers, Whit Mousseau or Bernie Hill. Bill would like to play in Paisley; it means more jack for him.

If Scotland fails to come through for next season, Bill will quite likely be back in a Petes' uniform. His color could help draw the fans back to the Civic.

Meanwhile after another week's holidaying with friends in Peterborough, Bill will leave for the west where he will work the summer on his dad's farm at Gainsborough, Sask.

1952 ORFUNS' COACH, Tony Kotowski has been made an offer by the Peterborough Orfuns to return as coach for the 1953 season. Kotowski (left) talked with the Orfuns Wednesday night when the offer was made, giving him a week to reply. Frank Gnup (right), who was being considered for the coaching job, has decided to remain in Brantford since that senior ORFU has obtained strong financial backing and will operate again this year.

Kotowski Discusses Terms With Orfuns' Executive And May Coach Grid Squad

By DON GRANT

Tony Kotowski may be back this year as coach of the Peterborough Orfuns, last year's Canadian intermediate football finalists. The Orfuns have made the 1952 mentor an offer to return as coach and if the money problems are ironed out smoothly within the next week Kotowski will probably be signed some time next week.

Orfuns' president, Dr. Donald Aitken, said today that Kotowski talked with the club executive Wednesday night at a meeting at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club. Then Kotowski presented his offer and the club its offer.

DISCUSS TERMS

Dr. Aitken said the club asked the 1952 coach to name his terms for returning this year. Kotowski's terms, mainly money, were said by Dr. Aitken to be "higher than most ORFU coaches received last year."

But the Orfuns club followed up with a slightly lower offer and asked for a reply by next Wednesday.

This year the club has been talking to several players and coaches for the coaching task, but they seemed to favor either Kotowski or Frank Gnup, coach last year with Brantford's ORFU senior entry and former Orfuns' coach.

WAITED FOR FRANK

The Orfuns have waited several months for Gnup to decide his plans this year. He was considered as possible coach to succeed Frank Tindall at Queen's University in Kingston, but Tindall recently accepted another contract.

Now with stronger financial backing, the Brantford senior ORFU has decided to operate once more. With this solid backing, they feel they can field a contending team and Gnup has decided to remain there for another year, paving the way for a direct Orfun offer to Kotowski.

Despite offers from Western Clubs Kotowski now wants to stay in Peterborough and settle down. But in the three weeks that he's been in Peterborough, the former university student is having difficulties securing a steady job.

MAY RETURN

Dr. Aitken said that if there is no job soon Kotowski may return to the United States with his Peterborough bride.

Meanwhile the Orfuns, Cobourg Galloping Ghosts and Oshawa Red Raiders are looking for at least two more entries to form a strong Central Ontario intermediate grouping. Meeting with ORFU secretary, William Fry, this week the three clubs discussed the problem.

Possible new entries have been sent out to Oakville, Kitchener and the Balmy Beach Canoe Club of Toronto. Kitchener operated last year in the Western Ontario League and were defeated by Cobourg for the Ontario intermediate "B" championship.

Beaches Want Talent From Canada

TORONTO (CP)—The Balmy Beach Football club of the Ontario Rugby Football Union league reaffirmed at its annual meeting Wednesday night that the accent will be on Canadian talent for its 1953 campaign.

Sam Shefsky was re-elected president of the club that was trounced in the playoffs last year by Sarnia Imperials.

Shefsky said that two of the brightest young footballers in the Toronto area have signed, Balmy Beach contracts. Talented quarterback Gerry Doucette and hard-running halfback Nayland Moll head the list of new candidates which includes a couple of young aspirants from Orillia and two more from Sudbury.

However, Balmy Beach officials say there is no guarantee either Doucette or Moll will ever fit into a Beach uniform. Like several other candidates they will get their thorough trials with the parent Argonaut team and revert to the Beaches only if they fail to pass the Big Four test.

Shefsky said no decision had been made regarding a new coach to replace Gerry Tuttle, who wasn't invited back this year. Line coach Dale Doland also has been released.

Five New Champions Decided In Wrestling

TORONTO (CP)—Five new Canadian wrestling champions were decided Wednesday night in the wind-up card of eight bouts in the Canadian amateur wrestling association's championship meet.

The new titleholders are August Schaufelberger of Montreal in the 136½ pound class; Helga Rausti, Toronto, 147½; Ray Ricci, Montreal, 160½; Jim Christie, Toronto, 174; and Wally Press, St. Catharines, heavyweight.

Adrien Poliquin of Montreal retained the 125½-pound title he has held since 1948 after pinning John Driesman of Toronto in 11 minutes and 35 seconds.

Ottawa Trips Leafs 3-0 In Only Game

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Maybe it was just coincidence, but the 13th was a bad day for the International Baseball League.

Of the four night contests scheduled, one was postponed because of rain, another called after the sixth inning for the same reason and a third cancelled due to power failure.

Ottawa and Toronto Maple Leafs played the only complete game, which drew 2,237 Athletics fans in chilly weather.

Rookie Art Dimar threw a masterful four-hitter in blanking the Leafs 3-0. The right-hander walked only three for his first victory in three starts.

Starter Stubby Overmire, a lefty with St. Louis Browns and the Leafs last season, went down to his second loss without a win. He was pulled for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

4th PLACE TIE

Ottawa's win put them in a fourth-place tie with Toronto, along with Baltimore Orioles, who lost an abbreviated contest 6-2 to the seventh-place Syracuse Chiefs, when rain cut the game short during the sixth.

The clubs are a full game behind the leaders, Montreal and Buffalo.

At Baltimore Wednesday night, Lynn Lovenguth limited the Orioles to five hits, while the Chiefs collected 10 safeties off Dick Starr and Vern Taylor. All are right-handers.

Four round-trippers gave Lovenguth a big hand. Charley Bell belted two and Hector Rodriguez and Hank Workman each blasted one.

Kent Given Setback By Glamorgan Play

LONDON (Reuters)—Kent met an unexpected setback Wednesday when Glamorgan dismissed them for 91 first-innings runs on a good wicket.

Kent has been doing well in county championship cricket during the early part of the season, but could not handle the slow spinners of Glamorgan captain Wilf Wooler, who took six wickets for 39 runs in 14 overs.

Glamorgan passed Kent's total for the loss of only four wickets and went on to close at 207 for five.

Braves Smother Giants 11-1 Behind Johnson

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

It's about time travel agents paid a special tribute to Milwaukee Braves. Where could they find a better example of the benefits to be obtained by a change of scenery? The 1,000-mile westward shift from the beanpots of Boston to the brewing centre of Milwaukee has worked wonders for the club that finished a dismal seventh in the National League last year. Today's standings show the Braves only half a game out of first place. They have seven more games in their present home stand at their new $5,000,000 stadium where they have won seven out of eight.

Fans are flocking to watch their new heroes perform. In seven home dates the club has drawn 172,781 cash customers. Last year's total attendance in Boston was 281,778.

FAITHFUL TURN OUT

Wednesday at 39 degrees, 9,043 of the faithful turned out to watch their Braves smother New York Giants, 11-1. This brought the total crowd for the two game Giant series to 39,010, only 1,749 less than saw the New Yorkers play in Boston all last season.

The Braves had only one pitcher —Ernie Johnson—who finished last year with an average as high as .500. Yet nine of their 13 victories this season have been registered by last year's mound staff.

Lou Burdette, Wednesday's winner, has shown remarkable improvement. Working as a long distance relief man, Burdette has pitched 17 1-3 innings in three games, has a 2-0 record and a 2.12 earned run average.

Milwaukee moved into second place over Brooklyn which was frozen out of its scheduled game at Chicago. Rain and wet grounds also caused postponement of the other two National League contests —Pittsburgh at Cincinnati and Philadelphia at St. Louis.

WIN THIRD STRAIGHT

In the American League, New York Yankees won their third straight over Cleveland, 9-4, droping the Indians into third place. Boston whipped Chicago, 3-0, and Philadelphia broke its seven-game losing streak at the expense of St. Louis Browns, 2-1. A night game at Washington between the Senators and the Detroit Tigers was rained out.

Shut out on one hit the previous night, Cleveland came up with four runs in the first four innings against the Yankees Wednesday. Then its pitching folded and by the end of seven the Yanks were ahead to stay. Mike Garcia was the loser as Eddie Lopat beat the Indians for the 36th time in his career. He has lost to them in nine games.

Marv Grissom handcuffed the White Sox but despite the loss Chicago moved over Cleveland into second place. The Sox have played five more games and won three more than the Indians.

Eddie Joost homered in the eighth to give Philadelphia its victory.

CAHA Decides It Will Allow Sub-Goalie On Club Rosters

By W. R. WHEATLEY

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association congratulated itself today on having found a possible cure for a perennial playoff headache.

Bedevilled by squawks about replacements for goaltenders, the association at its annual meeting Wednesday night decided to throw in goalies aplenty. Delegates at the general meeting agreed that a club may carry 18 players, including a goalie, and added a sub-goalie for good measure.

On top of that it was agreed that in the national playoffs, a standby goalie must be named and even a second standby. They must come from within the branch itself.

By this decision the CAHA got rid of the habit of clubs calling on goaltenders from here and there to give a lift when the regular netminder was injured or even a trifle incapacitated.

PROMISED STATEMENT

The final general meeting today was promised a statement by secretary-manager George Dudley dealing with the major series. This concerns primarily two leagues—the Quebec Senior and the Maritime Major. The QSHL last Monday decided to turn professional and the Maritime circuit thereby was left out in the cold.

A move by the Ottawa and District branch to have all regulations regarding the major series thrown out the window was defeated Wednesday by the CAHA's resolutions committee.

It is assumed that the Maritimes must look elsewhere for playoff competition. It may be with an-Quebec senior circuit.

Quebec branch of the CAHA got a beating on Wednesday but on a series of resolutions presented after the branch had been reinstated following its defiance of parent body on a matter of player registration.

Quebec's proposal that officers have no vote on matters involving their own branch was tossed out. Another resolution, having to do with geographical matters regarding Quebec and Ontario, was tabled. Another, dealing with percentages of gates for clubs in playoffs, was sent along to the finance committee.

The minor leagues committee under chairman Frank Becker of the British Columbia branch came up with some glowing statistical reports. Registration of juvenile, midget and bantam players in Canada for the 1952-53 season was 44,496.

Confederation Wins

Confederation juniors downed the Queen Mary School softball squad by a 27-21 score earlier this week. They scored 13 runs in the first inning, seven next time up, three in the third and four in the fourth of the loose tilt. Queen Mary got four in the first, 10 in the third stanza and seven next time to bat. Teams:

Confederation — Westwood, Doleman, Hewie, Brook, Bosak, Houselander, MacLellan, Jackson, Rex.

Queen Mary — Bruce, Jones, Bignell, Goodson, Freeburn, Heywood, Banks, Horton, Gordon.

TRAINS IN SECRET

CHICAGO (AP)—Jersey Joe Walcott, the perennial underdog, worked out privately Wednesday for his eighth title fight when heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano hid out in a private home after arriving from his Holland, Mich., training camp.

Manager Felix Bocchicchio barred the doors of the Midwest gym to the press and public as 39-year-old Jersey Joe and his "corner men" perfected their routine.

"We want to be sure Joe understands what he is supposed to do," said Bocchicchio. "We want to see him make the moves that we have worked on since the last fight."

Earlier in the day, Walcott interrupted his Bible reading long enough to say he hadn't any set plan of battle. He said that he can box, punch, hook or cross, changing his style at a minute's notice.

Before he slammed down the iron curtain on the Camden, N.J., veteran, Bocchicchio insisted he had not grabbed any of the tempting 3 to 1 odds. In fact, there was little evidence of heavy betting on the 15-round scrap scheduled for Chicago Stadium Friday night. Unofficial odds vary from 3 to 1 to 18 to 5. There is no big action from either side.

After the workout Walcott weighed 198 pounds. He expects to go into the ring at 195, the same as last September.

Marciano was whisked away after he arrived. The 28-year-old champion, confident of scoring a knockout midway in the fight, had been doing road work at his training camp. He expects to do some more running today but no gym work.

Al Weill, Marciano's manager, needled about Bocchicchio's persistent claims that Rocky butted Jersey Joe in their first fight, veiled "the fighter of mine ever has lost a fight on a foul yet."

MONTREAL (CP) — Advisory committee of the Canadian Professional Golfers Association Wednesday named five players of the seven-man Canadian team in the annual international PGA team matches between Canada and the United States.

Chosen were Bobby Locke, South Africa, Peter Thomson, Australia, Stan Leonard, Vancouver, Bill Kerr Montreal, and Pat Fletcher, CPGA champion from Saskatoon.

CROSBY QUITS TOURNEY

ST. ANDREW'S, Scotland (AP)—Bing Crosby withdrew his entry from the British amateur golf championships starting May 25, an official of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club announced Wednesday night. Some London newspapers protested recently against the practice of Crosby and "other American comedians and elderly business man" entering championship golf tournaments.

Water Skiers Show At Bensfort Bridge

Alf Pink's team from the Peterborough Water Ski Association open a run of 30 district water ski shows this Sunday at 2 p.m. at Bensfort Bridge. It is to be a sort of warm-up for the season which culminates in the big provincial meet to be held on Little Lake in August. The idea of these smaller district shows is to try to line up a local skier good enough to take a championship at the August meet.

Something new will be seen at the Bensfort Bridge "do" when an aqua disc will be used, something like a flying water saucer. The show will include water skiing and trick riding behind roaring motorboats, with a PA system keeping onlookers informed of what's doing. Mr. Pink recently obtained a $1,500 music machine for his aquatic shows.

Cricket Schedule

Next Monday, the local county cricket club plays Hamilton — representing Wentworth County — at the Oval in the first round of county competition for the Matthews Trophy.

In the county schedule, the local "A" club plays St. Simon's of Toronto here Saturday, while the local "B" team mets Parkdale in Toronto. Grace Church "B" plays the Peterborough "A" squad here May 23, as the "B" team mets St. Simon's in Toronto.

The rest of the "A" team's home games are: May 30, Parkdale; June 6, Peterborough "B"; June 20, Avro; July 4, Dovercourt; August 8, St. Edmund's. Away games: June 27, St. Edmund's; July 18, Avro; July 25, Parkdale; August 15, St. Simon's; August 22, Grace Church; September 5, Dovercourt.

The other local "B" team home games: June 27, Avro; July 18, St. Edmunds; July 25, Dovercourt; August 15, Parkdale, August 22, St. Simon's; August 29, Peterborough "A"; September 5, Grace Church. Their away games: May 30, Dovercourt; June 20, St. Edmund's; July 4, Grace Church; August 8, Avro.

Pep Outpoints Jacky Blair

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Willie Pep, perpetual-motion man from Hartford, Conn., outpointed young, tough and willing Jacky Blair of Dallas Wednesday night in a 10-round fight. Pep was too fast for the Dallas youngster who found the former world featherweight champion an elusive target.

Pep, twice world's champion and fighting back toward the crown held by Sandy Saddler, was the aggressor all the way. He cut Blair around the eyes and made his nose bleed. The only knockdown came in the 10th round as Blair made his last bid. He put Pep to his knees with a left to the chin but Willie bounced up without a count.

Pep weighed 129¾, Blair 131.

Leafs Buy Sleater

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League have purchased pitchers Lou Sleater Jr., from Washington Senators and Forrest Main from Pittsburgh Pirates for a total of $30,000, Jack Cooke, owner of the Leafs, announced Wednesday night.

Clearwater Lake in the Ungava district of northern Quebec has an area of 478 square miles.

18 Players Shifted Back To Minors

NEW YORK (AP)—Eighteen players who started the campaign with major league teams were back in the minors today, victims of the 25-player limit in the big time, and two others wore different uniforms.

From now until Sept. 1, each major league club is permitted only 25 players, plus up to five who are back for their first season after serving in the armed forces.

Last year's pennant winners—New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers—both had to shave their rosters. The world champion Yanks optioned outfielder Bob Cerv to Kansas City of the American Association and infielders Jim Brideweser and Frank Verdi to Syracuse of the International League.

The Brooks sent Dixie Howell, their bullpen catcher, to St. Paul of the American Association and optioned outfielder Dick Williams to Montreal of the International League. They also restored to active service first baseman Wayne Belardi, out since the start of the season because of an elbow operation.

SELL CATCHER

Pittsburgh Pirates sold catcher Eddie Fitzgerald to Washington Senators for an undisclosed amount of cash and a couple of pitchers for minor league teams. Cincinnati Redlegs sold catcher Hank Foiles to Cleveland in a straight cash deal. The amount wasn't announced.

Besides bartering Fitzgerald, the Pirates sold Forrest Main to Toronto of the International League and Bob Hall to Seattle of the Pacific Coast League.

Washington was the last to get under the limit when it asked for waivers on catcher Les Peden and sold pitcher Lou Sleater to Toronto.

The only other team in the National League that was over the limit was St. Louis Cardinals. They released Billy Johnson outright. The third-baseman is a 10-year man and can make a deal for himself. Milwaukee cut to 24 men by sending pitcher Murray Wall to Toledo of the American Association.

RELEASE INFIELDER

In the American League, Philadelphia released infielder Don Kolloway and sent pitcher John Mackinson to Ottawa of the International League on 24-hour recall.

Bill Boyd, the Pacific Coast League's leading hitter last year with Seattle, was sent down to Charleston of the American Asso-

58 Youngsters Attend Argonaut School

TORONTO (CP)—Fifty-eight kids with stars in their eyes and a bit of lead in their boots gave the 1953 football campaign a muscle-aching kick-off in these parts Wednesday night.

It was the opening of the Dominion champion Toronto Argonauts' spring training school, the first time in history that the Double Blues have conducted a clinic for youngsters.

They'll keep it up nightly for three weeks or a month and then—maybe a tryout next fall with the champions for two or three, to Argonaut farm clubs for 10 or 12 and a "come back next year, kid," for many others.

Argonauts, who have been accused of having lady luck beam at them in Big Four Football Union play, had the breaks with them Wednesday night. The workout was held in ideal football weather, about 50 degrees with enough nip in the air to make it comfortable for the padded youngsters.

SHOWN HOW

Head coach Frank Clair was in charge with players Knobby Wirkowski, Teddy Toogood, Jack Carpenter, Buddy Fowler and line coach John (Moose) Kerns assisting. The kids were shown how to break from a crouch, how to take handoffs and the proper way to tackle without injuring themselves.

The two-hour workout ended with sprints and the youngsters, who probably have run only for street-cars since last fall, were noticeably slow. "They'll get the lead out of their boots with a few nights of this," one coach commented.

UPSWING—At ages when most athletes in other sports are headed for retirement, the holders of golf's major professional cahmpionships are enjoying their most successful years. They are, left to right, Bobby Locke, 35, British Open; Jim Turnesa, 40, PGA; and Julius Boros, 32, United Sttaes Open.

Measles Most Active Of Diseases In City

Communicable diseases reported to the Peterborough Department of Health during April totalled 193. Measles was top on the list with 168 cases.

These figures were included in the report given by Dr. J. P. Wells, medical oficer of health, at the Board of Health meeting Wednesday afternoon.

Four referred chest X-ray clinics were held during the month with a total attendance of 179. Three new cases of tuberculosis were reported.

Seventen child health clinics were held with a total attendance of 298.

Miss Veronica O'Leary, acting supervisor of nurses, reported 304 visits were made to homes by department nurses, during the month.

iation along with pitcher Connie Johnson, by Chicago White Sox.

First baseman Dixie Upright will toil for Los Angeles and pitcher Bob Habenicht will throw for Charleston. They started the season with St. Louis Browns.

Awarded $676 For Damages After Accident

Ben Swartz of Manor Hill Rd. on Tuesday afternoon was awarded $676.81 and county court costs in a car accident case heard by Judge John de N. Kennedy. County court was in the County Council chamber because the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court were going on in the regular court room.

Judgment was against Jacob Titus, 42, of 194 Hunter St. And Titus' counterclaim, amounting to $93, was dismissed with costs.

The action arose as the result of a two-car collision August 22, 1952, on Highway 28, just south of Springville. Titus was driving toward Port Hope and was trying to pass another southbound car on a hill when he collided with a northbound car, driven by Swartz.

Swartz saw the Titus car approaching and tried to turn into a driveway on the right-hand side of the highway. He nearly succeeded but the Titus car hit the left rear corner of his vehicle and spun it around.

DAMAGES

Damage to Swartz' car was assessed at $586.81 and a dental bill was assessed at $90 by Judge Kennedy, giving Swartz $671.81 damages in all.

"It seems to me that the defendant, Titus, was negligent in that while driving up the hill which had a solid line down the centre, and had a sign saying 'no passing on hill', he crossed the solid line and travelled onto the wrong side of the line to overtake a car ahead of him and pass such vehicle without taking the precaution that the travelled part of the highway to the left of the car was safely free of traffic," said Judge Kennedy in an oral judgment. "Such negligence was the sole cause of the accident."

Titus was convicted of dangerous driving on Oct. 7 by Magistrate W. R. Philp, and he was fined $50 and costs. He appealed the sentence but it was upheld in county court by Judge Kennedy on Feb. 25. The civil action followed.

German General Briefs Officers

BONN, Germany (AP)—Canadian senior officers Wednesday received a strategic briefing from a German general. Touring members of the Canadian National Defence College, Kingston, Ont., heard a talk by Gen. Adolf Heusinger, a wartime staff officer on the Russian front, about West Germany's proposed role in Western defence.

Huesinger is one of the top planners of the proposed 500,000-man German contribution to the projected European Army.

Earlier the Canadians had had a political talk from Prof. Erich Kaufmann, of the Bonn foreign office.

Thursday they are to be addressed by the U. S. high commissioner, Dr. James B. Conant, and on Friday they travel south to visit the U. S. Army.

Young Quebec PoW Arrives In Canada

QUEBEC (CP)—L. Cpl. Paul Dugal, first Canadian to figure in the Korean war prisoners exchange, came home today and was greeted by his weeping mother at Ancienne Lorette airport.

The 20-year-old semi-paralyzed member of the Royal 22nd Regiment arrived at 11:50 p. m., EDT in an RCAF plane and walked out, leaning on a cane.

Mrs. Yvonne Dugal rushed toward her only son with a bouquet of roses and her first words were: "Don't rush."

Eyes moist with motion, the hefty little soldier said simply as he embraced his mother:

"How are you, were you very lonesome?"

Agathe Garneau, Dugal's 20-year-old sweetheart, then embraced the auburn-haired soldier.

Dugal, who smuggled out the names of several Canadian prisoners of war held in North Korea, was then taken to the military hospital.

Mexico Offers Visitors Their Climate a La Carte

By JEAN E. STENTON

MEXICO CITY—The visitor to Mexico can choose his climate and his scenery as one selects a meal—a la carte. Within two or three hours from Mexico City you can find whatever type of thing appeals to you as a vacation land.

The Tropic of Cancer passes almost through the centre of Mexico and thus puts the country at about the same latitude as Northern Africa. From that you might assume that Mexico is hot. Nothing could be farther from the truth. At least two-thirds of its territory lies high above sea level on extensive plateaux, spreading between two immense mountain ranges which parallel the coasts and traverse the entire length of the country.

Situated at elevations varying on the average from 5,000 to 8,000 feet, most of Mexico is temperate or sometimes cool. The average range of temperature in Mexico city when I was there was from 58-72 degrees. You could wander around without a coat in the daytime but at nights it was much cooler because of the altitude. That swift change after twilight is typical of most of the places I visited.

Climate in Mexico is determined vertically rather than horizontally. Simply by going up or down it is possible to adjust the temperature to the individual taste. Those who find Mexico City cool or who are bothered by the altitude can in two hours reach Cuernavaca, 2,000 feet lower and much warmer.

In about the same time, the visitor can travel from sturdy pines to swaying palms, from the snowbound Nevado de Toluca to the balmy sub-tropical valley of Morelos.

Throughout the greater part of Mexico rainfall is restricted to the months of June, July, August, September and October. During these months it rains for a short time nearly every day, but not all day. Whereas in the remaining seven months of the year, it hardly rains at all. Many Mexicans consider the rainy season their most beautiful because everything is so green. During the winter months it is dusty and the fields and hills all a brown color.

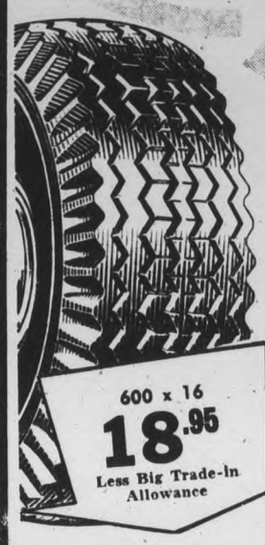
Because of the curious climatic regime, Mexico has a record of total hours of sunshine equalled by few other countries. Mexico City averages 2,743 hours of sunshine annually; Acapulco on the Pacific coast 3,017; Zacatecas in the central part of the Republic 3,085. Compare these figures with France's southern resort of Nice, and you will understand why the 2,700 hours of sunshine in Mexico is often referred to as the land of eternal springtime.

And if Mexico's climate offers an incomparable variety, it is surpassed by its landscape. In the north there is a vast expanse of cactus and sand, impaled to the east and west by mighty ranges of mountains which slope down to lush tropical coasts. The southern states are the vast primordial forests, crisscrossed by big rivers. In the central region around Mexico City, eternal snows glisten over the peaks of two mighty volcanoes.

EVERYTHING IN ONE

In order to duplicate Mexico's many attractions you would have to cross oceans, travel thousands of miles and spend thousands of dollars. You would have to go all the way to Egypt to find a parallel for the superb pyramids of Teotihuacan and the ruined cities of Mitla and Monte Alban; to Switzerland to behold such gorgeous scenery as in Oaxaca state and around Patzcuaro; probably all the way to China or India to encounter equally quaint and picturesque folk customs and to Spain and Italy for analogous architecture such as in Morelia and Puebla.

For the average person Mexico offers the maximum returns for the minimum of money. From the most cosmopolitan ways of city life to the incomparable scenery of beautiful resorts like Acapulco and San Jose de Purua you have only to order it and it is yours.



Annoys Newspaper

NEW YORK (CP)—The New York Times expressed impatience today with delay in issuance of a licence to New York state to join Ontario in the St. Lawrence power project.

In an editorial noting that although the presiding examiner of the U.S. federal power commission recommends New York take part, 20 days now must be allowed for exceptions to be taken by those who wish to protest.

"The conclusion is foregone and has been for months, which makes our Canadian friends, not to mention American supporters, impatient and a little exasperated."

ELIZABETH the Queen

By Marion Crawford

Former Governess to Her Majesty

© 1952 BY PRENTICE HALL, INC. DISTRIBUTED BY NEA SERVICE

Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh acknowledge cheers of thousands outside Buckingham Palace following their wedding To the left of Princess Elizabeth are her father, King George VI, and Princess Alexandra, a bridesmaid. Lady Mary Cambridge, another bridesmaid, is to the rear. To the right of the Duke stand Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary, mother and grandmother of the bride.

VIII

It is usually the wife who spreads oil on the troubled waters of a marriage. She likes to hear her husband praised, hates to feel a tension growing in her house when he is cross or short with visitors, as well may happen if he is not well. Men are very vocal about their aches and pains.

How much greater is the strain on a Royal wife! I have a deep admiration for Prince Philip as a grown man. He has qualities I greatly admire, but many of them are not fashioned for Court use. He is frank and outspoken, keen to be on with the next thing, and impatient of flattery. He hates unnecessary fuss and all publicity.

The fanfare which heralds his every move now must be torture to him. But it was the small price he gladly paid for marrying the woman he loved—to step out of the cheerful, semi-obscurity of the Navy into the brightest spotlight the world has ever known.

But one sometimes forgets. It is then that the wife has to step forward and smooth the path. Like her mother, Queen Elizabeth has this quality of sympathetic tact, highly developed.

"Come on, darling," her eyes seem to say. "Stick it just a little while longer."

Few who have not seen the effect it may have can appreciate the strain of always living in the public eye. When you or I marry we make our arrangements in private, marry among our friends and relatives, and honeymoon quietly in the place of our choice. But for Royalty things are never so simple.

Princess Elizabeth's engagement period was an exhausting time for her. There were so many things to attend to that she simply had to break off sometimes.

Even before the engagement, when nothing had been decided, the Princess had many uncomfortable moments in public when she overheard remarks about a possible "love match."

But at last everything was decided. The arrangements for the wedding brought great activity to the Palace and these too were things of public interest.

Even while on their honeymoon Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip were pestered by photographers and curious tourists who made special journeys to try to catch a glimpse of them.

It was not until they at last got up to Birkhall, a house belonging to the King near Balmoral, that they were able to be really alone.

The native courtesy of the Scots countryfolk showed itself in their tact. They left the Royal couple entirely to themselves.

It was winter, and snow was on the ground. Princess Elizabeth wrote me a charming letter. The countryside was lovely, she said, far more beautiful than it had been when we were up there at about the same time of year at the beginning of the war. They had a new puppy, Rummy, with them, who was enjoying himself romping about in the snow.

It must have been a happy time for them, left completely alone together for the first time in their lives.

But that particular kind of "being alone" happiness could not last long; soon they were back in the center of things, doing their great work in the world.

✧ ✧ ✧

It has become much easier for me to see the Princess as a person since I left the Palace and began my married life in the first home of my own I have ever had.

What matters most to all of us now is the character of the woman who, by the grace of God, now guides the destiny of many lands.

How often we see her smiling. Her smile is as much part of her as her lovely complexion and the features that startlingly recall to most people the pictures of the great Queen Victoria when she was young.

I see other resemblances as well. She is very like her aunt, Lady Rose Granville, who had a home at Dunfermline, not far from my mother's house.

Later, Lady Rose and her husband moved to London and took a pleasant, narrow house at 100 Park Street, where I used to go when I felt the need of peace and quiet.

Lady Rose was understanding. She knew how greatly I missed my Scottish hills, and how I liked sometimes to be alone.

She gave me a latchkey to the house. "Use the place whenever you wish," she said in her charming, soft voice, so like the Queen's. "It may not bring you the heather, but at least you will be quiet here."

Lady Rose is one of the most beautiful women I have ever seen. Even in middle age her skin is perfect. The artist Laszlo has captured it in a portrait which hung over the drawing room fireplace of the London house.

I knew that picture long ago when Queen Elizabeth was a child. Even then how like she was to her aunt! And as the child grew up she resembled more and more the lovely woman of the picture, with gracious, curving neck and shining candid clear complexion—an almost ethereal skin through which the warmth of health seems to shine.

Learn Lesson From Canada

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP)—American retailer Wednesday predicted that the per capita purchasing power of the Canadian people will be tripled within the next five years as a result of vast strides made in Canada's overall economy.

Addressing the annual meeting of the Canadian Retail Federation, Max Hess of Allentown, Penn., a member of the retail advisory committee of the American office of price stabilization, said:

"Most nations of the world as well as many business men can take a lesson in management from Canada."

Canada is not only one of the very few nations in the world living within its means but is also making substantial reductions annually in its funded debt, he added.

The anticipated increase in consumer purchasing power represented a potential bonanza of business never before experienced by Canadian retailers but the retailer would have to do more promotion and newspaper advertising in order to achieve maximum sales.

Road Requests Cut By $6,500

MILLBROOK (ENS). — Cavan Township's request for $40,500 for road expenditures in the township was cut $6,500 by the Department of Highways.

The township council learned this at their last meeting, when they received a letter from the department telling them they would receive $34,000 instead of the amount they requested. This slash in proposed road expenditures is occurring in almost every municipality in the province.

The village of Cavan petitioned at the same meeting for street lights, saying the ratepayers would assume responsibility for all costs. Council will make application for the lights.

Accounts totalling $4,218.68 were ordered paid. Major items included $250 for hospitalization, $95 for relief, and $3,659.20 for road payroll and vouchers.

Silver Cross Council Asks Greater Aid

STE. AGATHE DES MONTS, Que. (CP)—In a moving ceremony at the cenotaph here, a group of mothers and widows today paid tribute to sons and husbands killed in the Second World War.

Wreaths were placed at the foot of the cenotaph by some of the 100 delegates to the annual three-day convention of the national council of Silver Cross Women.

The organization was founded in 1946 by three mothers, Mrs. Fred Edwards, Mrs. W. H. Jacobs and Mrs. W. A. McIntyre, all of Toronto. Since then the organization has sought to have federal support of its members increased. The average received now is $35 monthly.

The organization is made up of mothers and widows who lost a son or husband during the Second World War. The federal government awarded a silver cross to such parents and depefidents.

NEED GREATER AID

At a business session it was decided to advise the federal government that additional aid immediately is needed for members of the association. Most of them are nearing pension age, and on receipt of the federal pension, the support now received will be cancelled.

Dr. C. B. Lumsden, Dominion president of the Canadian Legion, addressed delegates at the cenotaph ceremony.

Provincial presidents attending included Mrs. D. Stockdale, Ontario.

Group Visits Burwash Farm

SUDBURY (CP)—The Ontario government's select committee investigation reform institutions visited Burwash Industrial farm, 35 miles south of here, today.

The committee was appointed at the spring session of the legislature to make a survey of provincial reform institutions.

W. J. Stewart (PC—Toronto Parkdale) is chairman of the committee. Other members, including Farquhar Oliver, Liberal leader, and W. C. Crummett, CCF leader, arrived in Sudbury Wednesday and went to the prison farm to conduct a tour of the buildings and farm property.

The committee was to tour the farm again today.

The report will probably be available for discussion at the next session of the legislature.

Workers Scarce

REGINA (CP)—A scarcity of agricultural workers, but not a serious shortage, is predicted for Saskatchewan this year by J. W. Temple, Prairie regional superintendent of the unemployment insurance commission.

Duties Of Clerk, Comptroller Performed By City Clerk

City council in committee has been considering a brief from City Clerk A. E. Outram in which he sets out at considerable length the duties attaching to the municipal position of clerk-controller, most of which he listed as being performed by himself in the position of city clerk.

This statement is the basis for his request of a review of his salary in the light of the work which he has assumed beyond the ordinary scope of a city clerk. And that assupmtion, Mr. Outram has said, has been undertaken because he is virtually in the midst of it although in a sense it falls largely within the sphere of a city manager or clerk-comptroller.

Two cities have been mentioned as employing a comptroller at $12,000 a year, and, in that position, generally supervising the administration. They are Sudbury and Sarnia. A few yers ago, the council at that time discussed the enlargement of Mr. Outram's duties in the role of city manager, recognizing the growth of Peterborough in the last 15 years. A draft bylaw was prepared, but in the final stage of consideration it was not introduced.

WEAKNESSES SHOWN

The first part of the review summarizes weaknesses in the administration of another Ontario city as listed by J. D. Woods & Gordon Ltd., who were employed to investigate its affairs.

Some of the flaws recorded in that report were as follows:

No system of informing the council of the activities of each department, since there was no co-ordination of departments and council could not itself, because of lack of time, effectively co-ordinate them.

No proper reporting system of departmental activities.

Council members were not familiar with the detailed operations of the city departments, although under the existing system they were responsible for making decisions governing these detailed activities.

Employees' efforts had not been effective, due in part to lack of a program of staff development.

City council had been unable to judge the capabilities of department heads and other employees, resulting in reluctance to place confidence in department heads.

In the experience of that city, the report which it sought and paid for recommended the appointment of a clerk-comptroller, and listed his duties, which Mr. Outram quoted. Some of them are:

He will be responsible to the council for the activities of the deputy clerk, the deputy treasurer and tax collector, deputy assessment commissioner, supply manager and personnel administrator.

Perform the duties of personal administrator including the initial screening of job applicants, advising on and administering of personnel policies, assisting in union negotiations, etc.

Supervise the preparation of the annual city budget.

Prepare a long-term financial plan. Mr. Outram comments that this was originated by ex-Ald. Herbert Bradburn, who introduced it.

Attend council and committee meetings . . . supervise the agenda for council meetings . . . submit a monthly report on the activities of all city departments . . . co-ordinate the accounting activities of the city . . . prepare debenture bylaws and form of tender . . . place and maintain adequate insurance on all city property . . . negotiate for the purchase and sale of real estate for the council.

RESPONSIBLE FOR OTHERS

These are only some of the recommendations prepared for that Ontario city by Woods and Gordon Ltd.

In addition to those duties, the city clerk is responsible for others in Peterborough. Some of them:

Manager of city properties. . . rentals are now $38,350; recommending insurance details, relationships with tenants, and supervising the market and city parking lot.

Manager of the city hall, directing maintenance staff etc.

Purchase of properties for various city uses. . .Acts as police court clerk, handling documents, fines ($21,469 last year) etc.

"Staff relationships. The City Clerk (here) has become the confidant and advisor in many matters, large and small, of heads and members of all civic departments, including works, parks and sanitation. These relationships include discussion on matters of police, public relations, staff problems, etc., and in all these matters the clerk has been motivated by a desire to aid the entire civic service and improve its efficiency. Conferences of this pattern are continous, day after day."

Claims of all kinds against the city. . .City licenses. . .clerk of the Court of Revision; secretary of the Board of Health and Police Commission. . . Service on special traffic committee, and advisory committee on pensions and sick benefits.

"General relationship to council and its committees. One major service the clerk has tried to perform in this connection is have before each committee factual material to aid the committee in deciding policy . . . Frequently this requires personal effort and thought to secure the material and special co-operation of other departments and their employees. . . whose active co-operation he gains without authority."

"I know of no other city where the clerk gives the same personal attention to committee meetings and problems, and the preparation of comprehensive reports of the decisions reached. . . In many cities the clerk never personally attends committee meetings. . . and in some not even an employee of his department attends. . . resulting in long debates and even misunderstandings in council meetings when aldermen present committee reports which have not been properly worded and then circulated beforehand to council members."

The rest of the survey submits a long list of administrative duties and shows those performed by a clerk comptroller and those of the clerk of Peterborough.

To Review Progress In Ontario Agriculture

TORONTO (CP)—J. A. Garner, director of the representatives branch of the Ontario department of agriculture, said today that progress in all phases of agriculture during the last year will be reviewed at the agricultural representatives conference at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, May 26-29.

Delegates will observe operations at the college and the horticultural experiment station at Vineland.

Report Fewer Births, More Deaths In 1952

OTTAWA (CP) — There were fewer births and marriages, but more deaths, in Canada during February than in the same month last year, the bureau of statistics reported today.

Births decreased to 27,878 compared with 28,887 in February, 1952, with declines in Newfoundland, New Brunswick, Quebec, Manitoba and Alberta outweighing increases in the other five provinces.

The February decline in marriages was 6,325 from 6,370. All provinces except Newfoundland, Manitoba and Alberta registered increases.

Deaths were higher during February of this year in all provinces except Newfoundland and British Columbia. The all-Canada total advanced to 10,388 from 9,746 in 1952.

Find Waitress Dead In Car From Fumes

NEW LISKEARD (CP)—Virna Millen, a pretty 19-year-old waitress, was found dead early today in a car parked outside her boarding house here. Kenneth McLean, 22, of Cobalt, owner of the car, is in hospital here suffering from carbon monoxide poisoning.

Police said they believe McLean kept the engine of his new-model car running because of the cold weather while the couple were parked in front of the boarding house. Miss Millen was working on the night shift at a nearby restaurant and did not get off work until 5 a. m. today.

New Liskeard is 85 miles north of North Bay.

The wolverine, noted for its power and cunning, is a member of the weasel family.

20-Foot Waves Halted Sailors

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) —Capt. Albert Stiglin of the sunken freighter Henry Steinbrenner testified Wednesday that high seas in Monday's storm prevented his crew from battening down the ship's hatches.

Stiglin was the first witness before a U.S. board of inquiry.

At midnight Sunday, he said, winds of from 70 to 80 miles an hour whipped Lake Superior seas to 20 feet high.

Before dawn, he said, he noticed a hatch cover was "working loose and leaking."

He said he put out a life line from stern to prow for the crew to hang on to as they attempted to batten down the hatches, but that the angry seas prevented the men from getting to the hatches.

All-Water System For Moving Coal

CHICAGO (AP)—A new all-water system of coal transportation, which its developers say will result in "substantial freight costs savings" to Great Lakes industries, has been inaugurated in Illinois.

Five barges carrying 1,200 tons each of coal moved up the Illinois river May 7 from Liverpool, Ill. The coal was unloaded to a dock at South Chicago, then transferred to a self-loading steamship for movement to Ludington, Mich.

J. M. Morris of the United Electric Coal companies, a developer of the new system, said "the next shipment, within two weeks, will eliminate the transferral of coal to the docks before loading on boats."

Magnetic Nets In Gun Search

MONTREAL (CP)—Quebec provincial police, using magnetic nets, will probe the bottom of the St. Lawrence river under Mercier bridge this week for the revolver used in the slaying of Charles (the Kid) Waggoner.

Waggoner's body, a bullet through the head, was found March 29, weighed down with a 343-pound rock in a creek at nearby St. Mathieu de LaPrairie. Police say they believe the murder weapon may have been tossed into the river from the bridge.

Two men, James Rogers, 21, Montreal, and Frank Battaglia, 37, Brockville, are being held on murder charges.

Habitual Criminal Charge Read In Court

The first habitual criminal charge to be laid in St. Catharines, it was read to Gallo after he and two others were convicted of stealing a safe containing $137.60 and of escaping in the private car of St. Catharines police Sgt. Bern Hammett.

OFF TO SET THE WORLD ON FIRE?
Unlikely . . . but possible! Over 80% of the forest fires that occur in Ontario every year are caused by human carelessness. Even a youngster, as determined as he is to be careful, might start one through an instant's forgetfulness. Everyone can help the Forest Ranger this year by keeping forest fires in mind . . . and out of our forests!

Soil And Seed Blessed To Close Course

CAVAN (ENS). — The soil and seed service which originated more than 1,000 years ago in England was used Tuesday evening at St. John's Anglican Church, Ida, to conclude the rural school for Anglican theological students.

For the past two weeks the students have been taking lectures and practical lessons in the parish of Cavan.

The Rev. Allan Read of Mono Mills, in whose parish the school originated, and who revived the ancient service, was in charge of the serice. Assisting him were the Rev. A. Craig, Saskatoon, and the Rev. M. Pocock of Cavan.

Six men of the congregation—Bert Foster, William Howden, E. Gray, G. A. Spicer, and the wardens, Herbert Morton and Frank Harkness — brought forward the offerings of money, of homemade bread and wine, and basins of soil and seed.

SCATTERED ON FIELDS

After Communion, the congregation followed the ministers to a nearby field where the soil was scattered. Each person was given a small bag of blessed seed to take home to plant.

After the service members of the congregation went to the parish hall where the students presented a program of music and contests. David Busby of Montreal thanked the parishioners on behalf of the students, and Walter Dyer thanked the students on behalf of the community.

Veteran Engineer

LONDON (CP)—Charles Burgess retired after a long career as engineer of the famous British railway express, the Flying Scotsman. He numbered five generations of royalty among his passengers. He said it was unbelievable that British locomotive engineers were still being paid such wages as £7, 10s weekly plus mileage.

Repair Casa Loma

TORONTO (CP)—Old and stately Casa Loma will not be left to crumble after all. Board of control said Wednesday it will set aside $50,000 for repairing the stone castle in the next two years. A yearly trust fund of about $25,000 will take care of it after that. The turreted mansion was built in 1911 by the late Sir Henry Pellatt. It was turned over to the city in 1927 for taxes.

Easy To Get Married In Russia But It's Tough To Get Divorce

MOSCOW (AP)—It's easy to get married in the Soviet Union but tough to get a divorce.

To marry, two persons just need to walk into a registration bureau known as "zags," answer a few questions about their health, previous marriages and children, if any. They produce their passports and if these are in order, the clerk signs a certificate, collects a small fee and the wedding is over.

If the newlyweds want a church ceremony afterward, there is nothing to forbid it. There are still many church weddings, particularly in the villages. The woman usually takes the husband's name, but she can keep her own if she wants to.

But getting unhitched — that's something else again. It's tougher here than in some states in the United States.

Before Russia passed its present divorce law in July, 1944, husband and wife could end their marriage simply by registering and paying a small fee, a little like the present marriage ceremony, but in reverse.

But the growing number of divorces alarmed Communist leaders. Under the stiffened law—and more recent stern interpretations of it by the Supreme Court—the government discouraged divorces and the easy breaking-up of families. The trend now is reversed.

Today a couple wishing to go separate ways must appear before a court and give valid reasons why a divorce should be granted. The lower court, following the policy of the state, tries to bring the couples together. If it cannot, it passes the case to a higher court.

Procedure takes many months, as authorities explore every avenue to try to make the marriage stick, especially if children are involved. If the higher court gives permission for separation, the applicant must have a statement of intentions published in a local newspaper, pay a stiff fee and wait a period of time before the decree is final.

The point is that for the last decade the Soviet Union has been encouraging marriage and placing strong emphasis on a happy family life. It points to the loss of 7,000,000 citizens in the Second World War and urges big families. The birth rate in recent years has been high and the population, according to official reports, is going up at a rate of about 3,000,000 a year.

The Soviet Supreme Court has even put more teeth in the 1944 divorce law by a decision instructin the lower courts that they "must on their own initiative find out the real motives for the divorce, demand necessary proof from the parties and take necessary measure to reconcile them."

The court ruled that divorces will be granted now only when grounds are serious and well-founded, when conciliation has failed or when the continuance of the marriage would contradict "the principles of Communist morality."

3 Drivers Found Guilty Of 4 Parking Offences

Four convictions on parking violations were registered in Magistrate's Court today Found guilty on charges were Joseph McTeague, 782 George St.; Anthony Boccabella, Toronto; and Edward Faux of 392 Holloway Dr.

On offences of January 31 and February 7, McTeague was fined a total of $8 and $5 costs. Boccabella was fined $5 and $2.50 costs for parking at a bus stop, and Faux, $4 and $2.50 costs.

A fourth charge against Mrs. Myrtle McCartney of 341 Charlotte St. was dismissed when Mrs. McCartney testified there was no head on the meter when the car was parked.

Duel Challenger Is Fined $500

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—Blondell Groseclose was fined $500 today for challenging a U. S. Army captain to a pistol duel over a German woman.

Groseclose, 39-year-old former U. S. soldier and army historian, told the American judge, "thank you for your fairness."

But his lawyer said he would appeal because under the ancient German law by which Groseclose was tried, a duel challenge can only be punished by "honorable" confinement in a fortress

"And where is the U. S high commission going to get a fortress?" demanded the defence.

CHALLENGED CAPTAIN

Groseclose, now a part-time prison sociologist and student, admitted that last Easter Sunday he confronted Capt. Charles D Tarpley with two pistols, offered him one of them and "told him if he were an honorable man we'd settle this matter here and now and the one who won would walk out of here alive."

Tarpley declined the challenge.

Both had been courting 32-year-old Dr. Margarete Meyer, a German librarian in a U. S. Army service club. Groseclose claimed Tarpley stole her affections while he was in a hospital.

Attlee Denies Red Sympathies

LONDON (Reuters)—Labor party leader Clement Attlee today denied U. S. Senator Joseph McCarthy's charges that he has Communist sympathies.

"The British Labor party and I myself have been vigorously opposing the Communist party in this country ever since its formation—long before Senator McCarthy was ever heard of," Attlee said in an interview.

He was replying to charges made in a speech prepared by the Wisconsin Republican for delivery to the U. S. Senate today. McCarthy criticized the speech Attlee made in the House of Commons speech Tuesday in which the Labor party leader said there were some elements in the U. S. which did not want peace in Korea.

McCarthy several times referred to Attlee as "comrade" in today's Senate speech.

CBC's First TV Network Starts Operating May 14

TORONTO (CP)—A milestone in Canadian television comes May 14, when network operation is started for Montreal and Toronto.

The first two Canadian television stations—operated by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation at Montreal and Toronto—have been providing regular programs for some months. Now the stations are being linked by an inter-city microwave relay. The relay is routed through Ottawa, where the CBC's third TV station will be opened soon.

The micro-wave relay constructed by the Bell Telephone Company carries TV programs and telephone channels at the same time. It started at Buffalo and the Toronto-Buffalo leg has been used since January. Now it goes through Ottawa to Montreal, and is so constructed that it can be extended east from Montreal, and north and west from Toronto as required.

BRINGS CITIES CLOSER

Such networks are familiar to United States television viewers, but this is the first purely Canadian link. Television audiences in Montreal and Toronto will be able to see the same program, simultaneously, from either city. It should provide interesting experiments in audience reaction between the large Montreal and Toronto fields.

For the inauguration of the MontrealToronto network CBC television has planned its most ambitious production to date, the first full-length opera to be televised in this country. Mozart's "Don Giovanni" will be produced in English by Franz Kraemer in the Toronto studios for simultaneous telecast from Toronto and Montreal.

Kraemer picked "Don Giovanni" because he feels it is essentially an opera in which each character has his own thoughts and feelings. He believes television can bring a new interpretation of the classic, and some revisions have been made so that fullest use can be made of television technique. A swifter pace is possible, for instance, because the TV cameras can swing back and forth among five major and numerous smaller sets.

The Toronto-Montreal micro-wave network has a capacity of 12 television channels, or six in each direction. Two channels each way will be used at the outset, one for the television program and the other for inter-city telephone circuits.

Engineers are already drawing up plans to extend the link to Quebec City. The chain involves reception and transmitting relays at certain distances; there are eight relays for instance between Toronto and Ottawa, and three more between Ottawa and Montreal.

The total sea-coast of Canada's mainland stretches for 14,820 miles on east, north and west.

Say Pickersgill To Join Cabinet

By CLYDE BLACKBURN

OTTAWA (CP)—John W. Pickersgill, 47, clerk of the Privy Council and long time adviser to Liberal prime ministers, is reported to be slated for early appointment to the cabinet.

This is a recurring rumor—that the stocky and sometimes controversial figure of "Jack" Pickersgill would enter the political frays—but it was circulated Wednesday with particular force.

The Ottawa Evening Journal, in a front-page story, said it knew "from indisputable sources" that Mr. Pickersgill would be sworn in as a cabinet member before dissolution of Parliament, about June 10.

Another report on Parliament Hill was that Mr. Pickersgill would enter the cabinet and contest a Newfoundland riding in the next election, expected in August.

In the latter event he would presumably succeed Hon. F. C. Bradley, secretary of state and Newfoundland's representative in the cabinet. Mr. Bradley is believed slated for the Senate.

Junior Farmers Place At Fair Recognized

Recognition of the present and potential value of the junior farmer's section as an asset and adjunct of the Peterborough Exhibition was expressed at a meeting of its directors this morning in the office of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

John Edmison of Smith presided and with him were Glen Stark, Don Chambers, Jack Matchett, John Waterman, Frank C. Paterson, Don Best, E. A. Summers, Bowmanville, agricultural representative in Durham; LeRoy Brown, Lindsay, agricultural representative in Victoria county; Miss Jean Noble, Bowmanville, district home economist; R. G. Bennett, Toronto, associate director of extension with the Ontario Department and F. Stewart, Toronto, of the livestock branch of the federal Department of Agriculture, and Norman McConkey, Peterborough Exhibition.

SEVEN COUNTIES

Junior farmers, young men and women from at least seven Central Ontario counties, compete annually in the junior exhibition which had its origin in the senior Peterborough Exhibition. It has become established at many of the exhibitions in the province including Ottawa and London.

Mr. McConkey expressed appreciation of the work done by the Department and the junior directors, and presidential willingness to assist in extension of this department, as a promotional asset of the senior show, particularly in publicity throughout the counties of which Peterborough is the centre.

Train 5 Hours Late After Hitting Truck

THAMESVILLE, Ont. (CP)—A westbound Canadian National Railways passenger train was delayed five hours early Wednesday after it crashed into a pickup truck abandoned on tracks near here. No one was injured.

Provincial police from Chatham said the train was travelling 60 miles an hour at the time of the crash which wrecked the vehicle.

The truck, owned by Edmund Lovell of Thamesville, had been driven to nearby Dresden Tuesday night by his son, Lyle, who parked it.

Police said some one apparently stole the truck and abandoned it on the tracks when it stalled or ran out of gas. The locomotive's cowcatcher was damaged.

Spring Intensifies Uranium Hunt In Saskatchewan's Northland

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—The green cloak of spring and warm weather has brought a new influx of mining men into Saskatchewan's lake-decked northland, site of feverish uranium development.

Increasing numbers of miners and investors troop through Prince Albert on their way to Uranium City, headquarters for a search that threatens to spill over the province's isolated north.

The migration can't be compared to the 1898 Klondike march. But it carries some of the same optimistic symptoms.

Exploration costs in Saskatchewan this year are estimated to reach $4,000,000, an increase of $50,000 from 1952. However, mill and shaft work estimates are down to $6,000,000 compared with $12,000,000 last year.

EXPLAIN DROP

The drop in development estimates is believed due to the government-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining Company which has completed a major part of its work and is ready to start processing about 500 tons of ore a day. All other companies will feed their ore to Eldorado's mill, located between Beaverlodge and Ace lakes, north of Lake Athabaska which straddles the Saskatchewan-Alberta boundary 850 miles northwest of Regina.

Ore shipped to Eldorado will be concentrated and then barged down the Athabaska river to Waterways, Alta. From there it will be shipped by rail for further refining in Ontario.

As the staking rush continues, larger companies are starting to bridge the gap between exploratory and mining stages. Several are reported ready to begin production by summer.

THROW IN MEN

The Canadian government also has thrown men into the search. The demand for raw materials to go into the United States atomic bomb program has intensified the hunt.

Canada uses only a small part of her uranium for research at Chalk River, Ont. Officials say Canada is in no position to manufacture the atomic bomb herself and this makes it all the more important that she help the United States.

Record Flight

MONTREAL (CP)—A record for a non-stop flight from Prestwick, Scotland, to nearby Dorval airport was claimed Wednesday by British Overseas Airways Corporation. A stratocruiser, under command of Capt. Anthony Spooner, made the flight in 10 hours and 33 minutes. The previous record was 11 hours and three minutes, set in 1950.

FIRE RUINS — Forest fires sweeping through northern Ontario left a trail of destruction in the village of Markstay, near Sudbury, Ont. Two trucks, a $10,000 power saw and 13 buildings were destroyed at a lumber mill. In the foreground are the ashes of the camp quarters used by lumber crews during the season. The fire swept through 2,200 acres of slash, new growth and old burn areas.

Chicago Industry Branch

TORONTO (CP)—The first United States office of the trade and industry branch of the Ontario department of planning and development is being opened in Chicago today to meet increasing demand by American manufacturers for information on locating possible branch plants in Ontario. H. M. Sleigh is being transferred from Toronto to take over as industrial commissioner in charge of the new office.

Bogert Assigned To Senior Post At Hdqts.

OTTAWA (CP)—Brig. M. P. Bogert, a cultivated soldiering gentleman who built a quality brigade and put ginger in a static front in his year in Korea, is going to take over a senior position at army headquarters in Ottawa now that he is back.

He will be deputy adjutant-general, a post being revived to bring help to the staffs wrestling with the administrative, human and personnel problems of a small, 48,000-man army with commitments in three continents.

To it he will bring a long army experience freshened by a year in command of the 25th Brigade on a Korean front which he says has proved Canadian Army training to be on the right road, has helped it perfect the nucleus of a good future army, given a proving ground for new Canadian wrinkles and provided experience in co-operating as part of international armies.

HAD TO LEARN DEFENCE

He and his brigade also had to learn out "there something the army had forgotten since 1918—how to fight a defensive war.

Bill Boss, Canadian Press correspondent in Korea, reported that the 45-year-old brigadier is a deceptively quiet-mannered commander who gets what he wants by suggestion. His staff and subordinate commanders know he is a stickler for perfection and so dish it up.

Neither colorful nor reserved, no seeker after easy popularity with his soldiers, he is very much the regular soldier's commander.

That's as he would want it, Boss wrote. His edition of the 25th Brigade, Brig. Bogert says, marked "the first time we have gone to war with regular soldiers."

"They regard the army as a career, are more amenable to discipline (than the wartime volunteer) and therefore can be disciplined more easily. (He defines "discipline" as "alert response to orders.")

"They are more dependent on their officers. If an officer is good here he has more scope and gets more respect.

GOOD NUCLEUS

"We've learned a lot about handling men like that and should be perfecting the nucleus of a good regular army."

A student of battle, he so precisely knew what the Chinese were up to last Oct. 23 when they made a major attempt to steal some of his real estate that 3½ hours before they launched their two-battalion assault under cover of a 6,000-round-an-hour barrage, he ordered the reinforcement unit at Kure, Japan, to send every available soldier to the unit about to be attacked—the 1st battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment. Before the battle was joined, the reinforcements had begun their 450-mile journey from Japan to the front.

Little Gibraltar spur was briefly lost and regained that night in an action whose course the brigadier had predicted in detail. He imperturbably followed its course at his headquarters, never "bugged" the RCR and only once voiced a suggestion when it looked as though their counter-attack might be late going in.

Lamprey Control Program Starts

OTTAWA (CP)—Fisheries Minister Sinclair said Tuesday night the government is providing money this year to begin a program of lamprey control and biological research in the Great Lakes fisheries.

Speaking as his estimates came before the Commons for consideration, Mr. Sinclair said it had been hoped to conclude a Great Lakes fisheries treaty with the United States.

However, fisheries in the U.S. are primarily under state control and since nine states would be involved in such a treaty, differing views had cropped up.

It had been decided, however, to start individual fisheries conservation programs this year.

Canadians Slowly Regaining Control Of No Man's Land Lost When Out Of Lines

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—Slowly the Canadians are wresting back from the Chinese control of no man's land in their sector.

For more than a year they were its masters. Several times the Chinese contested the title, but each challenge was hurled back. Their last attempt, last Oct. 23, resulted in the victory of Little Gibraltar spur for the 1st battalion, the Royal Canadian Regiment.

The United Nations lost that control during February and March when the Canadians, with the rest of the Commonwealth Division, went into reserve. By the time they moved back April 6 the Chinese owned the territory, were nipping off outposts almost at will, virtually lived on the UN wire, and the relieving formation in those two months had lost 500 killed, wounded and missing—more than the entire Commonwealth division had suffered during the whole preceding year.

ALLARD TAKES OVER

Maj.-Gen. Michael West and his brigade commanders' assignment in early April was nothing less than to regain the lost control of no man's land.

Initial responsibility in the Canadian sector was Brig. M. P. Bogert's. It since has gone to Brig. Jean Allard, who relieved Bogert April 22. Bogert now is home on debarkation leave.

Bogert's policy was the twofold one of restoring the positions' own security—rendering them safer in case of attack—and of getting the pattern of the enemy's activity.

He plotted where they were, what they had and what they did, how they came in onto his positions, and what they tried to do. Slowly, bit by bit, the picture was built up.

His first battalions in were the 3rd Patricias and the 1st Van Doos. They re-sited their weapon positions, deepened their trenches and strengthened their walls. They sank and improved their bunkers.

SLOW AND STEADY

Minefields were relaid ahead of the positions, barbed-wire entanglements and barricades were restrung.

It was a slow, steady job—nightwork on the forward slopes, around the clock on the reverse slopes. Enemy shelling and mortar fire didn't make it easier.

And all the while the observation posts, and later the three-and-four-man patrols were going out, adding to the brigadier's over-all picture.

Gradually the patrol depth increased. Now Canadian patrols regularly reach half-way over to the Chinese positions. One of them spoiled the surprise of the Chinese attack May 2 which caused at least 62 Canadian casualties.

The Van Doos, now en route home, were relieved by the 3rd battalion, the Royal Canadian Regiment, who entered the line with zest.

CHEERFUL SOLDIERS

Says Lt.-Col. Ken Campbell of Petawawa, Ont., CO of the newly-arrived RCR:

"I'm still being amazed at the cheerfulness of the patrols. They show no signs of strain at all, even though we're new at it.

"They're confident, too. They sit out there on the valley floor, pulling down mortar fire all over the place. You've got to be sure in the dark that you know where you are, and that the mortars also know where you are, to do that. Two or three patrols have called for fire within 150 yards of themselves—which is close."

Not entirely successful yet are Canadian attempts to "suck in and seal off" Chinese groups. The enemy still get away. One enemy party actually took down 75 yards of Canadian wire to show that it had "twigged" before making off—without a Canadian being the wiser until a returning patrol luckily discovered it.

The Patricias on successive nights came across decayed UN bodies, dead for months. When three had been discovered on ground thoroughly covered previously by patrols, Maj. Charles MacNeill of Victoria, acting commanding officer, decided the Chinese were planning an ambush.

He reasoned that the Chinese were exhuming the bodies and "planting" them, hoping to condition the patrols into coming upon them. They would then lay an ambush. He passed his theories on. Three nights later a Royal Fusiliers patrols were ambushed.

Bogert's and Allard's policy is paying off in another way.

Their plots built up information of Chinese light, medium and heavy mortar positions. Now when the enemy opens up with those weapons a streamlined procedure enables the 3rd RCR, for instance, to reply with bang-on fire within seconds.

Slowly, steadily and solidly, that process of regaining mastery goes on. One day, perhaps not too distant, the brigade again will control its share of no man's land and be able to dispatch its patrols at will.

LEADS BATTALION—Lt.-Col. Malcolm Francis MacLachlan, 35, of Great Village, N.S., has been promoted from the rank of major and will command the 3rd battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in Korea. He has been second-in-command of the 1st Canadian Highland battalion in Germany.

4,000 Canadians Start Training Under Canvas

OTTAWA (CP)—More than 4,000 troops of the 27th Canadian infantry brigade group in Germany have moved into the Solteau training area of central Germany for intensive training under canvas, the army reported Wednesday.

The exercise will be the longest and largest in the brigade's training program for 1953. For three weeks the scheme will be on battalion or lower levels. The fourth week will see all elements of the brigade in mock battle with the British 7th armored brigade

The brigade is expected to return to its base at Hannover on May 23.

Begin Series Of Tests On Arthur Godfrey

BOSTON (AP)—Doctors at Massachusetts General hospital yesterday began a series of tests on radio-television start Arthur Godfrey in preparation for surgery to correct hip defects.

He was admitted into his two-room suite at the hospital Tuesday.

No date has been set for the surgery which doctors said would correct hip injuries suffered in an auto crash in 1931 and which have been troubling him since.

It was reported Godfrey would be at the hospital for about six weeks.

Mr. Laird, president of the association, is also assessment commissioner for St. Catharines. He will be making the top executive's annual visit to No. 5 district, one of 12 Ontario districts which make up the association.

John R. Corkery, QC, registrar of deeds, will address the meeting at the morning session on the general subject of titles and descriptions. Mr. Gemmel will speak at a luncheon at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club.

The afternoon session will be given over to general business. At that time there will be a question period. A list of assessing questions has been prepared and later the individuals will be invited to air their own personal problems.

The meeting Friday will begin at 10 a.m. in the general committee room of the city hall.

City Stores To Close For June 2

Ask City To Proclaim Civic Holiday; Provide Decorations

Peterborough stores at a meeting of the retail section of the Chamber of Commerce this week agreed to close Coronation Day, June 2. At the same time the stores also decided to ask the city to proclaim a civic holiday that day.

To help the city celebrate the coronation the downtown stores will provide coronation material to decorate the downtown area. The city will be asked to install the decorations.

CROWNS, SHIELDS

James Fraser, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said the decorations will be shields and crowns in red, white and blue. Two of the decorations will be placed on each lamp standard along George St., Simcoe St., Hunter St. and Charlotte St.

Mr. Fraser said that in addition to providing the decorations for the streets, the stores are planning coronation window displays.

HydroEquipment To Be Installed

The last two pieces of equipment were moved into the Aylmer St. sub-station during April, General-Manager W. Howard Powell reported to the Peterborough Utilities Commission Wednesday. These will be installed as soon as the manufacturer's staff are available.

Three new street light control cables were installed in the sub-station to the terminal poles at Aylmer and Sherbrooke Sts.

Peak hydro load last month was 23,100 kilowatts, a decrease of 598 or 2.5 per cent from the peak load of 23,698 killowatts during the same month last year. Killowatt hour consumption last month was 10,695,000, an increase of 918,100 killowatt hours or 16 per cent over consumption of 9,777,900 uring April, 1952. As a result, the load factor improved from 57.7 per cent in 1952 to 64.3 per cent in 1953.

In the distribution system the following work was done:

Rebuilding of the power and light circuits on Edison Ave. between Park St. and Monaghan Rd. was completed. New lighting circuits were erected on Dumble, Argyle and Nicholls Ave. to serve the Queen Elizabeth sub-division.

Lighting circuits were extended on Hayes Ave. to serve the new houses in the Cobourg Lumber subdivision and a program of replacing rotten poles throughout the city was begun.

Thirty-eight new three-wire, nine new two-wire and four new power services were connected. Fifteen service were changed from two- to three-wire. Fifty-two new flat rate water heaters were connected. One street light was connected.

Equipment Delayed For Waterworks

There is little hope of having the filtration plant in operation during the peak periods of water consumption this year because equipment suppliers have given notice that delivery dates will extend into July, General-Manager W. Howard Powell reported to the Peterborough Utilities Commission Wednesday.

The condition of the raw water was very good during April, he reported, with no sign of the usual daphnia or water flea. The contractor was making satisfactory progress with construction of the new building.

Total pumpage of water during April was 128,665,000 gallons, an increase of 6,845,000 over the total of 121,820,000 for the same month last year. The maximum rate of pumpage last month was 5,780 gallons a minute as compared with 5,570 during April, 1952. Average pumpage last month was 2,980 gallons a minute as compared with 2,790 in April, 1952.

CHLORINE AND ALUM

The water was treated with an average of 6.5 pounds of chlorine and 95 pounds of alum to each million gallons of water.

At the pump house, repairs were carried out last month on the control mechanism of no. 2 high lift pump.

In the distribution system, water services were relaid on Aylmer St. between Townsend and Rink Sts., in preparation for the city's paving program this year. A hundred hydrants were inspected and repacked, 14 services were relaid and 14 new water services were laid.

AIRMAN'S FAMILY REUNION took place for LAC Robert Reid of 638 Park St. N., who arrived in Peterborough on Tuesday after a year tour in England with the RCAF 439 Squadron. He is shown holding Vicky Lynn, age nine months, and whom he had never seen, and son Stephen. Mrs. Reid, the former Helen Payne, holds Christina, age 3½ years.

Airman Returns To Family After Year In England

Finished with his year in England with 439 Squadron of the RCAF, LAC Bob Reid, Frank St., is glad to be home again. England is good, but when you've a wife and three children in Canada, then Canada is a better place to be. Especially fine when you've never seen one of the children.

LAC Reid, an armament mechanic, went overseas a year ago with his squadron, first Canadian squadron to "leap frog" the Atlantic. After a year in North Luffenham, in the Midlands, he is back home, to stay for a while.

RATIONS ARE GOOD

Food was certainly up to par on the RCAF base. Canadians there drew U.S. rations, which were "brought up" to Canadian standards.

As LAC Reid expalined: "The Americans ate a little plainer food than we did. Ours was prepared a little better."

Country around North Luffenham—only 30 miles northwest of Peterborough, England — was much like that in Peterborough county, "a little more rolling, that's all". Towns were different; for instance Stamford, supposedly the oldest in England, had a number of homes with thatched roofs, tiny winding streets, and a general air of age.

CONDITIONS NOT GOOD

For the few men in the squadron who brought their wives and families to England with them, conditions were not so good. Acceptable living quarters were not easy to find, and some had their families living 20 miles and more from the station.

With 28 days to spend in the city before he reports to his posting to Trenton RCAF Station, LAC Reid plans to spend much of his time with his wife and children—nine-months-old Vicky Lynn, Stephen, 2, and Christine, 3½.

Having crossed and re-crossed the Atlantic in North Stars of the RCAF's 426 squadron, LAC Reid had plenty of praise for the men of that part of the transport command.

"Not many people realize the job of work those boys are doing. They're running the airlift to Tokyo, and flying the Atlantic at the same time. And their accident rate is almost nil."

But for the next 27 days—LAC Reid got home just Tuesday night—the Reids are going to forget about aircraft and spend their time taking it easy and getting acquainted again. LAC Reid particularly wants to get to know his youngest child. He saw her Tuesday night for the first time.

Continue To Increase Production Of Gas

The amount of gas produced by the Peterborough Utilities Commission during April continued to show an increase over that produced in the same month last year, General-Manager W. Howard Powell reported to the PUC Wednesday.

In April 1953, as compared to the same month in 1952, propane use for gas making increased by 14,770 gallons or 43 per cent from 34,177 to 48,947 gallons; the amount of gas made increased 1,838,000 cubic feet or 35 per cent from 5,249,000 to 7,087,000 cubic feet and the amount of gas bottled increased by 12,709 gallons or 217 per cent from 10,805 gallons to 23,514 gallons.

On Aylmer St. between Townsend and Rink Sts. high pressure gas main joints were repaired in advance of the city's paving program. Forty-three joints were repaired in all.

A three-inch gas service was installed to the Dalgleish building on the north-east corner of Aylmer and Charlotte Sts.

1,500 To Compete In Scout Field Day

Between 1,000 and 1,500 boy scouts, girl guides, cubs and brownies from centres within a 45-mile radius of Peterborough are expected to take part in a field day here Saturday.

The day's events will begin with a parade led by the CGE pipe band leaving Confederation Park in front of the Armouries at 10 a.m. Major-General D. C. Spry, Chief Executive Commissioner of Boy Scouts for Canada will march in the parade. Assistant District Commissioner Earl Wessman will be parade marshal.

The parade will march to Exhibition Park where Gordon K. Fraser, MP, will officially open the field day at 1.30 p.m. Lunch will be served at the park.

Events will include competitions in qualifying tests such as knot-tying and first aid, as well as athletic events. Badges will be awarded winners of all events.

Ernest Trueman, vice-president of the Peterborough Scout Association, will be in charge of the massed closing ceremonies.

The Kibblewhite Rover Crew of All Saints' Anglican Church will operate a canteen on the grounds during the day. Profits will be devoted to sending a Rover Scout to the world jamboree in Switzerland this summer.

93rd Battalion To Hold Reunion

First World War veterans of the 93rd Battalion will hold their reunion here Saturday at the Empress Hotel, and a memorail service Sunday at the cenotaph in Confederation Park.

Following Saturday's banquet, former battalion members will meet at the Armouries. About 200 are expected to attend the reunion. A former member of the battalion, the Rev. Bruce Harrison of Wilfred, Ont., will conduct the cenotaph service.

Last reunion of the 93rd was held in Peterborough in 1950.

Haliburton Scout Camp Given $45,000 Grant

TORONTO (CP)—The Atkinson Charitable Foundation today announced a $45,000 grant to Camp Kenabi in the heart of the Haliburton district. The camp is owned by the Toronto Boy Scouts' Association.

The money will be used to send underprivileged Boy Scouts to the camp on the shores of Lake Kenabi, 12 miles northeast of the town of Haliburton.

Will Investigate Putting Fluorine In City Water

The question of adding fluorine to water was brought up at the Peterborough Board of Health meeting Wednesday and a motion for local investigation passed.

The board moved that Dr. J. P. Wells, medical officer of health, and Dr. Ralph Honey, board member investigate the fluoridation question from a local standpoint and report back to the board. This investigation will be postponed until June 15 when Dr. Honey will return to the city after attending the Coronation.

The motion followed a recommendation by Dr. Wells that something be done about this question locally.

The MOH explained that following the civic experiment in Brantford with fluoridation for the past eight years with favorable results, in the decrease of tooth decay, this procedure has been recently approved by the National Health and Welfare Department, the Provincial Department of Health and the Toronto Department of Health.

"I would like to recommend that the board take some steps in this matter because of these recent approvals and the interest that has been stirred up in the city through the local press," Dr. Wells said.

The board members agreed with Dr. Wells but it was decided to delay action until Dr. Honey returns.

NO NEW NURSES

The MOH was unable to report any success in obtaining applications for department public health nurses.

The department needs four additional nurses to carry out the services included in the agreements now pending between the Board of Health, the Board of Education and the Separate School Board, for school health services.

The board passed a motion to set the starting salary at $2,700 with an annual increment of $150 for the first three years and to give an added enticement of a month's annual vacation. Previously this year the starting salary was set at $2,600, with an annual increment of $150 for the first three years and three weeks vacation.

Dr. Wells explained that these new terms were in accordance with salary and terms of employment recommended by the Canadian Public Health Association in 1951.

Curve Lake Youth Charged Robbery With Violence From Elderly Lakefield Man

Leonard Taylor, 21, Not Asked To Plea In Court; Bail Set At $5,000

$150 Stolen From Lakefield Store Manager

Arrested at his Curve Lake residence Wednesday, Leonard Taylor, 21, appeared in Magistrate's Court today on a charge of robbery with violence. The charge was laid in connection with a robbery May 1 in Lakefield in which Charles Smith, 79, was hospitalized with severe head wounds and $150 was stolen. Taylor was remanded on $5,000 bail. The arrest was made by Lakefield Police Chief Price Morris and OPP Corporal John Munro.

Robbery with violence charges carry penalties up to life imprisonment and lashes.

DRENCHED WITH BLOOD

The elderly man was found wandering around with his head and shoulders drenched with blood the late morning of May 1. Investigation revealed that about $100 in pension money and $50 in store receipts had been stolen from his wallet.

He is still recovering from his injuries in Civic Hospital.

Appearing before Magistrate W. R. Philp, Taylor was not asked to enter a plea on the charge.

Gov't Blocking Uranium Finds In Haliburton

OTTAWA (CP)—An indignant eastern Ontario member of Parliament accused the government Wednesday of blocking development of uranium deposits "right at the back door of the Chalk River atomic project."

C. W. Hodgson (PC—Victoria, Ont.) said it is common knowledge that there is plenty of uranium in the Haliburton area but the mines department, instead of helping develop it, had been blocking development since 1930. Haliburton is about 75 air miles south of Chalk River.

Mr. Hodgson said he has asked questions about the deposits but has been told such matters are secret. The only secrecy was that of the government. It was general knowledge that there was plenty of uranium in that area but the mines department wouldn't even give an assay report on samples sent from there.

Mines Minister Prudham said he would investigate and send Mr. Hodgson a report.

Flt.-Lt. Dean Kelly To Perform For Duke

Flight Lieutenant Dean Kelly of Peterborough, outstanding stunt pilot of the RCAF's No. 1 Fighter Wing at North Luffenham, England, will put on a show of aerobatics a week from today before the Duke of Edinburgh.

The visit to North Luffenham is one of a number of pre-coronation visits the Duke will make to air force bases in England.

F.L. Kelly is a pilot in 441 Squadron, commanded by Squadron Leader Bill Gill of Toronto.

Another Peterborough airman, LAC Bob Reid, 652 Frank St., will miss the inspection. He returned to Canada Tuesday night, after spending a year in North Luffenham with 439 Squadron.

The Duke, during his visit, will call out the order that will "scramble" the entire wing in two minutes. The wing is one of those which will take part in the flypast to be watched by Queen Elizabeth after the coronation.

Deputy Minister Opens 2 Schools In N. Hastings

BANCROFT (ENS) — Deputy Minister of Education C. F. Cannon had a busy day Wednesday when he officiated at the opening at two new schools in North Hastings county.

The $28,000 one-room building which he visited in the evening at Combermere was named in his honor, the "C. F. Cannon School."

The first school in the district, he recalled, was built in 1871 on a site that cost $1; the teacher's pay was then $150 per annum. The building was burned in 1880, was rebuilt and burned again in '91. The third structure was used until the building was opened for classes in 1952.

Mrs. Cannon presented a framed portrait of the Queen that will be displayed in the new building.

School board secretary Ernest Stevenson welcomed the guests, district inspector C. Cornwall welcomed Mr. Cannon and board member Mr. Brooks thanked him following his address. The new building was dedicated by the Rev. Stephen Kenwood who presented the principal Miss K. Farmer with a Bible for the school on behalf of the school trustees.

MAYNOOTH SCHOOL

A four-room school at Maynooth, valued at $80,000 was opened by Mr. Cannon in the afternoon. The introductory address was given by reeve of Monteagle-Herschel Frank Cassidy followed by short speeches by Roscoe Robson, M.P.P., Hastings East, and Elmer Sandercock, M.P.P. Hastings West. The guest speaker was introduced by the Reeve of Bangor-Wicklow William Davis and thanked by school inspector Alex Smith.

The Rev. H. Gastmeir dedicated the Maynooth school and board member Lawrence Baudry presented the keys of the new building to principal H. A. Fentie. Afternoon tea was served to the guests at the principal's home.

Gamma Globulin Won't Be Sold In Canada Yet Says Doctor

TORONTO (CP)—Gamma globulin, the by-product of whole blood used in the prevention of paralysis from polio, will not be sold this year in Canada, but will be made available through a central allocating committee.

Dr. A. J. Rhodes of the University of Toronto's Connaught research laboratories told the annual convention of the Ontario Medical Association Wednesday that existing stocks of the by-product are exhausted, but that new doses are being prepared.

He said more than 54,000 doses were given children in the polio epidemic regions of the United States in 1951 and 1952. The results showed the gamma globulin protected against paralysis in the second week and through to the fifth week after inoculation.

Dr. M. E. Hobbs of Millbrook told the convention the mortality rate of croup has been almost reduced to zero. Some 20 years ago, it was about 30 per cent. He said the public should be educated to the fact that inserting a tube in the windpipe and circulating a mixture of air and pure oxygen offers the key to saving the child's life.

NEED MORE KNOWLEDGE

Greater knowledge on the cobalt beam method of cancer treatment must be gained before positive statements can be made, Dr. Ivan H. Smith of London, Ont., told the association.

Dr. H. T. Ewart, 47, the superintendant of Mountain Sanatorium at Hamilton, was elected president of the association.

Dr. Ewart, a graduate of Queen's University, Kingston, in both economics and medicine, began practicing as a doctor in 1935.

Department Makes Sudbury Cut Tax Rate

SUDBURY (CP)—Sudbury is running against the tide of increases in Ontario municipal tax rates this year. The firm ruling hand of the Ontario department of municipal affairs lopped $90,000 off the budget prepared by city council and reduced the rate by three mills.

To most of the city's 8,000 taxpayers the cut was welcome. Public school supporters will pay on a rate of 73.5 mills this year and Roman Catholic separate school supporters 88. In 1952 the rates were 76.5 and 91.

However, city officials see in the background a more rigid application of the supervisory powers of the department. Sudbury first came under department supervision in 1934 when it got into financial trouble in the depression like many other Ontario municipalities. Since then, the city had been given a progressively freer hand in administering its affairs.

CAN'T ESCAPE IT

Mayor Dan Jessup, 62-year-old retired grocer, said: "I guess we've never really been out of supervision. We have to tell them were we spend our money and why."

Actually, the new supervision came about because the Ontario legislature in 1952 approved legislation requiring municipalities getting a provincial grant in lieu of a mines profit tax to submit to the department for approval their annual estimates, assessments, tax reports, audit reports, municipal licence fees, sale and disposition of property and debenture by-laws. Although Sudbury is the only city affected, there are six towns, 18 townships and six improvement districts in the same boat. Two of the townships are McKim and Neelon-Garson in the Sudbury area.

Sudbury, which gets a $235,000 mine grant this year, sent its 1953 budget estimates and its 1952 audit report to the department for approval.

TURN UP SURPLUS

The department's study turned up a $139,000 surplus in the secondary schools budget. The amount was for anticipated government schools grants which are usually paid at the end of the year. Instead of borrowing money from the bank to carry the schools, the city council planned to collect it from taxpayers. The department rejected the scheme, said the grant would be paid at the start of the year and lopped the $139,000 off the budget.

On Sudbury's $30,130,000 assessment, the $139,000 equalled 4½ mills on the tax rate. The entire saving wasn't passed along because some other budget items were increased. It wound up at about $90,000, or three mills.

The department control also brought a study of Sudbury's financing and accounting methods. The department said there were some discrepancies and let it be known that if provincial statutes are not followed, city council members can be held liable for illegalities. Since then, all important civic financial matters are passed with the provision that they are subject to department approval.

Both city and department are keeping a sharp eye on debenture debt which stood at $5,136,728 at the end of 1952, well within the safety margin of 25 per cent of assessment or $7,500,000.

The city's budget this year runs about $4,202,000 of which $1,041,936, is in government grants.

U.K. Press Defends Attlee In Row Over Speech On U.S.

LONDON (AP) — The United States congressional uproar over former prime minister Clement Attlee's assertion that some elements in the U. S. oppose a Korean peace was greeted with alarm or bitterness in much of the British press today.

Moscow radio, meanwhile, poured oil on the flames with a lengthy review of the "ever-growing dissatisfaction with various aspects of United States policy" in the British House of Commons.

Attlee, leader of the Opposition Labor party, made his assertion Tuesday during a Commons foreign policy debate that won the biggest play in Soviet newspapers given a British parliamentary discussion in many years.

Moscow's two principal newspapers, Pravda and Izvestia, devoted nearly a page to summaries and quotations from the speeches by Attlee, Prime Minister Churchill and other British leaders. Almost half a page was devoted to Churchill's speech in which he called for a top-level meeting of the principal powers to settle world issues.

HOTLY DEFENDED

Attlee's position was hotly defended today by the Daily Herald in one of its rare front page editorials. The Labor paper sharply denounced U. S. congressional critics of the former prime minister.

"Is it not a fact," the Herald asked, "that the influential 'China lobby' in Congress wishes to see Chiang Kai-shek so strengthened by American arms that he can invade the Chinese mainland?

"And can it be pretended for a moment that the men who urge this policy are simultaneously and sincerely anxious for a settlement with Communist China?"

The Herald declared that "senator McCarthy's reaction to Attlee's speech was nauseatingly typical," adding:

"He tried to smear Attlee as a Communist, recalling that he (Attlee) gave the 'clenched fist' sign to Spanish republican troops whom he reviewed in the (Spanish) civil war.

"That was their regulation salute whether they were socialists, liberals, anarchists or Communists."

WOULD BAR INDEPENDENT

The independent Daily Express said Britain should swear off accepting dollar aid from America immediately and "stand independent and unsupported." The Beaverbrook paper asserted:

"She cannot lean on America and at the same time aspire to lead America."

The Conservative Daily Mail featured the comment by Senator William Knowland (Rep.-Calif.) on Churchill's proposal for world peace talks. Knowland denounced this proppsal—which Attlee seconded—as a "Far Eastern Munich."

The Washington correspondent of The Times called it "unfortunate" that Attlee's speech "should give all sensitive elements here an excuse to swamp the sober debate across the Atlantic with violent recriminations."

Churchill Party Wins By-Election

SUNDERLAND, England (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill's Conservative party won a major political victory Wednesday in a by-election here.

The party walked away with a House of Commons seat which in the last election was won by Clement Attlee's Labor party.

The Conservatives thus became the first government in power in Britain to gain a seat from the opposition in a by-election since 1924.

The result was: Paul Williams, Conservative, 23,114; Alexander Whipp, Labor, 21,939; and Roy Leslie, Liberal, 2,524.

Found: Large Sum of Money . . . I always get a kick when I read this in the newspaper because it's proof of someone's honesty. But, unhappily, it doesn't happen very often. Usually, money lost is never found, to the great sorrow of the loser. That's why I don't take chances any more. Just before I leave on holiday, or set off on a trip, it's become second nature for me to change my funds into B of M Traveller's Cheques. That's the safest, soundest way of carrying money that I know. You see, Traveller's Cheques are only good when their owner signs them a second time—when he cashes them or makes a purchase. Only you can use your B of M Traveller's Cheques. So don't let money lost — or stolen — spoil your holiday. Be wise and have a grand vacation—get Traveller's Cheques at your BANK OF MONTREAL before you begin your trip.

RCAF PIPERS—The RCAF's No. 1 fighter wing pipe and drum band at North Luffenham, Eng., will play May 30 at the Caledonian games at London's White City stadium. A veteran Scottish piper, Sgt. John McKenzie (right) from Glasgow, has joined the 30-piece volunteer band, and will lead it. He adds a professional touch to the shoulder of LAC. Campbell McNeill of Sydney Mines, N.S.

Edinburgh Man Pipe Major For RCAF Band Overseas

LONDON (CP)—A 32-year-old pipe major from Edinburgh has taken over the RCAF's pipe and drum-band at North Luffenham.

Sgt. John McKenzie, from a line of pipers dating to the days when the pibroch first sounded across the Scottish moors, now gives lessons in the craft to airmen such as Sgt. Stan Bendle of Toronto, LAC. Campbell McNeil of Sydney Mines, N.S., and LAC. Jay Henderson of Victoria.

Formerly in the Scots Guards, whose red and black Royal Stewart he has exchanged for RCAF blue, McKenzie brought his own pipes to No. 1 fighter wing, where the RCAF pipe band was formed about a year ago under a former Glasgow police band piper. The 30-piece, volunteer band will have its first real test May 30, when it will compete in the Caledonian games at London's White City Stadium.

McKenzie has never visited Canada. His only link so far is a sister-in-law, Mrs. P. Shanahan, who lives in Toronto. But the husky Highlander hopes ultimately to take his wife and 11-month-old daughter to Canada.

After 17 years of playing the pipes—he was taught by famous Willie Ross at Dunblane Academy—the new RCAF pipe major says there's only one way to learn.

"Start young when your fingers are supple, and keep at it," he says. "You don't necessarily have to be a Scotsman."

Guaranteed Wage Won't Solve Problem

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Solon Low national leader of the Social Credit party, said Wednesday night a "boom and bust" economy can be avoided only by putting purchasing power in the hands of the consumer that does not first go through the channels of industry.

Such things as a guaranteed annual wage now sought by various unions would not solve the problem, he said, since it would only force an increase in the price of products turned out by the plants which provide the guaranteed wage.

Addressing the first party rally ever held here, he devoted most of his speech to explaining theories of his party.

Earlier in the day Mr. Low predicted in an interview that party strength which is "mushrooming throughout the Western provinces" should result in 30 of the 48 British Columbia seats for his party in the next provincial election.

Seek Missing Man

PORT MCNICOLL (CP)—Police, aided by school children, scouts and residents, searched this district Wednesday for George Greenham, 75, retired railway police sergeant, missing from his home since Tuesday night. Mr. Greenham's disappearance was reported after he and his wife spent the evening in their garden. As he was in the habit of taking walks, his wife did not report his absence until early Wednesday.

7 Years In Pen

TORONTO (CP)—Roy Penner, 21, an inmate of Mimico reformatory, was sentenced Wednesday to seven years in Kingston penitentiary on a charge of assault causing actual bodily harm. He was convicted last week. Evidence indicated that Penner wounded two guards in an attempted escape from the reformatory May 1, one suffering a fractured skull.

Police Comb Toronto Block

TORONTO (CP)—Police Wednesday night combed a block of buildings in downtown Toronto for traces of the three Quigley brothers, missing for 13 days.

The search was centred on a vacant three-storey building. Neighborhood residents told police that two boys, both answering the general description of the two older Quigleys, had been living in the basement.

Mrs. Jannetje Shand, a recent immigrant from Holland who lives next door to the building, said she entered the building and saw two boys who fled down a rubble-strewn alley.

"I chased them," she said. "I was sure they were the Quigley boys. I saw their pictures in the paper. But they got away."

BOVINE MIDGET—Already 20 months old, this pint-sized cow, a Hereford dwarf, weighs only 115 pounds and stands a mere 25 inches high. Five-year-old Joe Tevebaugh, Jr., of Leavenworth, Kan., finds the unusual animal just to his liking.

June 8 Hearings On Freight Rates

OTTAWA (CP)—Ontario hearings in the board of transport commissioners' Canada-wide investigation on freight rate equalization will open June 8 at Windsor, the board announced Wednesday.

The Ontario hearings will be combined with those of an inquiry the board is conducting into the question of eliminating railway grade-crossing hazards.

The board will sit June 8-9 at Windsor on the two matters; at London June 10 and Hamilton June 11 on grade crossings only, and for an indefinite time starting June 15 at Toronto on the two issues.

The board said rural organizations are invited to make their submissions at the most convenient urban hearing.

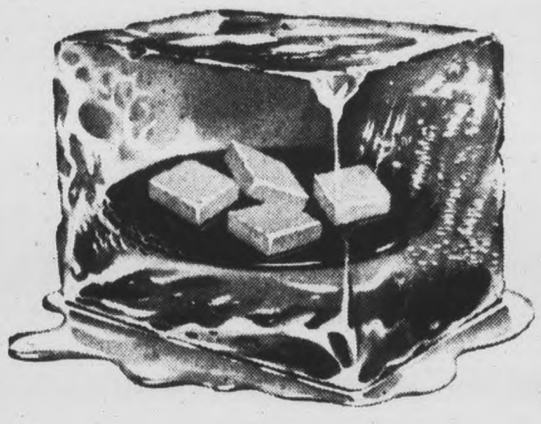
Stolen Cameras In Chicago



MIDLAND (CP)—Officials of the Ernest Leitz Canada Company here, where nearly $60,000 worth of Leica camera bodies and lenses were stolen Sunday, said Wednesday two of the cameras stolen are believed to have turned up in Oak Park, a Chicago suburb.

Officials said the two cameras, bearing missing serial numbers, were offered for sale at a camera shop in Oak Park. They said, however, that when the proprietor went to check the serial numbers with police, the man who offered the cameras fled.

One company official said that both the RCMP and the FBI now are working on the robbery.

The village of Danville near Sherbrooke, Que., was named after the locality in Vermont from where the first settlers came.

Drop Aloofness Institute Told

LONDON (Reuters)—Erwin D. Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, urged the International Press Institute Wednesday not to remain aloof from United Nations investigations into freedom of the press.

He addressed more than 100 newspapers and news agency editors from 34 countries at the second annual assembly of the institute, a private organization devoted to improving the flow of news between countries.

Canham, who formerly served as an American delegate to UN conferences on press freedom, said the well-being of newspapers would be affected by the collection of information on freedom of the press to be published by the UN. The institute, he said, would not protect itself from misunderstanding within the UN by maintaining an aloof attitude.

Lester Markel, institute chairman and Sunday editor of the New York Times, said Free world newspapers were failing to do the job needed to meet the current international crisis.

He urged greater interpretation of news events to help promote closer understanding between countries.

W.G. Morrow Ordered Portrait Destroyed

A portrait of the late W. G. Morrow which had been painted during his life time was cited in his will "to be destroyed," City Solicitor W. F. Huycke mentioned to the finance committee of the council Monday night.

"I don't know whether Mr. Morrow ever thought of a picture of himself at the City Hall," Mr. Huycke said.

Reference to a portrait of Mr. Morrow to replace the present picture of him in the vestibule, as the donor of approximately half a million dollars for the financing of the construction of the building, was introduced by Acting Mayor Miller.

It was a notation on the committee's file, inspired by some citizen's suggestion months ago that the present picture is inadequate. As a preliminary a motion by Aldermen Dewart and Black authorized the obtaining of information to assist the council in further consideration of this matter.

Mr. Gibson said that the department's accident rate and costs had been halved since the campaign began some 18 months ago and he urged all employees to take all precautions in their work to reduce the risk of accident to the general public and themselves.

NEW CANADIANS—One of the biggest and busiest families in New Brunswick is that of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Sholten, recently of Holland, now running a 50-acre farm near Minto. There are eight boys and nine girls in the family, ranging to 20 years of age. In pre-war Holland, Sholten operated a meat-processing plant. He was put in a concentration camp by the German forces during the Second World War when he was caught helping Allied pilots who were shot down. He arrived in Canada a little more than a year ago.

Churchill's New Proposals Denounced As 'Munich'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Homer Ferguson today urged President Eisenhower to "speak out now" in an effort to win British support for a firm policy toward the Communists in Korea and elsewhere in Asia.

The Michigan Republican made the suggestion in an interview at a time of increasingly bitter trans-Atlantic gibes between lawmakers of the two long-time allies.

Senator William Knowland (Rep.-Calif.) denounced as a "Munich" appeasement inviting a third world war proposals by Prime Minister Churchill and Clement Attlee. Knowland particularly objected to any truce which would leave Korea divided and lead to admission of Red China into the United Nations.

Backing this up, Ferguson said Eisenhower should make a public statement "that shows our policies do not coincide with those of Churchill and Attlee." Attlee was deposed as prime minister in the last election and now is Opposition leader.

"An early statement on our stand by the president would be of great benefit," the Michigan senator said. "Churchill and Attlee have been advertising to the world where Britain is going to stand in the Korean peace negotiations—if there is a cease-fire—and I am fearful this will discourage our allies in their efforts to resist communism.

"But I still hope we can be reunited with Britain and our other allies in a firm stand against the expansion of communism and the president is the man to do it."

The U. S. state department threw a little cold water on Churchill's suggestion Monday for a meeting of Western and Russian leaders—without great delay.

With a bow to the prime minister—the suggestion was "a further manifestation of his own high purpose," the department said—it nevertheless stressed that before any such talks, there must be concrete evidence of Soviet good faith.

VERY COLD FOR MAY — Freezing temperatures, heavy snow, rain and gusty winds brought the worst May blizzard in years to Saskatchewan. Highways were blocked, airline schedules snarled and seeding operations halted. Snow blocks this grader clearing the highway near Saskatoon. Stuck in a drift within a mile of the city, it had to be pulled out by a highways department truck.

Find 101st Body In Waco Ruins

WACO, Tex. (AP)—The known death tally mounted today as searchers dug deep into the tornado ruins of downtown Waco.

The 100-mark was passed early today as the 101st body was freed from the debris.

Meanwhile, city officials studied these grim figures: damages estimated at $50,000,000; 196 business and manufacturing buildings destroyed; 1,836 other buildings and homes damaged or destroyed. The report was made Wednesday night at a disaster relief committee meeting. The figures were compiled by an army engineers survey team.

Pope Assails Materialism

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Pope today assailed Communist materialism as "the same old enemy" which has sought through the ages to divert men's eyes from God. The pontiff spoke to some 15,000 pilgrims from many countries, most of them members of workmen's organizations.

The audience—one of the biggest held this year—marked a celebration of the 62nd anniversary of the "rerum novarum," encyclical issued by Pope Leo XIII on May 15, 1891. It still is a basic document of the Roman Catholic Church's attitude on labor and social security.

"This is the same old enemy," he said. The enemy that "changes tongue and clothing, but is the same. "It says to men, 'Why look at heaven? Look to earth.' "

The pontiff conceded that the old enemy is winning a measure of success.

"Today," he said, "many workers have forgotten heaven and think only of earth."

Daring Doctors' Experiment To Prevent Pilot Blackouts

By RENNIE TAYLOR

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A daring experiment on the hearts of five United States Air Force doctors has opened the way for development of a new, more comfortable kind of gravity suit to prevent pilot blackouts.

The tests, conducted by Capt. Owen L. Slaughter of Evansville, Ind., were reported to the closing meeting of the Aero Medical Association here Wednesday.

Two long, flexible tubes called catheters were inserted through blood vessels in the neck and into the heart of each physician under test. This was done to measure the exact blood pressure in the heart while the lower halves of their bodies were being compressed as in a gravity or blackout suit.

NO BAD EFFECTS

Catheters are used frequently on one side or the other of the heart, but never before have they been used simultaneously on both sides, Dr. Slaughter said. The one-sided operation is only slightly dangerous, but the hazard is increased when both sides are catheterized. However, no bad effects appeared, Dr. Slaughter reported.

Flight surgeons long had believed that tight-squeezing gravity suits worked by preventing the blood from crowding into the lower part of the body during high speed dives or turns, leaving little or none in the head and causing momentary unconsciousness.

The tests showed, Dr. Slaughter said, that the gravity suit does not work that way. Instead it causes the arteries in the legs and lower abdomen to increase their resistance to blood flow. This causes increased blood pressure in the upper part of the body and makes it easier for the heart to pump blood to the brain, he reported.

REDESIGN SUITS

As a result, Dr. Slaughter said he would sugest that gravity suits be re-designed specifically with the idea of compressing arteries in the lower part of the body, as a first aid worker might do in holding the "pressure points" to stop haemorrhage.

It should be necessary no longer to make suits that will compress the flesh, he said.

Dutch Family Run 50-Acre Farm

MINTO, N.B. (CP)—Little more than a year ago Alexander Sholten of Holland stepped off a plane at Montreal with his wife and their 17 children. They've been just about the busiest family in New Brunswick ever since.

The Sholtens are running a 50-acre farm near Minto. In addition to growing potatoes, turnips and carrots, the family has seeded oats and hay.

Sholten drives happily about the farm on a new tractor, and his assets include a horse, two cows, a calf, four pigs and 60 hens. The yard is piled high with fire wood, pulpwood and logs to be sold.

Despite these responsibilities, Sholten also works for a coal company here, a daughter is a nurses' aid at Saint John, N.B., and six children attend school.

In pre-war Holland Sholten operated a meat processing plant. When German forces occupied the country he risked his life helping Allied pilots who were shot down. Finally captured and placed in a concentration camp, he resisted German "pressure" to make him tell what he knew about underground activities.

Mr. Uranium Visits Family After 27 Years

By ARCH MacKENZIE

KEEVIL, Eng. (CP)—Weather-beaten Augustus (Gus) Hawker—"folks call me Mr. Uranium because of the million I've made out of that black gold"—relaxed today in the bosom of the awe-struck family he left 27 years ago for northern Canada.

The 50-year-old farmer-trapper-storekeeper struck it rich at booming Uranium City in northern Saskatchewan last summer.

Today, his four young wide-eyed children—more used to the rock and sparse trees of northern Saskatchewan and Alberta than the soft Wiltshire countryside—were begging him to sell out his uranium interests and stay.

"I don't think Canada would like me to go," said Hawker, a quiet, philosophical man who persevered for 26 years against the adversities of the Canadian north.

SEEKS MORE MONEY

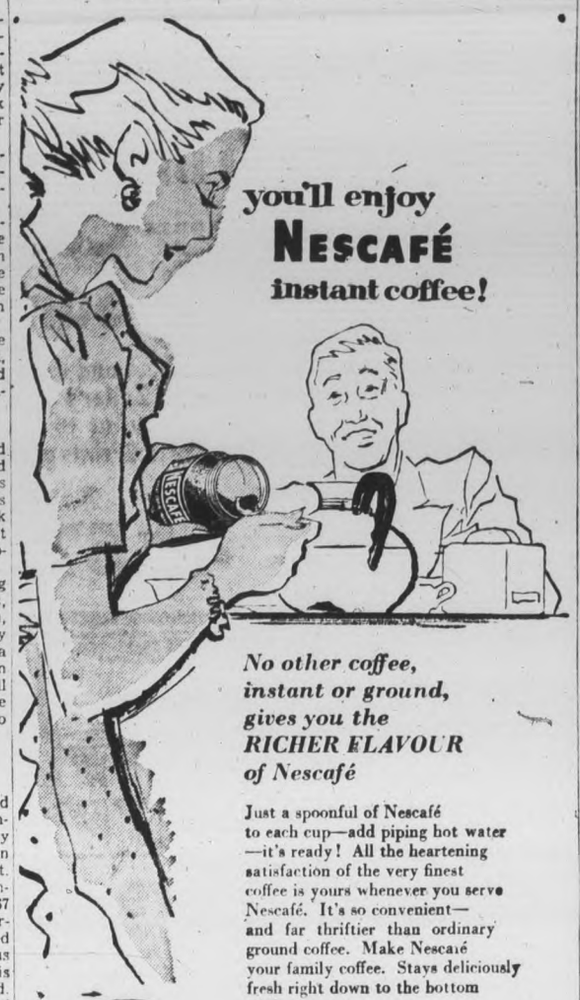
He says in a voice still tinged with Wiltshire accent he's sold $210,000 worth of claims and holds nine other groups, one of which is to be exploited by a New York company. He will try to interest British money in more development while here.

The oig thing, though, is visiting his five brothers and five sisters, all settled in this area near Bath, who thought he was a "crazy dreamer" when he left for Canada

He and the four children, born of an Indian wife now dead, will also see the Coronation. They have bookings for a return flight to Canada June 14.

Lost Wrong Leg

CHICAGO (AP)—A 64-year-old janitor, who claimed doctors amputated the wrong leg, Wednesday accepted $70,000 in damages in settlement of his $1,300,000 suit. Gus Tews, Chicago, sued the Evangelical Hospital Association and 67 individuals, mostly hospital personnel. He contended he entered the hospital to have a gangrenous left leg amputated but that his right leg was removed instead. Later, the left leg was removed at another hospital.



Child Burned To Death

OTTAWA (CP)—Trapped in an upstairs bedroom, three-year-old Gail Trewhitt was burned to death Wednesday when fire swept through a two-storey frame house at Hurdman's Bridge in the south-eastern edge of the city. The fire broke out in the kitchen of the home while the child's mother, Mrs. Arthur Trewhitt, made a five-minute visit to a neighbor's home across the street.

Magazine Establishes $5,000 Novel Award

TORONTO (CP)—Maclean's Magazine announced Wednesday establishment of a "Maclean's Novel Award" of $5,000 for a Canadian novel chosen by its editors.

The announcement said that at least one award, and possibly as many as three, will be made each year to stimulate the writing of good Canadian novels. The competition is open to professional and amateur writers and the entries of non-Canadians will be eligible providing they have a strong Canadian theme.

House Attacks Final Batch Of Estimates

OTTAWA (CP)—The House of Commons today plunged into the final batch of departmental estimates to be disposed of before prorogation of Parliament.

In the hope of closing out the session today, the House sat extra-long hour Wednesday, winding up an hour and 20 minutes beyond the regular adjournment hour of 10 p. m. after wading through estimates of five departments.

It completed the 1953-54 spending authorization of the mines, fisheries, state and post-office departments and most of those of the resources department.

Resources Minister Winters told the House at the night session the government has hopes of seeing the $400,000,000 Trans-Canada Highway completed on schedule in 1956. This could be done if the provinces gave it priority.

LET CONTRACTTS

Mr. Winters also announced that contracts for $103,000,000 worth of construction on the highway have been let up to now and it is planned to let out another $50,000,000 this year.

In a debate on mining matters, members from mine areas called for assistance of various kinds for Canada's coal industry and for base metal mines.

Coal-area members asked for a national policy that would enable that industry to find greater markets within Canada. Particular attenion was asked for the slumping Alberta industry, in which some mines are being closed down.

Mines Minister Prudham replied there has been a national coal policy in effect since 1947. While the industry was having difficulties, he thought these would be worked out.

He blamed the development of oil and gas in Alberta for most of that province's troubles with the solid fuel. In Nova Scotia, he said the industry is going through a phase of mechanization which would reduce operating efficiency for a while but which held promise of improvement.

ASKS CO-OPERATION

H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) asked the minister to co-operate with British Columbia authorities in helping marginal mines in that province, hit by low base metal prices and higher smelting costs.

Fisheries Minister Sinclair announced a plan for government insurance for fishing vessels in the seaboard provinces and said it is hoped to extend it later to the inland fishery. The plan will provide cheap insurance on vessels up to $7,500 in value, a type for whom owners now find it difficult to get private insurance.

Another aspect of the plan is that it will provide insurance for lobster traps, which are subject to periodic heavy storm loss in the Maritimes. Mr. Sinclair said the success of this experiment will determine whether the plan will be enlarged to take in other forms of fishing gear.

If the insurance plan works out, Mr Sinclair said, it is hoped later to extend credits to fishermen along the lines of the governments Farm Improvement Loan Act. This would enable them to replace lost boats and gear with government-guaranteed bank loans.

Special Floor Said Too Costly

OTTAWA (CP)—A $2,000,000 federal government building with a built-in "spring floor" auditorium brought opposition criticism in the House of Commons Wednesday night about use of the taxpayers' money for "lavish structures."

Donald Fleming (PC — Toronto Eglinton) started it by questioning Resources Minister Winters closely about the 28-acre building site of the modern structure on the outskirts of Ottawa which houses the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

He particularly wanted to know about a "spring dance floor" that had cost $2,500 more than a standard floor. He believed CMHC should have adequate accommodation but the taxpayers' money shouldn't be spent on "lavish structures."

The minister said the building had been economically constructed and the utility of space was very good.

Doctor Awarded $7,000 Damages

SASKATOON (CP)—A Court of Queen's Bench jury Wednesday night awarded $7,000 damages to Dr. David H. Arnott of London, Ont., in his libel suit against the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Saskatchewan.

Dr. Arnott, Canadian manufacturer of the Koch cure for cancer which involves injection of a chemical compound, based his suit on the college's quarterly for December, 1951. The publication denounced the treatment.

Dr. Arnott had asked unstated damages. The jury found the college's report was defamatory but not published maliciously.

Because the question of privilege was involved in the jury's ruling, defence counsel G. H. Yule asked the verdict be disregarded. Chief Justice J. T. Brown said he will deliver his judgment in a few days.

Never Raised Prices

LONDON (Reuters)—One British firm has not raised its prices once since it started business in 1888. The Associated Automatic Corporation, presenting its 1952 accounts today, added a footnote: "For the last 65 years we have been weighing and entertaining the public for one penny a time."

Trinity Mothers Celebrate 15th Anniversary

Trinity Baby Band mothers celebrated the 15th anniversary of the group Wednesday evening, at a meeting in the ladies parlor. The tea table was attractively arranged with a lace tablecloth, colourful tulips and daffodils, pink tapers in crystal holders, and the focal point of attention was the birthday cake, which had been artistically decorated by Mrs. D. E. Smith.

Mrs. S. D. Carver, honorary president, was the first to light a candle on the birthday cake, followed by past presidents, Mrs. V. Skitch, Mrs. N. Elliott, Mrs. W. R. Philp, Mrs. Eric Edmondson and Mrs. W. B. Gordon. Mrs. N. Corner and Mrs. A. Malby were unable to be present.

Children of the past presidents were the guest artists and delighted the members with their selections.

Billie Edmondson sang "The Cuckoo", Ann Gordon played a piano solo, and Michael Philp followed with a selection on the trumpet. These very young people entertained with the greatest of ease and confidence.

The program was in charge of Mrs. E. Van Steenburg's group. Mrs. E. Davis read the scripture and Mrs. Wm. Swayne led in prayer. Mrs. K. Harrison read a most interesting paper on life in Africa. Following this a film was shown, entitled "The Terrible Twos and Trusting Threes". Mrs. Wm. Cuppy gave an explanation of the film prior to it being shown. Mrs. Ivan Elliott acted as projectionist. The film depicted pre-school children in a nursery setting, where the only stage property is equipment designed to afford opportunity to experiment and learn through doing. There is a minimum of adult direction and teaching. A year later the spectator is able to see the growth and development which has taken place in 12 months. The influence of learning of an environment which meets the needs of children, and of direction which is unobtrusive, yet well planned is clearly discernible. Mrs. J. Robson expressed the appreciation of the group to Mrs. Elliott and also the children.

Mrs. Wm. Taylor presided for the business meeting. Following the reports of the various committees Mrs. R. M. Elliott gave a report of the "springtime tea" which was a most successful effort from every point of view. To date there is a profit of approximately $350 from the tea.

The annual picnic is to be held June 10th at Nicholls Oval with Mrs. Wm. Wildman and Mrs. T. Clarke, convenors.

Coffee and birthday cake were served at the close of the meeting by Mrs. E. Van Steeburgh's group.

RNAO District 6 Semi-Annual Is Held Here

About 85 nurses attended, being from Belleville, Trenton, Cobourg, Port Hope, Lindsay, Haliburton and Peterborough. Miss Florence Vickers, chairman of Chapter C, presided for the dinner and the meeting following was chaired by Miss Madeline Millard, of Belleville, chairman of the district.

Guest speaker was Mr. William Graff, of Peterborough Public Library, who took from his store of information on the World Health Organization the topic "Malaria Control of India." This was of particular interest to the nurses, and being combined with illustrations from a special film, was most informative.

He was introduced by Miss Lenore Mather and thanked by Miss Mary Greer.

Hadassah Welcomes Crowd To Tea At Synagogue

The patronage of almost every women's organization in the city was enjoyed by Peterborough Chapter of Hadassah at the tea and bazaar which they held Wednesday afternoon at the Beth Israel Synagogue on Reid St. And with the weatherman smiling most benignly, seemingly just for the occasion, the Jewish ladies were exceedingly happy at close of this event.

The Hadassah will use the proceeds for upkeep of the Synagogue and welfare in the city and also to make a donation through Canadian Hadassah for support of a children's village in Israel. It is planned to give one half toward the latter.

Hondwork done by girls of 12 to 16 years living in the village, called Hadassim, is on a travelling exhibition through Canada now and was on display in the bazaar room. It includes embroidery and knitting well and carefully done, some lovely pieces of metalcraft and some beauty preparations on which sale orders were being taken.

The whole effect of the tea room was gay and exciting and the guests were having a very good time exploring the various features. The home baking was of exceptional variety and quality. Bazaar articles made by the members included house dresses and brunch coats, children's play clothes, aprons, etc. On a corner of this table was a rack of used men's ties which had been cleaned and pressed and were being sold at two for a quarter.

Used books caught the fancy of the reading public and they had wide selection of type from the piles of paper-covered books and several rows of hard back books. "White elephants" included jewelry, glassware and dishes. At another table there was a variety of plants for sale.

A background of music gave a circus merry-go-round effect to the corner where a huge red and white lawn umbrella stood. It was arranged to revolve readily and allow customer to choose a small parcel hanging from its valance which happened to suit their fancy. The contents were all useful items but considerable amusement resulted when they seemed to fall into the wrong hands.

PRIZES

There were two draw prizes offered, as well as a door prize. The big prize was an oil painting by Miss Margaret Florence, which she had donated, and it was won by Mrs. Cameron A. Craig. A pair of lawn chairs with matching metal table was won by Mrs. L. R. Bissett.

The door prize is a mirror and it will go to the holder of ticket No. 404 if she will contact the tea convener Mrs. Myer Cherney at telephone 9262.

The tea guests were most cordially received by Mrs. M. Hollend, president of the chapter, who introduced Mrs. A. M. Babb, wife of the new Rabbi, and Mrs. Myer Cherney was also receiving. Tickets were taken by Mrs. L. Green, Mrs. B. Green and Mrs. M. Beck.

The Israeli display was in charge of Mrs. Harry Zacks and Mrs. Phil Mack. Mrs. Harry Florence and Mrs. Irving Cipin sold tickets on the lawn set and Mrs. Morris Duke and Mrs. I. Botnick on the painting.

Sales ladies at the bake table were Mrs. M. Cowan, Mrs. B. Epston, Mrs. M. Mandell, and Mrs. J. Katz. The bazaar table was in charge of Mrs. F. Petersiel, Mrs. R. Ruskin and Mrs. R. Grafstein and the ties were sold by Mrs. F. Katz. Mrs. A. Semel and Mrs. W. Wiseman had the used books, Mrs. Harry Schwartz, Mrs. Morris Black and Mrs. J. Wineberg were selling the white elephants and Mrs. Zimmel Levine and Mrs. Herb Schacher sold the plants.

The umbrella novelty parcel sale was looked after by Mrs. S. Marks, Mrs. A. Moldaver and Mrs. Al Pottens.

Guests were invited into the Synagogue and any features of the building or the service were explained for them by Mrs. Irving Moldaver.

TEA ROOM

The tea room was marked off by a circle of chairs centred by a most attractive tea table. Covered by a handsome cutwork Madeira cloth, it was centred with a very effective arrangement of springtime flowers prepared to carry out the Empire colors, red, white and blue, and matched by the tapers in flanking candelabra.

Tea pourers were guests of the Hadassah, Mrs. Maxwell J. Swanston, Mrs. Clare G. Collins, Miss Mary Medd, Mrs. G. C. Stevens, Mrs. Frank Guilfoyle and Mrs. C. G. Boyd.

The tea room was in charge of Mrs. Sam Moldaver, Mrs. Sam Goldbach and Mrs. Harry Yudin and Mrs. Harry Cherney, Mrs. Myer Levine, Mrs. Ben Swartz, Mrs. Joseph Rogow and Mrs. Ben Abramsky served.

Bethany Girls Demonstrate Cotton Project

BETHANY (ENS) — The Women's Institute met in the Orange Hall on Monday evening with the newly-elected president, Mrs. T. Jennings, in the chair. Plans were made for members to attend the district annual convention in Bailieboro May 19. Mrs. Ina Palmer was appointed leader of Group 3 and Convener for programs featuring community activities and public relations.

The program in charge of Mrs. H. Rayson was based on home economics and health. Proof of home economy in sewing was the demonstration given by the junior girls' homemaker club, "The Glad I Canners," which is sponsored by the WI. "Cottons May Be Smart" was their topic for the year. Mrs. Mansell Finney introduced the 10 club members. Miss Dorothy Mann explained the course the girls had studied and her topic "Let's Make a Dress."

A short skit, "Around the Clock," was given, with Miss Marie Finney introducing the girls, who each modelled a different type of cotton wearing apparel, including pyjamas, a housecoat, garden jeans, morning house dresses, afternoon, business and dinner dresses. Following this each girl modelled the dress she had completed during the course.

Mrs. T. S. Gault expressed the thanks of the Institute members to the Girls' Club for their interesting demonstration. Miss Marie Carr, president of the girls' club, voiced the appreciation of the members to their leaders, Mrs. Mansell Finney, Mrs. Clarence Page and Mrs. H. L. Challice, for their instruction throughout the term. Mrs. Clarence Rowan expressed the appreciation of the mothers to the Women's Institute for sponsoring the course and to Miss Laura Morton who had made the attractive posters displayed with the exhibit.

During the social hour, lunch was served by Mrs. H. Rayson, Mrs. Ernest Stacey, Mrs. J. C. Cummiskey and Mrs. H. Sanderson, with Mrs. Rupert Woods tendering the thanks of the members to the hostess group.

Lampshade Hats Reappear In Fashions

By KATHERINE PINKHAM

PARIS (AP)—The lampshade hat is back again. It appeared in more than a dozen costumes at the Jacques Fath mid-season fashion collection Tuesday.

It looks rather heavy, too, after such a long spell of airy perched-on-top models, with its deeper crown and the big brim sloping downward at a direct slant. It is worn straight on the head and the brim shades the eyes flatteringly.

Some of the hats are quite large, like one of white openwork, stiffened and crisp-looking, with a brim softening half the face. It looked very well, too, on a tall mannequin in a moded black summer dress cut wide and shallow at the neckline, with sleeves slightly puffed from shoulder to a narrow cuff well above the elbow.

MORE COMFORTABLY CUT

Suitcoats were more comfortably cut at the waistline than those currently worn by smart Parisiennes. Some of the coats were indented only slightly at the waist.

Besides the lampshade hats, there were almost as many pill-boxes, but with a difference. These new ones are bigger crowned, coming down in some models almost to the eyebrows. They are straight and rather severe-looking. Some of the ones worn Tuesday were mink-trimmed, and some of Persian lamb.

Lovely Bouquet Highlights St. John's WA Tea

Forsythia, yellow tulips and daffodils arranged in an oddly shaped amber glass bowl made an interesting conversation piece at the Spring Tea Wednesday afternoon in St. John's parish hall parlour.

Tea convener Mrs. L. R. Groombridge chose this centrepiece for the tea table which she covered with a pale yellow damask cloth, and gained the admiration of the guests who kept her and the tea room assistants busy throughout the afternoon.

The ladies of the Afternoon Branch of the WA acting as tea room assistants were: Mrs. T. H. Floyd, Mrs. A. E. Wilson, Mrs. D. J. Eldred, Mrs. E. Nicholls, Mrs. J. Johnston, Mrs. R. Crocker, Mrs. E. Goodwin, Mrs. H. Long, Mrs. E. Graham, Mrs. C. Barton, Mrs. E. Lemming, Mrs. R. Ford and Mrs. H. Kelsey.

Tea pourers were Mrs. W. M. Cruthers and Miss Florence Gladman, Mrs. W. P. Robertson and Miss Margaret English, Mrs. A. Brown and Mrs. W. Turner.

A table of home cooking was in charge of Mrs. W. Dyer and Miss Ruby Quartermaine, and Mrs. R. Lawless assisted with the sales.

Books suitable for summer reading were for sale by Mrs. H. C. Sootheran, Mrs. H. Gaele and Mrs. D. Morgan.

WA president Mrs. F. E. Hooper and vice-president Mrs. H. A. Craig were receiving at the door. Donations were being taken by Miss English and Mrs. Eldred.

Campbell-Welch Wedding

At Minden on Wednesday afternoon, in St. Paul's Anglican Church, the marriage was solemnized by the Rev. John Barclay of Patricia Eleanor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Welch of Minden, and Mr. Donald Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth G. Campbell of Peterborough.

White snapdragons and white tulips were the floral setting for the ceremony. Wedding music was played by Mr. Charles Brandon.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a gown of Swiss point de-esprit with strapless moulded bodice and a bouffant skirt with inserts of ruffled nylon net worn over nylon net over taffeta. It was topped by a tiny fitted jacket with short puff sleeves. Her veil was of nylon tulle in shoulder length, and caught to a tiny bonnet-shaped headdress. She carried a prayer book with an orchid and stephanotis.

Miss Elizabeth Myles of Peterborough as maid of honor and Miss Jean Crozier as bridesmaid were in pink and blue ballerina length frocks of lace and nylon net. The dresses were made with strapless bodices and bouffant skirts worn over crinolines and they had matching lace jackets and headbands. Each carried a nosegay of sweet peas centred with pink roses.

Mr. James Campbell was groomsman for his brother. Ushers were Ronald Dunn and Glen Vasey.

The reception was held at the bride's home. Her mother received in a dress of navy corded faille cut on straight lines with a pleated peplum. She wore navy and white accessories and had a corsage of pink roses.

When leaving later to spend a honeymoon in northern Ontario the bride wore a grey flannel suit and navy accessories and had a corsage of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will live in Minden.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

DOROTHY DIX:

Year's Difference In Age Will Have Little Affect

DEAR MISS DIX: Though I am very much in love with Bob, whom I have known for two years, there is one serious problem worrying me. I am 20, and he is 19. We don't expect to marry until he finishes college, which will be in three years, but do you think we can make a happy marriage?

MARGE

ANSWER: The calendar itself can be a very inaccurate gauge for age, which should be measured, rather, in terms of mental development. However, since the good old calendar is the best guide we have, it must do. Realizing its inadequacies, two people with an age problem should not rely entirely on birth dates. A difference of one year can always be disregarded, especially if other factors conform to a mutually satisfactory degree. As Bob's education is progressing in accordance with his age group, and you seem to be a young lady of good sense and intelligence, that one year, now looming so large on your horizon, might be ignored.

ONLY A YEAR'S DIFFERENCE

There is no single example of age disparity that can be cited as insurmountable. Even those commonly held as most hazardous, such as a wife being many years older than her husband, or a young girl marrying a man several years her senior, have been hurdled by couples whose marriages were happy in spite of age differences.

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a very bad habit, and no matter how hard I try I can't overcome it. It's a tendency to make cutting remarks. Sometimes I do it because I think I'm being cute or humorous, but more often I have no reason. I've recently quarreled with a fine boy over this fault. I'm 15.

A. A.

ANSWER: There is a time in the teens when, with some, sarcasm seems witty. As you come to realize that this form of humor elicits an unfavorable reaction and that it is alienating you from friends and probably irritating your famliy, you'll get over it. In the meantime, of course, damage might be done. You must make a determined effort to conquer the failing. To help you to do so, I suggest a list of good, inexpensive pamphlets. A self-addressed, stamped envelope will bring it to you.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 17, and in love with boy, 18. He says he loves me and wants to marry me when I finish school. However, he doesn't want to be tied down to steady dating in the interim. He wants to be free to date as he likes, BUT, he wants me to stay home waiting patiently for the year to end.

T. R.

ANSWER: Of all the gall! Tell your Romeo that girls have advanced since the middle ages. They are no longer obliged to sit spinning in towers while their would-be loves wander the countryside. You'll brand yourself as a fool if you acquiesce to the proposition this lad has offered. If he loves you—and I assure you he doesn't—he'd be only too happy to forego dating others. He's selfish and uncouth and should be given his leave immediately.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Victoria Day First Big Picnic Of Year

Since the "24th" falls on the 18th this year (and I'm sure Queen Victoria won't mind if Queen Elizabeth doesn't mind moving her birthday up a month or so for state reasons) and since it is raining pitchforks as I type this, regardless of the inclemency of the weathah I'm going to go on a big picnic on the "24th" (even though it's the 18th) and even it it's raining and I have to sit on a rock in a slicker under an umbrella.

If you like picnics that well, my friends, read on.

Just a year ago this time all Canada was in the clutch of a heat wave. It could be repeated for Monday, May 18, 1953. If so, we picnickers who crave fresh air and ants, will be ready.

PICNIC WITH A FIRE
(The Best Kind)
Tomato Juice with Lemon
Marinated Steakbobs
Parkerhouse Rolls or
Hamburg Buns
Russian Salad with Devilled Eggs
Fresh Pineapple Sticks
Banana Cake Baumert Cheese
Quarts of Coffee

You know as well as I that picnics are thirsty affairs, especially if you travel on foot, so take along, besides the tomato juice and coffee some extra water, and of course, milk for the children.

MARINATED STEAKBOBS

To add interest and to reduce the total cost, I am going to marinate some baby beef liver with the steak. The day before the picnic marinate some choice steak, cut into 2-inch pieces, in some olive or coking oil with ½ teaspoon freshly ground pepper, a dash of salt and a tablespoon lemon juice added to it. Rub the steak lightly with a cut clove of garlic, then place it in this oil marinade and let it soak about 12 hours, turning it over just before you go to bed. The baby beef liver soaks up these flavors like a sponge. When you are ready to pack the picnic hamper, drain the steak and liver and carefully wrap it in several sheets of wax paper. Using a long skewer to impale them, thread onto it alternately a piece of steak, a slice of bacon, a piece of onion, a slice of raw potato and if desired a mushroom. Repeat. Each picnicker is on his own grilling this and will know enough to pop the whole thing in to a Parkerhouse roll or buttered hamburg bun when it begins to drip and is golden and sizzling. Salt and pepper should be handy.

RUSSIAN SALAD

This salad is not tossed together. One cup each finely shredded cabbage, sliced radishes, watercress sprigs, coarsely grated carrots, cut-up scored cucumber slices are marinated in a little French dressing—each separately. Pile each vegetable in a heaped up triangle in a large wooden bowl. Separate the different vegetable with quarters of devilled or plain hard-cooked egg and long strips of green pepper and stuffed olives. Another common separator used is anchovy fillets. Pass French Dressing.

BANANA CAKE

Cream one-half cup best quality shortening (or half shortening and half butter) until very light then beat into it 1½ cups sugar, until fluffy. Beat in 2 eggs (3 if they are pullets). Sift together 2¼ cups sifted flour, ¼ teaspoon baking powder, ⅞ teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon salt, and stir it in, alternately in thirds, with ¼ cup sour or buttermilk, 1 cup mashed ripe bananas, and, if desired, ½ cup chopped nuts. Turn batter into pan about 13 x 9 inches which has been buttered and paper-lined and buttered again and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 35 to 40 minutes. If this batter is baked in layers they require about 25 to 30 minutes.

Here's hoping for a sunburn.

She felt that, judging from the number of proficiency badges awarded Lakefield was doing a good job of Guiding and complimented the leaders on their efficiency.

Ontario, Mrs. Lount stated, had the largest number of Guides and Brownies in Canada, and they are under the Provincial Commissioner, Mrs. Bruce Wilson. In Canada there are over 80,000 Guides. Mrs. Lount also stressed weekly collections and told of the good work accomplished through these offerings.

Master Mariner

LONDON (CP)—The skipper of the Empress of Australia, Capt. John Peter Dobson, 52, has been chosen to lead the Royal Naval reserve contingent in the Coronation procession June 2. He has been sailing on Canadian Pacific Steamship Lines vessels between Britain and Canada since 1919.

S. Hughes Here To Settle Strike Budget

Sam Hughes, assistant Canadian director of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL), will be in the city later today to draw up a strike budget for the 435 striking Quaker Oats Co. employees here in the city.

Wednesday the strike entered its fourth week and there was still no sign of either side weakening or even making proposals for further discussions.

The UPWA has a national strike fund and Mr. Hughes is expected to settle the amount of picket pay, grocery allowance and family allowance available to the strikers.

The local union has already set up and is paying these basic allowances and Mr. Hughes is expected to examine the financial setup and assure the strikers of support from the national strike fund. Contributions are received from all Canadian UPWA locals.

A special welfare committee looks over emergency cases: families of strikers that are behind on their bills, rent, mortgage payments, or similar problems.

Expensive Liner Launched In UK

CLYDEBANK, Scotland (AP)—The most expensive ship ever built at Clydebank slid into the water here today at almost the same spot where the giant Cunard queens were launched before the Second World War.

She was the 28,000-ton liner Arcadia, and is costing the Peninsula and Orient Line £6,000,000 ($16,800,00) to build. £1,000,000 ($2,800,000) more than the Queen Mary or Queen Elizabeth cost more than a decade ago.

The Arcadia was one of two 28,000-ton liners launched today for service between England and Australia.

The other vessel, the Orsova, was launched in Barrow-in-Furness for the Orient Line. She is the first vessel of her kind to have an all-welded hull and is the world's first mastless liner.

Push-Button Buying Now On Increase

MONTREAL (CP)—Push-button purchasing by Canadians is increasing, J. Howard Whillans of Toronto, one of the first to introduce coin-operated merchandising machines to Canada, said today.

Addressing a service club, Mr. Whillans said "there is not a single packaged article which cannot be sold by a coin machine."

He predicted that eventually whole aisles in stores will be taken up by vending machines of different types.

Here's Good Advice for All STOMACH SUFFERERS

This Man Had Sick, Burning, Upset Stomach, Became Very Nervous, Irritable, Got Headaches, Rheumatic Pains. Tells How Syntona Helped Him. Recommends It Highly.

Here is good advice for all sufferers from stomach trouble. Syntona Herbal Compound has helped thousands of men and women suffering from weak, nervous, upset stomach. It may well be the means of helping you, too. Mr. John Fitzsimmons, 215 Edinburgh Street, London, Ontario, tells his experience with Syntona as follows:

"My stomach kept giving me trouble quite some time ago and kept getting worse as time went on.

Couldn't Eat

"After awhile I was having so much gas with pains and burning in my stomach that I had no appetite to eat my meals. What little I did eat soured in my stomach afterwards. There would be a burning pain in the pit of my stomach and I'd get sick, bilious attacks. I became very nervous irritable, got splitting headches, and had to be taking laxatives all the time. Rheumatic pains set into my back, limbs and muscles.

First Real Relief

"The things I was taking didn't seem to be doing me any good, so after a friend told me about Syntona I decided to try some. Now it can be said that this medicine has given me the first real relief I've had from this condition. I can eat again without having all that distress afterwards. I am free of headaches and other pains, and I certainly feel different. Instead of being nervous and all tired out from morning to night I now feel more relaxed and have more energy.

"I can recommend Syntona very highly to anyone suffering as I did."

How It Acts

Syntona is made from 12 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots and acts on stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels improving their action. It helps to clear excess acids and impurities from the system and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough by Elliott's Drug Store. (Advt.)

Woman's Body Found Floating In Otonabee

THE LIFELESS BODY of Mrs. John L. Paisley was discovered by two men of the Trent Canal system transporting a scow at Lock 22 opposite the Drive-In Theatre. Kenneth Junkin is shown pointing to the shallow water where she was found. His workmate, Fred James, who helped pull the body from the water, is shown at the scow's motor in the photo, lower left. Missing Boys Drowned In Harbor

Say Bodies In Water Since Sunday; Lads Lost Two Weeks

TORONTO (CP)— Missing since May 1, three Toronto boys were found drowned today on the Toronto waterfront. A crew of waterfront workers saw the bodies of the three children of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Quigley floating in the water at the foot of Sherbourne Street.

Police said it was a case of accidental drowning. Coroner Smirle Lawson said the children had been in the water 12 to 14 days. They left their east-central home here to buy candy at a neighborhood store on May 1.

Police theorized that one child fell off a steel girder while trying to cross a part of the harbor and the others were drowned trying to rescue him.

The three boys, Howard, 10, Henry, 7, and Paul, 5, had been the object of one of the most intensive hunts in Toronto's history.

An army of police and interested citizens had combed the downtown area and other parts of the city. Thursday the board of police commissioners doubled a reward from $500 to $1,000 for information leading to their discovery, dead or alive.

The waterfront workers who found the children were George Kenyon, Ross Petals and Len Trumbley.

Mrs. Quigley had been listening to the news when a reporter called her to tell her that her three sons had been found dead.

"I can't believe it," she said. Then she slumped on to a couch and put her hands to her face.

"I guess it's all over. I'll have to tell my husband."

Frees 300 Dogs

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) A woman vexed because the dog-catcher impounded her dog, freed more than 300 from the city pound Thursday. Police Chief R .D. Allen said two or three animals that may be infected with rabies were among the dogs the unidentified woman turned loose. Late Thursday night, only 125 dogs had been returned to the pound by annoyed police and dog-catchers.

British Troops Block Roads Into Suez Zone

SUEZ (Reuters)—British troops armed with machine-guns today erected a road block on the Cairo-Suez desert road and began checking all traffic entering the canal zone.

A British soldier who stopped a bus told passengers "we are searching for hidden arms and explosives."

CAIRO (CP)—Egyptians in towns in the Suez canal zone have been ordered not to sell food to British troops, the government said today.

A spokesman said the garrison would continue to receive its foodstuffs under allocated quotas from authorized contracts. British forces, however, would not be allowed in future to buy in the towns foodstuffs allocated to the civilian population of the Canal Zone.

TENSION HIGH

Tension has been high between Britain and Egypt since negotiations for withdrawal of British forces from the zone broke down last week.

Britain says it will not turn over the canal to Egypt until it is certain the strategic waterway will be maintained properly for use in the event of war.

The town of Ismailia on the canal is out of bounds for British troops. The British order was made Thursday on the first day of Ramadan — month-long dusk-to-dusk Moslem fast.

AVOID VIOLENCE

The action was taken to forestall any violence in the town.

Egypt's chief of staff, Lt.-Col. Gamal Badel Nasser, has predicted a popular uprising against the British unless they withdraw from the canal area by mid-August.

An indication that Britain isn't taking much notice of this ultimatum came from London where the British air ministry announced that the RAF will stage a massive Coronation fly-past over the canal zone June 5.

Britain has 80,000 men in the area and there have been reports in recent days that other crack troops were en route there from Malta.

Peace Hopes Brighter, Says Nehru

Commends Proposal From Churchill For Top-Level Talks

NEW DELHI (CP)— Prime Minister Nehru of India said today "the outlook for peace is brighter than it has been for a long time." The remark came in a major foreign policy statement made before both the upper and lower Houses of Parliament and received with great cheering.

Nehru welcomed Prime Minister Churchill's proposal for a conference of the leaders of world powers at an early date and added: "I would earnestly commend this suggestion."

He noted that President Eisenhower was not opposed to such a conference but had said that the time for it was not ripe.

Nehru said he felt a solution of the Korean prison of war problem was more likely to be found on the basis of the United Nations resolution and the Chinese eight-point proposal than on the latest United Nations counter-proposals.

PROPOSALS DIVERGE

The UN negotiators' proposals "diverge considerably from the (Indian-authored) general assembly resolution to which the United Nations stands committed."

The Red proposals, he continued, are a "very close approximation" of the UN resolution and "seemed to afford a promising, solid basis for a solution of the immediate problem."

"It should be possible to amplify them or vary them by agreement where necessary."

Other highlights of Nehru's statement included the following summation of situations in various parts of the world:

NO DISCRIMINATION

Africa—"No solution of the African problem can be based on racial discrimination or suppression of the African people."

Pakistan—"During recent weeks there has been a marked improvement in relations between India and Pakistan and many friendly overtures made to us which we welcome and reciprocate."

Soviet peace gestures—"The cold war has somewhat toned down. Many evidences of this new approach have come from the Soviet Union and, however some people might view them, they must be welcomed as a lessening of the tension of the world."

Mrs. Grace Paisley Missing 3 Hours From New Home

The body of Mrs. Grace Paisley, 53, was found floating in the Otonabee River today near the home that she and her husband, John L. Paisley, were building opposite the Drive-In Theatre, five miles north of the city on Highway 28. Two employees of the Trent Canal saw her body near Lock 22 just back of her home at 11:50 a.m. as they were taking a new steel scow from the Lock 20 shops to Lovesick dam. Mrs. Paisley had been missing since 9 a.m.

The two men who pulled her body from the water and then called provincial police were Kenneth Junkin, 742 Gillespie St. and Fred James, 306 Mark St.

Coroner Dr. Herbert N. Young said there may be an autopsy performed to determine cause of death. Neighbors said Mrs. Paisley had a heard condition.

Her husband discovered about 9 a.m. that she was missing and began to hunt for her. Later in the morning he started north from the nearly-completed home along the river. A neighbor Mrs. Eunice Killoran started south. As Mrs. Killoran was returning after a fruitless search, she saw the provincial police and identified the body.

Starting out with an outboard motor to propel the scow, the two Trent Canal employees had just cleared Lock 22 when they saw the woman's body floating face down near rock-filled crib work in three or four feet of water. In early days the cribbing was used to tie up log booms.

The couple, who have no children, moved here from the Georgian Bay district last winter. They started to build their new home in March opposite the Drive-In.

OPP Constable Tom Armitage is in charge of the investigation assisted by Constables Pat Cornell and Ron Chittim.

Senators Show Little Liking For Ike's Position

WASHINGTON (AP)—Several senators displayed little liking today for President Eisenhower's stated position on possible admission of Red China into the United Nations in the event a truce is reached in Korea.

The president told his press conference Thursday he would not now say that admission of the Peiping Communist regime to the UN should follow an armistice. He did not add that he would oppose China's admission under any circumstances.

Some lawmakers said they saw a possibility the president may have left the gate ajar for future compromises.

Among these, Senator Styles Bridges (Rep.-N. H.) said he is categorically opposed either to U. S. recognition of Communist China or to its UN admission under any circumstances.

Senator H. Alexander Smith (Rep.-N. J.), a foreign relations committee member, said if Red China gets into the UN "all Asia is lost and that includes Korea, Burma, Indo-China and Indonesia and I don't like to think what would happen to Japan."

Suggestions by British Labor leader Clement Attlee that Red China be given a UN seat if there is a Korean armistice have touched off a storm in the Senate which could result in some drastic cuts in foreign aid allotments to Britain.

Bridges, who heads the Senate appropriations committee, said the controversy is "bound to affect action on foreign aid funds" and Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, Republican leader, observed that the tow "won't do the British any good" on that score.

Senator Everett Dirksen (Rep.-Ill.) told the Senate the time to reply effectively to Attlee's criticisms of American policies and personalities will come when the Senate considers foreign aid funds.

Senator John Cooper (Rep.-Ky.), who tried to smooth over the Senate's ruffled feelings, said he was disturbed by fear that Attlee's speech might adversely affect Korean truce talks.

He said that while Churchill had been criticized for not responding to Attlee, "we in Congress have some responsibility, too, if we sit here and seem to acquiesce in rash and immoderate statements."

Ban All Travel As Bush Fires Rage In North

SUDBURY (CP)—All travel in the Sudbury district bush has been banned for the week-end by the Ontario department of lands and forests.

Ted Hall, district forester said today that in view of the serious fire hazard, only such drastic action could avert the possibility of further fire outbreaks.

Two serious fires burning in the Sudbury district are not yet under control and have spread to more than 3,000 acres each. One in Dryden township is being held by fire rangers but is not yet considered under control. The other, in the Falconbridge area, has been checked along its edges.

USE WATER BOMBS

A department of lands and forests helicopter was used Thursday to drop equipment to hard-pressed crews on the fire's perimeter New men are being flown in today.

Fires on the outer edges were water-bombed Thursday by three planes.

NORTH BAY (CP)—Almost 200 men were hacking and digging their way around a perimeter of some 35 miles today in their battle against a 5,500-acre bush fire in Eddy township, northeast of North Bay.

The fire, which broke out last Sunday, was listed as under control today by Frank Miller, department of lands and forests protection supervisor.

Camp fires in the bush this week-end are forbidden, Mr. Miller said. In addition, bush travellers have been warned that smoking is prohibited anywhere in a bush area while the person is moving. Smokers must sit down to smoke.

OTTAWA (CP)—Two Montreal district airmen will fly the CF-100 bringing the first television recordings of the Coronation to North American audiences, the air force announced Thursday.

A "standby" plane will participate in case any trouble develops with the first plane.

The speedy all-weather jets will go from their North Bay base to Goose Bay, Labrador, several days before Coronation day to await delivery of the first TV coronation films by RAF Canberra aircraft.

The plane scheduled to carry the films June 2 will be piloted by Flt.-Lt. Phill Etienne, DFC, 30, of Montreal. An alternate CF-100 will be piloted by FO. William Begy, DFC, 32, of St. Catharines.

Hughes said there were three survivors.

The three survivors, all riding in the tail section of the plane, were able to walk away from the craft.

Rainstorm Downs Wire Cuts Oshawa Power

OSHAWA (CP) — Heavy rainstorm here Thursday brought down a 110,000-volt high tension wire and plunged the city and surrounding area into total darkness for half an hour.

Nearby Pickering and Whitby were also affected by the power break shortly after midnight. Residents of Oshawa reported a loud explosion "which lighted up the sky line like daylight."

Norway Princess Weds Commoner

OSLO (AP)—A shy, young princess leaves the sheltered life of the Norwegian royal court today to become the wife of a commoner.

The bride is Princess Ragnhild, 22, petite, brunette older daughter of Crown Prince Olav and Crown Princess Martha. The groom is handsome Erling Svend Lorentzen, 30, who takes a big hand in running his father's thriving shipping business in Oslo.

Their simple wedding — the climax of a fairy tale romance come true—was planned for a brick village church at Asker, near Oslo, in sight of Crown Prince Olav's hilltop Skaugum residence.

Heading the guest list was 80-year-old King Haakon VII, rumored to regard with mixed emotions the eight-year-old romance of his favorite granddaughter with a commoner.

Three Rob Messenger Of $15,000 Payroll

TORONTO (CP) — A payroll messenger was robbed of $15,000 at noon today by three armed men and police started an intensive search of the downtown area.

The messenger was taking the payroll from the E. S. Currie Company on downtown York street to a bank. Out-of-town police were warned to be on the lookout for a carload of armed men.

Korean Truce Talks Stall As Both Sides Won't Budge On PoW Issue

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Korean truce negotiations got nowhere today as both sides refused to budge from their separate proposals for exchanging war prisoners. The Allies have threatened to break off all negotiations again if the Reds won't bargain on the last major barrier to a truce. Today's hour and 20-minute session brought only restatements that neither side accepts the other's views on what to do with 48,500 Red prisoners who refuse to go back to communism.

Another meeting is scheduled for 11 a. m. Saturday (10 p. m. EDT Friday).

Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison, chief Allied delegate, said the Communists either "misunderstood or deliberately misinterpreted" the latest Allied plan, offered two days ago and snubbed sharply by the Reds Thursday.

NOT NEGOTIATING

He said they were not negotiating inside the conference hut.

The Reds proposed May 7 that a five-country neutral commission —India, Sweden, Switzerland, Poland and Czechoslovakia — take custody for four months of all prisoners who won't go home. During this time, the Reds would make "explanations." The future of those

No Bodyguard For Tito

May Day Parade In Yugoslavia Fun

This is the sixth of a series of articles by I. Norman Smith, of Ottawa, newspaperman, who is touring Europe. He is spending several weeks in Belgrade and in this article tells of the May Day Parade.

By I. NORMAN SMITH

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, May 1. (By Air Mail)—Having been raised on the Western idea that on May Day in Communist countries only witches, murderers and nihilists venture into the open sunshine, honesty makes it essential that I report that I have been out on the streets and elsewhere all day on this May Day and enjoyed it all.

Yugoslavs rise early anyway and May Day is no exception. To get to our seats for the May Day parade we had to leave the hotel shortly after seven, walking on foot with thousands of others and having to show only a passport and our seat ticket.

The ceremonial march-past before Marshal Tito was held on a broad street in front of the parliament buildings. Tito sat quite out in the open on a wooden stand, along with his colleagues and the diplomats. Press seats were alongside.

The parade was due to begin at 8 and at 8 upon the salute of a great cannon, a general on a white horse presented his compliments to President Tito and the parade was on. It all seemed so easy, hardly any police between the crowded sidewalks and the parade road and in fact not one policeman between the press section and the road. For that matter, Tito himself seemed not to have a bodyguard and at the end of the parade when people milled out on the road from all directions I wouldn't have needed to be much of a shot to have put an end to Russia's No. 1 enemy.

WRONG IMPRESSION

That may seem an odd thing to say but I mention it because the West has presumed all along that Tito must owe his life to an immensely close guard in a firm police state. I will not deny that this is a police state. It is But they must do their policing very secretly. I doubt if I've seen more police in Belgrade in the last three days than you'd see in Ottawa. We have walked all streets freely and alone, have not once been challenged nor rudely looked at. And as nearly as a surface observer can judge, I would say we haven't seen people who were hunted or haunted. On the contrary, after Paris and Vienna, Belgrade seems a city of smiles —though the city itself is on the drab and stolid side. They laugh with enthusiasm, drink coffee with enthusiasm, walk the streets at evening. Maybe they are also Communists with enthusiasm. I don't know how I'd know. But I do know they seem happy and there's stuff in their shops and lots of food on their tables and pride in their eye.

"You should have seen this parade a few years ago," said several Yugoslavs to me at different times today. "Through war-damaged streets and with out-dated Russian equipment and men in old uniforms —ah, it was good for the spirit but not much to look at then."

LOT TO LOOK AT

Today it was a lot to look at. The weather kept the American-given jets from flying in low salute, but in terms of cannon and tanks and self-propelled guns and machine guns and flame-throwers and paratroopers and mechanized field artillery it looked to this untrained observer like a modern and pretty deadly army.

Most of the heavy stuff was American-sent, some of it British; but a good deal of the small arms and some guns were Yugoslav. It is queer world we live in, American military equipment flying the Communist red banner with the hammer and sickle, Tito sitting there proudly with Western diplomats, the Communist crowds looking not the way we think Communist crowds are supposed to look but carefree and unbelligerent.

There was, admittedly, something rather horrifying in the fearful stamp, stamp, stamp of the ceremonial march along the special 200-yard area in front of the reviewing stand. The men's cheeks shook with each jarring downward step. It isn't the high goose-step of the Hun nor the even-gaited stride of the Guards going down Whitehall. It is somewhere between, but with the emphasis on the crash of the flat boot upon the ground almost as hammer upon anvil. It wasn't pleasant.

Test Boats, Ability

Cape Breton Lobster Men Start Annual Trap Setting

LOUISBOURG, N. S. (CP)—More than 300 Cape Breton lobster fishermen from Gabarus to Glace Bay dash seaward at noon today in a race for the best fishing grounds.

They'll match their seamanship and the speed of their boats under a time-honored custom allowing them to set their traps 12 hours before the season officially opens Saturday.

Take Main-a-Dieu where most fishermen are old hands at the game. Forty-seven jaunty snapper boats are ready to break from the barrier, plow into the harbor-mouth swells and head two to eight miles for the choice lobster beds.

Donald Holmes, fisheries officer here, estimates 45,000 traps will be set along his coastal area. He predicts a bumper year, poor cod and haddock markets and the scarcity of inshore fish sending more men in search of lobster.

Preparations have been going on for weeks. At Main-a-Dieu, most of the 8,000 traps, painted with their owners' designs, have been piled on the wharf days before the starting gun. It's a family affair and everybody chips in.

The boats are strung out like horses parading to the post, their traps baited in a mass turnout the day before.

Fishermen are hoping the weather will be better than last year, when many boats didn't risk the rough seas.

Throughtout the season storms kept the boats in port for days on end and wrecked fishing gear. But the owners didn't apply for government aid; they built new traps and were determined to start again.

Main-a-Dieu opens the season with a ceremony unique in Cape Breton. A three-day church service is held for fishermen and their families and the boats are blessed by the parish priest.

'Cowhide' Belt Paper

Government Stands Solidly Against Falling Trousers

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Garson gave the Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC—Macleod) solemn assurance Thursday that the federal government stands four square against falling trousers and belts that let them fall.

He even lit what may have been the first fire ever to blaze on the floor of Parliament to prove the sincerity of his interest in the matter.

Mr. Hansell reported the case of a man who bought a belt represented as being made of genuine cowhide only to find out, when it broke, that it really was made of brown paper and not cowhide at all.

The member hinted that some embarrassment was involved for the gentleman in question in the breaking of the belt. What he did say outright was that such incidents can have catastrophic consequences.

He wanted to know whether there was some law under which the manufacturer of such belts could be prosecuted.

At the height of his peroration, Mr. Hansell sent the belt in question to the minister and Mr. Garson solemnly took out a match and lit the end of it. A flame flared brightly.

Mr. Garson nodded sagely and observed: "It's paper all right."

Thereupon he arose and told Mr. Hansell he couldn't say offhand whether there is a law that would specifically cover misrepresentation of a cowhide belt but he thought there would be and if there wasn't he thought there should be.

He would look up the statute and see because "we certainly want to keep up the trousers of the nation."

British Press Leans To Attlee Side

Eisenhower's Attempt At Conciliation Overlooked in Shuffle

LONDON (AP)—The trans-Atlantic shouting match between Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep.-Wis.) and former British prime minister Clement Attlee sparked a rash of fresh headlines in the British press today.

Two pro - Labor newspapers printed front-page editorials upholding Attlee's right to say there are "elements" in America which oppose a Korean settlement. Other newspapers with varying political viewpoints plainly indicated their sympathies lay with the Labor party's leader.

President Eisenhower's conciliatory remarks at his weekly press conference were all but lost in the shuffle. The president said he did not think the rift between Britain and the U. S. over dealings with Russia and Korean policy is as wide as it might appear.

Although this drew little attention in London, Moscow's two principal newspapers—Pravda and Izvestia—carried identical 186-word summaries of the Eisenhower statements in today's editions. Neither paper, however, offered any comment.

Train Kills Lad Caught On Bridge

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A three-year-old boy was killed and his brother escaped death by clinging to the side of a bridge Thursday when a freight train trapped them on a trestle spanning the Thames river.

Robert Powers was tossed from the bridge by the Canadian Pacific Railway train while horrified playmates screamed warnings.

Robert's brother, David, 4½, who was playing with him on the centre of the bridge, escaped by crouching outside the rails on a narrow ledge of projecting ties about 80 feet above the river.

Michael O'Dwyer, 14, and Tony McDonnell, 15, said Robert and David were walking along the bridge with their backs to the train.

"I yelled get off the bridge, here comes the train," Tony said, "but they didn't pay any attention." Both lads waved frantically to the engineer but it was too late.

still refusing would be left to a post-armistice political conference.

The Allies suggested that India head the commission and supply all troops to control the prisoners. They also proposed that 34,000 North Koreans who won't go back be freed when an armistice is signed. The remaining 14,500 Chinese would be put in custody of the commission for two months. Any then still refusing repatriation would be freed.

REJECT RED PLAN

The Allies say the Red plan would give prisoners a choice of only forced repatriation or indefinite imprisonment.

Inside the conference hut Friday, North Korean Gen. Nam Il spoke scathingly of the Allied counter-offer calling it "perfidious and self-contradictory."

Point by point, Nam went through the Allied plan, finding almost nothing satisfactory.

Harrison answered:

"You said . . . that the basic purpose of our proposal is the opposite of yours. We agree with that statement.

"Our proposal is intended to avoid forced repatriation, to protect the human rights of prisoners and to provide a custodial organization which will be able to execute its functions.

"As far as we can see, your proposal is intended either to control the custodial commission, or, failing in that, to be able to prevent its functioning . . . Your proposal is merely a scheme for forcing the ultimate return of the prisoners to your control."

Harrison said Allied demands for a unanimous decision, except on procedural matters, is to insure that "no force or coercion be employed."

MLAs Approve Cellblock System

SUDBURY (CP)—A select committee of the Ontario legislature has expressed approval of the cell block system in reformatories and indicated accommodation at Burwash industrial farm may be changed.

The committee, under the chairmanship of W. J. Stewart (PC-Toronto-Parkdale), was told Thursday during a two-day tour of the institution that no "crime school" exists at the farm.

Superintendent Charles Sanderson said if there was such a tendency it could be attributed to the association of old and new offenders through the dormitory system of accommodation as compared with the cell block system. The committee heard there was no evidence of any use of drugs at the farm.

A SLIP IN THE DARK

The greatest talking fisherman in town, Babe Fontaine, went to Nassau dam Thursday night with a crony. He would make good his boasts about landing a limit catch of big pickerel, he thought, and had a large gallery to prove it to. But the boom logs, Babe's favorite spot, where slippery and Babe was eager and what with rain, darkness and eagerness he skidded off his foothold before wetting a line, that is, until it went down with him. Do you think his pals helped him out? No, sir. With many cries in the dark offering the use of towels, Babe had to clamber out unassisted. "I didn't get any fish," said Babe today, "but I didn't get my hat wet either."

August Election Foreseen As House Closes

OTTAWA (CP)—The 21st Parliament has ended its work and a general election is in the offing.

The election seems set for August. The speech from the throne at the prorogation of Parliament early today added weight to the idea of an early election.

Speculation has centred on an August election date, either Aug. 10 or Aug. 17.

There was nothing either to confirm or deny these dates in the throne speech delivered at the close of the session, but there was considerable election fodder in the speech.

It stated definitely—for the first time—that this has been the last session of the current Parliament. Also, it gave a review of Liberal government accomplishments over the last four years.

DIRECTED TO VOTERS

The heavy emphasis on the government's moves appeared to lend some emphasis to the idea that it was directed toward the voters as well as to members of the Senate and House of Commons.

Theoretically, the throne speech emanates from the governor-general. Actually, it reflects what the cabinet wants said.

The 5,000-word speech—longest in years— was read in the Senate by Mr. Justice Patrick Kerwin of the Supreme Court of Canada, acting in the absence of Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, governor-general.

Most of the wordage was devoted to a review of the last four years, and dealt not only with legislation which has been passed but also with Canada's development at home and her foreign affairs.

LOOKS TO FUTURE

The speech looked ahead on two particular points. These were:

1. A start on the St. Lawrence seaway project can be made as soon as an agency is authorized in the United States to co-operate with Ontario in the power development.

2. A hope that renewal of Korean truce negotiations will lead to peace.

With members taking advantage of their last chance in this parliament to get things off their chests, the debate in the Commons Thursday roved through a wide field.

It covered such greatly-divergent topics as housing, cigarets, penitentiaries, the Doukhobor problem in British Columbia, combines and the tribulations of some government contractors.

Schools' Part In Coronation Still Undecided

The part that will be played by city schoolchildren in Coronation Day ceremonies is still up in the air.

At the Tuesday night meeting of the Coronation committee, it was decided to ask the city schools—public and separate—to organize and supervize a massed gathering of school children on Coronation Day. The program would be put on in the exhibition grounds and it was suggested that it consist of the "singing of antnems, prayers, dedication to citizenship and loyalty, plus other musical entertainment."

At the May meeting of the Board of Education on Thursday night, the trustees took a poor view of the criticism of the two school boards by the Coronation committee.

A letter being forwarded to Acting Mayor Douglas Miller will point ou that it is nearly impossible for the schools to arrange a program on their own at this late date. However, if the committee arrange a program the board would be glad to co-operate.

RECEIVE INSTRUCTION

Besides, several of the trustees said, the pupils are receiving plenty of instruction on the significance of the Coronation in the classrooms. And it has been going on for some time.

"Certain committee members have sought to interpret our action as lacking co-operation," said Stanley Adamson, chairman of the board. "In fact, the committee has not had a definite proposal as to how the board should join in co-operation."

John G. McCarney, chairman of the Separate School Board, agreed with Mr. Adamson.

"I think it's a little unreasonable to expect us to organize a whole program now that Coronation Day is less than three weeks away . . . We're going along with the Board of Education. Whatever one school board plans will be planned by the other.

"We feel that through our principals and staff we could get together a program. But to handle a whole afternoon's program is something else again."

Mr. McCarney also rejected the suggestion that the Separate School Board have been doing nothing. The first few meetings of the Coronation committee resulted in no suggestions from the committee on school participation. But, like the Board of Education, they have been teaching the children the significance of the historic occasion in the schools.

AIMLESS MEETINGS

Mr. Adamson said that the committee discussions have been carried on, for the most part, in an aimless manner. The second-to-last meeting was called off after he had cancelled other engagements to attend, and he said he could not go to the meeting last Tuesday because of the PCVS cadet inspection.

K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools, said that at the first meeting of the committee the idea was that the afternoon Coronation Day program would be for the children, not by them. He informed the other members of the committee at that time that despite the fact it was a holiday, he believed there would be no trouble getting the children to attend.

"But we don't want the children brought in from outlying sections of the city and marched down George St. to the Exhibition Grounds," said Mr. Wightman. "That's completely out of line. I've seen it done before and I don't want to see it done again."

Mr. Wightman said that at the second meeting with the committee arrangements were made for the participation of the PCVS Cadets and the Bugle Band.

"The part I'd like to make clear is that in every school I go into I find the children interested in the Coronation . . . in Coronation music. A school I was in today was preparing a Coronation skit. In all of them the teachers are stressing the facts and thoughts of Coronation."

"We've been quietly and without too much fanfare doing as much or more than anybody else," said Mr. Wightman.

AGAINST PARADE

He said he was against the idea of parading schoolchildren down the street to the Exhibition Grounds. Mr. McCarney, of the Separate School Board, said today that he is of the same opinion.

"I can't see at this late date the mammoth task of arranging a program," said W. B. Gordon.

"Early or late, I'm not in favor of the regimentation of children," said Dr. Donald Whyte. "I know the children are being instructed in the schools on the Coronation, and tonight we approved them seeing special films.

"The idea isn't desirable, much less possible. Let the children take part with their parents in the events later that day."

Mrs. Anne Rowell spoke of the talent in the schools and said that if the request had been made several months ago the school choirs and other groups could have arranged a program. But this couldn't be done in two or three weeks.

"If the object is to impress the children with the significance of this historic occasion then I think it is being done very well in the schools," said Mr. Gordon. "If a program involving schoolchildren is wanted as entertainment for the public, then I'm against it."

Consensus was that it is the job of the Coronation committee to draw up a program. The Board of Education and presumably the Separate School Board would co-operate. As a suggestion, Mr. Gordon said there could be singing and the school choir could make a contribution.

Coronation Ships Dock In Portsmouth Harbor

PORTSMOUTH, England (CP)—Four ships of Canada's Coronation detachment docked today in dismal weather.

They were the aircraft carrier Magnificent, the destroyer Sioux and the cruisers Ontario and Quebec, flagship of the detachment commanded by Rear-Admiral Roger Bidwell.

Two frigates, La Hulloise and Swansea, will arrive later.

The ships are to take part in the Coronation naval review at Spithead June 15.

Asks More Aid In Eel Control

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Charles Potter (Rep. Mich.) today urged a Senate appropriations subcommittee to restore a cut made by the House in money for lamprey research and control in the Great Lakes.

The lamprey is an eel-like parasite which feeds on fish. It has caused "millions of dollars worth of destruction" in the Great Lakes, Potter said in prepared testimony.

He said the interior department's fish and wildlife service "carefully estimated" a minimum of $415,000 would be required in 1953-54 to continue its study and control program but that the House cut appropriations for this work to $104,000.

PC Asks Jail For Breakers Of Combine Law

OTTAWA (CP)—John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) suggested in the Commons Thursday that Canada's combines law should be changed to provide mandatory imprisonment for directors who directly contribute or passively acquiesce in breaking that law.

He said present provisions of a fine for the convicted corporation was a "poor substitute" for imprisonment where wrongdoing had been proved. A new committee should study the combines law.

The position of the state must be, he said, that there be no interference with competition and to make sure that there is free competition in the field of trade. Otherwise, private enterprise would not survive.

JOINS DIEFENBAKER

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) joined Mr. Diefenbaker in urging a plugging of the loophole which prevents prison terms for directors of firms found guilty of breaking the combines law.

Mr. Diefenbaker mentioned recent prosecutions of rubber companies in Toronto and said a maximum fine of $10,000 was not in keeping with the offence committed.

Justice Minister Garson said there now was no ceiling on the fine that could be imposed in a combines case. The $10,000 in the Toronto case was imposed because that was the maximum under the law at the time the offence was committed.

Northumberland Music Festival Concert Tonight

COBOURG— (ENS) — "There was an attitude present at the Northumberland County Music Festival which makes it possible for an adjudicator to do his best," declared Eric Lewis of Toronto, making his final adjudication, Thursday at the close of competition.

The festival opened on Monday and tonight in Cobourg the pick of the competitors will present a concert at Trinity United Church and one on May 20 at Warkworth.

The competition was very close at times and it was necessary for Mr. Lewis to hear some of them over twice in order to arrive at a decision. In fact, there were several who tied in spite of the effort to find a shade of difference.

"I have enjoyed my stay here," said the adjudicator. "The work was a delight and challenge to me. There were times when I had to wrack my brains to the limit in picking the winners. All the teachers and the students took the various criticisms on the chin and I sensed no animositiy or discouragement at any time. I felt at all times, the freedom to be able to say what I should say without being hampered by an attitude."

RESULTS

Following were Thursday's results:

Class 22, girl's vocal solo, 10 years and under—Louise Moore, Cobourg 88; Karen Ireland, Smithfield 86, Ann Richardson, Cobourg and June Holloway, Cobourg, 85

Girl's vocal solo, 14 years and under—June Eason, Campbellford, 88; Ruth Baker, Hastings 85; Nancy Smith, Hilton and Annie Duffy, Brighton 83. The title of this number was "The Bouquet of Rosemary" and the adjudicator commented that his judging might be a surprise to the contestants. The song was a minuet of the France of Louis XIV, when art and grace were foremost. The proper way to sing this number was not lustily but with soft shadings of tone and a general feeling of delicacy and grace.

Following were the results of the Wednesday night competitions.

Looking Back At The Music Festival

Now that the seventh annual music festival sponsored by the local Kiwanis Club is over we may look back on it and see that it was, in many important respects, the best that has yet been held here. This is not said in derogation of earlier festivals; the experience which they provided laid the foundations for this year's successful effort. It is a fact, also, that the atmosphere of St. Peter's Auditorium was more congenial to this type of gathering than any home which the local festival has found hitherto. The financing of the festival was on less risky lines. But the vital part of a festival of this sort is the music itself; how was it this year?

* * *

The proper word for it, we think, is "encouraging". These festivals have now been going on for a long enough time to make their mark on the musical effort of this district, and they are doing fine work in raising standards of performance. The competition is not of the cut-throat type, and the adjudicators very wisely keep the marks at a point where no competitor need feel that he has failed disgracefully, even if he comes at the bottom of his class. The whole atmosphere of the festival is quiet, friendly and helpful, and in such an atmosphere the shyest contestant dares to show what he can do. What is more, there is always a sense of "next year" about the competitions; those who do not distinguish themselves in 1953 are made to feel that some honest work will bring them higher in the lists in 1954. We cannot praise this spirit too warmly. Its results are not rapid or miraculous, but they are lasting and permanent. The Kiwanis festival is pushing all the music of this district upward, not by encouraging a handful of exceptionally gifted people, but by encouraging everybody, and by training those who go to listen to the contests and the adjudications. Those of us who attend the festival without playing or singing a note finish the week musically richer—a better audience—than when we started.

* * *

A word of general criticism may not be out of place. It is not directed at the Kiwanis Club, but at Peterborough as a whole. Where are our musicians? We were not well represented in the singing and instrumental classes, although we contain most of the population of the district. One of the adjudicators found this sufficiently remarkable to make special mention of it. We had several excellent choirs of children and adults in the contests, but not many soloists. What is the matter? It cannot be said that Peterborough is unmusical, for we provide large and perceptive audiences for good music. But the performance of music in Peterborough does not seem to be at the level which might be expected in a city of this size, in a wealthy part of the country.

* * *

The adjudicators were excellent and knew how to make themselves popular. They could say wise things lightly, and stern things without giving offence. In only one respect would we venture to criticise them; we feel that visiting British adjudicators might be less determined in emphasizing the differences between Britain and Canada. We are eager to learn from them, but we do not feel that they are strangers; indeed, we feel that we also are partakers in that universal culture of which music forms a vital part. The art of music draws us together; it does not separate us on national lines.

* * *

The Kiwanis Club of Peterborough has drawn this district into a large and important musical movement which extends all across Canada, and we are grateful. It would be hard to exaggerate the importance of what the festival does, and we are happy that it appears, at last, to have found a way of avoiding financial loss. We wish it many years of success in its admirable work.

Over Our Heads

Last night for the first time three high towers erected in this district were used for the regular purpose for which they were built. They are the television relay towers at Bethany, Hastings and Stirling. They are three in a series linking Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal, built by the Bell Telephone Company as part of its microwave radio relay system, the first in Canada capable of carrying both television programs and telephone calls. The towers are sited at or near Uxbridge, Bethany, Hastings, Stirling, Enterprise, Westport, Smiths Falls, Stanley Corners, Ottawa, Leonard, Maxville, Rigaud and thence to Montreal.

The microwave relay makes possible the showing of TV programs simultaneously in Toronto and Montreal, from either outlet. This exchange began last night at 7:30 with the official CBC opening from the studios of CBFT Montreal. Thereafter followed, from the Toronto station, the first television broadcast in Canada of a full-length opera. It was Mozart's Don Giovanni.

The microwave relay is linked with American TV networks through Buffalo. The network can be extended north and west from Toronto and east from Montreal to meet future requirements. It is, as yet, of course, no benefit at all to Peterborough district set owners, for it cannot be tapped except by a TV broadcasting station.

The microwave system is one of the many miracles of the age. It makes use of very high frequency waves, travelling straight like light waves and oscillating at four million cycles a second. It is this high frequency which makes it impossible for local set owners to tune in to them. The new Bell system has a capacity of twelve one-way TV programs or thousands of telephone circuits.

So efficient are the lens-type antennae on the tops of the relay towers that they can concentrate the TV signals using less than one watt of power (about a flashlight bulb's power) to carry the signals to the next tower twenty-five or thirty miles away.

The towers at Bethany and the other points are not hives of human activity. In fact, they are not manned at all. Midway along the 407-mile sky route and south of it—at Kingston—an alarm centre has been established, with an attendant to watch if trouble develops at any of the relay points.

Two Wrathful American Voices

Senator Joseph McCarthy told the American senate yesterday that Mr. Attlee, British Leader of the Opposition, should apologize for what he said in the British House about Americans and President Eisenhower. The notorious American senator said: "The American people are entitled to an apology for this cheap, uncalled for, fantastic attack upon the president and people of the United States."

What was the damaging statement which Mr. Attlee made? He said that there were "elements in the U.S.A. that do not want a settlement" in Korea. He also said "sometimes one wondered who was more powerful, the President, or Senator McCarthy." Perhaps what has roused the abusive ire of McCarthy is the possibility that any person could doubt that the President was more powerful than he.

Before Mr. Attlee made his statements in the British House of Commons debate on foreign policy, Mr. Churchill spoke in favour of a political conference of top leaders on both sides of the Iron Curtain. Yesterday another American senator took objection to high British words. He denounced Mr. Churchill's suggestion and attitude as a "Munich." He said that both the Churchill and the Attlee statements were "appeasement", inviting a third world war. Interesting that this old, nasty word of 1938-39 should now be hurled against the very man who most stubbornly fought appeasement of the Nazis.

No Pubs For The Prince

The Queen, speaking through her Lord Chamberlain, has refused permission for a new English pub to be named "The Prince Charles"; she has also made it clear that she does not want any pubs named after any member of the Royal family.

If this is the Queen's wish, it will be respected, but it is a sharp break with a very old tradition. Pubs have been named after some very fine people. Near virtually every church in Britain which is dedicated to the Virgin Mary, there is a pub named The Angel—the reference being to the Angel Gabriel, the angel of the Annunciation. If, in a thousand years, Gabriel has not made clear any displeasure about having a pub named after him—but no, let us have no invidious comparisons. Virtually all of the Queen's ancestors have had many pubs named for them. And there are many pubs with names of the utmost respectability. The Goat and Compasses, we are told, is a corruption of the pious expression God encompasseth us—as He certainly does in a pub as well as everywhere else.

And now we read that in Micklefield the justices who license pubs have refused to permit a new one to be called The Pig and Whistle, on grounds of what the justices call "good taste". During the past few years we have become suspicious of the phrase "good taste", which is so often associated with that other fetish of essentially tasteless people, "gracious living." However, all this is Britain's business and not ours. Our only hope is that the hopeful millions who have begun to talk of themselves as "New Elizabethans" do not wake up some foggy morning to find that the Crown and the Law have converted them, unawares, into New Victorians.

In Alexandra Bay, N.Y., a man of 84 has married a woman of 81, after a courtship of 63 years. As an example of caution overriding passion this will take some beating.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

BROCK DEED: Mr. F. D. Kerr, Q.C., showed me this week a notable deed. The parchment was dated December 12th, 1817, and it granted 2,400 acres of land in Monaghan township, in the county of Northumberland in the District of Newcastle, to the four brothers of Sir Isaac Brock. The four were David de Lisle Brock of the Island of Guernsey, William Brock, of London, John Savery Brock of Guernsey, and Irving Brock of London.

The land was deeded the four brothers of Sir Isaac, late Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Upper Canada, in recognition of his services. Brock was unmarried; his four brothers were thus made the inheritors of the colony's thanks, the "tenants in common" of the two thousand, four hundred acres in and around the then second and third concessions of Monaghan.

The grant was authorized by a special order in council passed in October, 1817, and the handwriting of Darcy Bolton, Attorney-General, states this on the margin of the old deed. It is issued in the name of George III and under the signature of Samuel Smith, "Administrator" of the Province.

DEAR ALPHA: In the grog shop in Peterborough last Saturday I asked one of the vendors if any wine was sold there in gallons and he laughed as if I had just passed a particularly bon mot and said something like this: "Ha! Ha! Nope! Ha! Ha!" Can you find some voice in the wine industry who will say why the man was so amused? And if at the same time you can find out how a man who likes wine with his meals can buy it other than in bottles, I would also appreciate it.

ANSWER: The Liquor Control Board of Ontario does not permit the marketing of wine in gallon jars. Gallons have not been permitted since before the war. I'm afraid that you will have to buy whatever gallons you want in Quebec, next time you are in that Province. But if you bring them back into Ontario you will be breaking Ontario law. So perhaps you will have to be satisfied with four quarts.

COUNTRY NOTES: So much is happening in the countryside and at Bellee Acres now that I have hardly time to say how much. Here is a partial catalogue.

A ROBIN has built a nest in a mail box on the highway; I see it every morning on the way to town. The owners of the mail box—by the way, we country people own our own boxes; they are not government property—they and the rural route postman have considerately used the near-by neighbour's post box for the duration of the pregnant period.

Another robin I know built its nest on the bathroom window sill of a friend's village home. It began house-building one week-end when the family was away and the plumbing was silent. Fancy its nerve-racking concern when the plumbing began to operate again. To add to the robin's misery, squirrels discovered the retreat and a squabble took place every morning at sunrise. Fancy the temper of the householder wakened at that hour every morning. Peace has now descended; the eggs have hatched.

Another robin has built a nest on the second bottom rail of the rail fence at The Acres, not fifty feet from my cats' soup kitchen. Disaster lurks . . . Three instances of bird brain.

❖ ❖ ❖

POTATOES: Nine of the twelve experimental hills of potatoes set out Easter Sunday are showing 4 inches of leafage. I am charging 25 cents' admission to view, from all the astonished farmers around. They aren't paying; instead they are gleefully predicting frost and repeating the rhymes about not shedding red flannel before the 24th.

❖ ❖ ❖

CATS: The female with all the winter fat (?) lost it ten days ago. She has not yet been followed to the cat dish by five or six balls of fur. Instead, she hangs around it all day, all alone. I suspect her of being an immoral mother, a case for the Family Court or Children's Aid Society. Last fall she deserted a litter; I found four open-eyed dead pussies in the mow. If I search again, shall probably find another deserted litter. In a few weeks I shall make a tour of inspection—after the hand of the Grim Reaper has had a chance to wave over the mow . . . Going now, I might discover the kittens alive—and I haven't the heart to kill lovely little creatures, yet would have to; the granite dish of scraps is not enough to support seven or eight cats.

❖ ❖ ❖

SILLY SHEEP: A man came to clip the flock one evening. Discovered thereby the meaning of

Ba, Ba, blacksheep, have you any wool?
Yes sir, yes sir, three bags full.

You really get a lot of wool from one sheep, and it is black—by that, I mean dirty. Gamma and I had 1½ bags full off 2¾ sheep before the shearing process ended, for the time being.

The trouble was this. The nearest electric outlet is in the garage. So the shearing took place there. Gamma and I had to lug, coax and cajole each momma separately from the barn to the garage. In the intervals, of course, each sheep blatted to the other that something dreadful was happening. Even my toddling nephew said so. As he watched the hide coming off, he wept: "They kill, they kill". Really, it looked so.

❖ ❖ ❖

THE WOOL comes off in one piece; one would think the beast was being skinned. Some wonders are revealed. For instance, the big bellies distended with new spring grass. And one discovers what the lambs have been bunting into at meal time. The shorn product of the operation is quite unrecognizable as a sheep. It looks something like a goat afflicted with dropsy, baldness and scurvy. The shorn sheep, their bulk reduced to half their size, their nakedness shaming, act like the court lady who lost her garter and didn't know that the king would found his most exalted order of knighthood on the event.

Well, to get back to the 2¾ sheep. The shearer got that far when number three, on her back under his foot and shears, dropped into unconsciousness. He had previously been discoursing merrily on sheep which died under the shears. We ran to the pump. He flipped the dame upright. We threw cold water on her to revive her. Her ears pricked up. The life was saved (and my investment in her flesh). Five of us held a parley and decided not to complete the shearing that day.

TIME HANGS HEAVY

Surfeit Of Scotch

By SUSAN STRANGE

SEVEN YEARS after Scotland's famous distilleries began to open up again after their war-time idleness, more Scotch is being poured out to all the corners of the world than ever before in the history of whisky.

Yet, in spite of record exports, the distillers are beginning to worry about a whisky glut.

It is only a short time since supplies were so short, and the home market so starved to keep up the dollar-earning flow of exports, that British public houses refused whisky to all but their regular customers and rare bottles were hoarded for Christmas and birthdays.

Yet, now, even the Coronation visitor should be able to toast the Queen in whisky. And, looming ahead there is a real danger that in two years time, there will be whisky galore at home and abroad. By 1955, it may be a brave Chancellor of the Exchequer in London who, whether Labour or Conservative, refuses to help Scotland by lowering the present crippling tax of twenty-five shillings on a ten-shilling bottle of whisky.

For, by 1955, the Scotch Whisky Association expects annual output to be practically double what it is now. By then, the spirit distilled in and after 1948—when larger supplies of barley were allowed to go for distilling—will be ready for export. Legally, none may be sold abroad before it is officially guaranteed three years old; in practice, the name brands of whisky are usually kept for five, six or seven years or more.

It is hard to see who will buy this phenomenal annual output of twenty-five million gallons of whisky. Of the present fourteen to fifteen million gallon sold annually, the United States takes most—over six million, but consumption of Scotch whisky there has fallen by over a third in the last year or so. And with tighter spending, better home-made blends and—perhaps most important—a well-organized lobby in Congress, it would be surprising if sales of more expensive Scotch were to get much bigger.

Much the same is true of Canada, Scotland's next best customer after the United States and the home market. Indeed, Canada is now making steady progress with her own export trade in whisky, particularly to South America.

❖ ❖ ❖

AS FOR the neglected whisky-drinker at home, he may by now, it is feared, have come to prefer gin or rum, or even beer. Even now his quota of less than three million gallons a year is barely a quarter of pre-war consumption. And it is highly unlikely that it will return by 1955 to its old level.

One further fear haunts Scotland's distillers—a scientific one. A new ultrasonic process is reputed to have been discovered by which raw whisky can be treated in a few seconds so that it is indistinguishable from a mature bottle. Rays passed through an oil bath, and whisky containers suspended in it, rearrange the molecules to match those of genuine old Scotch. If this process is all it claims, and if it were adopted on a large scale, the hundreds of millions of bottles now in store would be no more valuable than the newest barley spirit.

The situation, clearly, is one in which Scotland has to expand new markets as quickly as possible. Representatives have recently been sent out to Mexico and Central America, for example, to set up local agencies and help boost custom. Advertising and sales drives will be started in other parts of the world where hitherto whisky-drinking has been rare.

History, in short, is repeating itself. After the First World War, the same cycle of idleness, scarcity, over-production and glut led to the formation of a near-monopoly embracing roughly eighty per cent of whisky manufacturers. The Distillers' Company has since branched out, in enforced versatility, over a wide field of industry, beginning with industrial alcohol and ending with obscure chemical and biochemical products. Yet, if the surplus of 1925 were to reappear, the Company would no doubt return to its original purpose: the restriction of output and the maintenance of prices.

She was set free with her top like a white billiard ball, her underside as hairy and dirty as a fakir's beard; and so ashamed that her head hung as low as her concealed udder. She looked like a goon from Mars. Why did she nearly die? The shearer said because she was exploding from the new green grass and the electric shears were the final fuse. I am convinced that she was dying from fright.

During the heat at the first of the week, the unshorn sheep had a panting time, poor things. The man hasn't come back yet to finish the job.

'Les Fauves' Exhibit

His Excellency, M. Hubert Guerin, Ambassador of France to Canada officially opened the only Canadian showing of an outstanding collection of famous paintings which comprise an exhibtion known as "Les Fauves" in the Art Gallery of Toronto until May 31.

"Les Fauves" exhibition consists of nearly 100 paintings as well as a number of watercolours and drawings. They have been gathered together from museums and private collections in America and abroad, as well as from the artists themselves.

The works of some of the world's best known artists including Matisse, Dufy, Braque, Friesz, Derain and Vlaminck are represented. With these notables, during the Toronto showing, will be seen some of the paintings of four Canadian artists, Emily Carr, J. W. Morrice, L. Petley-Jones and Sarah Robertson.

Influenced by the fauve movement, the works of these Canadians on display, as well as the entire "Les Fauves" exhibition, depict the extensive use which all of these artists made of brilliant colours.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of god: for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man: but every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust, and enticed. Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin: and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death. (James 1:13-15.)

❖ ❖ ❖

Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye should obey it in the lusts thereof. Neither yield ye your members as instruments of unrighteousness unto sin: but yield yourselves unto God as those that are alive from the dead, and your members as instruments of righteousness unto God . . . Know ye not that to whom ye yield yourselves ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?

❖ ❖ ❖

Unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ. Wherefore he saith, When he ascended up on high, he led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men. (Eph. 4: 7, 8.)

❖ ❖ ❖

For God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ. (II Cor. 4: 6.)

Letter To The Editor

CHALLENGES QUEEN'S TITLE

Sir: I woud like to draw your attention to an article appearing in the Weekend section of your paper last Saturday.

You showed a Gallery of the Monarchs of Britain since 1660. Whether or not it was an oversight or just plain ignorance I do not know, but there was no such place as Britain in the year 1066.

The crowns of Scotland and England were not united until 1603, when James the 6th of Scotland became James the 1st of England, and his son became James the 2nd.

The Monarchy ceased to exist by Act of Parliament in 1648, and was not established again until the year 1660. The Sovereigns of Britain commenced with the Act of Union in the year 1707.

I wonder where that leaves the present Queen, who calls herself Elizabeth 2nd of Great Britain. She is not now, and never can be Elizabeth the 2nd of Britain, Canada, Australia, or virtually any other part of the Empire. Queen Elizabeth of England was never queen of Britain. I challenge the legality of Queen Elizabeth calling herself the 2nd of Great Britain.

Yours truly,
RUTH LLEWELLYN.

ED. NOTE: The name "Britain," applied to England, Wales and Scotland as a, unity dates from Celtic times and is an Anglicised form of the Latin Britannia.

70,000 Lives Were Saved

(Time Magazine)

Seventy thousand lives were saved last year by early detection of cancer, the American Cancer Society estimated. If every case had been detected early and treated by the best known methods, 140,000 might have been saved. Launching its 1953 drive for $18 million, the society said that with present knowledge, cancer-cure rates can be increased thus: lung, 5 per cent. to 50 per cent.; rectum, 15 per cent. to 75 per cent; mouth, 40 per cent. to 65 per cent.; skin 85 per cent. to 95 per cent.; female reproductive system from 30 per cent. to 80 per cent.; breast, 35 per cent. to 70 per cent.

Prehistoric Forest?

BRANTFORD (CP)—A crew drilling for iron in Norfolk county say they have found what might have been a forest hundreds of feet below the sands. The crew first reported that a rock with the clear imprint of a butterfly on it had been found 3,700 feet down. Rocks on which leaf impressions were plainly visible have been brought up in the drilling cores.

IX

And still there is that inescapable resemblance of Queen Elizabeth to Queen Victoria, who was so beautiful as a young woman. I remember an old friend of the Royal Family saying to me, as we watched the crowds swirling round the Princess at one of the first garden parties at Buckingham Palace after the war:

"When I was a child I saw Queen Victoria pass in a coach. Although she was very old then, she had in her eyes a calm confidence and determination which I have often seen mirrored in the eyes of Princess Elizabeth."

The remark surprised me a little at the time it was spoken. I had too many happy memories of Princess Elizabeth flushed with laughter, romping in the schoolroom or garden, to see her as a Queen.

But now that I have watched her come into womanhood and take on the Royal dignity that belongs to her, I am convinced that the man at the garden party was right.

There are other things I have remembered, too, as I've watched Princess Elizabeth and her husband Prince Philip together.

I have thought of the responsibilities the Princess must bear at the same time as her duties as a wife and mother.

It was just as much of a trial for her to have her husband overseas making his tour of duty in Malta as it would have been for any other naval officer's wife.

At the same time she had to carry an increasing load of responsibility temporarily lifted from her father's shoulders.

When she at last found time to fly out to her husband, some people were openly critical. No one would have questioned the right of another naval officer's wife to do the same thing, providing she left her children in good hands.

Was Princess Elizabeth to be less a wife because she was Heiress to the Throne?

Surely her stature is the greater because she is indeed a good wife and mother.

And what babies in the world have been left in better hands than those which care for Prince Charles and his sister, Princess Anne? Later I shall show with what kindness they are tended, by two capable nurses, under the watchful, loving eye of their grandmother.

✧ ✧ ✧

And Prince Philip, who is a sailor before he is a courtier, is above all a good father, anxious for his children's welfare.

He has lived his life among men who judge one another by their real worth. When he took command of the frigate Magpie in the Mediterranean, he was the youngest Lieutenant-Commander in the flotilla.

A naval friend of mine told me that, although he was always popular in the Navy, there were some who thought his appointment sprang from privilege. They expected him to be "nursed" by an experienced first lieutenant.

But they were wrong, as Prince Philip quickly showed them.

When he left his ship to come home, his crew felt that they had lost not only a brilliant captain, but also a close friend.

For a naturally proud and regal person, Prince Philip has a strange simplicity of approach. I have never seen him other than courteous and correct to everyone. And if he ever meets a shipmate of whatever rank, who has served with him, he is always quick to speak to him, wherever the two of them are.

In this way he introduced to the King and Queen an old friend he saw in the crowd surrounding the Royal Family at a garden party. And similarly, at a reception for the Royal couple in Nottingham, he met the man who had been his personal servant in H.M.S. Wallace during the war. They chatted together for a few minutes. Then the man said, "I would like to introduce my wife, sir."

Prince Philip looked at the woman. "I hope you are taking as good care of him as he used to of me," he said, and went on: "Now you must meet my wife."

Princess Elizabeth was at the other side of the room. Prince Philip went over to fetch her. "I should like you to meet some friends of mine, darling," he told her.

Then he introduced the waiting couple to her. "This is my wife," he said.

Ont. Couple Fly To See Hurt Son

NEW YORK (CP)—A Guelph, Ont., couple are reported flying to New York next week to visit their son, a repatriated prisoner of the Korean war recuperating in hospital here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Sacco will visit U.S. Army Pte. Charles Sacco who was captured Feb. 12, 1951, while serving with the U.S. 24th infantry division on the Han river.

Pte. Sacco hasn't seen his parents in almost four years, 26 months of them spent as a prisoner of war.

When it was learned the Guelph couple had no money to finance the trip here, Canadian consul-general Ray Lawson arranged for the flight with Trans-Canada Air Lines.

"We couldn't let a boy like that down," said Lawson, formerly Ontario's lieutenant-governor.

Petes Pound The Mounties In 23-1 OLA Senior Tilt For Second Win Of Season

Petes' Trailermen slaughtered Mimico Mounties 23-1 here last night to open their home OLA senior "A" season before nearly 1,500 fans. Cool, damp weather apparently kept down the crowd, but it was a game as one-sided as the score indicates. The Mounties looked quite inexperienced, and several of their veteran stars—including Denny Peterson, Pop Chard and Bert Barrager—decided not to play, probably having some monetary differences with the club.

It was a lot different Mimico squad than the one last year which finished second to the Petes in the schedule and gave West Yorks a stiff battle in playoffs. The team is young and will improve, but requires several of those top veterans to round it out into a contending club.

AN EASY ONE

The Petes, on the other hand, were rolling and had no trouble racking up the count in a clean game. Few penalties were handed out and the only near-fight was a slashing episode in the fourth frame between Curly Mason and Joe Nolan, the latter drawing a match penalty for deliberate slashing and Curly a minor for retaliating. Play was not too fast over the route. Don Owen suffered a cut over his eye in the first period in an accidental checking clash.

Merv McKenzie, Ontario Athletic Commissioner officially faced off to start the season, following brief addressses by club president Bob Peirson, team captain Dootch Vitarelli, the coach, Bob Thorpe the Hon. Harold Scott, MPP, Rex Stimers of St. Catharines, Lefty Wilson of Detroit Wings and Al Adams, Indian supervisor The latter made a presentation of the Tom Longboat Medal to Ross Powless (who also won it last year) as the outstanding Indian athlete of the province. Later, the junior OLA club presented Lou Vitarelli, their former coach, with a fishing rod.

HARRY LEADS

Leading lamp-lighter in the game for the victors was tall Harry Wipper, who banged in five goals. Ike Hildebrand not only clicked for three markers but aided on six more to be top point-getter for the night. Jerry Fitzgerald and Curly Mason scored three each, Lou Nickle, Don Ashbee and Ross Powless getting two apiece, and Roger Smith and Nip O'Hearn one each. Ashbee was second high in assists with four, and Powless, Mason and Fitzgerald aided on three each. In on two apiece were Russ Slater, Dootch Vitarelli, Bob Thorpe and O'Hearn.

The lone Mountaineers' marker came in the third period from the stick of Don Meek on a three-way play with Fred Sandford and Joe Nolan. It robbed Moon Wootton, who not only played a fine game in the net but once pulled a good half-field rush, of a shutout. While Peterson and Barrager were listed in the lineup neither one dressed. Teams:

Mimico: Goal, Tomchishen; defence, Kelly and Peterson; centre, McIntyre; wings, Sandford and Kapasky; rover, Hanna; alternates, Nolan, Eatough, Meek, Pulford, Owen, Reil and Barrager.

Petes: Goal, Wootton; defence, O'Hearn and Nickle; centre, Thorpe; wings, Ashbee and Hildebrand; rover, Vitarelli; alternates, Wipper, Fitzgerald, Mason, Slater, Powless, Smith and G. Robinson.

Referees P. Bain and L. Vipond.

Marciano Risks Heavy Title Against Walcott

By JACK HAND

CHICAGO (AP)—Rocky Marciano risks his world heavyweight title against former champion Jersey Joe Walcott tonight at Chicago Stadium with 3 to 1 odds and the ring's oldest tradition riding on his side.

No former champion ever won back the crown in the history of the prize ring. Now, a 39-year-old pappy guy with six kids back home in Camden, N.J., is trying to rewrite the script against a 28-year-old slugger who knocked him out last September.

Jim Corbett couldn't do it. Neither could Bob Fitzsimmons, Jim Jeffries, Jack Dempsey, Max Schmeling, Joe Louis, Ezzard Charles. Most boxing experts think Walcott can't do it either.

The pick here is Marciano by a knockout inside nine rounds and possibly quicker. Few think it will go the distance. There has been little betting.

CROWD 15,000

Despite their sensational fight at Philadelphia last fall, the public is taking this rematch in stride. The box office take was only $385,000 Thursday morning. It looked like $450,000 and about 15,000 persons would be a good guess on the final totals.

The all-time record for an indoor fight is $422,918 for Tony Zale-Rocky Graziano at this same stadium, July 16, 1947.

The 15-round match, scheduled for 10:00 p.m. EDT will be carried on a television network (NBC) with the Chicago-Milwaukee area blacked out. The fight also will be carried on radio (ABC) to all parts of the country. Three dimension movies will be taken.

Walcott and his manager, Felix Bocchicchio, have $250,000 guarantee plus 30 per cent of any movie money. Marciano is fighting for 30 per cent of "everything"—gate, TV and movies. From the looks of things, he'll probably draw about $200,000.

P Of W Girls Win

Prince of Wales senior girls defeated Queen Mary 22-4 in a school softball encounter. They had a lead of 16-0 racked up by the end of the third inning. Queen Mary broke through for four in the fourth but the winners added six more. Teams:

Prince of Wales: Williams, Roote, Wells, Marchen, Hatton, Drimmie, Davis, Gurney, Lustic, Batley, Grey, Heron, Howe.

Queen Mary: Tilling, Green, Youngs, Johnston, Morgan, Sanders, Sinclair, Donaldson, Lewis, White, McGinnis.

TWO OF THE STARS—A couple of the aces in the Petes' 23-1 OLA senior win over Mimico here last night are seen above. Ross Powless, at left, was in on five goals to show why he has just been again judged the outstanding Indian athlete in Ontario, receiving the Tom Longboat Medal for the second straight year. Harry Wipper, right, led the local club in scoring in this game with five markers.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Prexy Don Aitken and his Orfuns' grid executive are hoping soon to solve the coaching problem for this year. Last year's coach, Tony Kotowski, wanted a raise in pay to take the job this autumn after the squad winning Eastern Canada "A" intermediate honors. However, the officials felt that they were paying too much for a coach in intermediate ranks last year — with Tony having no other work to do — and they think that if he gets work here he should take over the coaching chore for something similar to what he was paid last fall. You can see their point. After all, a checkup showed that no other intermediate coach in Ontario got as much as Orfuns paid (and some senior coaches didn't do quite as well).

* * * * * *

Furthermore, the Orfuns would have been well in the red — over their heads, in fact — had not the public come through handsomely on an appeal for funds to help finance their trip west to play Winnipeg. It boils down to this: Orfuns paid too much for coaching last year, even though big Tony piloted them to Canadian finals, and they can't afford to pay more this season. Not as much, in fact. But they're still making a real good offer, and if Kotowski accepts he can have the job. He has a week to decide. Frank Gnup was interested but has decided to return as senior OBEU coach at Brantford. Jack Wedley is still a local possibility. And others. The matter should be settled by the end of the month at the latest.

Golfers Set To Go

Men's formal opening of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club is this Saturday aft, flag-raising at one o'clock, president vs. v.p. team, usual field day competitions and dinner in the evening. Links is in great shape and all is set to go. R. G. Maniece is president this season, C. R. Stacey, vice-prexy, T. A. Mackay secretary, and the other directors: F. H. Jobbitt, L. A. Reid, S. G. Payne, Stan McBride and R. J. Hardill. These men, along with Don McIntyre, are chairmen of the various committees. Alf Hill again is pro. On May 23, it's National Golf Day (members vs. Julius Boros), and opening of the Midland League on May 30.

Oshawa Transporters of the Lakeshore Baseball League are being panned by Whitby and Bowmanville over Oshawa's claim to pitcher Cec. Hall. He's from Oshawa but hurled for Bowmanville, and Oshawa now claims him. Lindsay wants to see Oshawa strong as the Scugog squad should be tough with a number of ex-seniors from Peterborough aboard. 'Tis rumored that Joe Stewart, Al Menzies, Bill Edger and Freddy Garvey will go with Lindsay. Meantime, the loop opener here is tomorrow aft when Cobourg Legionnaires open against the local Liflocs in Riverside Park. Howie Dalton and Shock Mein have a real promising pack of Peterborough hustlers, and they deserve support.

Petes Impress Fans

Quite a few senior lacrosse followers braved cool, dampish weather at Miller Bowl last gloaming to see the 1953 Petes in action. The fans must have been impressed as the Thorpe team rolled through the Mimico Mounties with the greatest of ease to a 23-1 tune. True the Mounties were minus several veteran stars and were breaking in a lot of ex-juniors, but nevertheless the local lacrossers were clicking like castanets. Guys like Harry Wipper, Ike Hildebrand, Nip O'Hearn, Jerry Fitzgerald, Ross Powless, Curly Mason, Don Ashee and others fattened their batting averages, meantime holding the Mountaineers to one measly marker. Even Moon Wootton tried one rush but was halted halfway up the field.

* * * * * *

A clean contest but for some late slashing by Joe Nolan, who drew a match penalty. Merv McKenzie, Ontario Athletic Commissioner, officially opened play. Hon. Harold Scott, MPP, was among the speakers before it started. Ross Powless was presented with the Tom Longboat Medal for the second year as being the best Indian athlete in Ontario. Nice going, fellow. Also, the junior OLA club presented Lou Vitarelli with a fishing rod for past services as a coach. Prexy Bob Peirson welcomed the fans and asked continued support. Some of the Mimico veterans were on hand but didn't dress, apparently having financial differences with their club. Mounties have a long way to go to reach their 1952 peak. The Petes are idle now till Yorks come here next Friday.

Douglas Leads Field With 4-Under-Par 66

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—Dave Douglas fired a four-under-par 66, a course competitive record, Thursday to take a whopping first-round lead in the $17,500 Meadow Brook round-robin golf tournament.

When all the mathematics had been figured in the unique plus-and-minus event, the willowy young pro had a 14-point bulge over a quartet of rivals, his nearest pursuers.

Second to Douglas was Lloyd Mangrum, the year's leading money-winner whose 68 was the day's second best score. Three others shot 69s—Bobby Locke, South African who holds the British Open title, Jim Ferrier and Jimmy Demaret.

Dr. McCartney Elected Curling Prexy

The Board of directors of the Peterborough Curling Rink Co., elected at the annual meeting of the company recently, held their first meeting in the rink parlors on Wednesday evening.

Dr. M. G. McCartney was elected president; O. Price, vice-president, and Ira D. Moore, secretary-treasurer.

Dr. McCartney was vice-president last year and his elevation to this highest honor has been well deserved. He has been a member of the board for many years and was chairman of several committees.

He came here from Toronto about seven years ago and immediately joined the curling club. He is well known to all curlers, particularly in this district,—has had much experience and with the assistance of a strong board, he will go a long way in discharging his duty as president of the club.

ICE CHAIRMAN

O. Price as vice-prfesident has been a member of the board for several years and for the last two years was chairman of the ice committee.

Ira D. Moore, as secretary-treasurer, needs no introduction; he has been a member for some 35 years and is a faithful servant.

No doubt the new board will meet from time to time during the summer months preparing for the activities of the coming season. As the curling season extends from Nov. 1 till the following 31st of March, it can be easily understood that it will take a lot of time preparing for the winter's activities.

COMMITTEE CHAIRMEN

Membership—B. Harrison.
Schedule—N. H. Hamley.
Property and Ice—T. Doughty.
Bonspiels—F. Stenson.
Social and Firendly Games—R. Payne.
Skating and Ladies—O. Price.
School Boys' Curling—H. Bradburn.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

"It is a glorious privilege to live, to know, to act, to listen, to behold, to love. To look up at the blue summer sky; to see the sun sink slowly beyond the line of the horizon; to watch the worlds come twinkling into view, first one by one, and the myriads that no man can count, and lo! the universe is white with them, and you and I are here."

On Monday, May 18, the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club will officially declare their greens open for the 1953 season.

The event will be a mixed rink tournament — drawn from the board at 1.30 o'clock.

As in former years these opening tournaments have been "on the house" and this year is no exception.

You'll meet many of your old friends and a host of new ones. If you have not already planned for the holiday, come out to the greens and enjoy an afternoon of good clean sport. Let's hope for good weather and good crowds.

We understand that the committee is doing its level best to have the schedule books for distribution, on Monday.

Kng Edward Victors

King Edward walloped Central "B" softballers 25-9 in a school league fixture at King Edward. The losers' outfield was better than the winners' gardeners, but the K.E. infield had a good margin on the inner guardians for Central. The latter got four runs in the first inning, one next time up and two each in the third and fifth. King Edward tallied seven at first, adding one each in the second and fourth, and three in the third. They broke up a fair fray with a 13-run splash in the fifth. Teams:

K.E.: Simmons, R. Rowe; Walling, W. Rowe, McCulloch, Warner, Waldie, Hedges, Tushingham, Jones, King, Heard.

Central: Dinsdale, Ross, Birkhof, Whatman, Dunford, Hayman, Armstrong, Biggs, Grills.

Umpires: H. Wilson and J. Hempstead.

White Sox Beat Yankees 7-5 For Third Straight Triumph

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

Chicago White Sox just kept coming back for more at Yankee Stadium Thursday and wound up with their third straight victory over the Yankees. The score was 7-5 with the winning runs coming in the ninth inning on the type of finish the Yankees thought was their own private patent.

The Sox continue their visit with the Yankees today and tomorrow. With the kind of hitting hustle they showed Thursday they could leave town in first place. At the moment the Yankees lead them by 1½ games.

The contrast between the White Sox and Cleveland Indians, most experts' choice as the Yanks' most dangerous rival, was startling. The Indians showed almost nothing in two games in New York earlier in the week.

Thursday, with ex-Yankee catcher Sherm Lollar showing the way, the White Sox fought back from a 4-1 deficit to lead 5-4, then rallied again after Don Bollweg had homered for New York to tie the score. Lollar hit a home run and two singles in four times at bat, driving in three runs and scoring two.

CLEVELAND LOSES

Meanwhile Cleveland was losing its fourth in a row, at Boston, 5-4, in 11 innings. In night games Washington won its sixth straight, 2-1, over St. Louis and Philadelphia nipped Detroit 5-3.

Milwaukee pulled into a tie with Philadelphia Phillies for the National League lead as cold, wet weather in the midwest continued to disrupt the schedule.

The Braves scored two runs in the ninth inning to edge Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2. Pitcher Jim Wilson allowed the Pirates only three hits, struck out six and yielded no walks. The Phillies were idle at Chicago due to cold weather.

St. Louis Cardinals evened their season's record with Brooklyn Dodgers by whipping them 8-3 in the only other National League game. New York Giants' contest at Cincinnati was postponed because of rain.

Softball League Formed In Marmora

MARMORA (ENS). — At a meeting held on Monday an Industrial Softball League was formed, taking in Marmora, Deloro and Bethlehem Steel.

Cecil Nobes was named chairman with the following assistants:

Marmora—John McCrodan.
Deloro—Clifford Quinn.
Bethlehem Steel—Percy Gray, Junior.

Proceeds of the games will be devoted to the artificial ice fund.

Royals Southpaw Wins Fifth, May Be Grabbed

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

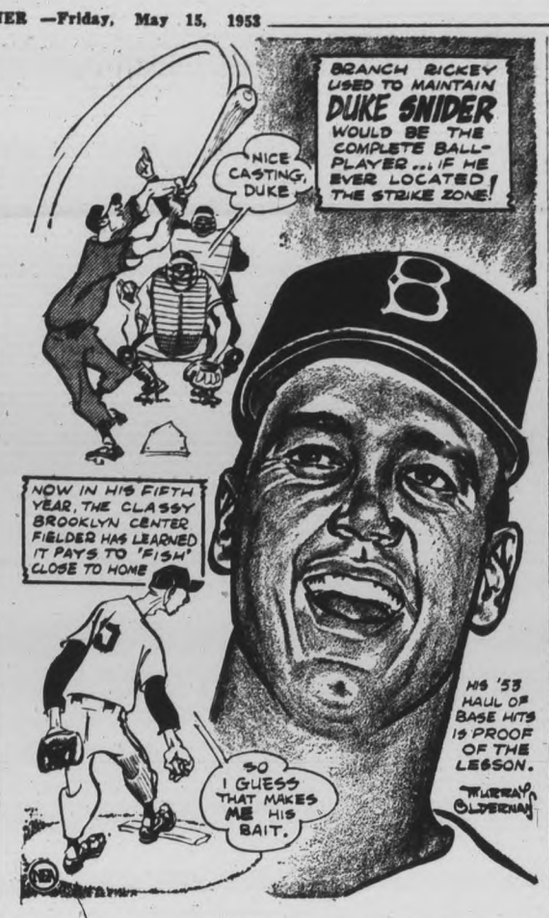
One of the main topics of conversation in Montreal baseball circles these days is how long lefty Ken Lehman will be around the International League.

Judging by his performance with the Royals this season—he threw a six-hitter Thursday in downing Buffalo Bisons 7-2 for his fifth win against no defeats—the parent Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League are almost sure to call on the big army veteran.

Lehman's performance to date is the best in the loop. The two years he spent with the American Army in Korea apparently hasn't affected his pitching. He was with Brooklyn and St. Paul of the American Association last season after his discharge.

TWO FOR ROYALS

His victory was the second of the night for Montreal. The double win gave the Royals sole possession of first place, 1½ games ahead of their nearest rivals.



Ken Johnson, in losing to Lehman, suffered his second setback in five starts. He gave up eight hits.

Toronto Maple Leafs snapped Ottawa Athletics' winning streak by defeating the A's 6-1 in the third game of a four-night stand at the Canadian capital.

Jim Post, who had a one-hitter until the seventh when Ottawa jumped him for three more, was the winner. The loser was Ed Hrabscak.

Bob Greenwood and Howie Fox teamed to limit Syracuse Chiefs to three hits, while Baltimore Orioles fashioned a 4-0 shutout. Duke Markell, allowing six of the Orioles' seven hits, suffered his first setback in five starts.

Springfield Cubs and Rochester divided a doubleheader at Springfield, the Cubs winning the opener 3-2 and the Red Wings the nightcap 3-1.

Guelph Lefty Ruled Out Of Intercounty

GUELPH (CP)—Administrator John Gillies of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League ruled Thursday that southpaw Jackie Bowes of Guelph Maple Leafs is not eligible to play intercounty ball this season.

Gillies said Bowes had earlier signed a financial agreement with Spartanburg of the class B Tri-State League.

Officials of the Maple Leafs said Gillies' decision was a severe blow to the club. They had counted on the New Brunswick lefty to be the mainstay of their hurling corps. Bowes pitched for the Leafs two years ago.

Vancouver Sought As Davis Cup Host

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver has been officially asked to be host to the Japan-United States Davis Cup tennis tie July 9-11, it was announced Thursday.

Official confirmation of Vancouver as the site of the matches came in a telegram from Alrich Main, chairman of the U.S. Davis Cup committee, to Victor Denny, president of the Pacific Northwest Tennis Association.

The Japanese team decided to play on Vancouver grass courts rather than asphalt courts in Seattle, Wash.

George Earnshaw, lanky right-hand pitcher, was sold by Chicago White Sox to Brooklyn in the National League 18 years ago today. Before he had been traded to Chicago, Earnshaw had been a powerful cog in the Philadelphia Athletics team that won the World Series of 1929 and 1930, and lost to St. Louis in 1931.

Colt Second Favorite For June Epsom Derby

LONDON (AP)—Sir Victor Sassoon's Pinza was made a sensational second favorite for the June 6 Epsom Derby at a betting rally over of London bookmakers Thursday night.

The colt's price plunged from 33-1 to 7-1. He was a 40-1 shot May 4.

Pinza's four-length victory in the 1¼-mile Newmarket Stakes Wednesday caused the price to drop.

Nearulla maintained his place as a firm favorite at 10-3.

Homeless Player Problem At CAHA Meet

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The problem of the player who hadn't a hockey home was discussed Thursday by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association before it adjourned its 36th annual meeting.

The convention worried over these situations: (1) players who are under contract to professional teams; (2) players who have signed only CAHA forms.

The problems concern the Maritime Major League, still a member of the parent body, and the Quebec Senior League, which has just decided to turn professional.

The whole thing was tossed over like a hot potato to the joint committee of the National Hockey League and the CAHA for settlement.

AFFECT WEST

The final open meeting of the CAHA also made these decisions: British Columbia may re-enter the junior A series and Alberta cannot draw on its teams for three-man strengthening of its contenders in the national junior series.

The matter of televising games was handed over to the parent body's branches for decision themselves. The meeting went on record with a suggestion that the CBC should put the national final game on the radio.

The question of the homeless player arose over the suspension last winter of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association. The branch and its clubs were reinstated at the current meeting. The branch apologizing for having defied the C A H A regarding registration status of a junior player, Ron Attwell.

END TRACK BOYCOTT

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Hollywood Turf Club and boycotting horsemen finally reached a settlement Thursday in their purse money row. Racing is scheduled to start Saturday after a four-day shutdown at Inglewood track.

Compromise came after a stormy session here before the California horse racing board.

Under the new plan, applicable only to the Hollywood meeting, the track will pay out purse money from the pari-mutuel handle on a 4-3-2.65 formula. The estimated purse money will total $2,820,000.

This was less than the $3,001,000 demanded by the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association on a basis of 40 per cent of the track's share of the pari-mutuel handle.

The amount also was an increase from the $2,600,000 the track had agreed to prior to Thursday, and an increase from the $2,750,000 it consented to pay at the start of Thursday's hearing.

The formula means that the track will pay four per cent of the first $10,000,000 handle, three per cent of the second $10,000,000, and 2.65 per cent over $20,00,000.

Kate Aitken Tells Audience Of Conditions In S. Africa

The fabulous woman of the woman's world, Mrs. Kate Aitken, charmed two large audiences of women on her visit to Peterborough Thursday. One was of housewives who are nearly all daily listeners to her radio broadcasts, the other of professional women who have little chance to hear them because of work or the double duty of career and housekeeping.

To each she was quite as satisflying as anticipated: a woman who talks just as she sounds from the loudspeaker; a woman who has something to tell—not only because she leads a busy and exciting life, travelling widely and doing things few other women do—but because she is able to take in a complex situation thoroughly and put it into simple words so that anyone can understand it.

She chose to tell about her trip to South Africa in January, and because in one audience there were 30 young women who will graduate from the Civic Hospital School of Nursing next month, she titled it "Widening Horizons." She told them that this is the age of travel, and they too are likely to do a lot of travelling. So, she led them to South Africa with a description of jet flying and of some of the airports on the trip.

By taxiing 40 miles out of Nairobi in the protectorate of Kenya, Mrs. Aitken got herself admitted to the small, crowded courtroom where the trial of six Mau Maus, including their leader, was going on. She described the prisoners as "insolent" even when on trial. The leader is an Oxford graduate who, on his return from England, declared "We'll clean out the white men."

Mrs. Aitken is afraid that the terrorists will never be subdued if their leader becomes a free man again, and she is also quite sure that he will be freed soon through an appeal by his lawyer, who is an extremely clever white man, a declared Communist who is receiving Communist pay to defend the natives. Her sureness is based on this lawyer's past record of achievement in criminal cases of world importance.

After the trial Mrs. Aitken went to her nephew's farm, 40 miles the opposite way from Nairobi, and ate her first meal with a loaded gun beside her plate, keeping one eye always on the window she had been assigned to watch. Yet, she could not persuade the nephew to give up all his possessions and bring his family home.

Her description of Johannesburg as a beautiful city with 44 gold mines in operation underneath it and a rim of native mud huts in which millions are born, live and die, never having anything better, was interesting, though saddening. Mrs. Aitken said that "Joburg" appeared to her as a city where two and a half million people support themselves plus 11 million living in this "rim."

She said: "The situation in South Africa is not a question of segregation—they have had segregation there since 1634. It is a situation brought about by Dr. Malan, an Afrikaan who is determined the Union of South Africa shall be taken out of British authority and that eventually it will come under Dutch authority.

Mrs. Aitken described her "interview" with 79-year-old Dr. Malan in which she discovered that he is a man who thinks the natives should have nothing better than a tree to sleep under, should have no education but the whip, and that Jews should be stripped of their possessions and run out of the country.

She then found that he is a "religious" man, the religion being as he sees it. He read scripture with her and then knelt in a prayer which was a fiery directive to the Almighty on what He was to do in South Africa. Mrs. Aitken was left without an adequate way to describe this man.

"If we were to have a war there are just three things that we can do, it seems to me," said Mrs. Aitken in conclusion. First she set forth "Power of Prayer" and outlined just a few of its potentalities. Next was "Individual Thought" and she appealed especially to trained minds to unroll this phase. Third was "Individual Action."

Mrs. Aitken spoke in the afternoon at Trinity United Church under sponsorship of the Women's Federation and in the evening she was guest speaker at the Royal Year dinner of the Peterborough Civic Hospital Alumnae, held in the Empress Hotel, at which honored guests were the 1953 graduating class and 1933 graduates celebrating their 20th anniversary.

Jail Ex-Champion For £200 Theft

SOUTHEND, Eng (Reuters)—Larry Gains, 52, Toronto-born former British Empire heavyweight boxing champion, was sentenced today to three months in jail for stealing £200 from an ex-servicemen's club.

Gains pleaded guilty. He admitted staging a fake robbery at a British Legion club where he was employed as a steward.

He was accused of telephoning police and telling them he had been held up by a thief. Police said Gains had arranged the "robbery" with a man named Green whose wife gave them away to the police.

A police witness said Gains had never been in trouble before. "He bears a wonderful character. Every person I met during the inquiries said he had an excellent character.

Gains won the British Empire title in 1932 and lost it two years later. He retired from the ring when he was 40.

St. Giles Name Selected For New Church

St. Giles' Church will be the name of the new Presbyterian church to be built on Park St. South. This name was chosen at a congregational meeting held on Thursday night in the basement of Confederation School.

It was the first business meeting of the congregation and nine men were elected to the Board of Managers and 14 were nominated to be placed on a ballot for election as elders and members of the Kirk session. The Rev. Gilbert D. Smith, the new minister, presided.

STARTED IN OCTOBER

The group of Presbyterians in the south end of Peterborough commenced holding services in Confederation School last October and since then remarkable progress has been made. Students from Knox College were in charge of the services during the fall and winter and then on Easter Sunday Mr. Smith, who had recently arrived from Ireland, took over. Services were first held in the kindergarten room of the school but since the arrival of Mr. Smith the weekly congregations are around 200 and a basement play room has had to be used.

Elected to the Board of Managers were Douglas Melville, Roy Juby, William Saunders, Edward Browne, Ronald Watson, Walter Dunford, G. Wilson Craw, Lionel Monk and Albert Mortlock.

Mr. Dunford, chairman of the building committee, reported on the activity of that committee and intimated that plans were under way to build a church seating 300.

WELCOME NEW MINISTER

Immediately following the business session a reception was held for the new minister, Mr. Smith. Short addresses of congratulation and encouragement to the congregation and welcome to Mr. Smith were made by Rev. A. E. Tooms of Campbellford, the moderator of the Presbytery of Peterborough; the Rev. Louis Fowler of Port Hope, clerk of the presbytery; the Rev. H. G. Douglas, president of the Peterborough Ministerial Association, and the Rev. C. G. Boyd of St. Paul's, the mother church of the new St. Giles' congregation.

James Dutton, on of the assessor elders and who has been largely responsible for organizing the new congregation, presided and a quintet from the choir sang a number.

Following the program the ladies of the congregation served refreshments.

"Thrill Killer" Refused Parole

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Nathan Leopold, notorious "thrill killer" of the 1920s who became a model prisoner and medical guinea pig, lost his bid for freedom Thursday.

The Illinois parole and pardon board denied his application for a parole from Stateville penitentiary in an action that could keep him behind bars at least until 1965.

Victor L. Knowles, chairman of the board, told newspaper men that "the board doesn't think he's the right type of man to go back into society." He said that the sentencing judge and Clarence Darrow, Leopold's own lawyer, had recommended that he never be paroled.

Leopold, 48, is serving life and an 85-year prison term—reduced from 99 years for special prison services he rendered—for the brutal 1924 slaying of 14-year-old Bobby Franks.

Mercante was alleged to have spread rumors against the government.

Obituary

MRS. THOMAS SMITH

WARKWORTH—(ENS)—One of Warkworth's oldest residents, Mrs. Thomas Smith, died Thursday at her home at the age of 90.

Until about two months ago, Mrs. Smith had been in very good health.

The former Sarah A. Hurlbut, she was born in Vergennes, Vermont, a daughter of Abiel and Lucinda Hurlbut, both deceased. While still in her teens she came to Warkworth to help her uncle, R. P. Hurlbut, whose wife had just died. She lived most of the rest of her life in the village. For ten years after the death of her husband in 1933, she spent her winters in Toronto with her daughter, Mrs. Edmund P. Gallagher. But in 1943 her daughter moved to live with Mrs. Smith in Warkworth.

While she was able, Mrs. Smith was an active member of Warkworth United Church and the WMS and WA.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Edmund P. Gallagher (Ruby), Mrs. Garfield Broughton (Lila), Chicago; and Mrs. Phila A Orton (Edith) Lake Forest, Ill, and two brothers, William and Fred Hurlbut of Canton, N.Y. She had five grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

The funeral service will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Allen funeral home. Because the United Church minister had a previous commitment, the Rev. T. E. Kennedy of St. Andrew's Presbyerian Church will conduct the service. Burial will be in Warkworth cemetery.

Claim Freighter 'Not Seaworthy'

CLEVELAND, O. (AP)—A coast guard board of inquiry moved here today from Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., to question two additional crew members of the ill-fated freighter Henry Steinbrenner which sank in Lake Superior Monday with the loss of 17 lives.

Those to face questioning are Barnard Oberoski, East Plymouth, Pa., second cook, and Kenneth L. Kumn, Tonawanda, N. Y., a deckhand. They were put ashore by rescue craft in Duluth, Minn., and brought here.

Fourteen of the ship's crew of 31 survived the storm-driven foundering of the 52-year-old ship, which sank in 1909 after a collision and was raised.

Watchman Norman M. Bragg, Huntington, W. Va., was particularly outspoken en route to Cleveland at Detroit Thursday night.

"Nothing," he said, "worked as it should aboard the ship. We were taking water something awful for nearly 12 hours before she went down.

"For my money, she just wasn't seaworthy."

Decomposed Body Found In Bourget

BOURGET (CP)—The decomposed body of a woman was found Thursday night in an unoccupied house in this village 30 miles east of Ottawa. Ontario provincial police began an immediate investigation.

The woman's body was found by neighbors in a house which apparently had been vacant for several weeks.

Police said the woman probably died several weeks ago, but declined to say whether there were any signs of violence. A police guard was posted around the house pending the arrival of OPP Inspector Robert Wannell from Toronto.

Coroner Dr. Moise Gendron of Bourget was called to the house be nighbors who found the body. He summoned police. He declined to give any details of the death, other than to confirm the police statement that the woman apparently died several weeks ago.

ISTANBUL (Reuters)—Lord Ismay, secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, arrived here from Athens Thursday on a courtesy visit to Turkey. DO YOU OWN A CAR?

If you own a car, we would like to tell you about a discovery.

About five years ago, the Manager of Bardahl Manufacturing Corporation had been driving a '39 model car. Noticing a leak in the radiator he took the car to a garage for repairs. At the time the Bardahl Manager had been working on a rust preventative for the cooling system. When he received his car back, he put some of this into his radiator. After driving the car for several weeks he noticed the radiator still leaked. Returning the car to the garage he reported the trouble. Later that day the garage operator phoned to ask Mr. Tennant what on earth he had put in the radiator. The garage owner went on to explain that when he drained the radiator the water was so thick with dirt it would hardly pour. The rust preventative prepared by Mr. Tennant had removed rust, scale and dirt untouched by the popular brand of chemical cleaner used by the garage owner.

The garage owner immediately placed an order for their own use. Since then hundreds of thousands of motorists across Canada and the United States have tried this Bardahl Rad Conditioner.

If you own a car you should try it, for if your car is old you'll be positively amazed at the dirt, rust and scale it will remove; if your car is new, Bardahl will keep the radiator in new, tip-top condition.

Bardahl keeps radiators clean . . . eliminates rust formation which can insulate a motor causing harmful overheating, and it also lubricates and stops squeaky water pumps. And when you think most of us spend about $25.00 every year washing our cars and yet neglect a more important part of the car—that is, the radiator—well, it's really worth it to buy a can of Bardahl Rad Conditioner at 80c.

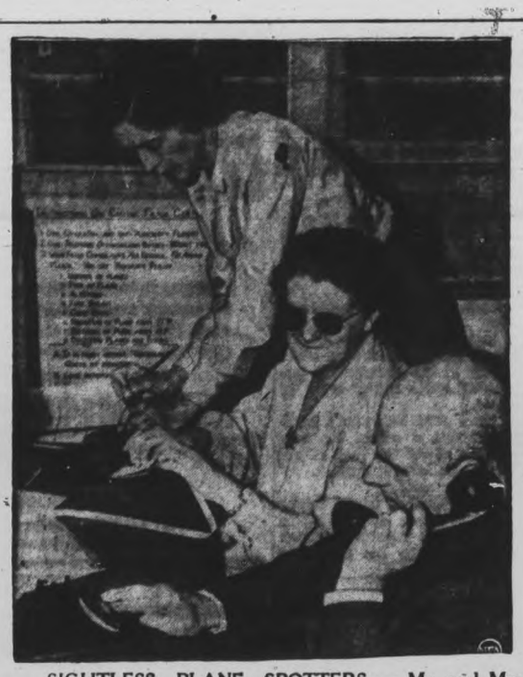
Canada Offers Tribunal For Dam Claims

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government has offered to join the United States in setting up an international tribunal to arbitrate damage claims of U.S. citizens based on Canada's Gut dam in the St. Lawrence river, the external affairs department announced Thursda



The old dam just below the exit of Lake Ontario into the river, removed last fall, is blamed by damage claimants for destructively-high water levels in the lake in recent years.

About 5,000 claimants seek an aggregate of about $100,000,000 from the Canadian government, which built the dam in 1903, with the consent of the U.S. government, to protect water flow in its river canals.

The Canadian proposal for an international tribunal, informants said, was received in non-committal fashion by the U.S. state department.

The external affairs department said the state department has been informed that Canada is ready to compensate U.S. citizens for any damage directly attributable to Gut dam.

But, it added, the U.S. also has been informed that "Canada does not admit, on the basis of evidence now available, that Gut dam was a material cause of the injury which is alleged to have been suffered by the claimants."

Wanted: Light, Hot Stove For Front-Line Bunkers

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—Wanted: A stove.

But it's got to be one with a difference.

Brig. J. V. Allard, new commander of the 25th Canadian infantry brigade, has sent Ottawa specifications for a stove he hopes will be designed, produced and delivered in Korea before next winter.

Its job will be to heat Canadian soldiers' front-line bunkers safely when the cold returns.

During the last three winters bunker heating has been a matter of improvisation. Stoves suitable for tents and other rear-area installations are easily obtained. But neither United States nor British lines of supply carry anything suitable for the men actually fighting the war.

MAKESHIFT STOVES

The men have had to improvise, using lengths of rubber tubing to feed gasoline through home-made taps into stoves made from discarded cartridge cases. Make-shift chimneys from other ammunition or cartridge cases have made do when regular stove pipes were not available.

The resulting smoke gave away the complete outline of the occupied front and helped the enemy in his artillery and mortar programs. The stoves also constituted a fire hazard.

Last winter Lt.-Col. Louis Trudeau, officer commanding the now-returned 1st battalion of the Royal 22nd regiment, experimented with the British-produced Valor stove, which uses kerosene.

He concluded that with modifications it would do. His findings were forwarded to Ottawa by Brig. M.P. Bogert, former brigade commander, who recommended they be made the basis for study.

Ottawa is said here to have considered the problem one for the theatre's main lines of supply—United States or British.

Allard, formerly vice-quartermaster general of the Army, has sent it back to Ottawa.

NEW SPECIFICATIONS

He has asked for a stove weighing no more than 25 pounds, two feet high, capable of not only heating a bunker of 1,000 cubic feet but of cooking its occupants' rations. When fuelled it must be able to burn 48 hours without recharging, be smokeless, odorless and require no chimney.

Its fuel must not be gasoline, and preferably not kerosene. Gasoline is more than $2 a gallon here and the improvised stoves used a gerry-can (about 4½ gallons) a day, which had to be toted up into the hills. Getting away from gasoline would save manpower and trouble, and considerably reduce the hazard in the bunkers, where injury and loss of kit through explosion and fire are frequent.

Allard considers that some form of compressed gas might be experimented with as a fuel. Propane gas, if a suitable container were developed, would be a light, odorless, and possibly long-burning possibility.

Other officers feel Canada might produce a tablet or brick fuel along the lines of the canned heat familiar to Canadian campers. During their first winter here the 2nd battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, used it to heat their rations.

Speaker Gives House Farewell

OTTAWA (CP)—Speaker Ross Macdonald said farewell Thursday night as the first commoner in the land and the House of Commons said goodbye and good luck to him.

The 61-year-old Liberal member for Brantford—chosen after the 1949 election as speaker for the 77th session of the 21st parliament—told members his four years as adjudicator of their sometimes-tempestuous debates would be cherished by him for the rest of his life.

Spokesmen for all parties replied in kind, remarking on the speaker's fairness, kindness and his sense of humor in rulings he was asked to give, rulings which sometimes were challenged by a vote of the House.

The speaker's goodbyes were given on the generally-accepted belief that Thursday night's prorogation of Parliament is the last of the seventh session before the calling of an election, expected in August. Technically he remains as speaker until Parliament is dissolved.

Won't Confirm Appointment Of Pickersgill

By CLYDE BLACKBURN

OTTAWA (CP)—Reported intention of Prime Minister St. Laurent to take into his cabinet John W. Pickersgill, clerk of the Privy Council since last June, went without official confirmation or denial Thursday, but prompted much discussion in parliamentary corridors.

So far as could be learned the government will not deny the report and is greatly interested in the reaction.

There is a traditional objection among veterans of the political battles when a prime minister gives a cabinet post to a person who has not previously shared the hardships and risks of the hustings.

However, it is a common practice and often the appointment is so fitting as to make the action acceptable to the majority.

This was true in the case of Prime Minister St. Laurent, appointed Justice minister in December, 1941, by former Prime Minister Mackenzie King. Until he won a by-election in February, 1942 he had never fought a political campaign.

Persistent reports, which went without comment from the parties most concerned, were that Mr. Pickersgill, 47, would be sworn into the cabinet and contest a seat in Newfoundland in the next general election.

Emphasis was given the Pickersgill report by the presence in Ottawa of Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland who would have considerable to say about the appointment of a minister representing that province.

Mother Throws Three In Well, Suicides

DOUGLASVILLE, Ga. (AP)—An ill and despondent woman threw her three small children into a deep well Thursday and jumped in after them, Sheriff Joe Harding reported.

The mother, Mrs. R. E. Foran, about 25, and two sons, Michael and David, two and four years old, were drowned in six feet of water. Six-year-old Patricia managed to cling to a pipe in the 30-foot well and her cries attracted her father.

Foran, about 35, a farmer, wrapped a long chain around a pine tree and lowered himself into the 28-inch wide well to save Patricia.

Fever 'Epidemic' Doesn't Exist

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—Dr. E.G. Berry, medical officer of the Kent health unit, said Thursday "there is nothing suggestive of an epidemic" in the occurrence of six cases of typhoid fever since Jan. 1 in Kent county.

Dr. Berry told board members that an autopsy revealed typhoid had caused the death of Thamesville's former reeve, Clare Skinner, last Tuesday. Later he said the typhoid case was "sporadic" and there was nothing to indicate that the water in Thamesville was "suspicious."

Reeve Roy McBrayne of Thamesville said the village council at a meeting Wednesday asked the health unit to inspect the water as result of the death of Mr. Skinner. He said some residents are boiling water used for drinking.

Coronation Plans...

. . . The Retail Section of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce is proud to announce that all member stores will be CLOSED ALL DAY, TUESDAY, JUNE 2nd, in honour of the Coronation of our Gracious Majesty. It is hoped that other retail stores will follow suit.

Comediennes Get Big Chance In TV

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — One of the remarkable things about television has been the rise of comediennes.

Funny women have long been a stock in trade of show business. But until TV, they were always overshadowed by the popularity of the male laugh-getters. TV has changed all that.

The title role in the home screen's top show—"I Love Lucy"—belongs to a woman. Among the others who have nice ratings are Imogene Coca, Eve Arden, Joan Davis, Ann Sothern, Marie Wilson, Gracie Allen, Martha Raye and Tallulah Bankhead. Most of them were in radio, too, but have never had the immense success they enjoy now.

How come, I asked Joan Davis, is it because women's voices are not as recognizable on radio?

"No," she replied. "It isn't hard to recognize my voice, or Eve Arden's, or Gracie Allen's."

Is it because male comics excel in audible humor while the gals rely on sight for laughs?

"Nope, I don't think so."

Then why is it?

THINKS IT'S SEX

"I think it's because of that nasty old thing called sex," Miss Davis replied. "And sex is more visible than audible."

"All of us girls try to look the best we possibly can. I always have a smart outfit on, unless I've just fallen in a mud puddle or something.

"I held out for three years against doing live TV. One of the main reasons I wanted to film was that you can look better. We spend much more time lighting me than they ever did when I was making movies. In those days, they'd look at my nose and light me with a match."

Lighting, you see, is what makes the glamor girls glamorous. It shouldn't be too big a job on Joan. Despite her comic characterizations, she is a smart looking woman, with smooth skin and blonde hair.

Joan admitted that TV was the biggest thing that ever happened to her.

"I became better known in six weeks on TV than I did in all those years on radio and in pictures," she remarked.

AID FOR THEATRES

The Norwegian government allocated $280,000 to aid the theatre in Norway during the 1953-54 financial year.

COMMISSIONER FOR CANADA of the Salvation Army, William R. Dalziel will visit the city to take charge of the Spring Festival of Music in the Army Temple May 21 which will feature the world's foremost woman trombonist Maisie Ringham of England. Commissioner Dalziel took charge of the Army operations in Canada in 1951 after a lifetime spent in the Salvation Army.

Hees Raps Carson In Case Of Unremitted Sentence

OTTAWA (CP)—An outburst of verbal cross-fire erupted in the House of Commons Thursday concerning the way an application for remission of part of a prisoner's sentence was handled by the justice department.

George Hees (PC — Toronto Broadview) outlined the case of an unidentified prisoner sentenced to eight months at Lindsay, Ont., for uttering a forged cheque. He said the man applied for remission of part of his sentence but his application lay around the remission branch of the justice department for 2½ months.

Finally the man was released on remission, apparently by jail authorities. On the day he was released his solicitor was notified that the solicitor-general (Mr. Garson) could not interfere with the sentence.

Mr. Hees said that as far as the solicitor-general was concerned apparently the man could stay in jail.

Mr. Garson said of 40,000 remission cases handled since he became minister, this was the first instance of its kind. It obviously was due to some clerical error in the department.

Mr. Hees, he said, "like some of the other statesmen of his party, make their political appeals by making a great hullabaloo when some clerk in the government service makes some minor error of procedure."

Mr. Hees said he wasn't complaining about a clerk. He was complaining about the lack of action by the solicitor-general.

"If my honorable friend thinks that as a member of this House of Commons it is important enough for him to occupy his time and the time of us all and make a great commotion. . ."

Julian Ferguson (PC—Simcoe North) interjected: "Certainly it is his privilege. He should do it; it is his obligation."

Mr. Garson said he would look into the matter.

Groom, 87, Loses Desertion Suit

RASUGA, Italy (Reuters)—Ignazio Lucenti, 87, an indignant bridegroom, today lost a legal action to establish the desertion of his wife Giovanna, 60.

White whiskers bristling, the Sicilian told the court that when he married Giovanna eight months ago he was "terribly in love with her," but that she cold-shouldered his passion.

"She consistently refused to carry out the duties of a wife," he declared. "One day I pleaded on my knees for my rights. She was adamant. Furious, I struck at her. She dodged and counter-attacked."

He held up his arm to show the deep imprint of teeth on his right wrist.

The court, however, ruled that Giovanna had acted in self-defence and could not be charged with "abandoning the conjugal roof."

Broaden Search For Lost Flyers

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP)—The U. S. Air Force today planned to intensify the air search for two Bell Aircraft Corp. airmen and a secret rocket aircraft missing over Lake Ontario since Tuesday.

And a Bell spokesman said the air force's decision to step up the search indicated there still was hope of finding the men or the X-2 aircraft.

The men and the X-2 were lost over the lake when an explosion occurred during a test flight with the X-2 attached to a B-50 bomber.

The missing crew are Bell's chief test pilot, Jean L. Ziegler, 32, and a flight engineer, Frank Wolko, 33.

Bell says the men fell, jumped or were blown from the B-50.

The missing research aircraft is believed capable of speeds in excess of 2,000 miles an hour.

OSHAWA BOOMS

Oshawa building permits have soared to a total of $11,630,000 up to Wednesday, for four months and a half, as compared with 10 million for all of 1952. Three permits, each of $2,500,000, have been issued to General Motors, amounting to $7,500,000 for their 42-acre motor production plant. Hundreds of new houses are going up, post office, four new schools. GM paid the city $2,550 for those permits.

Emergency

Kate Aitken was a little late arriving in Peterborough Thursday, but she had a good excuse. Driving alone from Toronto she saw an American car telescoped against a large earth remover at the side of Highway 401 where it joins Highway 2 just west of Newcastle. The American driver was badly gashed about the head and no one among the spectators who stopped had any bandages to help him. Resourceful Mrs. A. pulled a new nylon slip out of her suitcase and wrapped his head with it. Then she drove the injured man to meet an ambulance at Welcome.

St. James Calls Rev. L. Shorten

The church board agreed on Mr. Shorten's name on the recommendation of the pastor relations committee of the church and presbytery.

The prospective pastor is to be married shortly to a United Church deaconess, Miss Daniels, in Toronto.

NORMAL SCHOOL STUDENTS paid their annual visit to the Harry Blewett farm on the Chemong road Thursday afternoon. There with the help of Frank Paterson, agricultural representative, they were taught the various methods used for producing better crops and restoring waste lands. At the same time they planted pine trees; Helen Allin of Newcastle, Shirley Austin of Peterborough and John Deck of Lakefield (left to right, top) plant a seedling. Another class was held in map reading. Gladys Lavender of Millbridge and Beth Hopkins of Orillia (lower photo) check their position on the Blewett farm.

Normal Students Visit Farm Plant Trees, Study Outdoors

Planned to acquaint normal school students with various phases of outdoor activities, the annual outing on the farm of Harry Blewett, Chemong Rd., was held Thursday afternoon. Lessons on tree planting, map reading and scientific agriculture were given the 144 students during the outing by Principal Leo Copp, instructor John Londerville and Agricultural Representative Frank Paterson.

The tree-planting lessons are part of a scheme to restock the Blewett farm with new trees, replacing the dead ones and planting new ones. Each student was given a chance to plant one of the baby trees.

In the past three years, students at the Normal School have covered an area of about 75 yards by 50 yards with new trees.

In an effort to acquaint students with maps of local areas, the map reading lessons have been carried out in the past three years with military and civil defence charts. The studying of local maps and identifying locales listed thereon has been stressed and deemed invaluable in time of national emergency.

In the agricultural lessons under the direction of Mr. Paterson, students were shown conservation practices around the farm such as contour tilling and strip farming. Soil saving methods in practice around the farm could be seen by the future teachers from a vantage point atop a hill on the farm.

Cold Rain Spoils Pickerel Opening For Fishermen

Pickerel fishing in the Kawarthas opened today at 12:01 a.m. in a miserable cold downpour of rain. It was cold enough to discourage all but the most avid fishermen who, by general survey from Bobcaygeon to Hastings, were out in half their usual numbers. The diehards started catching fish about an hour after the opening gun and their luck was good.

Today is so close to the end of the five-day work week that many had planned to start tonight and fish all weekend and, from weather reports, temperatures are going to rise. It is a wise decision.

MANY AMERICANS

Americans are here this year in their greatest numbers yet, summer hotel operators report. At Burleigh Falls there are 125 guests, 90 per cent from across the Line, and 100 late reservations were referred to other resorts. The same story is true at Bobcaygeon where hotels are filled. Manager Len Cary reports his guests are 85 per cent Americans, many of them repeaters with friends in tow.

A great many of them did not try early morning fishing but rested following long car journeys from Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York States. They will work hard at fishing from now on, some of them for the next week.

The most acceptable bait to fish was minnows this opening day. Bait dealers report they are selling well. One Peterborough man reports a holding stock of 12,000 as well as 25,000 worms for those who fancy this type of lure.

No whopping fish have been reported to date, but many nice three and four-pounders were taken. Young's Point, Buckhorn and Bobcaygeon dams attracted the largest groups of fishermen but there was no shoulder-to-shoulder shoving on any of them on opening night.

Highway 28 Farm Bought For 40 VLA Homes; Survey Of Area Started

75-Acre Owen Murray Farm Stretches From Five-Mile Turn To Scott's Corners; Some Veterans Apply

The Owen Murray farm in North Monaghan, recently purchased by the federal Department of Veterans Affairs, is to be converted into a rural subdivision for eligible war veterans, Alan R. Macnab of Kingston, regional supervisor under the Veterans Land Act, said today. This property of 75 acres lies on the west side of No. 28 Highway from Barrie's Corner south to Scott's Corners. Berrie's Corner, and the service station now owned by Stanley Miller, is somewhat generally known as the Five Mile Corner. The Murray farm also extended westerly to the North Monaghan-Cavan boundary.

The land was being surveyed today as preliminary of its planning for subdivisional purposes.

"We expect that it will accommodate approximately 40 veterans' homes, and possibly a few more than that," Mr. Macnab said. "However, that is a detail that is just in its exception. It may take two months before the layout of the property is complete."

NOT READY YET

"In the meantime we are receiving applications for lots, but we are not yet ready to accept any of them. The land is fertile and level, the location is only a few miles from the city, and I can say this: that we already have had quite a number of applications from ex-service men.

'The extent of their interest has really been surprising, and there is no question about the entire property being taken by veterans who wish to provide homes for themselves and their families on a very desirable site."

Mr. Macnab was engaged here today in discussing the project with applicant veterans. His entire time was taken up by men and their wives for whom appointments had been filed.

FINEST YET

"In our opinion this is likely to be the largest and finest VLA subdivisions in the Peterborough districts," he said.

"We are now taking applications, but we wish to avoid creating any idea that the lots are immediately available. The planning necessarily comes first. The indications are that most of the eventual occupants will be employed in Peterborough. That is another phase of the approach on which we haven't yet complete information."

"The land has been purchased, the survey has been begun, applicants are being received and heard, and eventually there will be between 40 and 50 veterans settled down there in homes of their own."

Assuming an average of four members to a family, the Murray farm will become occupied by some 160 to 200 people, in that neighborhood north of Springville.

'We should have a progress report in the near future," Mr. Macnab said, "and there is no indication of delay once the farm has been approved in its subdividing."

Uranium Plant At Port Hope Production Down

OTTAWA (CP)—The impact of last year's shutdown of Canada's first uranium mine is hitting now, the government-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd. said Thursday in its anual report.

The report, tabled in Parliament, said the uranium refinery at Port Hope did not feel the effects of the shutdown—caused by a fire—until this year because there is a normal lag between production at Port Radium, in the Northwest Territories, and its arrival at the refinery.

The full impact would be felt in the first eight months of 1953 and the refinery would operate at reduced capacity in that time.

The report, signed by president W. J. Bennett, indicated that the company's second mine, at Beaverlodge lake in northern Saskatchewan, will employ 400 people compared to the 240 on the staff of Port Radium.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

First Cheese Boards of the Season Friday Night (May 15) Attract Dairy Interest . . . . Forty Hereford Heifers Left McIntyre Ranch, Alberta, For Norwood, May 12 . . . . George Clemons to Judge Peru National Cattle Show . . . . Norwood Junior Farmers' Dance Wednesday.

Dairy farmers will be interested in the opening of the cheese exchanges tonight (Friday) including the Belleville board, hub of the industry in the east-central section of Ontario.

News during the week announced that the 30-cent price support since last July is not in effect, putting the first deliveries of the season in the open market without any kind of prop, at present, other than the domestic demand. As a result, a Belleville cheese buyer has been predicting a drop of five or six cents a pound in the retail price.

Attitude of the industry in this district has been expressed in the figure of "crossing the bridge when we come to it, and today we are pretty close to it."

The 30-cent price support last season, effective finally July 1, 1952, represented 24 cents assurance by the federal government and six cents by the province. That form of guarantee cost neither government anything. The market took care of the price, but in the background the governments were virtual endorsers at the bank in the possibility that aid might be needed. The industry came through the difficult year fairly satisfactorily. Probably some undivided revenue still remains in the fund or pool that received the three and four cents difference between the first price of 24 cents accepted by the factories, and the subsequent 27 and 28 cents for cheese produced from April 1 to June 30. However, that is a detail of the trade. Mr. C. N. Heath, secretary, said last winter that any balance after all the cheese had been sold would be pro-rated back to the factories.

24-CENT OPENING IN 1952

If the governments were not called upon by the industry to make up any price deficiency last season, the question might be asked why worry about support after that marketing experience.

When the boards opened in 1952 the opening price was around 24 cents, and at that time the law of supply and demand was to apply. However, factory salesmen declined to sell, and it was then decided to take a general vote on an old co-operative marketing scheme.

The Examiner asked Fred Crowe of Warsaw, a director of the Ontario Cheese Producers, where the industry stood today.

"Just where we were a year ago before we tried the co-operative plan," he said. "And it is anybody's guess what happens."

Mr. Crowe said he did not wish to guess out loud as to what develops at the opening of the cheese boards this week.

Some news intimates that Quebec is showing a considerable increase in production, but the dairy industry in that province has little or no organization, and the Quebec government was unconcerned about market support last year. That is said to be a reason for Ontario's reluctance to renew its financial backing. Quite a lot of Quebec cheese was sold under the contract the Ontario industry made with Britain last year, and the contract total was only a fraction of former export to the Old Country. Hence, why should this province be willing to pay a subsidy against Quebec's indifference to the industry!

END OF TWO FACTORIES

W. P. Moore of Campbellford, dairy instructor for the district, including the few remnant factories in Peterborough, reports that Burnley and Morganston factories in Northumberland have closed their doors, and a third factory is doubtful about re-opening for the season.

Burnley was rebuilt about 13 years ago and Morganston six or seven years ago, after a fire. They are comparatively new factories. In the agriculture review for last week, Leeds county commented: "Surplus milk is a worry to farmers and manufacturing plants alike, especially cheese factories. There are 19 cheese factories operating in this county as compared with 55 a few years ago."

A similar note is heard from Halton (identified by Oakville and Georgetown): "Dairymen are up against a difficult situation. Their quotas have been cut back and many dairies are limiting to 15 per cent the quantities they will accept over quotas."

NO RESTRICTIONS HERE

Here in Peterborough, J. E. Weir of Silverwood Dairies told the Examiner yesteray that there was no limitations "as yet", and local policy is "to take care of all the regular shippers and their milk supply."

"From the people who have been supplying us in the past we are taking all we can, but we get deputations from cheese factories wondering whether we could handle some of their milk."

Mr. Moore at Campbellford said some of the Burnley milk was going to Warkworth factory.

Those are elements in the dairy field as the new grass-milk season gets under way. Dairy farmers generally will be interested in the cheese board news. Cheese carryover in the province has not been reported, but it is said not to be embarrassing to the market for this season's make. There must be considerable cheese in trade hands, and that selling medium would not welcome any retail price decline such as that which the Belleville buyer estimated in the news several days ago.

Cheese at 24 or 25 cents at the factory would bring milk down probably under the $2 level and probably accentuate the contention of the concentrated milk branch that the entire volume of milk should be pooled.

HOGS AT $31.50

Farmers who have hogs to sell these days will be the last to take any credit for that high price of the year. It points to those who backed out of the business when prices were indicating a retreat. And the usual result: those who stayed in are getting the benefit, as regulars.

Roads Slash Farms

Lawrence Kerr of Chatham is chairman of a committee of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture which has been appointed to assist farmers in problems stemming from new highway construction.

"In Kent we have a close liaison between the Western Ontario Highways Association and the Federation," Mr. Kerr has written to the London Free Press. "The association has named a representative to report to the Federation, and a director of the Federation has attended nearly all meetings of the association on its invitation."

"Farmers are well advised to have the strength of an organization. Its outstanding value, however, is educational. Superhighways are new in Canada, and neither the department or farmers have much experience to fall back on."

"The economic effect of cutting through farms, reducing farm and field acreage, and creating gore fields, has not been adequately studied either by farmer or department."

"Farmers are utterly without experience. In most cases they lack aptitude for real estate dealings. The propertymen of the department are honorable and sincere, doing a big job and woefully short-handed. They obviously have had wide experience. Backed up, as they are, by a strong highways act, and dealing with farmers with a natural fear of litigation, they would be remarkable people indeed if they did not fall into some rather bureaucratic habits of thought.

"The Federation has a splendid opportunity to mediate to some extent at least between two opposing viewpoints."

Lawrence Kerr is one of the foremost farmers in the province, and is widely known especially in Western Ontario.

Middlesex Federation advises farmers seeking guidance on highway routes through their properties to consult their township unit.

"Dairy Day" June 17

Arrangements for the first "Dairy Day" in Ontario, at the farm of Mervin Shantz of Alma, Wellington county, Wed. June 17, are being made by E. M. Biggs, Dairy Commissioner with the provincial Department of Agriculture.

Its purpose is to spotlight most phases of the dairy industry and its role in economy of Ontario, and is being sponsored by the Department in co-operation with O.A.C. and Veterinary College, Guelph; milk producers, processors and distributors.

"Dairy Day" is being organized similarly to "Wheatland Day", "Hay Day" and "Cash Crops Day", all of which have been successfully carried out in Western Ontario.

Bought Hyslop Sire

Edmund Ruth recently acquired a second sire for his herd of Dual Purpose Shorthorns at Marlowemay Farm in Emily Township. At the dispersal sale of 45 Dual Purpose Shorthorns of the Gordon A. Hyslop herd, Glandford Station, Mr. Ruth bought Sailor's Smooth Samson, of U.S. breeding, whose parents were imported from England.

Samson is a son og Hacking Standard 3rd whose dam is the highest producing Dual Purpose Shorthorn in the Old Country with 27,394 pounds of milk and 1,222 pounrs of butterfat for an average of 4.5 per cent. She has the world's record of 129.5 pounds of milk for one day of 24 hours, and a production mark of 898.3 pounds of milk in a week of seven days.

Samson's own dam, Nibley Foggathorpe 74th, was imported from the Anderson herd in England. She won the grand championship at the English Royal over all breeds, and was also a prize winner in the United States after her importation. Her two-year-old record is 12,268½ pounds of milk and 466 pounds of fat, on 305 days' milking.

The new sire at Marlowemay will be of interest to farmers who attend the Eastern Ontario Dual Purpose Shorthorn breeders' picnic Saturday, June 6, at the Ruth farm.

(Incidentally, Mr. Ruth reports that Charles Thorn of Galt, long prominent among Shorthorn breeders, was rather seriously injured some time ago by a horse kicking him on the chest. Mr. Thorn was the speaker at the Dual Purpose breeders' dinner at Assumption Hall in Otonabee during the winter.)

In announcing the Hyslop sale, J. E. Hays of Hays F... Ltd. where the auction took place, has this to say of the Ruth purchase: "The present herd sire (Hyslop's) is Sailor's Smooth Samson, reported to be the highest production bred sire in Canada. At last report, the best record of his three nearest dams averaged 19,451 pounds, with the seven nearest dams averaging 16,927 pounds."

Daughters Of Marksman

John Powell reports from Brantford that four exceptionally high ROP records have recently been completed by daughters of the seven-times All Canadian Montvic Rag Apple Marksman. Three of them are in the herd of C. J. Carswell, Beeton, and the other one in the herd of J. J. E. McCague, Alliston.

"The McCague daughter was Glenafton Laurel Diana, who as a five-year-old in 365 days on three times a day milking produced 24,522 pounds of milk containing 891 pounds fat. She is classified as 'Very Good' in selective registration."

Two of the Carswell Holsteins were Bond Haven R.A. Mona with a six-year-old yearly record on 3X of 22,288 pounds milk, containing 884 pounds fat, and Bond Haven R.A. Dora with an eight-year-old yearly record on 3X of 23,571 pounds milk and 833 pounds fat.

"Another Marksman daughter in the Bond Haven herd has qualified for Red Seal Certificate of long-time production at more than 100,000 pounds milk. She is Betty R.A. Korndyke with a six lactation 3X total of 108,308 pounds milk and 3,839 pounds fat.

"Marksman's entire list of record daughters now totals 109 who have hung up 253 records that average 17,148 pounds milk and 669 pounds fat, average test 3.9 per cent butterfat."

Increases Grass Seed

Spring or fall application of nitrogenous fertilizer to grass meadows intended for seed production is generally a profitable practice as reported from the division of forage plonts, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

"On most soils, even those in a good state of fertility, yield increases up to 25 per cent or more may be expected from the addition of 200 lbs. of ammonium nitrate or the equivalent of some other nitrogen fertilizer.

"Experimental work indicates that maximum seed yields can be expected when the amount applied is between 60 and 80 lbs. of actual nitrogen or 180 to 240 lbs. of ammonium nitrate to the acre. Higher rates did not give corresponding higher yields, and are not justified from the standpoint of expense."

BLOSSOM TIME in the countryside this spring has not been the continuously idyllic setting for agriculture this rural photograph portrays. Farmers didn't get the unbroken run at the land and its seeding of the ideal season. Weather has been moody and inconstant, switching from interruptive rain and cool nights to that prelude of summer, those few days this week at 80 in the shade, "very, very warm for May" (Lionel Monckton's lilting line). Rain again Thursday night hastening the falling of the petals from the cherry bloom along the margin of the tilled fields . . . Oh, well, in the best of circumstances of sunshine, blossom time is only brief beauty such as that framing of the picture of the farmer on his tractor, a few days of ephemeral fragrance of flowering distinctive and memorable, then the slow fruitage until autumn and the eventual harvest.

McIntyre Ranch Herefords Leave Alberta For Norwood

"Your 40 Hereford yearling heifers were shipped today (May 12)", was the telegram G. A. Brethen, president of Norwood Fair Board, received from the McIntyre Ranch in Alberta.

These white-faced heifers will be fed and rested at Moose Jaw, Winnipeg, White River and Toronto. They are expected to arrive in Norwood about the middle or latter part of next week, Mr. Brethen writes in a note to the Examiner.

Acting on the advice of the Health of Animals branch, Ottawa, these animals were tested for TB and inoculated against shipping fever, and were held four or five days before being loaded for the long train ride east.

BOYS MAKE HALTERS

"Upon arrival, it is planned to hold the cattle at the stockyard here for some days before distribution. During this time they will be haltered (with new hope halters made by High School boys under the supervision of agricultural instructors), tagged and vaccinated. The exact time of distribution will be announced next week, and boys and girls getting calves will be notified of the arrangements and asked to meet at 1:30 p.m. sharp (DST) in the waiting room at Norwood CPR station for final instructions covering Club rules, financing and insurance arrangements. They are also to receive valuable coaching instructions from an experienced leader that should prove helpful in handling these heifers to bring them forth at Fair time in the best possible condition to show and sell."

Geo. M. Clemons Judge In Peru

George M. Clemons, Secretary of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, Brantford, Ont. has left by air for Peru where he will be the judge at the Fourth National Cattle Exhibition to be held at Lima from May 17 to 24th. This is the first time a Canadian has placed the awards at this show.

The entry will consist largely of Holsteins, most of them of Dutch origin with a smaller number of North American descent. About 200 head of Holsteins are expected. Mr. Clemons will also judge smaller numbers of Guernseys, Ayshires and milking Shorthorns.

Peru is the second South American country in which Mr. Clemons will have judged the National Show, he having three times previously officiated at the National Dairy Exhibition of Chile, held at Santiago.

This is a big year for Canadian Holstein judges in South America, with J. M. Fraser, Streetsville leaving soon to judge at Rosario and J. J. E. McCague, Alliston scheduled to judge at Palermo later in the summer. These are the two largest shows in Argentina with Palermo in particular enjoying the reputation of staging one of the greatest annual displays of livestock in the world.

The hoop contacts each stave at four points. The inward pressure of the hoops on the outer surfaces of these convex staves is one of the strongest types of construction known.
All staves are interlocked with overlapping tongue and groove design.

Want Pipeline From Alberta For BC Industry

VANCOUVER (CP) — They're talking pipelines in British Columbia these days.

The wrinkles haven't been ironed out of a plan to bring a natural gas line as well as an oil line into the province and now a new pipeline idea has been advanced.

A. E. Grauer, president of the British Columbia Electric Company, Ltd., urges construction of a line to carry the by-products of natural gas from Alberta's Peace River district to B. C.

"There is a good chance of a chemical industry of some size being established in the Greater Vancouver area with the completion of oil and gas pipelines," he told a meeting of the Controllers Institute of America.

This idea apparently would be subject to a final decision regarding the proposed gas pipeline, now in dispute before the United States power commission. A complicated affair, it boils down to a quarrel as to whether gas to supply the U. S. Pacific Northwest should be obtained in Alberta or Colorado and New Mexico.

THREE PIPELINES

Carrying out of Mr. Grauer's suggestion would give B. C. three pipelines. An oil line now is being built from Edmonton to Vancouver. And the gas line is proposed through the province to the U. S., supplied by Peace River wells.

Mr. Grauer said: "Aside from the chemical by-products that can be extracted directly from the oil and natural gas in the form in which it will be shipped, there is the fact that the Peace River gas is quite heavy in condensates and liquid petroleum gases, a good proportion of which will have to be extracted from the gas before it is put into the pipeline."

Some of these extractions could be put into the oil line by a connecting link from the Peace River area, but it is quite possible that a separate six-inch by-products line paralleling the gas line would be "economically sound."

MORRIS N. PALMER, Regina, Sask., who is General Manager of Palmer Oil Development Co. Limited. This company is an important operator in Southern Saskatchewan and in Texas, through its subsidiary, Palmer Oil & Gas Company, Inc. An offering of $1,000,000 of 5½% Convertible Debentures of Palmer Oil Development Co. Limited is being made by the investment firm of N. L. MacNames & Company Limited.

MAY BE LAST PARTY—Kathleen Klingenberg, of Saskatoon, makes a wish as she blows out the four candles on her birthday cake. Doctors have about given up hope of stopping a growth which started in her mouth and now has spread to her lungs. They advised Kathleen's parents that if they wanted to give her the party she had been looking forward to they had better hurry. The party was advanced 10 days. Although able to play normally during the day, Kathleen must be drugged at night to ease her pain and make sleep possible.

Travelling Peacocks

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP)—Six peacocks obtained for the wild animal park here from Texas got as far as the Canadian border where it was found they were not accompanied by a veterinary certificate. So the birds were shipped bac to get the certificates, allowing officials here more time to improve the peacock pen.

Leaves Fast

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP)—Fire chief A. McArthur reported to board of education that nearly 500 children can be removed from city schools in one minute, in case of fire. Tests at seven schools showed the largest group, 490, evacuated in 60 seconds. The smallest, 175, were evacuated from another school in 35 seconds.

Cheerful Blackboards

ISTANBUL, Turkey (CP)—Blackboards in schools here will be repainted green to test the theory that green improves the alertness of pupils. More than 1,000 new elementary schools have been built since June, 1950, and the primary curriculum is being modernized.

Dismisses Suit "Regretfully"

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. Justice Wilfred Judson of the Ontario Supreme Court today dismissed an action brought by a retired West Virginia coal miner against the miner's daughter and son-in-law and added he would not make an order for costs "in favor of these ungrateful defendants."

Mr. Justice Judson said he regretted having to rule in favor of Jan Dzugan and his wife Mary, who own a farm at Wainfleet in Welland county.

They were sued by her father, John Pilisi, for recovery of $6,175, money he had sent the couple to help buy the farm in which he was to have a half-interest.

St. Andrew's Ladies Plan Coronation Tea

OMEMEE — (ENS)—St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. Isaac McNevin, Mrs. Wilbert Thorn presiding and 14 members and one visitor present.

The meeting was opened with a hymn. Miss Amy Best read the scripture.

The business included plans for a Coronation Tea June 13 at the home of Mrs. Annie Belch. There will also be a sale of home baking and bazaar. Mrs. Belch, Mrs. Ray Windrem, Miss Amy Best and Mrs. K. Atwell were appointed a managing committee.

The June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. K. Atwell with Mrs V. Bulbeck and Mrs. C. Whitmore as hostesses.

Following the closing hymn, Mrs. McNevin served lunch.

Woman Dies of Burns

ST. WILLIAMS, Ont. (CP)—Martha Mason, 80-year-old housekeeper, was found dead Thursday in a rocking chair in a smoke-filled farmhouse on the 5th concession of Charlotteville township. She suffered severe burns to the upper part of her body. Cause of the fire was unknown. Employees of St. Williams forestry station and St. Williams village firemen put out the fire with only minor damage to the house.

17,000-Ton Liner Sails Last Trip

VANCOUVER (CP)—The proud Aorangi is outward bound for Australia today after a farewell which carried no hope of reprieve.

With time out for war service, the 17,000-ton liner has been a link between Canada and the Antipodes since 1925. But, with her scheduled arrival in Sydney June 4, the Aorangi's career will end.

Twice before, the Canadian-Australasian Line announced the service would be cancelled because it was losing money, but both times, sentiment and government subsidies gave the old girl a new lease on life.

Not this time, however. Unless a buyer can be found, her likely next port of call after Sydney will be a junkyard in England or Scotland.

Next January the Aorangi's run will be taken over by the British liner Oronsay on a trial basis, as a side trip on the vessel's usual trip between London and Sydney.

More than 1,500 settlements are scattered along the coasts of Newfoundland.

W. Germany Approves Europe Defence Army

BONN (AP)—West Germany today became the first country to approve the treaty to form a combined six-nation 2,000,000 man European defence army.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government pushed this pact—and the related Allied-Bonn peace contract—through to final parliamentary approval in the reluctant Bundesrat (upper House) with a compromise formula.

Under this formula the Bundesrat voted approval of two lesser sections of the treaties, which indisputably require its ratification, and voiced no objections to the two major sections.

The vote, which followed only brief debate in a special session, was 23 to 15.

Boys Cause Flood

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Eight boys incensed over the prospect of losing their swimming hole freed the quarry waters and caused a flood that spilled into 40 suburban homes. The flood occurred Tuesday night. Police said Thursday the eight boys had admitted they dug through a dirt dam to release water into the quarry.

Shrine Of Guadalupe Most Revered In Mexico

GUADALUPE—The Basilica of Guadalupe is the most revered and important of all Mexican shrines. It is the Mecca of Mexico. From Northern Mexico to as far south as Oaxaca, the Indian Madonna is revered by all. You will find Our Lady of Guadalupe in every town and city. It is another Ste. Anne de Beaupre on a much larger scale.

Only about a 25-minute drive from the Zocalo in Mexcio City, the trip is easily made by street car or bus. I took a first class bus for my morning visit.

The approach to the Basilica is a lovely boulevard 12 kilometres long. Here they have processions and people walk all the way to the shrine, while the more devout frequently go all that way on their knees. Inside it is a common sight to see worshippers go from the back of the building up to the altar housing the Virgin, on their knees, keeping promises for favors granted. The altar is always filled with fresh flowers.

The legend of the Virgin is that immediately after the Conquest Archbishop Zumarraga ordered the destruction of all the heathen gods and temples. The most important ones were the first to go and among them was that of the Aztec goddess of earth and corn —"Tonantzin," Indian virgin and "little mother" whose shrine commanded the valley from the top of Tepeyac Hill, just behind the present sanctuary.

MISSED GODDESS

There were already Christian converts among the Indians, but all of them mourned the loss of their Aztec goddess. It was to assuage their grief that the morena or dark skinned Spanish Virgin of Guadalupe was supposed to have appeared on the American continent to the humble Indian Juan Diego. He first saw her on December 9, 1531 and again on the 11th and 12th when crossing the hill on his way to the church at Tlaltelolco. After that, converts were made in huge numbers and soon the shrine was built. Two centuries later, in 1754, the Pope declared the Virgin of Guadalupe Patroness and Protectress of New Spain. In 1945 she was crowned the Queen of Wisdom and of the Americas.

The patriot priest Miguel Hidalgo carried her image on his banner in the Revolution for Independence, 1810, during which time she was the enemy of the Virgin of Los Remedios whose image was on the Royalist banners.

For years the authorities have been gradually enlarging and improving the shrine. At the moment, the big project is the Plaza of the Americas which is to be in front of the Basilica. The plans are grandiose and when it is completed it will be a beautiful spot. It was for this cause that the proceeds from the bullfight I attended were to be donated.

DON'T LIKE MARKET

Although part of the market has already been moved, part of it remains at one of the side entrances and along the back of the Basilica. It is not an attractive market and the constant pestering of the vendors there made it the only market I did not like in Mexico. They have many religious articles and replicas for sale as well as food and other souvenirs.

The food section of the market is directly behind the church. Here you will see poor people with steaming bowls of food, women patting tortillas with that rhythmic slap and ragged children pattering up and down.

The Basilica is a towering temple of intricate design. It is a huge size and its perfect proportions are amazing. You walk into an echoing vastness, pillared in marble and rich in gold and bronze. Four large frescoes on the side walls recount the episodes of the Guadalupe Saga.

CHAPEL OF THE WELL

The Chapel of the Well is two blocks from the church. According to legend a sulphur spring began to gush here when the Virgin appeared to Diego. Built in 1777, the chapel with its well proportioned tiled domes is a perfect example of mudejar architecture. It is purely native in style. Rich and poor alike contributed money to build it. It is said that the tourist who drinks of its water is bound to return to Mexico.

One of the two sections of the structure covers the well like a huge dome, the other serves as a chapel. The edifice has 3 tile-covered domes and has no towers. The tiles are blue and white of Puebla make, with rib-lines in chrome yellow. The plain wall surfaces are a dark maroon. Notable feature is the lovely star-shaped windows. Many of the aristocrats of the Mexican capital aided the architect. Fashionable ladies helped the men carry construction materials and did the work of common masons. Poorer workmen gave their Sundays and holidays to the work free.

There is a stone stairway 150 feet high leading to La Capilla del Cerrito where Diego gathered flowers that convinced the bishop of the Virgin's appearance. From here you have a view of Guadalupe and the City of Mexico with domes and steeples etched; the Valley of Mexico, a vast expanse of billowy fields, hemmed in on the south and west by a wooded mountain range.

The trip to Guadalupe shows the visitor a very old and a very poor section. There is as great contrast here as you will see anywhere in Mexico. Donkeys walk along by the sidewalks and are passed continually by 1953 model cars. Thousands of pilgrims make a trip to this great shrine and on the special fiesta day, it is one of the most colorful in Mexico.

Russians See Stalin's Prediction True

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW (AP)—From reading their newspapers today the Russians could get the impression that one of the last things Joseph Stalin predicted is coming true—that serious differences are going to develop between Britain and the United States.

Last October Stalin criticized certain Communist party members for taking the view that wars between the capitalistic countries are not inevitable.

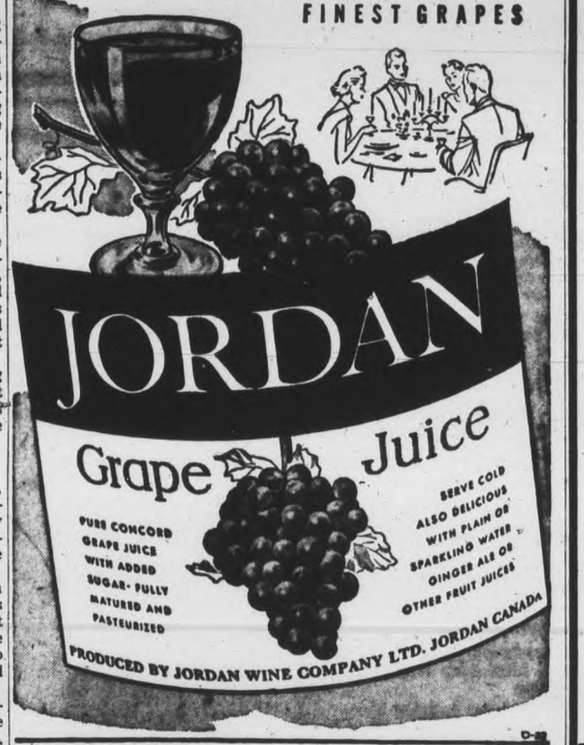
He predicted it would only be a matter of time before such countries as Japan, West Germany, Britain, France and Italy would break away from their close ties and associations with the United States and set out on independent policies of their own.

A Russian reading his morning paper today could not help but ask himself or his wife if Stalin's predictions are beginning to come true.

PLAY UP SPEECHES

Moscow's two biggest papers, Pravda and Izvestia, devoted hundreds of words to the foreign policy speeches of Prime Minister Churchill and Labor Leader Attlee in the British House of Commons.

Wednesday the papers gave a 600-word summary of Churchill's speech, but today they really let loose the wordage, giving more space to their remarks than to anything any Englishman has said for several years.



It was certainly the fullest coverage of any parliamentary debate since the war's end, and Tass, commenting on the speeches, said they were evidence of "growing dissatisfaction with various aspects of United States policy."

The highly critical remark made by some congressional leaders in Washington about the Churchill and Attlee speeches have not been reported here yet. The press will probably get around to these remarks. They will certainly be of considerable interest here, especially to those who recall Stalin's words.

Retailer Predicts Increase In Canadian Purchasing Power

MONTEBELLO, Canada — An American retailer this week predicted that the per capita purchasing power of the Canadian people would be tripled within the next five years as a result of the vast strides being made in the overall economy of the nation.

Speaking before the annual Canadian Retail Federation convention at the Seigniory Club here, Max Hess Jr., prominent American retailer, declared that "most nations of the world, as well as many business men, can take a lesson in management from Canada." He explained that Canada is not only one of the very few nations of the world living within its means, but is also making substantial reductions annually in its funded debt.

Hess was the only independent American retailer invited to speak before the group which represents 32,000 retailers throughout Canada.

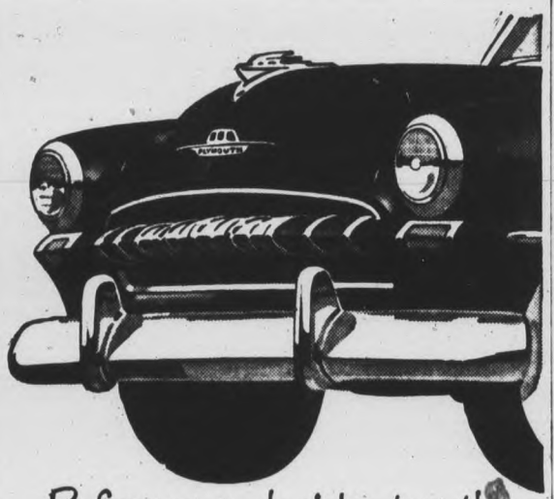
The American businessman asserted that the anticipated increase in consumer purchasing power represents a potential bonanza of business never before experienced by Canadian retailers. However, he cautioned that the Canadian retailer must do more promotion and newspaper advertising than he has done in the past in order to achieve maximum sales.

BIG VOLUME BUSINESS

Hess said that the Canadian retailer's selling job is very much the same as the job of the retailer in the United States. He pointed out that most progressive retailers, whether they are in Canada or the United States, believe in doing big volume business by bringing the best quality products to the most people at the lowest possible prices. Yet, he said, the Canadian retailer does little newspaper advertising as compared to the average American retailer.

Hess said that studies made in the United States show that the average American retailer spends approximately 54 cents of his promotional dollar for newspaper advertising. "And yet, in proportion to the total amount spent, I feel that this is not enough," he said. He added that his own store spends more than 60 cents of its promotional dollars for newspaper space.

Although he stressed the importance of newspaper advertising, the American retailer pointed out that radio, television and other media also have a part in the retailer's overall promotion program. "But, for effectiveness, for volume of returns, for the number of personal impacts per dollar, I place the newspaper first. This is not merely an opinion. In Allentown, we have been making tests for 20 years and every test proves the point. Our best results have always come from liberal use of newspaper space."



DISTRIBUTION JOB

Hess said that the American retailer can also learn a great deal from his Canadian counterpart. For example, he pointed out that the Canadian retailer has done an excellent job of distribution. "Though your population is concentrated in the south, you have to service a tremendous area. Your mail order techniques have been developed to the level of a science," he observed.

Contrary to what many people believe, Hess predicted that Canada's socalled "boom" is not temporary, but rather the beginning of a long period of prosperity. He told the group that their best business years lie ahead. "You are just beginning to tap your vast natural resources. Out of them will come wealth that is bound to flow into the retail market. You are on the threshold of an economy which will be strong, rich and long lasting," he said.

Mr. Hess, author of the book, "Every Dollar Counts"—the story of the American department store —has written widely on the subject of retailing in books, newspapers, magazines and trade publications. He is regarded by the American retailing trade as one of the most progressive retailers in the United States.

Under his dynamic leadership, his store has made retailing history and is now doing more business, $20,000,000 annually, than any other department store in any United States city of under 200,000 population.

May Day Parade

NO ARROGANT PRIDE

But for all that, it was not a ferocious parade and the men had nothing of the arrogant pride I remember seeing on Nazi Stormtroopers marching as long ago as 1934 in Munich. The Yugoslavs are fine looking men as a race, and today we saw the pick of them. But though their country has almost a continuing history of war they haven't fought aggressive war in recent times and these square-jawed, deep-eyed, hard, tough-looking men looked not as though they were glorifying war and were out to find it but as though they would tear limb from limb the next man who set foot upon their soil.

And certainly the second part of the parade wasn't ferocious! Here were girls singing; in shorts and middies; here were hockey teams and football teams and boxers in dressing gows and swimmers in bathing suits (and it was cold) and scullers carrying their oars and physical culture instructors and elderly men and women who are in anti-aircraft defence, and very young boys in pre-military training.

SHORTEN PARADE

The parade was reduced this year so that it took only an hour and a half to pass a given point on its three-mile route. In years past there were endless groups of Communist Party and regional party organizations and the event took sometimes four or five hours to run off. Today the emphasis was on military preparedness possibly because they now are prepared and want to show it and be proud of it. It is also possible that there is a little less emphasis this year on the Communist Party side of things for just now is a changing period in Yugoslav communism and the nation is trying to work out a communism that will be Communist but not too Communist! Socialism and democracy are being given a second look, both by Yugoslav people who are a ruggedly independent peasant lot as a whole, and by Yugoslav leaders who see that if they are to survive their break with Russian imperialism they must make friends with someone else in the world and that the wealthiest and strongest friends around to be had for the asking are those who practise some form of democracy or socialism.

But reduction of the parade seemed not to reduce interest. Streets were filled with people—admittedly not a cheering people but I am told they aren't demonstrative that way anyway—in holiday mood. The parade finished by 9:30 but the crowds continued their ambling. Between 40,000 and 50,000 of us found ourselves in the magnificent sports stadium in the afternoon to see the Partisans beat Red Star 4-3 in soccer, as high a quality of soccer as ever I've seen in London and certainly a wildly enthusiastic crowd which exercises its old Yugoslav custom at the end by setting fire to programs and papers and holding aloft these flaming torches of victory until they nearly burned their hands.

Meanwhile the tens of thousands who had come into the city were making the rounds of famous sights, including old forts built by Turks, memorials to the monarchy now gone, to Russian troops who liberated Belgrade, statues by the sculptor Mestrovich.

EAT NEAR MEMORIAL

Our own lunch was had high on a hill alongside the Mestrovich war memorial, surely one of the world's most peaceful and dignified war memorials, and it was a Yugoslav lunch by which one means that you don't leave the table until you've added 10 pounds. But the people of Belgrade stayed mostly in the city, sampling the coffee at successive restaurants, walking, walking, walking. As I write this at 11 at night they are still walking in the streets, automobiles banished, a gay and friendly throng as it sounds from my window and if you will excuse me I'm going out to join it again. For if May Day in Communist Yugoslavia has a dread or ominous sound in your ears it may be only because you aren't here and can't really see it or feel it.

PS—No, I haven't forgotten the meaning of Communism. But neither have I been forced to write this story of a happy day by having red hot irons thrust under my toenails. It's Yugoslavia I'm in, lady, not Russia.

MP Scores 'Snoopers' Into Farmers' Incomes

OTTAWA (CP)—W. R. Aylesworth (PC—Frontenac- Addington) objected Thursday to government "snoopers" hounding farmers about their income tax but he got little sympathy from Revenue Minister McCann.

Dr. McCann said he's "sure it pays" to have 220 officials engaged in assessing farm incomes.

Mr. Aylesworth said the "snoopers"—he repeatedly called them that—hound farmers and put them under a strain which cuts production and causes discouragement when the government should be trying to encourage production.

He said there has been a four-fold increase in numbers since 1949.

Record Canal Traffic

PORT COLBORNE (CP)—Welland canal officials said Thursday a record 2,009,271 tons passed through the canal in the first month of navigation ending April 30. This compares with 1,635,872 tons in April, 1952, and 1,531,158 tons in April, 1951. Nearly 1,000 vessels have passed through this year.

Father And Son Banquet Held

HASTINGS (ENS).—Group 3 of the Women's Association of Trinity United Church were hostesses to a father and son banquet for the Tyro and Trail Ranger groups.

About 60 fathers and sons were in attendance. The Rev. H. Wright of Norwod United Church asked the blessing and acted as chairman. The fathers were welcomed by the leaders of both groups.

John Auckland of Norwood was guest speaker and spke on "Being Fit." Reeve J. R. Jones gave a short address.

B. Fairman, on behalf of the Trail Rangers, called on Mr. Len Switzer and thanked him for his assistance when the group was first formed and presented him with a small token of appreciation. Mr. Switzer voiced his thanks.

The Tyro group, under the direction of their leader, Mr. James Essex, presented a couple of short skits, "Herman' ' and "School Days." The actors were Hans Hofman, George Duff, Ted Baker, John Thompson, Robert Kemp and Bob Essex.

Rev. Wright greeted Rev. Cole back from his recent illness. Mr. Cole spoke about activities in the church and thanked the leaders of the group for their work.

B. Fairman thanked the ladies for the supper. The vice-president, Mrs. George Rigby, accepted on behalf of the group. The evening came to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

WI Members Weed Church Rockery

COLDSPRINGS (ENS) — Twenty-one members of the Women's Institute gathered at the church rockery for their annual weeding bee. After the bee, lunch was served at the hall by Mrs. Roy Bray and group.

A business period was conducted by the president, Mrs. Allan Linton. Mrs. Herb. McKinley reported a balance of $294.71 on hand. It was voted to send a letter of appreciation to Mrs. Harper, the retiring president.

It is planned to plant the flowers at the rockery the evening of May 25, each member to donate a box.

Plans were made for members to visit the Harvard creamery on June 24.

Delegates and alternates nominated to attend the district annual convention at Cobourg June 9 were Mesdames E. May, W. Maughan, C. Timlin and H. Minifie.

The roll call was answered with "My Favorite Flower." Mrs. Bray gave the motto on "Flowers" and Mrs. Hebert a reading, "The Stovepipe Hole." The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

New Engine Oil Made For Jets, May Save Cars

OTTAWA (CP)—A new national research council discovery may boost the life of your car's lubricating oil many times—and prolong the life of the engine, too.

Brainchild of two NRC scientists, the discovery may help cut driving expenses. Instead of changing oil every 1,000 miles, you may be able to keep the old oil in the crankcase for 7,000 miles or more.

The same two scientists are also responsible for developing a new sand-based, high - temperature water-repelling grease that may be of particular value to military trucks and jet planes and high-speed factory machines. Both discoveries were announced Thursday.

INSERT CHEMICALS

The council said the secret of the oil discovery is in the insertion of the right amount of certain chemicals or metals into the oil stream, thus braking the oxidation that gradually destroys the properties of ordinary hydro-carbon oil.

Scientists said organic acids which increase this oxidation also are the villains that eat into the engine's parts, corroding piston, crankcase and other metallic parts.

After years of research, the two scientists—Dr. I. E. Puddington and Dr. A. F. Sirianni—found that the chemical villains can be hit hard by adding lithium, sodium, potassium, magnesium, or their salts and oxides.

PUT IN FILTER

A piece of the required metal could be attached inside the oil plug, or the rotective material could be built into the oil filter.

On lubricating greases they solved a double problem—greases which can stand up to heat but not water; and others which can stand up to water but not heat.

The two scientists decided to concentrate on sand or silica gel which stood up to high temperatures but are water-vulnerable. To make the grease water-repellent, they added a drying oil, such as linseed. When the mixture is heated, the drying oil forms a water-repelling protective over the grease surface.

Press Convention Urges Cut In Cable Rates

LONDON (Reuters) — A news agency executive Thursday urged an International passport for responsible foreign correspondents and a cut in press cable rates to aid the flow of world news

J. Kingsbury Smith, European general manager of International News Service, told editors at the International Press Institute meeting here that high communications costs, especially to and from isolated hot spots, "represent one of the greatest obstacles in the free flow of news."

"The policy of allowing experienced correspondents to move quickly to danger spots would not only help the flow of news but would also serve the cause of peace," Smith said.

He urged that the institute approach the United Nations and governments to take effective action

NEED DESPERATE

"There are many regions in the Far and Middle East which are desperately in need of a greater exchange of information — areas where the lack of truth constitutes a threat to peace," Smith said

Walton A. Cole, editor of Reuters news agency, said that interim survey reports on news distribution prepared by the PI failed to mention "those three horrible c's of our craft—censorship, costs, communications."

The entire survey project could be endangered through too much attention being focused on statistics and too little on the facts of life.

"There is censorship, direct or indirect, in many of the areas mentioned as being inadequately covered. They are not satellite countries, either.

"Apart from censorship regulations, the governments sanction prohibitive cable tariffs which effectively keep them in the twilight."

Alan J. Gould, executive editor of The Associated Press, said one of the great journalistic tasks today is that of selectivity. This operation was surrounded by physical problems as well as the problems of news judgment.

Censorship restrictions and communications present great difficulties in giving a balanced digest of the world's news, he said. Exchange of experience and collective action would increase the chance of cracking the barriers.

Increased Attention Paid Lady Members In Commons

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters) — Women politicians are again bringing the British Parliament the kind of color it enjoyed when Virginia-born Nancy Astor as a Conservative in the House of Commons quipped and laughed her way into the headlines.

The British public rarely builds up women politicians into national characters. But it is being forced to pay increasing attention to the 19 women—12 Socialists and seven Conservatives—who sit in the present House.

There is as yet no post-war counterpart of Nancy Astor, in 1919 the first woman to take her seat in the Commons. She was a member for 26 years when she retired in 1945.

But there are several women who in time may inherit her reputation.

Three good-looking redheads are in this up-and-coming class.

Youngest is Patricia Hornsby-Smith, 39, who entered Parliament as a Conservative in 1950.

Winston Churchill, impressed by her fighting performance as an election candidate, made her a junior minister as soon as he was returned to power in 1951.

As parliamentary secretary of the ministry of health, she has used her ready wit to handle awkward Opposition questions and aplomb in speaking from the government front bench. She is one of only two women holding office in the government.

Self-confidence is the strong suit also of Mrs. Barbara Castle, 41, one of the chief supporters of left-wing firebrand Aneurin Bevan.

Auburn-haired Barbara Castle is a member of the Labor party national executive committee, and is already a parliamentary "old hand."

For eight years, as a fighting left-winger, she has been making her presence felt in the House.

The third redhead is Dr. Edith Summerskill, 52, tall, whimsical Socialist who was national insurance minister in the late Labor government. She is a doctor of medicine, the wife of a doctor, and has two children.

Dr. Summerskill, who supports the "right - wing" Socialist old guard headed by party leader Clement Attlee, sometimes clashes with militant leftist Bevan.

The men, who number 606, are impressed by the way the little band of women pulls its weight.

In her own way, a hefty housewife serving in Parliament probably has come closer than any of the other present women members in equalling Nancy Astor's reputation as a colorful personality.

Among Conservatives as well as Socialists, 224-pound Mrs. Bessie Braddock, of Liverpool, whom Socialists prize as a champion of the British housewife, is held in genuine affection.

More than any other woman member of Parliament, Mrs. Braddock, a smartly-tailored brunette of 53, is on the newspaper front pages.

She has even achieved the distinction of a Coronation song about herself.

Bevan once caused political uproar by describing the Conservatives as "vermin," and the Coronation ditty has a couplet running:

"All Aneurin Bevan's vermin will be dressed up in their ermine: but what is Bessie Braddock going to wear?"

Another reference to Mrs. Braddock brought Parliament's newest women member, Conservative Mrs. Patricia Ford, 32, into the news within a week of entering the Commons.

A slim and attractive brunette, she said in a newspaper article that she found Mrs. Braddock snoring in a Commons women's room during an all-night sitting.

Mrs. Braddock denied ever having been in the room and raised the question of breach of "privilege," strict parliamentary rules which protect the dignity of members of Parliament. Later she accepted Mrs. Ford's apology for an erroneous statement.

Among Parliament's acknowledged "best - lookers," is Lady Tweedsmuir, whose father, the first baron, was novelist John Buchan and governor-General of Canada. Tall and fair, she is an active member of the Conservative rank and file.

The only woman minister of cabinet rank is Florence Horsbrugh, middle-aged education minister.

On the Opposition back-benches sits Jennie Lee, 48, wife of Bevan and one of his faithful parliamentary supporters.

The number of women in the House today falls short of the record of the 1945-50 Parliament, when 24 took their seats. But only 74 women contested the 1951 election, compared with nearly twice that number in the 1950 contest, when 21 were elected.

Women enjoy no special parliamentary privileges apart from those dictated by the gallantry or courtesy of the men.

Like the men they may take guests to dine with them, and they have their own rest room.

In the Commons itself, they face the men on equal terms, taking their share in the cut and thrust of debate. Their sex does not spare them from political attack across the floor, nor does it excuse any ineptitude they may show if they reach the rank of minister.

Like the men, they are not addressed by name, but as "honorable members."

Nine Canadian Singers Chosen For Abbey Choir

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A happy Canadian in London is Dorothy Allen of Moncton, N.B. She's thinking of what she would have missed had she gone back home last fall.

Miss Allen, with eight other Canadians, has been chosen to sing with the 400-strong Coronation choir in Westminster Abbey. To qualify for the invitation she had to be resident in London.

Last fall the Canadian mezzo-soprano was booked for a return trip home, but decided to ask her Canadian university, Mount Allison, Sackville, N.B., for another year's leave. She wanted to continue her studies under the well-known composer and accompanist, Manlio di Veroli.

Those invited to sing with the Coronation choir had to be between 26 and 39, with choir experience, perfect sight-reading ability and experience as a professional singer.

Miss Allen had choir experience in Canada and Paris. Sight reading came easy after studying for a bachelor degree in piano, singing and theory. She took this seven-year course in four years, and has been singing professionally since.

Miss Allen is delighted with what she calls "the outstanding honor" of singing in the abbey.

It is, at the same time, a formidable assignment. Eight rehearsals are being held, the first in St. Margaret's Church, the last three in Westminster Abbey. And if Miss Allen—or any other member of the choir—misses one rehearsal, it means they won't sing in the abbey. No compensation is given other than two guineas paid for incidental expenses.

Her present worry is where to find a cassock and surplice. Singers must supply their own, and have them ready for dress rehearsals.

Miss Allen's first public choir appearance will be in St. Paul's Cathedral May 31. The Dominion abbey singers have been asked to sing with St. Paul's own choir in a pre-Coronation service arranged by the British Broadcasting Corporation.

This is merely a preliminary to the broadcast, television and film-making plans that go into effect in the abbey. If plans go according to schedule, 18 anthems swelling from 400 throats will be heard in many parts of the world, including Canada. And in many hometowns throughout the Dominions and Empire, eyes will be searching the recorded tiers of singers for faces they know.

Besides Miss Allen, the Canadian singers are: Tenors Ernest Rosser of Hamilton and Robert Edy of London, Ont.; baritones Edmund Hockridge, Vancouver, and Haydn John, Toronto; sopranos Simone Flibotte and Clare Duchesneau, Montreal; contraltos Jean Watson, formerly of Toronto, and Mary McCallum.

Following supper, pictures were enjoyed by all.

The sum of $73,137 was spent in Ontario alone last year, an increase of $8,000 over the previous year, she said.

Conveners and committees were drawn up for the four projects for next year's work.

Members were invited to join the Canadian Association of Consumers organization, a development of the WPTB.

KENNER COLLEGIATE

A general meeting for parents of students of all grades at Kenner Collegiate was held in the library Wednesday evening.

Parents and teachers were welcomed by the president, Mrs. A. Malby. A letter from the Federation was read granting permission for the eKnner Collegiate to affilate with the Peterborough Home and School Council.

An invitation was extended to members to attend the annual Home and School meeting at the YWCA, Wednesday. Publications were displayed by Mrs. C. H. Spearin.

Collegiate students entertained with four songs: Finlandia, Blue Moons, Ramona, and My Task. The singers were Donna Moffat, Mary Blair, Doreen Hutchinson and Marlene Parnell. Marlene Dyer was accompanist.

Mrs. Malby introduced the guest speaker, Mr. J. R. Twigg, probation officer for Peterborough.

The speaker gave the types of punishment given to juvenile delinquents during the past 100 years. He explained that punishment won't change a criminal or delinquent unless they are willing to change.

Mr. Twigg said that there are 72 juvenile and family courts and 17 adult courts in Ontario. There is a national prison population of 43,000. The cost of keeping a prisoner for a year is $850.

Families of prisoners are eligible for relief, but suffer socially and the result is usually a broken home.

Court is held privately for juveniles, and family court is police court in a private setting.

In conclusion, Mr. Twigg explained that there are three kinds of homes: the homes where parents do too much nagging and criticizing; homes where the parents are selfish and children are left too much on their own; and homes where parents are mature and accept their children as individuals and treat them as such.

The greatest influence on children today is the school, where they learn to live according to social rules.

Mrs. G. Johnston thanked the speaker, and refreshments were served by the association executive.

Celebrate Golden Jubilees Of Two Sisters At Mount

On May 14, Ascension Thursday, at Mount St. Joseph, the Sisters of St. Joseph celebrated the golden jubilee of two of their members, Sister M. Geraldine and Sister M. Ligouri. The celebration included also, the silver jubilee of Sister St. Kevin.

Early in the morning the Sisters assembled in their beautiful chapel for high mass, sung by the Rev. F. J. McGuire, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral, a cousin of Sister St. Kevin. This was the opening ceremony of this day of special rejoicing and thanksgiving.

At 8 o'clock, His Excellency, Most Rev. Gerald Berry, Bishop of Peterborough, celebrated mass in the chapel. Addressing the Sisters, especially the Jubilarians, His Excellency said: "Rejoice and be glad on this happy day. The world needs many good women, many religious, and please God, the world will have them, perhaps not in abundance, but sufficient to bring about the spread of the love of Jesus Christ. This zeal for His love and His truth should fill the hearts of all of us, and I am sure, fills your hearts this morning. May it bring you the abundant joys of heaven. May it bring you to the mansions prepared for you by Our Lord."

Sister Geraldine entered the Community from the parish of Douro in 1903. She was a graduate of St. Joseph's Academy, Lindsay. Her life in the convent has been principally devoted to music. After teaching in Cobourg, Sault Ste. Marie and St. Mary's Convent, Peterborough, she was for nearly twenty years directress of the school of music of St. Joseph's Academy, Lindsay, and many graduates owe their proficiency in music to her outstanding ability as a teacher.

Church music claimed her devoted efforts, and her discerning attention to the details of liturgical singing was characteristic of her work. Since her retirement, Sister Geraldine has resided at Mount St. Joseph.

Sister M. Ligouri came to the Mount from the parish of Lindsay. Most of her religious life has been spent at hospital work, first at St. Joseph's Hospital, Port Arthur, where she graduated as a nurse. In November, 1907, St. Joseph's Hospital, Parry Sound, was opened, and Sister Ligouri was chosen to be one of the pioneers. Later she was placed in charge of that hospital. X-ray work was then in its infancy, and after following a course in Toronto, Sister fulfilled the arduous duties of X-ray technician at St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, for many years. Later she carried on most efficiently the work of laboratory technician, and that of record librarian. Sister Ligouri remains on the staff of St. Joseph's Hospital still, as always, spending herself generously in the service of the Master.

Another golden jubilarian, Sister M. Scholastica, is being honored at St. Joseph's Hospital, Estevan, Saskatchewan. Sister M. Alma, a sister of Sister St. Kevin, is celebrating her silver jubilee in Clandonald, Alberta. These Sisters entered from Ennismore, and their twenty-five years of religious life have been devoted to teaching school.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX:

Married On Rebound, Wife Has Only Bitter Regrets

DEAR MISS DIX: I married on the "rebound," and a day doesn't pass that I don't think of Jim, the man I really love. He was my high-school sweetheart (I'm 24 now). We broke up because of a difference in religion that my parents wouldn't countenance. Then I brought Bill home, and my folks liked him because he seemed to fit in with the family circle. So I married him. Now after two and a half years, I am tired trying to make things work out. Though Bill and I both work, I have bought only two dresses and one pair of shoes since our marriage—he believes in saving. He never takes me out, except to visit his folks (mine, we see once a month, but his every week-end). And always I have this feeling of wanting someone else. Incidentally, I don't even know if Jim is still unmarried.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The state of hopeless resignation into which your marriage has settled certainly holds no promise of happiness for either you or Bill, though apparently your husband doesn't realize it. Your problem is two-fold, but you are so completely engrossed in the past, that you can't begin to solve present problems — even though you are convinced that your efforts are sincere.

NO CO-OPERATION

No matter how little Bill is contributing to your marriage, you are giving far less. He lacks the initiative to meet and associate with new people; you seem to be only concerned as to how you and Jim can get together again. Perhaps if you and Jim could meet again, your illusions about him would be dispelled. You could then begin some constructive work on the immediate problem of getting Bill interested in getting out and spending money. Jim may be married, which alone should enable you to put him out of your mind.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 22, and for four years have been going with a man of 25. We have broken up several times—always at his instigation—and gone back together again. He says he loves me, and can't get me off his mind, but never a word about marriage. Our last break was three weeks ago and we've had one date since. Do you think I should keep dating him and do you think we'll ever marry?

VERA F.

ANSWER: The marriage prospects look rather slim. A man of 25 should have his mind made up after four years of dating one girl. If he hasn't popped the question yet, I doubt if he ever will. By this time you have gotten to be a habit with each other, with the quarrels and reconciliations becoming routine stuff. A new man is my prescription.

DEAR MISS DIX: I met my husband five years before we married. Prior to our marriage we got along fine, but since then everything is wrong. He's 28 and I'm 17. He's so jealous I can't step out of the house without him. He's a heavy drinker. Should I keep on living with him?

P. A.

ANSWER: He sounds like quite a problem for a 17-year-old girl to bear with. If you aren't happy you could probably have your marriage annulled on the ground of your youth. You need competent advice from a responsible adult. If your parents can't fill the bill, take your problem to your clergyman, or a family counselor.

IODE Chapter Receive Members

The 57th Regiment Chapter of the IODE met in the officers' mess of the Armouries Wednesday with the regent, Mrs. M. E. Clarke, presiding.

The following three new members were received: Mrs. A. Parrington, Mrs. P. DeMontigny and Mrs. Scollard.

A donation was made to the Winston Churchill Restoration Fund for Westminster Abbey.

Mrs. Clarke read a splendid report of the provincial convention in Hamilton which she attended in April. Mrs. H. Dodds reported a very successful military euchre at the Canadian Legion Hall, April 30.

Attractive nursery and personal bags were filled for children in England hospital. Several cards and letters were read including one from the chapter's adopted patient in Sunnybrook Hospital and from Mrs. M. Holt, president of the local cancer society.

The chapter decided to provide and serve the lunch for the September meeting of the Louis Braille Society.

The Old Curiosity Shop usually held in the spring is postponed to September.

Plans were made for a dinner party, June 17, at the Kawartha Golf Club. The dinner will be preceded by bridge and canasta in the afternoon.

Following the meeting members enjoyed a social hour and a lovely lunch served by Mrs. Dodds and assistants.

Princess Margaret Changed, She Has Now Grown Up

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—What's happened to Princess Margaret?

If everything court gossip says is true, there's been a change in the sunny young Princess of yesteryear—the fun-loving fashion plate who liked late parties, low-cut dresses and practical jokes.

Now, it seems, she prefers "sensible" clothes, stays out of night clubs and seldom indulges in frivolity. There is even a report that after the Coronation she may enter a religious order.

The likelihood is that if Margaret has changed there is reasonable explanation. The Princess who once stuffed acorns in the shoes of court attendants and danced a version of the can-can at a midnight party has grown up. A phase has ended. This normal process has been accelerated by the death of her father, King George VI, an event which naturally tends to make her think of serious rather than light-hearted things.

HIGH-SPIRITED GIRL

"Princesses are human beings, too, you know," a Buckingham Palace spokesman said. "It was only natural that Princess Margaret should like to have a good time. She is a girl of high spirits and considerable talent, and she may have been flattered at the attentions she received so young."

Her reactions to her father's death were to be expected. Unlike her sister, the Queen, she had no burdens of sovereignty to take her mind off her grief. She spent much time with the Queen Mother.

Persons who know Margaret say the King died at a time when she was already bored with her 'teen-aged ambition to stay out each night till the small hours. In her immediate circle, many friends had married, and changes in the Princess' way of life were inevitable. Queen Mary's death, coming so close to the Coronation, was another reason why Margaret stayed in the background.

Margaret has always been a religious person. She often attends lectures given during Lent at Lambeth Palace, official residence of the Archbishop of Canterbury. One Palace source said he wouldn't be surprised if she ultimately became a nun—a remark which possibly gave rise to widespread rumors that such a step was in prospect.

JUST CONJECTURE

Since then Buckingham Palace has been at pains to point out that any such report is founded on conjecture.

Warm-hearted, impulsive, a good conversationalist, Margaret has naturally turned at this more sombre period to quiet dinner parties with close friends. Court officials anticipate she is unlikely to return later to the artificiality of night-club life.

For all that, the 22-year-old Princess will find it hard to remain out of the limelight completely. After the Coronation she is sure to be part of the glamorous scene at Coronation balls, parties and racing at Ascot.

At the Coronation itself, Princess Margaret will sit in the royal box at Westminster Abbey with her mother. They will drive to the abbey from Clarence House, first home of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh. Furniture is going into the newly-decorated rooms and the royal ladies are expected to move in just before June 2, date of the crowning.

In the eyes of Buckingham Palace, Margaret's position in relation to the Crown is less important than it was before her sister became Queen. When both were Princesses, their status was pretty much the same. Now, a spokesman says, Margaret definitely takes a back seat. This naturally will have some influence on the attention she receives in the press.

Mary Moore Friday Readers'

QUESTION: Thank you for your help at Christmas... I love the core of pineapple and as I'm going to preserve 12 I would like to know the approximate number of calories in each core? I drink a large amount of tea... a magazine article said this encourages a spare tire... I was wondering if that is true... I'd like a recipe for headcheese using the pig's head... how do you preserve your pineapple? I'd like both open kettle and doing it in sealers. Last year I used the food chopper instead of grating. They turned out nice but I just guessed at the amount of sugar and it wasn't quite sweet enough... my Banana Cream Pie turns out lovely when I make it without a meringue, but when I put a meringue on it the filling all turns watery. What causes this?

I'm the proud owner of (an electric beater) and I'd like to make some marshmallows. My recipe doesn't make them stiff enough... I make Fig Bars which we like better than the bought ones. I use the same recipe as your fig cookies. I divide my dough evenly in 6 amounts and roll it out ⅛ inch but long and about 2½ inches wide. I put the filling on a line down the centre and moisten the edges half way round, then lap the other side over and pat down with a fork. I do this on a wax cover on the bread board and just roll it over on the cookie sheet. (I use tin foil on my cookie sheet.) I use 1½ lbs. figs, 3 cups water. Boil figs and water till mushy, then add ¾ cup sugar with 3 tablespoons flour. When cold cut in squares, same as bought ones. I bake till golden brown at 375 deg. F.... keep up the good work Mary... your homemade vegetable soup is scrumptious. I make soup one week and stew the next for my husband's thermos and when he likes something it must be really good as he's so fussy...

VICKY.

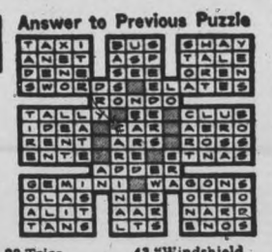
ANSWER: I'm very impressed with your treatment of fig bars and thank you for sharing your technique with us. It's hard to estimate the calories in a pineapple core but I don't think it would have more than 75—probably closer to 60 with all the cellulose it contains. I have no information on tea causing a spare tire—as you express it. For health's sake, I would suggest that you drink not more than 4 cups per day, and for all of the tea this eliminates make it up with water.

HEADCHEESE

A pig's head should be shaved, eyes, nostrils, ear-drums removed and soaked in cold water 1 hour. When it is perfectly clean boil in water to cover until meat separates. Chop meat, including the tongue. Save the liquid. If you have 25 lbs. meat add to it 1 gallon of strained liquor, ¾ lb. salt, 1½ oz. black pepper, ½ teaspoon cayenne pepper, and if desired, 1 oz. ground cloves. Mix well. Theoretically this should jelly when poured into loaf pans and chilled, but to make sure it does, meat packers add gelatin, allowing 1 tablespoon gelatin to each pint of liquid—so you would soak ½ cup (8 tablespoons) gelatin in 2 cups cold cooking liquor for 5 minutes, then dissolve it by stirring over hot water, then stir it into the mixed meat and liquor, then pour it into moulds to chill and set.

CANNED PINEAPPLE

Cold Pack: Pare, remove "eyes" from and slice or shred or coarsely grind fresh ripe pineapple. Pack into sterile jars. Fill to within ½-inch of top with "light" boiling hot syrup—which is 1 or 1¼ cups sugar to each 4 cups boiling water. Seal to within ⅛ turn of tight. Process in hot water bath—both pint and quart jars—30 minutes, after boiling begins. Cool as quickly as practical. Tighten seal —never loosen it.



Open kettle: Never recommended. Spoilage is too common.

For your meringue pies, spread the meringue right to the edge of the crust to make a seal between crust and meringue before baking, then the filling will not become watery.

MARSHMALLOWS: Soak 1 tablespoon gelatin in ¼ cup cold water 5 minutes. Boil 1 cup sugar with ½ cup each water and corn syrup to 240 deg. Fahr. Stir in soaked gelatin. Let stand to cool for 5 minutes. Beat with rotary or electric beater till thick and creamy. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla and ⅛ teaspoon salt. Pour to depth of 1 inch into buttered pan, generously sprinkled with icing sugar. Sprinkle top with icing sugar, and let stand overnight. Cut into squares with knife, constantly dipping it in hot water. Roll squares in powdered sugar.

6—In Memoriam

McDONALD—In loving memory of our son, Brian David.
Four years have passed since that sad day,
The one we loved was called away.
God took him home, it was his will,
But in our hearts he liveth still.
—Mommy and Daddy.

PATTON—In loving memory of Carleton Patton who passed away May 15, 1952.
O happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Sadly missed by his wife, Elizabeth, and his son, Bobby.

WOOD—In loving memory of Mrs. Eleanor M. Wood, who passed away May 15, 1952.
Sweet memories will linger forever,
Time cannot change them, it's true;
Years that may come cannot sever
Our loving remembrance of you.
—Ever remembered by daughter Irene and son-in-law Rae.

7—Card of Thanks

I wish to express my sincere thanks to doctors and nurses of Civic Hospital, Rev. H. K. Wright and all friends who called or sent fruit, flowers and cards during my stay in the hospital.—Mrs. Andrew Wrightly, Norwood.

Mere words are inadequate to express our gratitude to each and everyone who has helped us through these days of sorrow with beautiful flowers, words of sympathy and deeds of infinite kindness, we can only say "Thank you so much"—The family of the late Richard H. Walsh.

Mrs. Annella Blair and family wish to extend their heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the acts of kindness, messages of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings received from neighbours, relatives and many friends; also thanking attending Doctor, Rev. Pocock and Canadian Legion 402, especially thanking Rev. Heustin for his consoling words and help in the sad bereavement of a loving husband and father.
